Guards Will Celebrate 12th Birthday

PICTON (Staff) — Pomp and ceremony will be combined with entertainment as the First Battalion of the Canadian Guards at Camp Picton celebrates the 12th birthday of the regiment this weekend.

The birthday celebration will extend over three days, beginning today with the official opening of the Kyrenia, Club for junior ranks.

The new club will be officially opened at 7 p.m. by Lt. Col. W. N. Watson, DSO, MC, CD, who was commander of the Canadian contingent in Cyprus, when the Batialion was part of the peace-keeping force there. The new club is named after the town of Kyrenia in Cyprus, around which many of the Canadians were billeted.

Following the opening, there will be a junior canteen dance with music supplied by the Canadian Guards dance band.

Celebrations will begin Saturday morning with tabloid sports at 10 a.m., bringing together all ranks and their families for games and events such as volley-ball and three-legged races.

Saturday evening there will be the Birthday Balls in both the officers' and sergeants' messes, with music again supplied by the Guards Band.

All officers and their families will attend church on Sunday morning and lunch will be served in the officers' mess following the services.

TOWED TO KINGSTON

PICTON (Staff) — Pulled off a shoal at Point Traverse just before noon Tuesday, the Greek freighter Protostatus, was towed by tugs to Kingston Shipyards' drydock.

There was water in the engine room, indicating a hole in the hull. After examination at Kingston, the freighter, along with lighters and tugs, will proceed to Montreal.

The 10,000-ton cargo of scrap iron was removed to the barges before the big ship could be pulled free.

Reeve Reports Road Budget In Good Shape

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County has received $340,000 of its $486,700 road budget this year,

Reeve John Fox of Hallowell Township, chairman of the county roads committee, told council on Tuesday that another $20,000 is slated for rebate to municipalities in which road work has been undertaken; $40,000 has been set aside for the proposed new Melville bridge, and $20,000 is earmarked for three new trucks. These are expected to be delivered to the county soon, he said. The remaining $65,000 will go towards a culvert in Bloomfield and other highway work, he reported.

Mr. Fox reported that "all the stops are out" on the reconstruction of county road 15 as a detour around road 15 Sophiasburg Township. The work is scheduled for completion December 15th.

The development road will stretch for 8.4 miles to connect with the Quinte Sand and Gravel, which is also nearing completion.

"All the necessary appraisals will soon be ready for submission to the Ontario Municipal Board for public hearings if necessary," said Mr. Fox.

In other business, county council passed a by-law authorizing the signing of appropriation plans and agreements for county road No. 7, between lots 46 Bayside to lot 63 Bayside in North Marysburgh Township. The land is needed for improvements to the county road for five miles in the area.

NASSER'S DAUGHTER WEDS

CAIRO (AP)—President Nasser's second daughter, Mona, 17, was married Thursday to a young Egyptian army lieutenant, Ashraf Marawan, 23. Nasser's elder daughter, Hoda, was married a year ago to Hatem Sadek, a graduate of Cairo University's faculty of political science and economics.

County Council to Discuss Formation of an Authority

PICTON (Staff) — Next Tuesday will be an important day for members of Prince Edward County Council. It is the day they meet with representatives of the Conservation Branch of the Ontario Department of Energy and Resources to discuss the possibility of establishing a Conservation Authority in the county.

The first meeting will take place at Consecon at 2 p.m. Representing the county in the discussions will be Reeves Harold Bonter of Ameliasburg, Gordon Lloyd of Hillier, Donald Bond of South Marysburg and Warden Bernard Hepburn, the reeve of Picton.

In the evening, a reception and dinner will be held at the Royal Hotel in Picton, at which all county councillors are expected to be present. Earlier this year, when the Ontario government committee studying the province's water resources was holding hearings, county council was advised by Norris Whitney to request a study of county watersheds with a view to setting up a conservation authority. Mr. Whitney, M.L.A. for Prince Edward-Lennox, was a member of the committee.

He told council that such a study would not cost the county anything and, if it were found that such an authority was feasible, the department would pay 50 per cent of the cost. The other municipalities would contribute the rest.

If a conservation authority were established in Prince Edward County it would be the first one in Ontario not tied to a specific river basin.

Basically, conservation authorities are designed to make the best possible use of water reserves within a given area. The Ontario government, through the Conservation Branch, makes grants available for dams and other means of controlling water flow.

The need for action in Prince Edward County has increased during the past few years, owing to serious drought conditions during the summer months. County council hopes that the meeting on Tuesday will pay the way for some overall plan to conserve the county's reserves, thereby ensuring that no one need suffer during hot dry spells.

By ED WALTERS

HALIFAX (CP)—Seven old buildings representing a significant chapter of Venturesome Canadian history stand on the Halifax waterfront awaiting an uncertain fate.

History - conscious citizens and groups want them preserved but city plans for a harbor-side drive mean they may be demolished.

A committee of aldermen and private citizens has been organized to survey old structures in the downtown and waterfront districts and decide which of them can and should be preserved for posterity.

One proposal is to include some of them in a waterfront area centering on a new court house, aquarium and maritime museum.

The three oldest structures recall the exploits and keen business acumen of a Nova Scotia sailor who used privateering loot to found a financial institution which grew into what is known today as the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Capt. Enos Collins, shipowner, master mariner and born opportunist, built his first stone warehouse about 1800. It is one of the seven. The storage space was put to good use during the war of 1812 between Britain and the United States.

SEIZED U.S. SHIPS

Capt. Collins, armed with letters of marque — authorizing privateering—went roving along the American coast and soon U.S. merchant ships were being chased, boarded and sent as prizes to Halifax. While New Englanders ranted impotently against this "piracy" their goods were stowed in the warehouse awaiting sale to the highest bidder.

Any of the Americans who knew of Collins's ancestry probably were further galled. He was a direct descendant of one of the Pilgrim Fathers although he had been born in Liverpool, N.S., from where he went to sea at 15.

Collins had a knack of confounding his critics. He bought at an auction here the captured slave ship Black Joke and renamed her Liverpool Packet. The ship under her old name also had apparently been a pirate at one time because she is remembered as such in the folklore of southwestern Newfoundland.

Halifax shipowners viewed the rakish vessel with disdain, as she had little carrying capacity, being designed for speed. But under Collins's able hand during the war she became rich in incident to the pots of legend and paid for herself many times over.

Her depredations of the American coast forced the U.S. to construct the Cape Cod canal through which their domestic shipping could pass in safety. She was captured once by the Americans but was retaken by another Nova Scotia vessel and Collins brought her back.

FOUNDED BANK

He was one of the few Halifax merchants to emerge intact from the depression following the war. His business prospered and in 1820 he founded the Halifax Banking Company, an outgrowth of the days when he changed and took care of privateers's gold. The building he put up to house the bank is still standing, the oldest original bank structure in Canada.

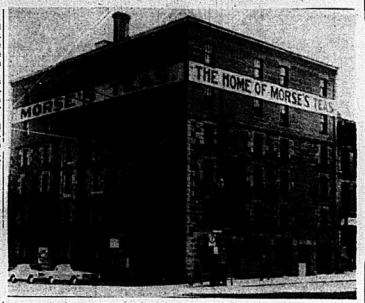
Another structure is still known as "Collins's red store." The others belong to the shipping firm of Pickford and Black, to a tobacco distributor and the three warehouses is occupied by Morse's tea firm. The newest of the seven buildings was erected in 1820.

Mayor Charles Vaughan said the committee could approach the problem with one of two views, either to demolish the buildings or to move them into a compact unit.

Alderman Robert Matheson said "These buildings shouldn't be demolished without a study being made of the restoration possibilities. . . ."

Another alderman, Allan Butler, said the vital question to be resolved was how the buildings would be maintained after restoration.

Mayor Vaughan, who has indicated in the past he had little interest in saving the buildings, said "There is no attempt by the city of Halifax to go out tomorrow and demolish the buildings."



LANDMARK BUILT BY PRIVATEER — Historical groups in Halifax are fighting to preserve this stone warehouse on the city's waterfront. The building is one of seven built in the early 1800's by Capt. Enos Collins who made a fortune as a privateer in the War of 1812 and founded a financial house which grew into the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. The building, along with the other six, is in danger of being demolished to make a harbor-side drive. (CP Photo)

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Readers frequently ask about not readily agree, and refund the wisdom of being a party in your money, contact an officer "ballooning" sales prices so of the bank, the local real es-that a larger mortgage can be tate board and your state real obtained. The technique and the estate commission.
consequences of this act is explained below.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: As a mature and responsible person, I know it is wrong to lie. Having been forced into a lie, however, everybody from the salesman to the mortgage lender is conspiring in the lie as if it were normal business practice.

I started out trying to buy a house with only $1,000 cash. I found a $12,000 house I liked. The salesman then presented me my signature an agreement showing the price at $15,000. Instead of the $1,000 deposit I had given him, the agreement showed that I had placed a $4,000 deposit. Therefore, I owed only an $11,000 balance — the arithmetic came out right. The salesman then had me make an application for an $11,000 mortgage which was approved.

I am now getting second thoughts about the lie, but the salesman, the mortgage clerk and others tell me that this is the way the whole world operates. I would welcome your opinion. — Conscience Stricken

ANSWER: Immediately stop the whirling of this type of mad world and get off. You are a party to an unethical and illegal act.

The salesman has ballooned the price in order to obtain an illegal mortgage. A complaint to the real estate commission or the real estate board will quickly remove him from the real estate business. The mortgage clerk is just as guilty. You can be held liable for a false mortgage application.

Tell the salesman you do not want to be part of a conspiracy and that you wish to cancel the transaction. If he does answer as many letters as possible through his column.

New Steps To Eliminate Disease Shown

SEATTLE (AP)—Significant new steps toward duplicating life in a test tube—and eventual elimination of disease — were disclosed Wednesday at a meeting of the National Academy of Sciences.

Dr. Sol Spiegelman, who last month announced synthesis in a laboratory of a self-propagating infectious viral acid, said Wednesday further study shows the substance "has the two key attributes of living entities."

These are, he told a press conference, the ability to make more of itself and the ability to mutate, or change.

The substance is ribonucleic acid (RNA), which is the genetic or heredity-carrying material of certain viruses.

Dr. Spiegelman pointed out that higher life forms need an additional substance, deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA), to propagate themselves and that synthesis of DNA will be much more difficult.

Thus, artificial creation of higher life forms is still many years away, Dr. Spiegelman said.

Thousands Demonstrate In Score of U.S. Cities Against Viet Nam War

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of persons protested U.S. involvement in Viet Nam in demonstrations Friday in more than a score of American cities.

More demonstrations were planned for today in an organized weekend of protest.

In California, a major clash had been feared between 10,000 demonstrators and spectators in the largest protest march of the day, but there was little disorder.

The demonstrators attempted a protest march from Berkeley to Oakland, but police-men barred their way. National guardsmen had been on standby alert.

The marchers vowed to try again today.

A crowd of spectators estimated at 1,000 got between the marchers and police and eggs were thrown on the demonstrators from rooftops jammed with onlookers.

BURNS CARD

In New York City, a student burned his draft card during a rally outside the armed forces induction center. This is one of the first to do so since destruction of the cards was made a federal crime.

Hecklers threw eggs at 40 pickets in Chicago and there was a minor scuffle. A bystander smashed a placard carried by a marcher and tried to strike him, but a policeman stepped between them. There were no arrests.

Most of the demonstrators across the U.S. were college students, but there nonetheless were few in comparison to the enrollments of the schools they attend.

Police across the U.S. prepared today to meet a new onslaught of demonstrators. Some involved all-night vigils. Between 500 and a thousand students from a Oregon campus planned a protest rally today in Salem on the Capitol steps. Tom McCall, Oregon state secretary, closed the Capitol to all but state employees for the first time in recent memory.

An all-night vigil at Portland, Ore., by 30 students was planned before 11 p.m. They gathered Friday afternoon in the cold and wet before the army induction centre.

The centre was selected "because we have to disrupt the mechanics of war," said Robert Mandell of Reed College.

Across New Zealand, rallies, demonstrations and parades were scheduled today at colleges. A veterans' group in Bennington, Vt., said it would hold a counter-demonstration when students from Bennington College join with Williams College students in a 17-mile march from Bennington to Williamstown, Mass.

Says Congress Was Ignored

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Lettering on the mail box of the shabby two-story frame house identifies the place as headquarters of the National Co-ordinating Committee to end the War in Viet Nam.

Committee chairman Emspak, 22, called the demonstrations in about 100 cities "the international days of protest."

"We entered this war without debate," he said, "and we want to show our disgust with using Viet Nam as a laboratory for our new destructive ideas."

"The war in Viet Nam actually is a danger to democracy in the U.S. because it ignores the right of Congress to make war or peace," he contended.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Today should bring mild temperatures and considerable sunshine to all parts of Ontario as a high pressure area moves across the province. Showers are forecast for northern and central Ontario on Sunday and some increase in cloudiness over southern Ontario. Temperatures will remain mild throughout the weekend.

NEW YORK (AP)—Several student groups appeared to be on a collision course with the U.S. justice department today after Senator John Stennis denounced "unwarranted and disgraceful campaign" to help young men avoid the U.S. military draft.

But whether they will be prosecuted is a decision the department hasn't made yet.

Stennis, in a Senate speech, urged the administration "to immediately move in forcibly this movement up by the roots and grind it to bits."

The student groups defended their coast-to-coast protest marches, speeches and pamphleteering as morally justified, and even necessary.

Stennis cited a series of CBS television news programs last week which, he said, "described and presented interviews from some of the schools of instruction being conducted to teach young American men ways of evading service to their country.

DESCRIBES MOVES

"In addition and more seriously," the Mississippi Democrat said, "it showed the leaders of this organized effort attempting to spread the philosophy that every American has the right to refuse to fight in any war . . . that he does not personally approve."

"My reply," said David Mitchell, a 22-year-old Brooklyn resident active in the anti-draft movement, "is that we are justified in the present context of American policy to refuse the draft and build a movement of refusal . . ."

Mitchell, free on bail pending appeal of his Sept. 16 conviction for violating Selective Service (draft) laws, is one of those who maintains that individuals have a moral duty to oppose what they consider to be criminal actions by the governments.

He appeared on the program Stennis referred to, and commented:

"If you remember the Nuremberg trials after the Second World War, the Germans were brought up on charges for submitting to orders and laws of their nation which really were acting as a protective shield around the crimes of the Nazis. The Nuremburg trials established the principle that individuals must refuse to participate in such crimes, that it's up to them to make what the government orders them to do, illegal."

CROSSED FINGERS were not quite enough for Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Barriage of Rossmore who held a ticket on a 50-1 shot in today's sweepstakes race. The horse didn't finish in the money but the Barriages will receive an estimated $1,100 for holding a starter ticket.

Klan Terror Tactics Modern, Bombs Replacing Tar and Rope

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Lynching, tarring and feathering Negroes, burning crosses in the night—these are the activities normally associated with the Ku Klux Klan, the secret, racist-terror organization that will come under congressional investigation next week.

But in fact, the 100-year-old Klan, notorious for its white hoods and gowns, has gone with the times in its methods. The acts of terror expected to be mentioned most often are shootings, bomb attacks on civil rights centres, and economic intimidation.

More than 290 witnesses have been invited by the un-American activities committee of the House of Representatives for its investigation, beginning next Tuesday, into the Klan's efforts to maintain white supremacy in the southern United States.

"Liberal" members of the committee, which ironically has a southern majority, are determined to tear the hoods down and expose the real face of the klan," a staff assistant said.

They hope that the investigation, expected to last several months, will provide evidence that klan members were involved in the shootings of civil rights workers, in some of the frequent explosive attacks that rocked civil rights centres, Negro churches and schools throughout the south, and other illegal acts of terror and intimidation.

Based on such evidence, the committee could then make legislative recommendations "to curtail planned violence," an assistant said.

But first it will have to clear up the many mysteries that surround the klan, like the hoods and bed-sheets formerly used to disguise the identity of its members.

There is not just one klan but an estimated 10 to 15 separate organizations, and their total membership can only be guessed at. The estimate considered most reliable puts it around 40,000 to 50,000.

Apart from trying to establish such bare facts, the committee will have to deal with the archaic language, symbols and command structure of the "invisible empire."

Plain Old-fashioned Water Added to Election Issues

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Add plain old-fashioned water to the growing list of election issues.

Prime Minister Pearson disclosed Friday night that his government is planning talks with the United States about exports or diversions of Canadian water.

He said in a free-time CBC telecast that the supply of water is getting scarce in the U.S., adding "and we have . . . well, we have lots of water."

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker charged in Alberta earlier this week that the government appeared willing to "pull the plug on one of our most vital resources."

Mr. Pearson's comments contrasted with recent speeches by Resources Minister Laing, who criticized U.S. proposals to divert Canadian bodies of water.

To complicate the situation further, former Conservative resources minister Alvin Hamilton disagreed with Mr. Diefenbaker and came out strongly for water exports in an interview in Nelson, B.C., Friday.

Mr. Pearson devoted most of his 15-minute TV talk to old age pensions—he promised to triple pensions of $100 or more a month to needy persons—but near the end he suddenly switched to the subject of water exports.

"This can be one of the most important developments in our history. This can be as important as exporting wheat or oil or anything else—exporting water—and one day we'll find out how important this resource is.

"But we have to be awfully careful now to make arrangements which will not take care of our own needs in the future."

Mr. Laing said in an interview at Saskatoon Sept. 30 that diversion of Canadian water to the U.S. is not necessary.

He said that while some persons argued that water should be treated as a continental rather than national resource, "there is no such thing as a continental resource."

"This resource is ours. We own it."

Mr. Diefenbaker has accused the government of ignoring the problem of preserving Canada's water.

In a speech at Medicine Hat Tuesday he said a Conservative government would not agree to divert water to the U.S. under a continental plan. "We believe this would mean the shipping away of Canadian sovereignty."

He first proposed a national water policy in a speech at Winnipeg Sept. 21 when he said it would cover conservation and pollution control.

Mr. Pearson said Friday that water conservation and pollution in the Great Lakes both are continental or international problems.

The recent report to the Canadian and American governments by former ambassadors Arnold Heeney and Livingston Merchant recommended that a "continental approach" be

No Bonanza For Tickets Held Here

High hopes and crossed fingers were not quite enough today for Mrs. Gerald Barriage and her husband of Rossmore, who held a ticket on Ghyll Manor, one of the starters in the Irish Sweepstakes race at Cambridgeshire, England.

The Barriage horse, a 50 to 1 shot, failed to place in the race, but the Belleville area couple will receive an estimated $1,100 as a ticket holder on a starter.

Two other persons in the Belleville area held tickets on horses in the race and will get $1,100 each. Claud Gill of Belleville held a ticket on "Super Sam," a non-starter, while a Trenton person with the nom-de-plume "Lillybet" held a ticket on "Off the Hook," also a starter.

"I've been buying sweepstake tickets for years but have always put them away and never thought anything about them," Mrs. Barriage said when informed that she had drawn a winning ticket.

"This time it was different as I have kept my ticket in my purse and have a purchased it.

Mrs. Barriage's nom - de - plume "Lillybet," was chosen after the name of her young granddaughter.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Barriage work at Corby's and have lived at Rossmore, across the bay from Belleville, for many years.

Despite their high interest in today's race, it was not holiday for Mr. and Mrs. Barriage. They learned of the results of the race while at work at Corby's—but within hearing distance of a portable radio.

DEFERS DEBATE

UNITED NATIONS. (Reuters) — The United Nations General Assembly agreed Friday to defer for at least a week the start of its inevitably bitter debate on the question of Communist Chinese representation.

Second was Karelia and third Langley Park.

Tarogican started at 100 to 8, Karelia at 22 to 1, and Langley Park at 100 to 8. The fourth horse was Indian Echo at 20 to 1. Joint favorites at 6 to 1 were Minoo Portion and off the block.

Tarogican won by seven lengths separating second and third.

Three Canadians today won prizes of $150,000 each on Irish Sweepstakes tickets held on Tarogican who won the Cambridgeshire Handicap at Newmarket, England. Seven won $60,000 each with tickets on second-place Karelia, and one won $30,000 with a ticket on Langley Park, who came third.

Following is a list of the Canadian ticketholders in the first three horses, with horse's name or nom-de-plume and hometown:

Karelia—CJS 80768, Evelyn Truro; CMH-79994, Nardy, Vancouver; DXE 87680, Marc Pilon, Montreal; 38095, Hopeful, Harrow, Ont.; DTN 58565, Goody., Ottawa; DTN 58582, This Is It, Toronto, CHM 57410, Tabahid, Calgary.

The race result brought a total of about $200,000 in prizes to Canadians from the international lottery held three times annually in the hospitals in the Irish Republic. The Cambridgeshire sweep is the last of the year.

In addition to the big prizes, there were also Canadians who drew tickets on non-starters or horses who finished out of the money and collect prizes of about $1,100 each, based on the total of the pool. Tickets were drawn on all 45 eligible horses, but only 30 started.

United Appeal Total $39,574

The United Appeal office reports that returns are starting to come in well, but asks that canvassers please make their returns as soon as possible. The campaign is running about even with last year's, but signs for the future are very encouraging.

The Air Force personnel residing in Belleville are highly organized and have already been conducting a successful drive among themselves. Their returns are still reaping benefits.

Belleville's medium-sized industries are responding to the United Appeal with excellent returns, McFarlane Gendron stapled its giving of its liberal and experienced a much higher percentage of employee participation.

Anyone not reached in his place of business or not canvassed for any reason, and wishing to donate to the United Appeal can do so by taking his donation or mailing it to the United Appeal Headquarters, 160 Front Street across from the City Hall in the old Ontario Intelligencer building.

Give Wilson Answer Monday

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Prime Minister Ian Smith said today Britain will reply Monday to Britain's proposal to send a Commonwealth premiers' mission here to discuss the crucial issue of Rhodesian independence.

Prime Minister Wilson of Britain proposed the Commonwealth mission after the breakdown of Rhodesian - British talks on the issue of independence for the white - ruled African colony.

Smith said Friday night a decision is near on the matter of Rhodesia unilaterally declaring independence, which British aim has refused to grant under the present constitution which deprives the majority of Rhodesia's blacks of political rights.

After an informal meeting of cabinet ministers, Smith said he thinks the next full cabinet meeting will make the crucial decision. Although he did not specify when this meeting will be held, he implied that it will take place before the next regular one Tuesday.

Four prominent British industrialists arrived in Salisbury Friday and immediately began talks to warn the Rhodesian government of the economic consequences of a unilateral declaration of independence.

The mission represents British businessmen and industrialists with about £150,000,000 ($450,000,000) in investments in the African colony.

Friday's cabinet meeting was the third in three days since Smith returned Tuesday from discussions in London with Wilson and other British leaders. No agreement was reached in the London talks.

Sukarno Wants Tito-Style CP

JAKARTA (AP) — President Sukarno is trying to regain full control of his government and build a civil war in Indonesia by reorganizing the Communist movement.

His proposals would eliminate the pro-Peking Indonesian Communist party (PKI) run by D. N. Aidit and replace it with the Indonesian Communist Association.

The new party would have no international alignment but would be based strictly on Indonesian self-interest and would support Sukarno's revolutionary campaign.

Sukarno's hatchet man, First Deputy Prime Minister Subandrio, is conducting his campaign with the army and the leading Moslem political organizations.

Sukarno needs a Communist organization to implement his theory of Nasakom—a grouping of nationalists, religious and Communists in Indonesia—to direct the government with himself as leader.

The leadership supports Nasakom in principle but has opposed its immediate formation because of the PKI, which it feels has been aiming to take over the country with the help of China.

If the army accepts Sukarno's new party proposal, the drive against the Communists would be halted and Sukarno would be back in complete control.

Temple Protests Curtailing Of Train Service to Ottawa

Robert Temple, member for South Hastings in the last Parliament, has voiced his opposition to a change in the CNR passenger train schedule which will have the effect of curtailing train service between Belleville and Ottawa.

On Oct. 30 the last CNR-CPR pool trains will run between Toronto and Montreal. After that date, each railroad will operate its own passenger trains. As a result, the CNR trains will not make connections with the Canadian Pacific service between Brockville and Ottawa.

Mr. Temple, in a telegram to CNR president Donald Gordon, suggested an alternative could be found by rerouting the service over a branch line running from Napanee.

The telegram warned the proposal would be a "great inconvenience for the people of this area."

"Citizens of this area must have passenger train service to Canada's capital," he added.

Air Jamboree Opened by Boy Scouts

OTTAWA (CP) — The Boy Scout World Bureau has four extra antenna masts and towers in operation this weekend for their annual Jamboree-on-the-air.

The Jamboree started Friday night when three short wave stations went on the air here. They will be manned until Sunday night by scouts seeking radio contact with other scouts throughout the world.

The call CQ Jamboree is expected to hear from hundreds of stations in all continents.

The 44-year-old native of Croydon, England, who came to Ottawa in 1958, said Friday the bureau received advance notices that 400 stations each in Canada and Australia, 32 in England, 250 across Africa and others in the United States, Paraguay and the Philippines will be active on the air this weekend.

Mal-Gen. D. C. Spry, retiring director of the World Bureau, Sunday afternoon will take part the jamboree in Ottawa as his last official function.

OBITUARY

BOB CHARLES HENRY STINTON
(Madoc)

Charles Henry Stinton, Madoc area carpenter, died Friday afternoon in Belleville General Hospital. He was in his 64th year.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Stinton, he was born in Huntingdon township and had lived for the past 35 years in Madoc where he worked as a carpenter. Prior to coming to Madoc, he had lived in Point Anne. He was a member of the United Church.

A bachelor, he is survived by two brothers George of Montreal and Frederick of Hull, Quebec, and a sister, Mrs. Melissa Sedore of Point Anne.

The funeral will be held Monday from the John R. Bush Funeral Home in Belleville with interment in Belleville Cemetery.

PETER POLICUYKO

Stricken with a heart attack at his home, R.R. 3, Belleville, late last evening, Peter Policuyko, retired member of the Point Anne Cement Company died suddenly early this Saturday morning. He had never experienced a sick day in his life until the sudden seizure.

He was born in Austria 72 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Policuyko and had been a resident of this area for the past 55 years. On coming from Austria he entered the employment of the Canada Cement Co. and spent 27 years with the company, retiring in 1954. He had lived at his present address for the past 33 years.

Mr. Policuyko was a member of the United Church and is survived by his wife, the former Margaret (Mollie) Stasynsky; one son, Alex Policuyko of Willowdale; one brother, Andrew Policuyko in the Ukraine and one sister, Mrs. Michael (Maria) Mazda of the same address.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home from where the funeral will be held on Tuesday with Rev. Morgan G. McFarlane officiating. Interment in Belleville cemetery.

The North American water and power alliance, a project put forward this year by a Los Angeles engineering firm and debated in the U.S. Congress, would involve a series of canals in Western Canada to divert water to the U.S.

Mr. Pearson said his government will propose to the provinces that pensions ranging between $75 and $150 a month be paid to elderly persons with no other source of income and who cannot get by on the present $75 pension.

The federal government will pay large shares of the cost of the new program and the provinces would finance the rest.

PLEDGES ARE 'AUCTIONS'

The Liberal leader said his opponents are engaging in irresponsible auctioning with the voters' money when they promise to boost the flat-rate pension to $100 a month from $75 only over 65. This would cost $300,000,000 — a sum not to be too much for the economy to bear.

The prime minister rounded out his day by opening a youth conference on underdeveloped countries, opening a $10,000,000 addition to Ottawa Civic and Hull, Que., and catching up with bride's mail.

Today he flies to Fredericton and Charlottetown and returns to Ottawa tonight.

Mr. Diefenbaker, speaking Friday in Prince George and Vancouver, said the Liberal charges that the Liberal government lacks integrity and direction are false.

"They are going to make every Canadian not of French or English origin a second-class citizen," he said in Prince George. "I will not accept that proposition. I will not let there be a breath in my body."

AID SHIPBUILDING

Later in Vancouver 200 persons in Victoria that a Conservative government would restore the 15-per-cent subsidizing policy and eliminate the means tests for blind and disabled allowances.

Today, Mr. Diefenbaker was whistle-stopping from Vancouver to Kamloops in the B.C. interior. He will continue to Winnipeg Sunday.

New Democratic Leader Douglas said in Peterborough that an NDP government would put an immediate bill of rights and set up a prices board to prevent "unjustified" increases in prices for goods and services. A ceiling would be placed on interest rates charged by finance companies.

Today Mr. Douglas flies to Woodstock to attend a dinner marking his 30th year in politics. He flies back to Toronto Sunday.

Social Credit Leader Thompson said in Camrose, Alta., that the Liberal and Conservative parties have deserted their traditional principles and embraced "state-stalled" and socialism. Today he is campaigning in his Red Deer constituency.

SENTENCED FOR BEATING

TORONTO (CP) — Sean Thomas Noonan, 21, of suburban Downsview was sentenced Friday to one year in prison for beating his wife so severely that the child may suffer permanent brain damage.

LOCAL SALES ORGANIZATION SUCCESSFUL ON SALES CONTEST

Midnight, Friday, October 8th, wound up the annual stock reduction and accelerated clearance sale at Elliott Motors (Belleville) Ltd., Belleville's Pontiac-Acadian, Vauxhall and GMC Truck Dealer.

This sale was very successful and the salesmen of the dealership had the opportunity to achieve points in a contest sponsored by Elliotts for each new or used vehicle sold during the sale period. The sales group had to achieve a quota of new and used vehicle deliveries for the contest period in order for the first prize to be awarded, that of an all expense paid Thanksgiving Weekend in New York for the salesman and his wife.

The group exceeded the quota by quite a few units and on Saturday morning, Bryan Bowen, Salesmanager, for the firm presented the salesman with the highest sales — no bogie — Mr. Art. Gough, with plans tickets, prepaid hotel reservations and expense money for his success in winning first prize. Second prize of an Admiral 19" Portable Television was presented to Mr. Carman Pilchett and Third Prize of an Electrohome Electric Clock Radio was presented to Francis Jeffrey. Six Consolation Prizes were presented to the runners-up: Ken Handle, Bob McMullen, Gerry Way, John Conway, Dick Rustee and Gerald Brickman.

73 Strikers Suspended From Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — Seventy-three strikers were suspended from their jobs and six others sued for damages in major labor developments in the wildcat strikes that broke out three weeks ago, halting operations of 85 Ontario trucking companies.

Inter-City Truck Lines Ltd., of Toronto, announced the suspensions of eight employees in Toronto, and 65 others at its Windsor operations for refusing to obey union orders to return to work.

Inter-City was the first firm to be hit by the wildcatters, who are demanding a 40-hour week from the current 48 hour without reduction in the basic $2 hourly wage rate. The company relies refuse to negotiate until the men, members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.), return to work.

Estimates varied—from 7,000 to 12,000 truckers have involved because of their hit-and-run tactics. But a spokesman for the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario, which represents 1,200 trucking firms, said Friday only companies in southwestern Ontario now are affected by the unauthorized walkouts. Many of the wildcat members have been voting through the week to return to work.

SUE SIX

A Teamster official announced in Toronto that the Toronto local 938 are being sued by Direct Winters Transport Ltd. for $100,000 in damages arising from picketing activities at the firms premises.

The injunction and damages has been served on the men restraining them from "picketing or attempting to induce or unlawfully interfere" with employees of the company.

Meanwhile, the Automotive association announced a $20,000 reward fund to "stamp out acts of violence and malicious damage" in connection with the strike. It said rewards will be paid from the fund for evidence for the arrest and conviction of those responsible for any act of violence, assault, intimidation or obstruction.

The association is putting up $10,000 of the total reward money.

Inter-City is offering $5,000 for information about those who dropped a cement block from an overhead bridge on the Queen Elizabeth of Toronto Oct. 8 on Highway 401 near Oakville. The truck driver was killed instantly.

Overland Express Co. Ltd. of Woodstock also offers $5,000 for information about a fire in their St. Catharines terminal Oct. 12.

Before the talks broke down over the work week hours, Teamster negotiators had tentatively agreed to settle for a 33-cent-an-hour wage increase over 3½ years.

An out-of-court settlement in an automobile accident case before the current Ontario Supreme Court Assizes in Brockville has brought damages of $31,000 for two Bancroft men.

Alfred Hubert W. Brooks endorsed the award of $21,000 to John H. Wilson and $10,000 to Alfred Hubert W. Brooks on Gary W. Layman, of Killaloe.

In the action, the first civil claims ever heard before the assizes which opened this week, arose from an accident in Aug. use 1964 on Highway 62, near the Hybla road.

Wilson was the driver and Mrlaclow a passenger in a car which collided with a vehicle driven by Layman.

Trenton Man Severely Hurt In Car Crash

TRENTON — Donald Howard Orr, a 22-year-old Trenton man living at 90 Wraggs St., is in Trenton District Hospital with face lacerations and possible concussion, following a two-car collision in Trenton at midnight last night, which resulted in both hydro and water being temporarily cut off.

Mr. Orr's car collided with another vehicle driven by Gordon Moffett, 43, of R.R. 2, Trenton, at the corner of Dundas and McColl streets.

After the collision, the Moffett car veered to the side of the street shearing off a hydro pole and knocking over a fire hydrant.

Passing Motion For Donations Will Be Made

TRENTON — At this week's meeting of the Trenton Lions' Club, S. O. Graham made the motion that the club donate $1,000 to the current C.N.I.B. campaign.

Donald McPherson moved that the local club contribute $1,000 towards expansion of the camp for the blind at Lake Joseph.

As this is the first motion on both items, a passing motion will be made at a later meeting.

Grace United Church Marks 90th Birthday

TRENTON — Grace United Church on Dundas Street East will celebrate its 90th anniversary on Sunday. Minister at the church is Rev. Harry A. Layton, but the anniversary services will be taken by Rev. M. G. McFarlane of Belleville in the morning and Dr. H. E. D. Ashford of King Street United Church, Trenton, in the afternoon.

In the fall of 1873, during the ministry of Rev. R. W. Marsh, a new church was built by the Methodist Episcopal congregation of Trenton in the town hall, and the congregations had been holding its services. The proceeds amounted to $200. A piece of ground was donated by John Ross. In June, 1874, Rev. Wm. Sills became pastor of the new church and soon. The building was completed in the fall of 1875. Oct. 14 was the Dedication Day.

Some of the early members were Caleb Saylor, John Ross, John Lewis, Jacob Knox, Peter Vandervoort, Frederick Keeler, John Row, Tobias Westfall, J. Presley Dench, Samuel Mayhew, James Hyde, George Van Alstine, Benjamin Billings, George E. Meyers, Mrs. H. W. Osborne.

With the union of 1884 when the Methodist Church of Canada, the Methodist Episcopal Church of Canada, the Primitive Methodist Church in Canada and the Bible Christian Church of Canada united to form the Methodist Church, Grace Church and Johnstown were set apart as one circuit and Rev. George W. Dewey took charge. In June, 1925, the church became one of the United Church of Canada.

IN MEMORIAM

SOPHA, Tracy Lynn — In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister who passed away one year ago today, October 17, 1964.
One year has passed.
Since then we've cried
Silent tears we've hid
Memories we've kept
You're in our hearts,
Will always be.
Our darling daughter,
We love you so.
Sadly missed and always remembered by Daddy and brothers Stephen and Jimmy.

SOPHA — In loving memory of Sophia Lynn Sopha who passed away one year ago, October 17, 1964.
God needed a rosebud
He chose you.
Sadly missed, but always remembered by grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dingle.

ETHER — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Elizabeth (Elizabeth), who passed away October 16, 1964.
Deep in the heart lies a picture
Of one we loved so dear
A heart that's kind and loving
Because she was one of the best.
God took her home, it was so her
Eternal rest.
And now we know it was best.
Sadly missed by her loving daughter, Doris.

But I think of the mother I had,
Not a day do I forget you,
Not a day do I regret you,
For I love you and miss you.
Lovingly remembered by daughter Theresa and son-in-law Ken Hall, Lloyd and Keep St.

MERRICK — In loving memory of Rev. Thomas Merrick, who died Reverend Walter Richard Merrick, who passed away October 16th, 1961.
Today recalls the memory
Of a loved one dear to me
A heart that's kind of him today.
He was always there to help me
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
Our tribute shall be
But the love for him who lies beneath
Will never fade.

Canvasses Go Good Despite Date Mix-up

TRENTON — Through a mix-up in dates, three local organizations held their "mop over" into each other's 1965 fund raising campaigns, and the heads of all three societies have been afraid results might be poor because of this.

However, this does not seem to be the case. Canvassers have been secured, and early returns for two of the campaigns are good.

The Trenton - Brighton and District Association for the Retarded, report $3,500 raised in a good year. Mrs. Doris Webb was in charge of the local canvassers.

Mrs. S. G. Graham, heading up canvassers in Trenton for the Canadian Institute of the Blind, hasn't been able to come up with any figures as yet, but thinks the canvass went over well.

Yesterday, the Trenton and area Victorian Order of Nurses' branches started off on a week-long fund raising campaign, with between 85 and 90 canvassers. Monday night, October 18th will be Blitz Night, and doorbells will be ringing.

Mrs. Leona Coward, VON canvass chairman in Trenton, said yesterday, canvassers for Gould Street, Lt. Leonard Street area and the Bay Street area were still needed. The VON hopes to raise $2,000 this year.

Letters have been sent out to industry and businessmen asking for contributions, and while some returns have come in, a more personal approach may have to be taken in cases where the letters have not been answered.

While VON nurses collect fees when patients can pay, much of their work is not paid for, and the branch must make good the costs involved.

INQUEST SET

QUEBEC (CP)—An inquest into the deaths of four men believed slain by the underworld in connection with arson cases in Montreal will be held next Monday, the Quebec justice department announced Friday.

How are you going to feed her?

Sometimes it takes drought conditions like those suffered in Eastern Ontario to make dairymen appreciate the value of forage feed produced in their fields. Every extra mouthful your produce helps keep outside purchases down.

To get more forage from your fields you need an Agrico Fall Fertilizer Program. It will pay off in extra yield, extra grazing days and extra feed value for the animal.

AGRICO FALL RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Topdress pasture and hayland to boost yields, extend grazing time and improve nutritive content.
2. Topdress alsifa and other legumes this fall to build a vigorous stand that will resist winter stress and get off to a fast start in the Spring.
3. Use Agrico bulk delivery and bulk spreader services.

SAVE TIME—spread 30—40 acres per hour.
SAVE LABOUR—no bags to handle.

Agrico's new 4-ton spreaders are available for your use at a nominal cost.

See your local Agrico representative today and let him help you with your Fall Fertilizer Program.

Easter Seal Drive Planned At Meeting

The Easter Seal campaign conducted on behalf of crippled children is several months away, but it was the main topic of discussion at the District Meeting of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children on Thursday, October 14th in Trenton.

At this meeting, representatives from Service Clubs in the Counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward met with officials of the Society to plan the organization of the 1966 Easter Seal campaign to be held in their communities between March 10 and April 10. Reports by each club on their work with crippled children in the past year, revealed the many services such as camp holidays, transportation to treatment centres and hospitals, supplying of braces, wheelchairs and other such equipment, were all being efficiently handled by the Service Club in co-operation with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Chairman Shoniker of Trenton stated that the Service Clubs responsibilities in the interests of crippled children is a major project with each club and demands a great deal of voluntary time and personal interest by Service Club members.

Delegates attending the meeting represented Belleville, Lions, Belleville Rotary, Madoc Kiwanis, Napanee Rotary, Picton Rotary, Stirling Rotary and Trenton Rotary.

Representatives from the Rotary Club of Belleville were Enos David, Chairman, Crippled Children committee; Fred Assett, Director for Crippled Children, Stan Barber and Rube Freeman. Bill Riley, Chairman Easter Seal committee.

Mary Russell, an employee of American Optical Company Canada Limited, inspection department, hands her United Appeal pledge card to Marg Carson, sitting, supervisor, inspection department. Jean Hughes, left, another employee of the inspection department, waits in turn to hand her pledge card in. Looking on at right are Geneva Muir, assistant in-plant co-ordinator for the Appeal, and Stephen Choma, personnel manager and in-plant campaign co-ordinator. The inspection department had 78 per cent participation in the campaign this year.

Pierre Sevigny Admits Going To Doyle Party

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Sevigny said Friday he stopped briefly at an election-night party in mining promoter John Doyle's Montreal hotel suite in 1963.

A book by Dr. Guy Marceau, Social Credit member in the last Parliament, says Mr. Doyle "took it upon himself" at a party in the Windsor Hotel that night to assure that the Liberals formed a government.

Dr. Marceau also says that an influential French-Canadian lawyer and member of the Conservative party who had become a sworn enemy of party leader Diefenbaker wanted to know how much he would ask to support the Liberal party.

Mr. Sevigny, here to autograph his own political memoirs, This Game of Politics, at a downtown bookstore, said in an interview he hasn't read the Marceaux book.

"He has his story," said Mr. Sevigny, who isn't a lawyer.

WAS DEPRESSED

The former associate defence minister said he felt depressed after losing his Montreal-area seat of Longueuil in the 1963 election.

Someone—he didn't know who —called him from the Doyle suite at the Windsor Hotel, expressed their sympathies, and suggested he drop by for a drink.

"There were a great many people there. Some I knew and some I didn't know."

Beyond expressions of sympathy, the talk wasn't political, he said. Neither were the people for the most part, he added.

He and his wife stayed about 20 minutes, then went home.

Mr. Sevigny said he and Mr. Doyle had been on friendly terms for about 15 years. They weren't business associates.

Mr. Sevigny reiterated his support for Conservative Leader Diefenbaker and said he may speak on behalf of friends but in this campaign, for the most part, he is "on the outside looking in."

Douglas Terms PC Demand Ridiculous

TORONTO (CP)—New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas Friday described as ridiculous a demand by a Conservative for the resignation of Transport Minister Pickersgill.

Mr. Douglas, while reiterating that there should be an investigation of allegations made against Mr. Pickersgill and others by Dr. Guy Marceau, nevertheless said those involved should be presumed innocent until proven guilty.

Dr. Marceaux said in a pamphlet published this week that Mr. Pickersgill was one of those responsible for persuading six Social Credit MPs to pledge voting against the Parliament to a minority Liberal government after the general election of April, 1963.

Mr. Douglas was asked at a press conference whether he agreed with the Conservatives that Mr. Pickersgill should step down. "I wouldn't think so," he replied. "It's always a mistake to start judging people guilty before they are proven guilty."

At a press conference in Galt, Thursday, the NDP leader had called for a judicial investigation into the whole affair. But he said later that to demand Mr. Pickersgill's resignation before an enquiry was even begun "would be a bit ridiculous."

Otherwise existing ministers would be resigning every day whenever charges were made against them, he said.

The demand for Mr. Pickersgill's resignation was voiced in St. John's, Nfld., Thursday by former solicitor-general William Browne, speaking in St. John's East, where he is the Conservative candidate.

American Optical Shows Big Increase in Giving

Stephen Choma, personnel manager, American Optical Company Canada Limited, and campaign co-ordinator for the company's in-plant United Appeal, reports the company is doing extremely well in this year's campaign.

"The employees seem to be putting an all-out effort into the campaign this year," Mr. Choma said. "And of course, management has been right behind it.

As an example of the kind of participation in the United Appeal that American Optical has been experiencing from its employees, one department, the Inspection Department, has a record of 78 per cent of the staff contributing.

The campaign at American Optical seems to reflect the general trend in all Belleville's industries, big, medium and small. Employees in all the plants are giving this year to the United Appeal as never before.

Iroquois Hold 3-day Parley

TORONTO (CP)—A panel of Iroquois Indian speakers opened a three-day conference Friday with wide-ranging criticism of the white man's handling of Indian affairs.

Representatives of 40,000 Iroquois in North America are attending the conference at the Iroquois Speak, in a downtown hotel.

At the first session the Iroquois were joined by Kahn-Tineta Horn, a Mohawk model from Caughnawaga, near Montreal.

Points made by the panel included:

—Iroquois do not want to vote in federal elections because they consider themselves members of a separate nation;

—They reject the Indian Act as a violation of treaties between the Crown and the Indian confederacy;

—Band councils are elected under the act to be stooges for the federal government;

—Iroquois living in Quebec are English - speaking and don't want to speak French;

—Indian affairs should be kept within federal jurisdiction.

Poll Voting Lists Being Mailed Out

Poll voting lists for the forth coming November 8th federal election are now being mailed out to Belleville and Trenton residents from the Hastings-South returning officer's headquarters in the city.

Returning officer William MacTassel said these lists should be in the hands of voters by early next week and urged voters to check to determine if their names were listed.

For those persons whose name may have been missed, Mr. VanTassel asked that they call the returning office and a revising officer will contact them.

If omitted names are not added in this way, persons whose names have been left off the lists will have to attend revision courts being held on October 21-22-23.

Russian Wins Nobel Prize For Literature

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Russia's Mikhail Sholokhov was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature Friday and there was immediate speculation in literary circles on whether he would accept it.

A Stockholm publisher said: "I would not be at all surprised if he was forced to decline the prize in view of the sharp words he used when Pasternak won seven years ago."

The reference was to the 1958 Nobel award to Russia's Boris Pasternak for his controversial novel Doctor Zhivago.

Sholokhov, a confirmed Communist and a member of the Supreme Soviet, accused the Swedish Academy at that time of not being properly objective in its "judgment of the literary value of authors."

The prize, worth 282,000 crowns ($59,000) this year, is given annually in December to the person who has produced "the most remarkable (literary) work of an idealistic nature."

Pasternak, whose novel was smuggled out of Russia to be published, declined the award. He remained in official disgrace until he died in 1960 but recently there have been signs of a move to rehabilitate his name.

Sholokhov is 60. His works have been published in 73 languages and have had a total circulation of 41,000,000 copies in the Soviet Union alone.

Water Policy

One of the big issues of the day has to do with water resources—the availability of water, and its uses. Yet it is one that is being evaded by most of the candidates in the election.

Conservative party leader John Diefenbaker did mention the subject in a speech in Medicine Hat the other day. He said Canada's water resources are being "recklessly wasted," that by the 1980's Canada could be a nation without a usable water supply, and that Resources Minister Laing is prepared to consider diversion of Canadian rivers to the United States under a continental water program.

But Mr. Laing has given no hard and fast undertaking. What he did say—in Saskatoon—recently—was that it would be soon enough to talk about continental resources in respect to water when "American markets become continental markets, when American capital becomes continental capital, and when U.S. technology becomes continental technology."

The difficulty with these pronouncements, however, is that they bear little or no relationship to any policy on water, give no real clue as to how Canada's water resources are going to be used in the years ahead. That Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Laing had to say leaves Canadians as much in the dark as they were before. Their statements represented little more than "election talk."

Meanwhile the Americans are apparently looking less on Canada as an unlimited reservoir to alleviate their water shortage, and more on the need to purify and harness their own water resources.

At an international conference in Washington recently, Donald F. Hornig, an adviser to the Johnson administration from the president's office of science and technology, said long-range water transfers should be delayed because "we need to look at some of the other things we can do more effectively and cheaply."

Canadian Press correspondent Arch MacKenzie points out moreover that the U.S. government at present seems to subscribe to the views expressed in Montreal earlier this month by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission and a strong opponent of exporting water.

Gen. McNaughton said: "The fact is that the U.S. does not need Canadian water. All that is necessary is for them to process their abundant supplies of dirty water."

Reserved, But Friendly!

Canadians are a reserved people; that is one reason why we are not the well-known around the world. We do thing quietly, without fuss, and have a reputation for reliability. In the process, however, there is a tendency to hide the light of Canadian personality under the proverbial bushel.

One of a group of British journalists touring Canada said in Montreal recently that generally "we have found Canadians less reserved than the British but without the sometimes overwhelming bonhomie of the Americans."

The visitor, Robert Brennan, assistant editor of Woman's Own, added: "I think this is one of the most warm—in terms of friendly—countries I have ever visited."

This, from a visitor to our shores is interesting, for there is that other impression Canadiarfs tend to give among themselves, at least, of a sombre unsmiling people, reflected in the stony faces one observes in the serious business world of say, downtown Toronto.

But Globe and Mail columnist Richard J. Needham sees Toronto as a place that is improving all the time, in terms of cosmopolitan interest and commercial and industrial development. He says that with a population that has doubled since the war, the city in consequence, has "twice as much excitement . . . talent and enterprise and fun."

Still, Mr. Needham feels Toronto and Canada need even more people. In human terms he sees Canada becoming a much more interesting country as a result. We might add there is the need too for skilled people to contribute to the development of further burgeoning economy. However, it is as well to repeat here the warning that the increasing complexity of today's work standards, especially in the technical field, leaves little room for anyone who does not have the necessary professional training.

Aussie Liquor Law

The Australian state of Victoria has decided to put a stop to the former 10 minutes of drinking known as the "Six-o'clock Swill." This is the picturesque title given to the 6 p.m. closing law which fills pubs to overflowing from the time offices and plants close at 5 p.m.

Victoria's Chief Secretary, Arthur Rylah, said the bill extending closing time to 10 p.m. is a blueprint "for civilized drinking in Australia."

However, it may take time for citizens of Victoria to get accustomed to the idea. The 5 to 6 p.m. stint with his mates has long since become a ritual for the Australian working man, just as it has in New Zealand.

South Africa's Racial Policy

The Editor,
The Intelligencer

It is startling (shocking might be better) to find a Canadian newspaper giving modified support to the apartheid policy of South Africa as you did in last Saturday's edition. Because of apartheid South Africa was all but forced out of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Because of apartheid the international commission of jurists has banned South Africa a pariestate.

Your editorial concluded that "... despite government controls and repressive measures directed against individuals and groups who advocate more liberal policies it would appear that the South African natives on the whole are not badly off."

If you feel that "on the whole (they) are not badly off" perhaps you ought to refresh your memory, or learn for the first time, what apartheid means.

It means separate development in which 11½ million Africans are forced to live on a segregated 13% of the nation's land while 3¼ million whites live on 87% of it. As no African can own land outside this 13%, it means that 5 to 6 million Africans have no chance of ever owning a small piece of land on which to have a home of their own. Apartheid means that Africans cannot move more than five miles from their homes for more than a few days without having a "visa" stamp in his pass book which every African must carry. (In 1963, 360,000 Africans were convicted of the "criminal offence" of being discovered without their pass books on their persons.)

Apartheid means the 90-day Detention Act by which hundreds of Africans have been committed to 90 days of solitary confinement without writing or reading -material (except the Bible — an irony unnoticed by the South African government, to be sure); and note this, in most cases they are committed to this confinement without the benefit of trial.

Apartheid means the Job Control Act which governs employment and keeps non-whites in menial tasks.

Apartheid means migratory Labor Laws by which scores of thousands of male Africans are brought to cities to work under contract for 2 or 3 years, but their wives and children are not permitted to accompany them (18,000 such married men live in segregated "bachelor quarters" in Capetown). Sir Francis de Guingand may argue that such jobs show that the South African native is doing well economically, but has Sir Francis considered what this has done to human dignity and how it is destroying normal social ties between human beings?

Apartheid means a country of 17½ million citizens in which only 3½ million (all whites) are allowed to vote. You tacitly support Sir Francis when he says, "If universal franchise were granted, the non-whites would take over the country and chaos would result . . ." I believe that basically the same argument is being used in denying the vote to the "ignorant" negro in the southern United States. Do you subscribe to the same policy being put into effect there?

So Sir Francis de Guingand wants to remind us that ". . . the first European settlers entered the country (South Africa) before Africans in any numbers and were given territories to the north." If he uses this fact as justification for his country's policies and he, or you, suggest that this is legitimate reasoning, perhaps, we might apply it to Canada. It would create the interesting situation in which a relative handful of North American Indians would bully the large white population, probably forcing us to live in reservations in a small corner of the Northwest Territories.

Sir Francis also supports his country's policy of apartheid by the reminder that "the black and white races have been living together in Africa for more than 300 years." Well isn't that fine, but perhaps you should have editorially consulted some other "authority" than Sir Francis de Guingand to see whether this co-habitation has been a blessing or a curse for the black people. His comment has a familiar ring to it. It is the cry of the racists in the South when the world's conscience will not be stilled by the dialectic civil rights movement to keep out, and I suspect it was the cry of the dialectic slave-driven Lincoln signed the emancipation proclamation in 1863.

You say that none of South Africa's U.N. detractors have advanced any satisfactory alternatives to apartheid. They certainly have! Non-Apartheid!! To demand that the U.N. provide an alternative to apartheid before South Africa gets rid of it is like demanding that the doctor find an alternative to the disease before he goes ahead and cures it. The present cure to apartheid is non-apartheid, because apartheid is group slavery, it violates the will of God, it violates the universal charter of human rights.

Thank God the U.N. decegates walked out on the South African representative. Perhaps in this way they will bring world pressure upon South Africa and force the White minority to abandon an evil policy. The delegates were absolutely right in walking out. And if you and your news-paper support apartheid, then we, your readers who believe in freedom, equality and democracy, perhaps would be absolutely right in walking out on you, too!

(Rev.) G. A. Southall

Editor's Note: This newspaper holds no brief for apartheid as such, or for discrimination against Negroes in the southern states on this continent. It has, moreover, expressed its opposition editorially to such practices, both from an economic standpoint — and that was the main burden of our editorial — any immediate or radical change in the South African system, involving say the enfranchisement of the Negroes would, in our opinion, invite the gravest risks to which Sir Francis de Guingand alluded. In his lengthy rebuttal of our editorial Mr. Southall has read more into it than was actually expressed.

Favors Bridge At College St.

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I heartily agree with the person who wrote the letter published in Saturday's issue of your paper. He advocated a four - lane bridge over the river at College Street. Some people would be glad to have even a two - lane bridge there. When I see the fire reels tearing down College Street on an average of once a week on their way to Hillcrest or Canniffon, I wonder how they negotiate the one - lane bridge without causing a disaster. In the rush hours the traffic there is backed up to Moira Street on the west side and almost to the railroad tracks on the east side. College Street is one of the main arteries of traffic.

Years ago when some people agitated for a bridge across the river at Dundas Street, others objected, saying tourists would go through Belleville without stopping to shop. That is what would happen today.

Petit Mal Type of Epilepsy Can Be Easily Controlled

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can "petit epilepsy" be cured or just controlled? My daughter, now 16, has symptoms. She loses control of her hands and knees, and has spasms that make her drop whatever is in her hand. The spasm is so slight it is hardly noticeable. It becomes worse when she is upset or nervous.

She had an emotional shock when she was 13, and this has been happening ever since. Could this be just nerves or hysteria? She had an encephalogram which showed a slight disturbance in one section. What is your advice? — Mrs. D.C.

* * *

I can answer only some of your questions. Does your daughter have epilepsy? I wouldn't attempt to say. She has, from your letter, the symptoms, and the encephalogram (brain wave test) evidently is a borderline affair.

There are two chief categories of epilepsy, the petit mal type, which means frequent, very brief episodes, lasting a second or so; and the grand mal type, which means that the epileptic doesn't pause at first but are severe, the patient going into violent convulsions, falling down, losing consciousness for quite some minutes.

With the petit mal form (without medication) there can be many attacks in a single day. They don't last long, and, may be so slight that they don't do anything except, perhaps, make a person pause for a moment in the midst of a sentence, or something like that.

* * *

There is no cause to think that emotional shocks cause epilepsy; however, if the patient is developing, tensions certainly can bring on attacks.

There is no way to cure epilepsy; however, it can be controlled to a degree undreamed of two or three decades ago, and-convulsive drugs, which can be taken daily and lifelong, prevent a vast number of seizures entirely, and make others less severe. It is possible although not likely that your daughter's spasms and dropping things are from nerves or hysteria, and time and further tests will give you an answer.

If she has some degree of epilepsy, nervous tension will trigger attacks.

* * *

My suggestion, at this distance, is to assume, for the time being, that she has epilepsy, and should be studied until the best combination of drugs is worked out for her. As the epilepsy — if that is it — comes under control, her nerves will relax and her spasms won't occur as often. Indeed, large numbers of people with epilepsy go along year after year with no trouble at all, because they use anti-convulsant drugs that have been tailored to their needs.

In fact, in a case like this, I would much prefer to find that petit mal epilepsy was the problem, rather than nerves or hysteria, because the latter would have to be extremely strong to cause such symptoms.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: What is meant by an electrocardiograph reading of within normal limits? Does it mean it could be better? — Mrs. M. M.

It means normal — nothing that warrants worrying about. There is a substantial difference between normal people in many regards: blood-pressure, temperature, weight, and so on, and not an exact, rigid right figure.

So far as that is concerned, an E.C.G. can show an abnormality something other than within normal limits, and still not be alarming.

Dief the 'Lone Wolf' Now Hungers for People

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Notes from the Campaign Trail, — When you've known John Diefenbaker, more or less intimately, and watched him on Parliament Hill and campaign trails for 25 unbroken years, you see that suddenly this is a strikingly different man.

The old, always interesting, sometimes fascinating and usually surprising Diefenbaker has changed while remaining all these things.

Not that he isn't still an intriguing human being, a compelling personality, and in a continuously amazing way a dynamic force — with an almost frightening metabolic rate that persuades this Old Age Pensioner he never belongs to the Pepsi Generation.

It is just that the proud old political eagle has lost some of those fine feathers.

What perhaps too many people in recent years, and not without reason, took to be arrogance — remember those cartoons, still being drawn and printed, showing the caricature of Dief sailing on water — suddenly has vanished.

It disappeared over the hard haul of the three campaigning weeks, and that, in the context of 25 years, is overnight.

LONER NO MORE

Not that he has acquired instant humility.

Never that.

But after years of being the self-contained, aloofly proud man, remote in his own dreams of glory, and going it grandly alone, just now he has discovered that he needs people.

The only people he ever confessed to really needing were the three women in his life — his old Mother, whom he visited, with faithfully devoted regularity, up until her death only a couple of years ago . . . his first wife, Edna . . . and in his later years, his present wife, Olive.

It wouldn't be unfair to say that most, if not all other people, he didn't think he needed — although he did use them.

He made a proud point of being the Lone Ranger, and perhaps because instinctively they sensed he felt he didn't need them — except in the House — the back-bench two tries before Conservatives gave him the Party leadership — he accepted it almost as a personal possession, and if it wasn't just about the first Diefenbaker property at the start, it quickly became that.

And so was the 1957 election in which he won power, and certainly in the '58 and to a lesser extent in the '62 campaigns, it was "The Diefenbaker Party" rather than the Conservative Party, and openly billed as just that.

But in those first three campaigns, it was the Party and its candidates who were the serenely imaginal Diefenbaker coattails.

LIBERAL APPEAL

Now, in what has to be his last campaign, look who's riding the coattails.

It was his initiative, not theirs.

Suddenly, after all those proud and lonely years, he found he needed people. Urgently. It has become almost a hunger.

Watch him on the platform as he smiles at Hollow Water, as whom he is appearing in the constituency — see his eyes crinkle with amusement at one of "my old friend," as so many of them are.

He is pleading for votes now, not in his own name, but in theirs.

No longer the Diefenbaker Party, it is the Conservative Party, and he is grateful, even proud to say so.

Never before has he put so much public emphasis on constituency candidates — likely in realization that if the election is to be won, it is very much or even more than he, will have to do the winning.

And so that appeal he is making to the Liberals—yes the Liberals — something he never would have dreamed of on Butzaria; British submarines sank five German transports in the Baltic Sea; Italian forces advanced on the western shore of Lake Garda.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—Anthony Eden flew to Egypt to discuss the defence of Egypt with General Wavell; HMS Liverpool was announced damaged by aircraft torpedoes in the Mediterranean. Western Union cable service from New York to London was broken off for nine hours; Brig. E. W. Sansom was promoted major - general and appointed to command the 3rd Canadian Division.

"Come home," he invites them, "come in out of the Parti cold."

And some of them may, for this is a different Dief, and, as Frederick "Big Daddy" Gardiner of Metro Toronto said with evident satisfaction the other night, the Conservative Party is "back doing business at the old stand."

Although the appearance of potato balls in district potato patches is sufficiently frequent enough that the majority of farmers have a fair knowledge of their identity, there are still farmers as well as city dwellers not yet acquainted with their identity. This was demonstrated on a Sidney township farmer brought to the city a potato vine bearing potato balls.

The farmer had never seen the balls before and was at a loss as to their identity, while one of the local newspaper office staff dubbed them as some kind of tomato.

Department of Agriculture officials rightfully named them potato balls which appear infrequently as a growing for the most part on weak or unfertilized land. It was stated that if the matured balls are dried and the seed they cont a ine sown, progeny of various varieties would result.

NDP Leader Would Protect Buying Public

By BO BEXELL

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A proposed blackout on references to political scandal by New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas was lifted momentarily here Friday night as he charged that the "tentacles of the underworld" were reaching up into the councils of the nation.

This was his only mention of crime in a 70-minute speech to an overflow rally in an 850-seat high school auditorium.

On the positive side, he promised that a New Democratic government would enact a consumers' bill of rights to protect the buying public.

While Mr. Douglas, in his press conferences, has commented openly on questions such as the Quebec bankruptcies and the affair of six Social Credit MPs who pledged support to the Liberals, in his campaign speeches he has carefully avoided such issues.

But he lapsed from this policy Friday night as he was listing for his audience a number of reasons why he said voters are fed up and disillusioned with the old parties—the Liberals and Conservatives.

DOES NOTHING

"You see the tentacles of the underworld reaching up into the councils of the nation, and the government doing nothing about it except trying to sweep it under the rug," he said.

It was his only word on the matter. Mr. Douglas has said he wants to convince the people to vote for a positive NDP program, rather than merely attempt to make them vote against the old parties.

This election the New Democrats are presenting the voters with the most intelligent, talented and competent candidates ever, he said.

"We could give the people of Canada the best and ablest government they've ever had in living memory."

Hitting at the cost of living, Mr. Douglas said an NDP government would put a ceiling on interest rates charged by finance companies and would force disclosure of true interest rates in instalment buying.

PROMISES BILL

One of the first things an NDP government would do would be to present Parliament with a consumers' bill of rights establishing a prices board to prevent unjustified increases in prices of goods and services which affect our cost of living."

"Our party believes that the Canadian consumer has the right to protection from the gyps and frauds and extravagances which are forcing up the cost of living, creating hardship for millions of Canadians on fixed incomes, pensions and annuities," he added.

The New Democrats would establish a national industrial development corporation which would use personal savings for investment in the economy, stressing the processing of primary products at home.

Diefenbaker Heckled by Peace Group

By STEWART MacLEOD

VICTORIA (CP) — Shouting against the organized heckling by a peace group, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker said Friday night that if American troops withdraw from Viet Nam "Southeast Asia will fall to communism."

Against shouts of "what about Viet Nam?" "what about peace?" and "Yankee go home!" the 70-year-old leader told the youthful hecklers they were taking the easy stand without knowing the consequences.

What they suggest, he said, "will not be the solution for solving the problem for them in the years ahead."

Several times in the vast armouries Mr. Diefenbaker was drowned out by the chanting of hecklers, who identified themselves as members of the Victoria - based Peace Action League.

The spokesman for the group was Brad Jensen, who said he was a former RCAF pilot now dedicated to peace.

RESTORE SUBSIDIES

About 2,000 persons were in the armories to hear Mr. Diefenbaker expand his previously announced party platform by saying that shipbuilding subsidies would be restored and the means test eliminated for disability and blind allowances.

He also said that farms would be given tax relief for half of their expenditures on trade fairs and international exhibitions. This would encourage more Canadian exports, he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the shipbuilding industry had been detrimentally affected by the Liberal government's action in suspending the 35-per-cent federal subsidy.

A Conservative government would restore it and ensure that the West Coast had a "fair and equitable share" of the Canadian shipbuilding industry.

A Conservative government would also ensure that changes are made in the retirement allowances for civil servants and RCMP personnel.

PLEADS GUILTY

TORONTO (CP) — George Miller, 27-year-old city hall clerk who admitted fixing traffic tickets, told a court Friday he took over the racket from a man who quit before him. Miller, a clerk in the magistrate's court office, pleaded guilty to obstructing justice and was remanded to Oct. 19 for sentencing.

Socred Leader Critical of Calling Vote

By JANE BECKER

CAMROSE, Alta. (CP)—Robert Thompson, national Social Credit leader, in fighting form after a flying trip to Edmonton and a day of mainstreeting through central Alberta, struck at both the Liberal and Conservative parties in a speech Friday.

He scored Prime Minister Pearson for calling the Nov. 8 election, saying it was "not in accord with the sense of fair play of democratic government" because it was held before redistribution of Commons seats could be completed.

Mr. Pearson called the election, "against the advice of much of his cabinet, and his party caucus, after a private organization took a poll and said he would get 165 seats," Mr. Thompson said.

"This is so ridiculous it is almost impossible to believe he took it seriously. The same poll said I wouldn't take Red Deer this time." (Red Deer is Mr. Thompson's home constituency.)

SAYS THEY'RE SOCIALISTS

He said the Liberals' medical insurance scheme, offered in July "to provincial premiers, was "drafted by socialists in the Liberal party—Kent (Tom Kent, a top Pearson aide), Marchand, and Pelletier—who are not responsible to Parliament for their actions."

(Jean Marchand and Gerard Pelletier, both from Quebec, are running for the first time as Liberals in the coming election.)

He said a majority Liberal government "would put Canada into the arms of socialism as fast as the New Democratic Party would, if they were in office."

One of the things of which he was "most ashamed" in the Commons, he said, was Conservative MPs from Alberta "berating and misrepresenting the province and its government." They viewed Parliament as a political arena, rather than a place to carry out their responsibilities.

Wilson More Determined To End East-West Blockade

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Having mastered a nasty economic crisis at home, Prime Minister Wilson now enters his second year of office with a far more freedom and more determination to end the East-West deadlock, even if this means irritating West Germany and questioning United States foreign policy.

Wilson maintains that he has a close relationship with the United States, which his left wing has criticized, and that it will become even closer in 1966. Yet he also thinks the most important and most urgent task is to get an agreement with the Soviet Union to block the spread of nuclear weapons.

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin has indicated the price for such an agreement is the abandonment of British and U.S. proposals to allow West Germany to share in NATO nuclear strategy and control the United States has rejected this Soviet demand and during his first year in office Wilson continued quietly with Washington policy.

But in recent weeks Wilson's foreign secretary, Michael Stewart, has openly questioned the value of pursuing the idea of an Atlantic nuclear force when it conflicts with the bigger prize of a nuclear non-dissemination pact with Russia.

NOTHING MORE IMPORTANT

And now Wilson says in an interview there is nothing more important than a non-dissemination pact, a conviction that may raise a storm in Bonn, where the Erhard government suspects the British Labor administration leans too heavily toward Moscow.

The urgency in which Wilson portrays the need of a non-dissemination agreement appears puzzling, in the absence of any indication that the Soviet Union has any intention of helping anybody get nuclear weapons or even a share in control of them.

And while a Moscow-London-Washington pledge to block the transfer of such weapons may help ease the concern and fear of some non-nuclear countries, it may not help at all else if it does not include China, which has started to manufacture nuclear weapons of its own. China shows not the least interest in joining a non-dissemination pact or other agreement in which the Soviet Union, Britain and the United States are involved.

More important, perhaps, is Wilson's Western non-dissemination agreement with the Soviet Union could end the current deadlock and increase the prospects of fruitful negotiations with Moscow in other fields.

Many diplomatic strategists suggest the West is not taking full advantage of the Moscow-Peking split. Successful agreements, involving minor Western concessions, might entice the Soviet Union to move closer to the West.

But Moscow may be playing a different game.

In working to keep West Germany out of the Western nuclear group, the Russians may merely be planning to keep NATO off balance, to promote dissension and suspicion among its members, dangling before Britain something which, in the end, they may not be prepared to give.

Darabaner Said Not Member of Liberal Group

QUEBEC (CP) — The chief Quebec organizers for the federal and provincial Liberal parties said at a press conference Friday that Quebec businessman Maise Darabaner, awaiting trial here on fraud and arson charges, "has never been a member of the Liberal organization at any level whatsoever."

The joint announcement was made by Senator Maurice Bourget, chairman of the Quebec organization committee of the federal Liberal party, and Lesold Langlois, chairman of the provincial Liberal organization committee.

"He (Darabaner) has never been a Liberal organizer or agent," the two chief organizers said in a written statement. "We have never seen him and we do not know him."

Darabaner is one of seven persons arrested following an investigation of the operations of an arson ring and a fraudulent bankruptcy ring in Quebec.

Automatic Gear Box Put In Wee Cars

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Britain's automobile industry has hit what appears to be a prospective gold mine—the refinement of the automatic gearbox so that can be fitted to the country's smallest and lowest-priced models, the British Motor Corp.'s Morris and Austin 848 and 1100.

The changeover is being made in a desperate attempt to boost exports.

A corporation spokesman said some of the models will be ready for delivery in Canada and other countries by next spring, or possibly a bit earlier. But assembly plants will still remain at home.

Full details of this motor revolution were to be kept secret until the opening of the annual motor show next Wednesday.

But Sir Patrick Hennessy, president of the Motor Manufacturers Society, gave more than a broad hint when told reporters Tuesday of the "milestone in the adoption of fully automatic transmission in the small car."

The secret: After three years of research, the giant British Motor Corp. had scored a major triumph. Now the country's top sellers—the 848 and 1100 models—could find it easier to compete abroad against the popular German Volkswagen.

Prices will be higher. One published forecast is that the automatic transmission will add another £30 ($90) or so to the domestic and export price, but the manufacturers are convinced the comfort and economy once will offset the higher cost.

In terms of tony cars, the Daf of The Netherlands has an automatic model but it employs rubber belts. Britain will now claim it has the tiniest fully automatic car employing torque converters.

With Canadian anti-dumping restrictions eased earlier this year, the British industry anticipates its sales to Canada will increase but because of "grave and insuperable difficulties," there won't be British assembly plants in Canada.

Spotlight Seat

Hazen Argue Attempting Comeback in Assiniboia

By JIM NEAVES

ASSINIBOIA, Sask. (CP) — Political leaders are taking careful aim at the rural constituency of Assiniboia where veteran politician Hazen Argue is attempting a comeback in the Nov. 8 federal election.

Mr. Argue, 44, a grain farmer once pegged as a potential Liberal agriculture minister in Ottawa after he changed his politics, held the seat for 18 years —17 as a Co-operative Commonwealth Federation member.

He retained it as a Liberal by 353 votes in the 1962 general election but lost to farmer Lawrence Watson by 2,062 votes when the Conservatives swept all 17 seats in Saskatchewan in 1963.

His opposition this time is Mr. Watson and John Wilson, 27, a Weyburn accountant making his debut in federal politics for the New Democratic Party.

All three parties have lined up a powerhouse of speakers for the Assiniboia campaign. They include Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, Liberal Senator A. H. McDonald, T. C. Douglas, national leader of the NDP, Saskatchewan CCF Leader Woodrow Lloyd and national Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

Agriculture is the main theme in the agricultural constituency which covers a wide tract of prime wheat-growing land.

Mr. Argue, who returned to farming after his 1963 defeat, believes in the two-price system for wheat—a lower price for export wheat compared with the price of wheat used in domestic consumption. This would permit Canadian wheat to compete more widely for markets with wheat from other countries.

Mr. Argue told a campaign meeting the Liberal government sold more wheat in three years than the Conservatives sold in their best five years in office.

Mr. Watson says lack of action by the Liberals on behalf of western farmers is the main issue.

Mr. Wilson wants companies in Canada owned by U.S. interests to conduct their business in line with Canadian regulations.

He cited the case of large U.S.-owned milling companies which are not permitted to trade with China because of U.S. trade restrictions. Mr. Wilson said Canada would have been unable to supply flour to China had it not been for small Canadian-owned mills.

Replace Old Anti-Freeze In Your Car

B.Y EUGENE B. HILMOE

When you're putting in antifreeze this fall, don't merely add some if you still have last year's solution in the cooling system. Drain, flush and put in a fresh fill, especially if your car is two years (or more) old. Otherwise, you're inviting excessive rust or corrosion formation, and eventual clogging.

And, whether your car is old or new, play safe and have the anti-freeze solution checked once or twice during the winter months to be certain it still provides adequate protection. Your service station can test it in just a few minutes with a hydrometer.

* * *

In addition, any rust or other contaminants in the solution can be spotted during this hydrometer check. Here's alone can save you from cooling system troubles later on.

* * *

G. L. asks: "If the distributor point gap adjustment is off, how does this affect the ignition operation?"

Too narrow retards the timing . . . too wide advances it.

* * *

From B. K. "I've tried soap and water, but can't remove the black exhaust deposit on my rear bumper. Steel wool cleans it, but I'm afraid it may leave scratches and eventually, rust streaks."

No need for steel wool. Your auto supply store has products which remove this soot, as well as tar and oil streaks, too.

* * *

O. P. writes: "You claim that brake service is needed if the car pulls to one side. You can't be right if the car does this when the brakes are off!"

Oh, yes. This can happen if one front brake is dragging.

* * *

From P. T.: "Our car burns too much oil, yet it's a '62 which has gone only 18,373 miles. The garage says leaking piston rings are the reason, but I can't believe the rings would be worn so much after so little mileage."

Wear isn't the only cause of ring leakage. It could be due to gum and sludge deposits which cause sticking.

Refugees Say Things Tough In Cuba

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Refugees arriving by the strange Cuban "ferry service" say a world of scarcity lies beyond the fenced-off port of Camarioca, the embarkation point in their small boat exodus to the United States.

"I had to quit driving my taxi in Havana because I couldn't get tires and spare parts," said a refugee, Jose, who asked his family name not be used.

Jose, accompanied by his wife and three children, was among 37 refugees who arrived Friday night in four small boats.

Garcia, now a lithographer in New York, said crowds outside the fenced-off Camarioca compound were unhappy.

FOOD SCARCE

"For them, there was little food, a scarcity of almost everything," he added. "Inside, things were good."

Since Fidel Castro's new migration plan, 273 men, women and children have arrived at this southern tip of the U.S. They were all virtually penniless.

Meanwhile, the U.S. sent to Cuba a second note aimed at setting up orderly procedures for bringing thousands of refugees to the U.S. The note was to be delivered to the Cuban government by Swiss diplomats who have represented the U.S. in Cuba since the severance of diplomatic relations.

So far, Cubans seeking refuge have been shuttled in small boats by exiles already in the U.S. Officials in Washington expect possibly 30,000 more Cubans to come to the U.S. under an orderly procedure.

Benedictine Monks to Try Medieval Life for a Year

MONT ST. MICHEL (Reuters)—A group of Benedictine monks has returned to medieval life for a year in the stone cells of France's world-famous Abbey of Mont St. Michel, perched on a rock amid miles of mud off the Normandy coast.

The monks of St. Wandrille walked across the mudflats and shifting sands separating the rock from the mainland, ignoring a dry causeway built in 1875, to follow in the footsteps of the first monks from St. Wandrille who took the same path 1,000 years ago.

The pilgrimage marked the beginning of 12 months of celebrations to relive the religious life of the abbey, which survived the wars of the Middle Ages only to be pillaged and sacked by the mobs of the French revolution.

French Premier Georges Pompidou attended a high mass in the restored abbey chapel and a feast in the abbey hall. At the feast the premier and viewers in France.

guests sat in contemplative silence served by the hooded monks at rough tables in medieval style by the light of flickering torches.

CENTURY OF WORK

It has taken almost 100 years to restore the mount, but the accent of the 1,000th anniversary celebrations is not on the architectural beauty of the abbey and the cluster of houses around it—breathtaking as it is. It is in the middle of an estuary whose slimy silt is gradually creeping up the walls and through the network of underground passages.

The year - long celebrations will concentrate on worship, shared by the thousands of pilgrims from France and abroad who are expected to flock here.

Londonpakers have been installed to relay services to those who cannot squeeze into the chapel, and midnight mass here on Christmas Eve this year will be seen by millions of television at the feast the premier and viewers in France.

The Golden Years

In a Few Years Retired People Lose All Interest in Old Jobs

By THOMAS COLLINS

When you retire you begin moving almost immediately into a life that is separated, as if by a wall, from the life you have always known. The process is a slow one, but it is very real.

In five years or so you look back over the wall and find it difficult to believe that the old life, or you — or something — has changed so much.

Arthur W. Russell, a businessmanw ho retired three years ago, urges everybody of retirement age to learn this lesson. "Because even if you keep your physical body where it is," he says, "your mind, your interests, your spirit, move. The life and people surrounding your old job start closing the books on you. And you start closing the books on them, but the trouble is that you don't know you are doing it.

"You'll have a better retirement if you can make yourself know it."

WEANING PERIOD

Mr. Russell says your weaning from the job may take two years, may take five. He concedes that a few people, usually men, are more fully weaned and hang around mopping over their old job until they die.

"To tell most men and women at retirement time that in five years they will look back at their old job-life and wonder how it ever worked them, how they ever loved it, how they ever hated it — not one of them would believe you. And this is what will happen. And if only they can realize this at the time they retire they can get a head start on the blessings that lie before them."

Mr. Russell points out that he knew three men, who were retiring about the time he was, who had opportunities to move into fine retirement jobs. A11 turned them down. "The jobs were not quite up to status . . . and all the man had the idea that the old job-life was looking at them over the wall — and cared. Well, the old life wasn't looking. It was busy. And it didn't care, though it no doubt hoped the men were finding a happy life.

QUESTION OF VANITY

"This is ego stuff, of course," Mr. Russell continues. "And the vanity of men being what it is, a little of it is all right. But the essential point here is that the men miscalculated as to themselves — in a little while they wouldn't care if the old life cared. they wouldn't be looking back to see if the old life looked.

"In two years, or at most in five, they would have set up their emotions in their other world. And retirement courses they could have pursued at the time they retired — but couldn't pursue later — would now be comfortable and good. What anybody in the old life thought just wouldn't matter . . ."

Mr. Russell says he has seen many people retire and then for about the next two years hang on to every rope that still dangled from their job . connected life. They would cling to an office they held in the company credit union, to their membership in any job-connected organizations, to any associations and societies connected with the old job. "And some of them would keep writing letters back to be printed in the publications of these groups so former associates would know they were still in there pitching."

"Well," according to Mr. Russell, "this is pretty silly. They forever associates know you are retired, and therefore have had it. They feel a bit embarrassed for you. And in time you will feel a little embarrassed for yourself . . . because you will have reached the point where you realize you have crossed the wall."

Mr. Russell believes that a proud $15,000-a-year executive, who naturally would like to pattern his retirement in the image of his old job, could be comfortable working in a bookyard at $75 a week five years later. "It's the wonderful and unfailing adjustment factor of the human being. People at 65 ought to have more faith in it. And pattern their future on how they'll be regarding things in 1970 instead of right now."

SHUNNED CHARITY

KINGSWIN FORD, England (CP)—Howard and Ebie Geary attended church every Sunday and sat down to a traditional—if stolen—roast beef dinner afterwards. Police later said they had lived for two years by shoplifting groceries and household needs. About $1,000 worth of stolen goods was found in the house.

Madam, There Is a Snake in the Attic'

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

KAMPALA, Uganda (CP)—Scoff! This is to inform the readers of Alberta's Bonnyville Tribune and you that Steve Shuba didn't tell everything in his dispatches from East Africa.

Shuba held out on one or two of the more interesting things that happened to him as a teacher in Uganda under the Canadian external aid program. But now the cat is out of the bag or, in African imagery, the mamba out of the attic.

Shuba, 40, who has been sending stories regularly to The Tribune, came clean on the eve of his departure for European travels and Canada with his wife Helen, 39, and their son Kenny, 4½.

"I didn't want to write about the mamba in the attic because I didn't want to worry Kenny's grandparents," confessed Steve, who comes from Ardmore, Alta.

"I kept quiet about the stocking of our last year for the same reason."

Now the stories can be told, pieced together from a gabfest among the Shubas and Marion Lewis, another Canadian teacher from Chilliwack, B.C., and Peter Snaith, a British teacher. Kenny was there too but pretending to be asleep.

DEADLY SNAKE

The Shubas were just moving into their Teacher's Training School at Busubisi, 40 miles from here, when they had their encounter with the mamba, one of the deadliest of snakes.

"Steve went to town with friends for some repair materials and three African boys were working in the attic of the house, which had been vacant six months," recalled Mrs. Shuba, a vivacious, light-haired woman.

"Kenny was sick and I was feeling mighty blue and lonesome.

"One of the boys came and asked: 'Madam, have you got a gun?'

"I asked what in heaven's name I would be doing with a gun.

"'Madam, there is a big snake in the attic.'"

Helen drew a deep breath, then quavered: "Is it dangerous?"

"Yes madam, I think it is."

The boy then went back and shone a flashlight for three hours on the snake, hidden behind a wall until Skubah, Snaith and another man returned. The teachers regarded this as a supreme act of bravery by the boy, who knew his danger only too well.

But at the time Snaith, a comparative veteran in Uganda, didn't know any such exaggerating. It's probably a harmless little thing."

7½ FEET LONG

Just the same he went for a policeman, an Indian, and a shotgun before approaching the reptile, only part of which could be seen. He poked it with a stick and the snake's head disappeared through the papershin ceiling at the other side of the room.

"I gave him both barrels and it fetched down half the roof," Snaith recalled. "The snake fell out on the verandah roof still alive. I cut off his head with a panga. He was 7½ feet long."

The reptile may have been there months or even years, feeding on rats and bats in his cozy hiding place, a silent menace of cylindrical, earthworm shape. Some families here pet snakes to eat rats, but definitely not mambas.

The Shubas had another hair-raising experience last fall, when hoodlum elements went wild during local elections involving territory between the neighboring kingdoms of Buganda and Bunyoro.

On a lonely road, their car was stoned at night for no apparent reason. With car windows shattered, they arrived at a village and were escorted home by a soldier.

SHOWN SYMPATHY

"I was beyond feeling of any kind, thinking of Kenny in the back seat," said Mrs. Shuba. "But the people were so sympathetic they made me cry. They went down on their knees, moaning 'poor madam, poor baby.'"

Miss Lewis had a yarn in happier vein, about the girls at her school, Ngora, becoming wise to an old superstition about poultry and eggs making women sterile.

"Now the girls say it is just something the men put around so they can get all the chicken and eggs," said Miss Lewis.

Ugandan students—extremely talented in verse, song, dance and soapstone carving—bade good-bye to the teachers with concerts and gifts.

"We found it hard to say goodbye," said Mrs. Skuba, almost in tears.

The students presented a testimonial address to Shuba referring to the stoning incident, which he thought had long been forgotten. Under the heading Sympathy, the students said:

"We deeply sympatize with you for the evil action which was done to you by unreasonable people after a short time of your stay in Uganda.

"We had a feeling of shame as Ugandans and we want to treat the case individually. Herein again we thank you for your patience you showed after the action."

ASK FORGIVENESS

Under the heading Request, the students wrote:

"Perfection is not of this world, and so we know that we have offended you several times. We ask you to forgive us all the harsh/ miserable and misconfort we have always pushed towards you during your stay with us in class and outside.

"We shall always be aware of the knowledge and experience you have given us and we shall always put it into practice as our guide to happy life. We leave you in the hands of God to help you succeed in all your plans and to lead to a happy life."

As a final tribute, the students said:

"We now are influenced by the new life and thoughts you have planted in us and . . . we are sure of building Uganda on a good foundation."

SHAPING the EARTH

RIDICULOUS DEFENSE WEAPONS!

An animal's special weapon of defense CAN BECOME OVERDEVELOPED. During the last of the Ice Age, the GIANT DEER'S ANTLERS reached a span of more than 10 feet. It could not live in the woods and hide from its enemies.

Other odd developments are (A) the ridiculously long jaws of the BRAZILIAN CAMPACORI BEETLE and (B) the two horn-like clubs on the head of the JAVA ATLAS BEETLE.

In Indonesia, THE BABIRUSSA SWINE has developed such enormous canine tusks that they are useless for either attack or defense. The 7-foot razor-like tooth of THE RAMPHAL MALE is another very awkward instrument used infrequently, possibly only in fighting during the mating season.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — Mr. and Mrs. Forde Stapley and son Billy were in Toronto recently.

Miss Marilyn Reid, accompanied by Miss Patricia Clapp of Belleville, enjoyed a pleasant motor trip last week. They crossed Ivy Lea Bridge, drove south to Syracuse, around Lake Ontario, and returned home by way of Toronto.

Mrs. Carl Bridges received word last Tuesday of the death of her brother, Mr. Melvin Shaw of Gananoque. Mr. and Mrs. Bridges drove to Gananoque on Wednesday to attend the funeral which was held on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy and Miss Marilyn Reid were guests at the Pond - Craig wedding at Bridge Street United Church Belleville on Saturday.

A fair number were in attendance at the Thanksgiving servfce held at Eggleton United Church on Sunday night, with Mr. A. Smith delivering an inspiring sermon.

CNR to Buy 900 Cars at $13,500,000

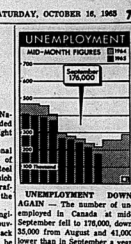
MONTREAL — Canadian National Railways has awarded three contracts for 900 freight cars valued at $13,500,000.

On order from International Equipment Company Ltd., of Montreal, are 200, 50-ton steel flat cars, 62 feet long, which will be used for container traffic. They will be built at the firm's Napanee, Ont., plant.

Vancouver Iron and Engineering Works Ltd., Vancouver, will build 400 piggyback flat cars, 62 feet long, to be used in piggyback service carrying highway trailers.

The two groups of flat cars will be of light weight, all-welded construction, using high tensible, low alloy steel.

Three hundred heated and insulated steel box cars have been ordered from National Steel Car Corporation, to be built at its Hamilton, Ont., plant.



UNEMPLOYMENT DOWN AGAIN — The number of unemployed in Canada at mid-September fell to 176,000, down 35,000 from August and 41,000 lower than in September a year ago, according to a report issued Thursday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the federal department of labor. The unemployment rate for September was 2% per cent of the labor force.

The graph shows monthly totals, including people without jobs and seeking work and those on temporary layoff.

OPERATION CROSSROADS AFRICA
(Conclusion)

"Crossroads has become and will continue to be a powerful demonstration, with young people of great leadership potential — of. co-operative life and the dignity of labor, of concentration upon a common good, of learning and understanding — such as no previous generation has ever experienced on an international basis, . . . and will make a lasting contribution to the future of others." — James H. Robinson.

"We're at the half-way point of our work period in building the maternity clinic," writes Julie Bradford, 298 Albert Street, an active Crossroad member, in her July 25th letter from Dahomey, Africa, to her family this summer.

Declares Dr. Robinson, the founder: "Crossroads" (it is privately and voluntarily organized), "is a living demonstration at the grass-roots level that North America cares . . . The schools, clinics, churches and playgrounds we build are not in themselves significant, nor are the buildings either very large or adequate to Africa's great need; but in a village where there was no school or clinic before, size and quantity belie importance — hope is reborn and people inevitably begin to help themselves."

Julie continues: The work is progressing but has stopped for a few minutes. We filled a few wheelbarrows before this downpour. We've accomplished so much this week. Saturday about 30 young women came to help us and we filled four rooms to floor level with earth and poured a lot of cement. It is wonderful to see everyone pitches in. One of the assistants to the Minister of Youth and Sports was there with baskets of dirt with the rest of us. I, too, carried these baskets — on my head.

"Sunday we went to Abomey to tour the historical museum. It was here that the most famous kingdoms of Dahomey existed in the past and many relics are displayed in each of the buildings. "It is very interesting . . . The history is fascinating, especially since it is told by symbols. Every king had certain symbols representative of some significant event during his reign or of one of his personal characteristics.

"For example: the first king is represented by a fish which can't be caught in a net, for the king would not be trapped by his enemies. Another is represented by an elephant because like this beast he was strong and independent. Many of the battles are represented and certain methods, such as deception emphasized.

"Four more weeks to go and then we leave for two or three days of travelling before heading back to Lagos where there is an evaluation session with the groups from Nigeria, Chad, Cameroon, Niger and Dahomey. We'll arrive at the Kennedy Airport, on August 27th."

July 28: "The people still carry articles on their heads and babies on their backs, no matter where they are. It is amazing how perfectly balanced they keep their loads which vary from baskets of fruit to pieces of furniture. There are a few stop-lights, but people rely heavily on their horns, more than in Quebec. The main roads are situated along the roads or in the forest. Once you leave the main road, little foot-paths connect one settlement to another. There are many little stands — "binoues". Made of palm branches and open sides. The huts in which people live are made of clay which they can dig up anywhere. The palm trees are as beautiful and graceful in real life as they are on any postcard.

"The walls of the clinic are now four feet high all around.

"Sunday night we are going to a reception being given by the President — in the palace."

Aug. 2: "On Sunday evening our group approached the gorgeous palace and entered as guests to attend the President's ball. What an exciting time!

"This ultra-luxurious residence was built by Dahomey's first president, Mr. Maga and was scheduled to be finished in time for their third year independance Day celebration.

"Just after Mr. Maga was ousted and the incoming President did not wish to live in this place. So today it is not a residence but is used frequently for social functions and formal business.

"It is a gorgeous building. The same type of mosaic tiling used on the steps is used frequently on floors or on the bottom of little pools. Otherwise, thick carpets cover the floor.

"This weekend has been fun all around. Saturday afternoon we went to the fair. (I should explain the Independence celebrations are held in Cotonou, and is the fifth year celebration. Association with the fair here, as well as a new port is being officially opened.) It was most interesting, well organized with booths and display from all of Dahomey. On Sunday we attended the opening of the port; saw a marvellous parade, a military display and dancing groups from all over the country. This weekend a dance group from Nigeria dropped in to see us."

August 7: "Work has slowed down some. Walls still being pushed. Only one week of work left. Thursday evening Irene and I went to an African dinner for supper.

We were African outfits. The dress is like a sac, but the turban, like head-wear doesn't do a thing for us — we looked like grandmothers.

August 8: "We visited Bewine, a city on stilts. A city of seven thousand inhabitants. The city is a mile or so from shore in a lagoon which is four feet of water. All the houses, stores, even the bar at which we stopped are built on stilts to elevate them. Life goes on as normal. Children playing, women cooking, animals wandering around despite the fact that the streets are waterways. People get from one place to another in "pirogues" which they paddle with ease and skill. This lake-dwellers are fishermen, and by living thus have ready access to their working grounds.

August 13: "Two weeks from today we'll be heading home. The work is going more slowly than we expected and we won't be able to put on the roof.

"This weekend Dr. Robinson, founder of Crossroads, is coming to Dahomey and tonight we are invited to a reception given in his honor by the American Ambassador."

August 15: "Tomorrow we leave for the north (of Dahomey). Yesterday, Dr. Robinson visited our project and he seemed pleased with the progress. It was strange to leave Ayrahou yesterday, knowing that we would not be returning to complete the clinic. However we are all looking forward to our trip and seeing our families in two weeks . . ."

August 20: "This is the fifth day of our trip (north). Monday we were delayed in Cotonou, and ended up in Porto Novo for the night. Monday we finally got started, and spent the night in a mission in Parakou.

"Wednesday, we drove to Kandi and returned to Bembereke for the night. We stayed at a mission hospital. Ireland a place where both are employees of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

MR. AND MRS. RALPH J. PATTERSON

Patterson – Clare

Mr. W. E. Belch officiated at the marriage ceremony in Trenton Baptist Church on Saturday, October 9, 1965, when Rose Ann Clare, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Clare, Belleville, R.R. 2 was united in marriage to Ralph Joseph Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph F. Patterson of Trenton

Wedding music was rendered by Miss Kathy Karpf, who accompanied the soloist Mrs. Carl Reid in two appropriate selections.

The maid of honor Miss Linda Dickens and bridesmaids Miss Jane Little and Miss Joan Patterson were identically attired in street length dresses of blue peau de soie with fitted bodices, elbow length sleeves and flared skirts. They wore matching blue headdresses of peau de soie with small veils. Each carried a nosegay of blue tinted 'mums. The little flower girl was Miss Janette McCormick who was dressed similarly to the other attendants and carried a basket of matching flowers.

Mr. Gary B. Cole was groomsman and Mr. Rodger Gibson, Mr. Robert Young, Mr. Patrick Patterson and Mr. Cecil Reid were the ushers.

At the reception in the Balmoral Room at the Glenburnie the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a three-piece beige brocade ensemble with brown accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Also receiving the guests was the bridegroom's mother who wore a two-piece teal blue dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to various points in the United States the bride wore a two-piece teal blue suit with beige and brown accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Patterson will live at Trenton R.R. 5.

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD C. PARKER

Parker – MacLachlan

Christ Church Cathedral in Ottawa was the scene of a recent autumn wedding when Alan Dianne Maclachlan, daughter of Commander E. M. Chadwick and Mrs. Chadwick of London, England and Ottawa, was united in marriage to Harold Collington Parker of Ottawa, son of Mrs. Harold Alfred Parker, Belleville, and the late Mr. H. Parker. Rev. H. R. Horsey assisted by Rev. P. A. H. Meggs at the ceremony. Traditional wedding music was rendered by the organist of the cathedral, Mr. Godfrey Hewitt.

Given in marriage by her uncle Mr. Peter Maclachlan of Toronto, the bride wore a floor length bridal gown of white organza featuring a fitted bodice with long sleeves and highlighted at the back with a white lace chapel train. A bouffant dress of white silk illusion fell from a small organza rose. She carried a bouquet of pale pink Sweetheart roses mingled with stephanotis.

Miss Deborah Goodman of Toronto as maid of honor and the bridesmaids Mrs. Herbert Travers of Port Credit and Miss Gillian Shortreed of Ottawa were gowned alike but in contrasting shades of shocking pink floor-length organza gowns. They wore matching headdresses and each carried a large bouquet of white Shasta daisies.

Mr. F. Dawson Catton of Toronto was groomsman, while Mr. Geoffrey D. Scott of Hamilton and Mr. McLean Haig of London, ushered the guests.

For the reception in Cathedral Hall, adjoining the cathedral the bride's grandmother welcomed the guests wearing a crepe street-length dress in robin's egg blue with deep pink feathered hat and a corsage of pink orchids.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. H. Parker assisted wearing a champagne colored brocade dress with matching three-quarter length coat, coffee colored accessories and a matching color orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip aboard the Cunard Liner "Queen Elizabeth" for a honeymoon in England, Ireland and Scotland, the bride chose an "A" line dress with matching coat of pink linen, carmel colored accessories with carmel colored corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker are residing at 25 Woodridge Crescent, Apt. 916, in Ottawa, where both are employees of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Borden Lucas, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen Mary, to James Joseph Cassibo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Cassibo, Belleville. The wedding will take place on Saturday, November 6, 1965 in Centre Street United Church, Belleville.

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. Alberte Seneca, a vivacious French-Canadian who taught herself to speak English at the age of 34 and went on to become one of Canada's top female civil servants, retired Friday from the national health and welfare department.

Mrs. Seneca, who has been assistant director of information services for the department since 1962, joined the information branch 18 years ago as officer in charge of French publications.

The attractive Montrealer, now in her 60s, told an interviewer she expects to be just as busy from now on as she was in her old job.

"I plan to do a lot of free-lance writing, and have several assignments waiting for me right now."

Born in Valleyfield, Que., Mrs. Seneca (known as Madame by all her friends and associates in the health department) studied in Montreal at the Convent of the Sisters of Ste. Anne.

She started her career as a free-lance writer for radio and monthly magazines. In 1942 she was employed by the publicity service of the Victory bond campaign, and in 1943 she became chief of information services for the province of Quebec with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

HONORED AS MBE

She was honored for her wartime work with the award of Member of the British Empire.

Reflecting on her 18 years in the federal civil service, Mrs. Seneca says much discrimination against working women still exists.

"Certainly women have more difficulty in getting a high executive position in the civil service. It's a man's world, and will probably be a man's world for thousands of years to come."

But she says women themselves are responsible for the situation. "We really like things the way they are. I am a very feminine woman but these days I never knock my head against stone walls."

But in spite of the fact that all the cards are stacked against them when they attempt to have a successful career, women usually make better workers than men, she says.

"When I want something done quickly and well, I have it done by a woman. Women aren't as egotistical as men and they try harder."

In 1956 she won the top award in a festival of medico-surgical films held at Cannes, France for French commentary for the National Film Board's film Why Won't Tommy Eat?

Mrs. Seneca, whose late husband Andrew was a prominent Montreal lawyer, has one son and six grandchildren.

Rally Held At Full Gospel Church

FRANKFORD — Last Monday was rally day in Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle of Section III. Host pastor, Rev. Fred Spring welcomed all the guests and the District President, Rev. M. Hornby of Campbellford, conducted the meeting. Evangelist Rev. Rourke of Toronto also assisted.

Miss Doreen Cox of Oshawa sang a solo. Rev. Hornby voiced appreciation to Frankford church and to the pastors and congregations in the district for their fellowship. He leaves to take up new pastoral duties in Alberta shortly.

Rev. Stevenson of Peterborough Pentecostal Church, is the new Presbyter. Rev. Donald Rogers of Napanee led in prayer. Announcements were given by Rev. Spring and Miss Cox sang a selection.

GUEST SPEAKER

Rev. Albert Vaters of Stone Church, Toronto, was the guest speaker, who brought a stirring message, speaking on "The Kingdom of Heaven Suffereth Violence and the Violent Take it by Force."

A buffet supper was served in the lower auditorium.

The Women's Missionary Council held their meeting in the evening. Mrs. Hillsden of Bancroft conducted the service. Mrs. Donald Rogers of Napanee led the song service. Choruses were sung. Mrs. Gordon McEhoe of Brockville was soloist. Mrs. Taylor, WMC president at Bancroft, brought a challenging message on "Being Moved With Compassion" and "Prompted."

The evening rally began with the host pastor, Rev. Fred Spring welcoming everyone. Guest vocalists, "The Keystone Quartet" sang a number of gospel selections. Rev. Earl Young of Cobourg led in prayer. Rev. Donald Rogers of Napanee was song leader.

Miss Doreen Cox of Oshawa sang a number.

Rev. Albert Vaters of Toronto spoke on "The Power of Positive Thinking."

The service closed with a time of prayer and praise.

Successful Living

Valuable Advice To Foster Parents

DEAR READER: Foster parents—I mean those couples who do the brave job of giving temporary care to unhappy children, in preparation of finding them adoptive parents—received the following letter from an adoption worker in the Hamilton Children's Aid Society.

It is so full of understanding that any parent will be helped by it.

Dear Foster Parents:

The one thing that all of our children have in common is that they have been separated from their natural parents. Usually their parents have been too upset themselves to be able to help the children with any real explanation. Frequently they come to the conclusion that they were sent away because they were "bad." Their great fear is that they are unlovable.

DORIS CLARK

If they have learned while they have been with you that they are not bad and that people do like and love them, then you have already made what is perhaps the biggest single contribution to your foster children's successful adoption.

The next biggest step is to let your foster child know that he is not being sent away by you when he goes into an adoption home, but that this is something you want for him. From you he can learn that when people love someone they must make sacrifices for them, even to the point of giving them up if this is best for them.

Once when we had an unexpectedly good reception from a particular youngster, the foster mother told us that she had prepared him for our coming by saying that "Miss So-and-So is coming to see us today, maybe you could show her that nice drawing you did." Even the tiny ones can watch out the window and enjoy telling when we arrive.

The more you can tell us (out of earshot of him!) about your particular child, how he reacts in different situations and how you handle these, the easier it will be for us to get off to a good start with him.

When we do start talking of adoption — and please leave this to us — there will almost certainly come a time when he wonders and likely asks why he can't stay with you. One foster mother with an ample figure talked of the fun it would be for them to go picnicking and swimming with their new parents and laughed, "Now, how do you think I'd look in shorts or a swim suit?"

When the children do first meet "the man and the lady" and come bounding home to tell you about it, please try to share their excitement. One foster mother was most original when she sent her little lad off with a package of meat scraps for the dog in "the man and lady's house." Needless to say he got a warm welcome from the pet, which was soon trotting around at his heels!

The time between the child's knowing that these are to be his new parents and his moving into his new home is often the hardest for both of you. He may start saying he doesn't like you. He is liable to tell you his new parents' house is bigger than yours, their car is bigger than yours.

Wise indeed are the foster parents who can realize that what he is really saying is, "I'm afraid that you don't like me," and who can give him the reassurance of love which he so badly needs.

A parting gift from you helps tremendously to boost a child's morale as he sets out on this important but rather scary journey. The comfort which two little sisters got from the hairbands and berets that their foster family gave them is hard to describe.

Parting with an older child feels almost like parting with one of your own children. Your hearts are heavy at the thought of his going and your only comfort — but it is a wonderful comfort — is that you have played a major part in helping your foster child to get what he most needs — a mother, father and family of his own. — Adoption Worker.

Ladies' Club Hears Talk on Thanksgiving

Prince Edward - Belleville Ladies' Club held their regular monthly meeting at the Recreation Centre on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of 20 members and two visitors.

The president, Mrs. Baird, opened the meeting by all singing the opening hymn with Mrs. Farnsworth at the piano. A fitting memorial service was held for Mrs. Osborne, a former member, who recently passed away.

First item on the program was a poem on autumn, written by Helen B. Anderson, read by Mrs. Baird.

Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. A. Mitchell.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. L. Fox.

Mrs. Pierson, corresponding secretary, gave her report of cards and flowers sent.

Mrs. Walters sent thanks for a plant received.

Mrs. Baird gave a report of the bus trip through Prince Edward; the fish dinner at Lake on the Mountain; a visit to Warsaw and Peterborough.

Mrs. Gorsline's and Mrs. Mastin's group had charge of the program. Mrs. Gorsline read a suitable prayer. Mrs. Wannamaker read an interesting report of the October meeting, 1948, at Mrs. Gorsline's home, when Mrs. Lent was president. There were 35 present. She also read a poem on "Thanksgiving Time" by Edna Jacques.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Farnsworth introduced Mrs. Packman, the guest speaker, who spoke on "Thanksgiving." She related the story of The Pilgrim Fathers who after hard times and many heartaches gave thanks for what they had and thus instituted "Thanksgiving day."

Thanks were extended to Mrs Packman and she was presented with a gift by Mrs. Pierson on behalf of the group.

Gorsline and the ladies of the group served lunch which was enjoyed.

Serious Personal Problems Of Girls and Women Dealt With in Special Report

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — The six-tional YWCA announced Friday the results of a study of life role in relation to serious personal problems of girls and women.

In the 244 cases among YWCA members given complete study, the problems included mental illness, unmarried pregnancy and sexual promiscuity, drinking to excess and drug addiction.

The two-year study was based on monthly reports from 24 of the YWCAs in Canada and four of the 23 YM-YWCAs. It was financed by a $26,800 grant from the research grants division of the department of health and welfare.

Research was carried out by Vivienne Durden, a graduate of the University of Toronto school of social work, working with Margaret Hart, director of individual services of the national YWCA.

The report says there are about 17,000 women and girls older than 16 in the YWCA in Canada. Miss Durden estimated the number of cases of disturbed girls and women would be about two to every 1,000.

24-24 MOST TROUBLED

She said the most troubled age group were 21-to-24-year olds. In cases studied there were 19 of family conflict and mental illness, 24 of personality problems, nine unwed pregnancies, six suicidal tendencies, eight financial problems and five chronically unemployed.

The next most disturbed group appeared to be girls 17 and 18. The third group, aged 25 to 29, included most financial problems and less mental illness than the younger groups.

Miss Durden also talked to 175 persons outside the YW, in welfare, education, religious, health, law enforcement and employment fields.

Her report recommends that more and larger residences be built. She recommends that the YW hire more qualified social workers for personal counselling and supervision.

She urges the national YW to co-operate with other organizations in establishing or extending special accommodations for girls who may be probationers, addicts or other types of offenders.

RECOMMENDS PROGRAM

She also recommends a special program be organized for integrating Indian, Metis and Eskimo girls into modern life.

At a press conference, Miss Hart said she hopes the report will be used by local YWs to persuade community chest committees that they can put extra funds needed for counselling services to good use.

She said she feels it should also be of use to YWs working with other community groups to plan services for problem women.

She said Ys in several cities including Vancouver, Edmonton and Toronto are providing special temporary living arrangements and counselling for problem girls and that Ys even where have quietly accepted them as residents. She said it is not the YWs main purpose, but an area in which they should offer leadership.

"We don't want to turn our residences into rehabilitation homes. But perhaps we can help others see the need for group homes for those who can't fit into the residence and wouldn't want to."

View From Plane Proves That Dutch Created Holland

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

We could see what the saying meant. The Icelandic Airlines plane that brought us here from New York, at below - jet fares dipped under the rain clouds. Beneath, the greedy sea poked its fingers far and everywhere into the land. Cows knee-deep in water grazed at the canals' edges. When winter and the rest of the sea come, there will be no place to graze until spring.

Holland's history has been one endless battle to keep the country from leaking away. It has made for an aggressive, self-sufficient people. Between inundations of their little country, they have explored and colonized a sizeable chunk of the world, from Java and Malaya to New York.

Their engineering brains hold more knowledge about dikes, hawsels, pilings and the like, than any in the world. There are about half done with the staggering prospect of sealing off the North Sea delta and of filling in the Zuider Zee, 10 per cent of Holland. Dutch hands built New York's pioneer Holland Tunnel, Amsterdam's remarkable Schiphol Airport is feet below sea level, and, of course, the whole city of Rotterdam, all of which is below sea level.

Rotterdam, inland from the North Sea on the Maas River, is now the world's largest port. 45 miles long and handling 225,000 ships a year, 25,000 of them ocean-going and some as large as 100,000 tons. That puts it a long way from a tulip economy.

While the color of the harbor intrudes itself engagingly on the city, snaking through and around its heart, Rotterdam is no tattoo-and-rum tavern sailor town like Marseille. Muscular and bustling, shiny with big cars and shops, gaudy with flashy new buildings (including a furniture style with showroom), it is more like Houston — proud and reeking of money.

ROTTERDAM NEW

And nearly all of it is new. In 1940 the Germans levelled the entire centre of the city, except for the city hall and post office, which they needed. From the top of the Euro Mast, a 202-foot concrete observation tower with a restaurant perched on top (it was built, Texas style, in 23 days), you can see a clean ring around the inner city, rebuilt from the rubble out of city planning text books. Beyond run the lines of attached brick houses of the suburbs, as they were before the war. Through it all winds the massive barbor, which is bigger than the city. Only 20 years ago it was an incredible tangled mess of toppled cranes and sunken ships. Spreading to the horizon in all directions is an intricate network of illuminated superhighways, all of them running atop the dikes without which there would be no Rotterdam and precious little Holland.

The dazzlingly rich, broad shopping mall of Lijnbaan spreads its arms through the centre of town behind the equally dazzling edifice of the Rotterdam Hilton (last time we looked, booming Holland was the only country outside of North America with two dazzling Hiltons). Where, oh where, are the wooden shoes and windmills?

On Saturdays a few farmers in pantaloons, their klompen painted up like saddle shoes or oxfords, do come into town for the weekly street market, selling everything from the week's herrings to dusty family heirlooms that the old lady told them to get out of the house, or else. Not long ago a connoisseur picked up what turned out to be a six-figure Rembrandt that way, and a week later hit the jackpot with a Vermeer. No one really knows how many Dutch masters have been hanging around farm houses for centuries.

COUNTRYSIDE NEAR

But the countryside is never far away in Holland, even from Rotterdam. In fact, the largest remaining concentration of windmills in Holland, 19 of them preserved as a national monument, is at Kinderdijk, half an hour's drive southeast of Rotterdam on polder (reclaimed sideland) as much as 40 feet below the Maas River and sea level.

Windmills, in case you didn't know (we didn't) were the land drainage pumps of 200 years ago. Once there were countless thousands of them. Of course, they've all been replaced by hydraulic stations now and only a few hundred remain. Those on the peaceful plain outside of Kinderdijk are still occupied by Government-paid caretakers, silent memorials to Holland's never-ending war with the sea.

Between Kinderdijk and Rotterdam is the village of Alblasserdam, one of several in Holland with a legitimate outdoor marriage market. The staunch Calvinists of the village don't work weekends, so the young people mill and eye each other in the square afternoons until, ultimately, something comes of it. Apparently divorce in Holland haven't gotten beyond Rotterdam yet.

Ladies' Aux. C.N.R.A. A. Hears Reports

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the C.N.R.A.A. was held on Tuesday at Club Canara.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Alice Storms, Jr. The roll was called by Miss Mary Carmichael and the minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Mabel Galbraith. The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. Alice Storms, Sr.

The following committees gave their report: sick committee — Mrs. Margaret Campbell; draw report — Mrs. Vera Reynolds; entertainment chairman — Mrs. Gladys Fitzgerald.

Mrs. Grace Kline's group are in charge of entertainment and lunch for November.

The meeting was adjourned and everyone enjoyed the touch and take table. Several games of bingo was followed by lunch served by Mrs. Vera Reynolds and her group.

QUESTION:

We are discussing the correct position of the juice glass when it is placed on the table filled with juice . . . as an appetizer. Should it be placed to left or right of water glass? — I. S.

ANSWER:

The water glass is placed above the tip of the knife; the juice glass to the right above the tip of the spoon, but slightly lower — that is slightly nearer the table edge.

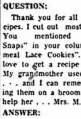
SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

by

Mary

Moore



Corned Beef; Mustard Sauce; Cabbage Wedges; Buttered Whole Carrots; Sliced Cucumbers in Sour Cream; Apple Cobbler; Tea.

QUESTION:

Thank you for all your recipes. I cut out most of them. You mentioned "Brandy Snaps" in your column "Oatmeal Lace Cookies". I would love to get a recipe for them. My grandmother used to make . . . and I can remember rolling them on a broom handle to help her . . . Mrs. M. R.

ANSWER:

I'm delighted to give you this. While they do not contain brandy they do snap.

BRANDY SNAPS:

2¼ cups sifted all purpose flour, ½ cup butter, 1 1/3 cups brown sugar, packed, ¼ cup light corn syrup, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons ginger.

Stir all ingredients except flour in top of double boiler; place over boiling water and stir until butter melts and ingredients are just blended. Remove from heat and cool slightly. Stir in flour in 2 or 3 portions, mixing well. Remove dough to wax paper, and chill thoroughly. Divide dough into 4 portions. Roll out one portion at a time with floured rolling pin on lightly floured board to very thin sheet, 1/16" thick. Cut into 2" rounds. Lift carefully with spatula and place 1½" apart on greased baking sheet. Bake 5 minutes at 400 deg. F. Immediately roll each around handle of wooden spoon, and place open side down, on wax paper to cool and set. If cookies become too crisp to roll, put back in oven for a moment. Repeat cutting out cold dough, baking and rolling until all dough is used. These cookies keep well.

LIGHTING THE WAY

By Walter S. Crowe

LIFTED BY A ROPE

Let Danny Nowell of Mill Valley, California, tell his own unusual experience. This 11-year-old boy says, "I was riding my bike when I saw a crowd and two big ballons in a field near my home. I went over to see what was going on, and somebody yelled, 'grab a rope.' Other boys were holding ropes, and I took hold of one, too. Then suddenly the baloon took off, and everybody let go but me.'

The ballons were being used as a publicity stunt by a San Francisco night club. Danny's ballon was manned by a pilot who was perched 20 feet above him, and who was unaware of the boy's predicament. The balloon rose quickly to a height of 3,0000 feet, leaving young Danny hanging on for dear life over the city below. Finally Danny was able to make the pilot hear his cry for help. The balloon was quickly brought down, and apart from a few bruises, the boy was none the worse for his harrowing ordeal.

Too many of us remain earthbound, we never rise above those things that are physical and temporal. God's ropes of love . . . of faith . . . of hope . . . of honesty . . . and of righteousness can god will lift us so that we can rise to full moral and spiritual stature. Let's "grab a rope" today, shall we?

U.C.W. Meetings

SPRINGBROOK U.C.W.

The October meeting of the Springbrook U.C.W. was held in the Church hall on Thursday afternoon with 23 present. The president, Mrs. Murney Mason, opened the meeting with prayer.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Joe Thompson using the theme "Thanksgiving." The meditation was given by Mrs. Gordon Baily and the Scripture was read by Mrs. Burt McCoy.

The Bible study period on the life of Peter was led by Mrs. Percy Smith.

The theme of the meeting was Brazil. There were several pictures and articles from Brazil on display. "What is Brazil to us?" was presented in the form of a panel with Mrs. G. Baily, Mrs. B. McCoy, Mrs. G. McFall and Mrs. J. Thompson taking part.

The Springbrook U.C.W. are invited to a tea and bazaar at Mount Pleasant on Oct. 20. Mrs. Gordon Apps gave a very interesting report from the Regional Rally and Mrs. George Williams reported that the new tables for the Church hall had been ordered.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Arthur Reid.

Mrs. Oliver's drapes tell the dramatic story of clean electric heating

Mr. and Mrs. R. Oliver live in an electrically heated home near Peterborough. The Olivers are one of the many families recently interviewed throughout Ontario to discover their personal opinions of electric heating. Here are some of their comments:

"Electric heating is clean, very clean. There's no dust or film left on my windows, walls or drapes. I notice the cleanliness particularly with the drapes. We have lived here for three years and haven't had to clean them yet. In our other house, I had to clean them every year."

"I don't have to wash my walls as often as I did in our previous home. They stay clean longer here. They really do."

"When you have company, you don't find yourself having to rush around dusting at the last minute. Electric heating certainly does cut down on the work."

"We would recommend electric heating 100%."

Families all over Ontario echo the Olivers' comments. However, there is more to electric heating than cleanliness: Electrically heated homes, insulated to Hydro standards, cost no more to heat than homes with other systems. Flameless electric heating is quiet, safe and offers room-by-room or zone temperature control. With all its advantages, no wonder so many people are turning to electric heating for the comfort, convenience and economy they want in a heating system.

ELECTRIC HEATING FOR YOUR PRESENT HOME - If you are planning home extensions or if parts of your home are not now properly heated, you can "install supplementary electric heating for less than it costs to extend your present heating system.

A Lift for Living

Bad Habits, Like Burs We Gather Unwittingly

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Now that autumn has come to North America, the burs have ripened upon countless weeds that grow on vacant lots, along the uncultivated edges of gardens and fencerows, and in fields and forests. Take even a brief walk through the countryside, and you are likely to return with your clothes covered with all kinds of barbs, spurs, spines and hooks that are Nature's ingenious ways of guaranteeing that the seeds of plants become widely spread.

The seeds of cockleburs possess spury hairs that stick to anything soft. Burdock seeds have big, barbed seed - cases that tangle in cloth, fur or feathers. Beggar ticks are armed with prongs that point outward. Sandburs bear sharp hooks on small, round, spiny seed-cases. The stickseed grows four nutlets from each flower, and the sticky nutlets break off when a man or animal or bird brushes against the plant; they fasten themselves with a most positive hold to the unfortunate passer-by. Beggar-ticks are armed with barbed horns that grip easily to clothes and firmly hang on.

Bad habits are like burs. We gather them unwittingly, and we discover their presence only after they are strongly fastened upon us. We perform a deed not intending it will become a habitual. We try it again, finding the performance easier than the first time. After a while we have a habit. Finally the habit has us.

It was not a minister or a moralist but William James, psychologist and philosopher, who warned, "The hell to be endured hereafter, of which the theologian tells, is no worse than the hell we make for ourselves in this world by habitually fashioning our character the wrong way."

The stick - to - itiveness of some seeds demonstrates Nature's insistence that man and beast become her helpers in covering the earth with greenness.

But good habits stick to us as persistently as do evil ones, and our capacity for forming habits is one of the built-in mercies of God. Habit works for us when our intellect is drowsy and when reason is asleep. Let us suppose that every time you took a step, or climbed a stair, or tied a necktie, or read a newspaper, or wrote a word, or played a musical instrument, or uttered a prayer, you had to learn to do it all over again, as if each time were the first! Thomas Carlyle's statement has an exaggerated force, nevertheless, there is truth in it: "Habit is the deepest law of human nature." It is certain that good habit is one of man's finest friends. If a large part of unworthy living consists in acting time after time in a bad way until it is hard to behave differently, then great living consists of doing good time after time until it is difficult to do otherwise.

If a lazy oaf is victim of his slovenly habits, the successful man is the beneficiary of his industrious habits. If lying is an habitual carelessness concerning the truth, then honesty is the practice of making one's word and deeds dependably true. If one man is damned by his habit of profanity, another is blessed by his habit of frequent prayer. If sleeping late on Sunday mornings instead of attending worship service is a bad habit that shuts life off from reverence and guided thought and fellowship with those whose aims are highest, so the practices that lift life to new levels are habits, too.

St. Luke's Gospel says of Jesus, "And he came to Nazareth where he had been brought up; and he went to the synagogue, as his custom was, on the sabbath day." It seems silly, doesn't it, to scoff at public worship by saying, "People go to church from habit," when the Best Person the world has known had the habit, too, and was not ashamed of it.

Christ cherished the habits that strengthen the soul. Those who want to live His kind of life must develop His habits of behavior.

200,000 Acres of Bush Burned But That Is Relatively Good

By DON HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Forest fires have destroyed at least 200,000 acres of timber, brush and slash in Canada this year but, in relative terms, it has not been a bad summer.

With the fire season still on in a few provinces, a Cross-Canada Survy by The Canadian Press, showed there had been some 11,651 fires. No human life was lost but conservation officials say the toll in wildlife will never be known.

British Columbia had 2,632 fires up to mid-October compared with 1,120 in 1964. But Alberta reported the most acreage burned — 69,000 — even though it had just 214 fires compared with the 361 that destroyed 15,000 acres last year.

Federal forestry department spokesman said 1965 has been a "good" year, especially when compared with "disastrous" 1961 when fires in Newfoundland, Manitoba and Alberta alone burned 3,993,000 acres.

While natural causes are responsible for many fires, human carelessness is still a major factor, and educational programs are being stepped up in many provinces.

In Manitoba, where the government spends $5,000 a year educating the public, graphs resembling giant thermometers were posted at all tourist spots showing forest conditions.

Ontario, which reports 84 per cent of this year's fires caused by carelessness, tried an experiment that will be repeated in 1966. Some 300 Indians were hired for the fire season and stationed at danger spots.

"The Indians really proved themselves," a department spokesman said. "Wood lore is second nature to them whereas most white men feel like foreigners in the woods."

The 1965 forest fire season by provinces:

Newfoundland: One of the warmest summers in years made forests extremely dry and fire ratings never dropped below medium. However, the largest fire was 640 acres near Little Catalina, 70 miles north of St. John's, and a total of 130 fires burned 1,500 acres compared with 70 fires and 257,000 acres a year ago.

Nova Scotia: Halifax County alone had 220 of the 650 fires. Two major fires, one of 2,300 acres at Grand Lake near Halifax and another of 2,000 acres near Herring Cove Lake in Shelburne County, blazed unchecked for a week. Total acreage burned was 12,000 compared with 8,739 in 1964 when there were 562 fires.

Prince Edward Island: Sixty fires burned 200 acres of woodlot, largest fire an 20 acres near Dundas in Kings County. A year ago there were only 13 blazes.

New Brunswick: The worst summer in years had 700 fires on 20,000 acres compared with 512 and 3,300 acres for a total commercial loss of $69,000 a year ago. The worst year for New Brunswick was 1944 when 341 fires raced through 184,000 acres, destroying $1,500,000 of merchantable timber.

Quebec: There were fewer fires, 725, compared with 1,157 last year, and acreage was down to 42,000 from 71,118 in 1964 when commercial loss was $1,370,228. Quebec has averaged 967 fires and 199,099 acres burned a year and 1965 is rated a "good" year.

Ontario: The largest fire was 9,300 acres in an area north of Geraldton in Northwestern Ontario. A total of 1,132 fires were reported compared with 1,657 last year and acreage burned was down to 19,587 from 29,401.

Manitoba: This was "one of the best fire seasons we have ever had," says A. W. Braine, director of forest protection, relieved that fewer than 200 fires had started compared with 581 in 1964. Some 25,000 acres were burned compared with 826,000 in 1964 and a record 2,700,000 in 1961.

Saskatchewan: F. H. Hewett, director of forestry, says 121 fires burned less than 7,000 acres and only 13 acres were prime timber. He estimates the province's loss at $500. Last year there were 400 fires in 1,200,000 acres, including 70,000 prime timber, and the loss was $727,632 compared with the record $836,482 in 1937.

Alberta: Only one of the 214 fires was considered major. It caused no commercial loss but ruined 65,000 acres of muskeg and woods that were home to wildlife. The other 213 fires accounted for only 3,000 acres. Last year 361 fires destroyed 15,000 acres for $140,000 loss. That was far short of the 1961 loss in which 811 fires on 193,000 acres ran to $2,800,000.

British Columbia: The fire season was continuing in October when the number of fires and acreage burned was compared with the record of 1,000 in 1958 and 1,000,000 acres in 1950. Last year 1,120 fires burned 1,000,000 acres and caused $1,000,000 damage.

Ontario: The fire season was over with 1,132 fires

Socreds Will Have Only 100 Candidates in Election, Mostly in West Canada

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — For the smaller political parties, projecting a national image is a recurring problem. It has become especially acute for Social Credit in the Nov. 8 election campaign.

In this campaign, Social Credit expects to have about 100 candidates, a far cry from the 224 in the 1963 federal vote. Further detracting from the national image is their location. Bulk of the 100 will be in the West, the party's birthplace.

Sizing up national images, Social Credit appears to rank fourth in the pecking order. Ahead of them are the Liberals and Conservatives, who traditionally run full slates of 265 candidates.

The NDP aimed for an unprecedented full slate this time but will likely fall just short with candidates in 260 of the 265 federal ridings.

WON'T TRY IN QUEBEC

Social Credit on the other hand has decided against running any candidates in Quebec's 75 ridings. This not a hole in its prospective candidate total.

Social Credit has left the Quebec field to its two breakaway elements—the Creditistes of Real Caouette and former Social Credit members running as independents.

The breakup of the Quebec wing of the party began in the wake of the 1963 election with the departure of the Caouette group. With their Quebec-only campaign, the Creditistes rank as the least national of the five parties.

There is still a philosophical bond between the Creditistes and the Social Credit party headed by Robert Thompson. Mr. Caouette recently made a strong television plea for support of Social Credit candidates across the country.

Despite the Quebec blank, Social Credit officials had earlier hoped for 150 to 160 candidates by the final Oct. 25 nominations deadline. However it soon became clear it would not be reached.

DOESN'T SHAPE UP

The objective went out the window when Ontario failed to shape up. The party had expected 30 candidates in the province's 85 ridings, but the realities of politics soon reduced this to a handful. The party will have no candidates in Metropolitan Toronto.

The nee result is that Social Credit will have but a corporal's guard of candidates in Eastern Canada.

The party has candidates in the Maritimes and Newfoundland. But there will be none in Prince, Edward Island.

The party's hopes at the polls therefore largely rest in the four western provinces where 70 seats are at stake. Full slates are expected in British Columbia and Alberta, both governed by Social Credit provincial administrations.

Virtually full slates are expected in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

With its Quebec losses, Social Credit has only four members from the last Parliament still in the fold. One is Mr. Thompson. All are from B.C. and Alberta.

Party strategy is to employ both Premier Manning of Alberta and Premier Bennett of B.C. on the western hustings. The hope is that the provincial leaders will help Mr. Thompson produce a strong political impact elsewhere.

Minister Urges Workers to Get Out Vote

ESPANOLA, Ont. (CP)—Labor Minister MacEachen said Friday night nothing is more frustrating for a candidate than to lose an election by a small majority—"when you know that a little more work could have done the job."

Mr. MacEachen, defeated by 181 votes in the Nova Scotia riding of Inverness-Richmond in the 1958 federal election, warned about 100 persons at a Liberal campaign meeting about complacency in getting out the vote.

He urged voters in this Algoma East riding of Prime Minister Pearson to "exert every effort to bring out everyone eligible to vote" in the Nov. 8 election.

Mr. MacEachen dealt at length with the record of the Progressive Conservative party "because no Tory will mention it."

He said more than 500,000 new jobs have been created in the last 30 months by the Liberals. "The only time Tories can provide jobs is when they are in opposition," he said.

Five Creditiste Members Deny Taking Bribes, Say They Will Sue

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Threats of libel suits, fresh attacks on the government and denials flew thick and fast Friday as the "Affair of the Six" set the election campaign agog for the third straight day.

Five of the six Creditiste members of the last Parliament named in Dr. Guy Marcoux' bombshell booklet called a press conference in Quebec City to deny that they took bribes in 1963 to back the minority Pearson government.

The five Creditistes and Gilles Gregoire, their House leader before the Nov. 8 election was called, said they will sue Dr. Marcoux for libel as soon as the campaign ends.

The sixth Creditiste named, Gilbert Rondeau (Shefford), also threatened to sue.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker charged in Prince George, B.C., that the allegations in the 24-page booklet published Wednesday by Dr. Marcoux "strike at the vitals of our Christian way of life."

"This was the reason why Mr. Pearson was scared to meet Parliament. He was afraid of what might come out and it came out in the last couple of days from Dr. Marcoux."

TALKS OF GANGSTERISM

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canadians will have allowed gangsterism to penetrate the highest places of public life if they reelect the Liberal government.

"Are you going to say to Mr. Pearson: 'You made an awful mess of things and a minority —what will you do with a majority?'"

He said the prime minister is sitting in Ottawa silent as a Buddha instead of travelling across the country answering the questions in the minds of the people.

Labor Minister MacEachen said in Thessalon, Ont., that if Dr. Marcoux had any "really important information," he should have brought it up in the Commons, where the accused MPs could have defended themselves.

New Democratic Leader Douglas repeated his call for a judicial inquiry into Dr. Marcoux' allegation that a $25,000 bribe was offered in 1962 to a Social Credit organizer if he would supply the names of five or six MPs who would agree to "sell themselves" and publicly pledge their support to the Liberals.

(Dr. Marcoux, 43, was a Social Credit member of the last two Parliaments, but is running as an independent candidate this time. He said he doesn't want to be linked with any party campaign fund.)

DOUGLAS DISAGREES

Mr. Douglas told reporters in Toronto he does not agree with a statement by former Conservative solicitor-general William Browne that Transport Minister Pickersgill should be dismissed from the cabinet by Mr. Pearson.

"It's always a mistake to start judging people guilty before they are 'proven guilty,'" Mr. Douglas said.

Dr. Marcoux charged in his pamphlet that Mr. Pickersgill, who could suspect Moise Dardaner and mining promoter John Doyle, wanted in the U.S. for jumping bail, worked together in preparing the statement of support signed by the six MPs April 12, 1963, four days after the last election.

The support of the six gave the 129 Liberal MPs a clear majority in the Commons and Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced his government's resignation shortly afterwards. The six Creditistes (then Social Credit members) repudiated their pledge a few days later, and the formation of a Liberal government was assured by them.

'SCANDAL NECESSARY'

Social Credit Leader Thompson said in Saskatoon Thursday night that it was necessary for Dr. Marcoux to raise the "scandal." He said his former party whip probably revealed the results of his investigation because of "pressure and threats on his life."

Dr. Marcoux asked for and received police protection for his family at his home in Beauport, a Quebec suburb.

The six Creditistes at the Quebec press conference said they don't know Mr. Doyle and never dealt with him.

Gerard Perron (Beauce) said he and Mr. Rondeau drafted the 1963 statement. They had done it to foil a "plot" to keep the Diefenbaker government in office as a coalition with the New Democratic and Social Credit parties.

The six candidates said they will delay their libel suits until after election day because they don't want to be tied up in court during the campaign and don't want their suits to prevent debate on the issue during the campaign.

Mr. Gregoire, who did not sign the 1963 statement, declined to say on what grounds he plans to sue Dr. Marcoux. (The pamphlet says Creditiste Leader Caouette and Mr. Gregoire both knew that six of their colleagues planned to support the Liberals.)

CAOUETTE NOT TOLD

Mr. Perron said Mr. Caouette had been informed beforehand about the pledge.

"It would not have been prudent to advise him, and we were in a hurry," he said.

Mr. Gregoire said Dardaner, who now faces fraud and arson charges, was introduced to the six at a Quebec motel before they signed the statement, but none of them knew him.

Dardaner has been described as a Liberal organizer by Mr. Diefenbaker, but this was denied Friday night by Senator Maurice Bourget chairman of the Quebec organization committees for the federal Liberal party.

Leopold Langlois, chairman of the provincial Liberal organization, joined in the statement, which said that Dardaner "has never been a Liberal organizer or agent. We have never seen him and we do not know him."

Meanwhile in the isolated outports of Newfoundland, Mr. Pickersgill remained unavailable for comment as he campaigned for re-election in Bonavista-Twillingate.

Judge Rules in Favor Of Acceptance Corporation

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court justice Friday granted approval by which some of the operations of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. will be taken over, by General Acceptance Corp. of Allentown, Pa.

Mr. Justice W. D. Parker made a decision immediately after closing arguments of a week-long hearing into an application made by the receiver-general of the trouble-stricken finance company.

He said he was doing so because of the urgency associated with a company of wasting assets and would present written reasons later.

Five opposing counsel immediately launched into a scrap over Atlantic Acceptance, each seeking payment of costs from the funds of the company in the hands of the receiver-manager, Montreal Trust Co.

Mr. Justice Parker granted payment of costs from the funds, on a solicitor-client basis, to Montreal Trust, Atlantic Sugar Refineries Ltd., agents for secured noteholders, and part of the costs of counsel for subordinated noteholders who had opposed the motion before the court.

Costs for Atlantic Acceptance and General Acceptance were to be paid from the funds on an injured party basis.

RULES ON JURISDICTION

In making his decision Mr. Justice Parker said he first had to rule that he had jurisdiction in the matter, a point frequently challenged in the week-long hearing.

He was granting approval of the motion at once so that it could be proceeded with immediately. It had been stressed in evidence that Atlantic Acceptance receivables are a wasting asset, and a decision was a matter of urgency.

The dullness of final-day legal arguments was enlivened by a lively dispute of condemnation of the role played by Montreal Trust, which while trustee for three different classes of Atlantic noteholders, had sought appointment as receiver-manager after Atlantic had defaulted on some short-term debts last June 17.

A. S. Patillo, counsel for subordinated noteholders, said in his final argument that Montreal Trust's first duty under its three trust indentures was to "act for all the noteholders and them alone." He suggested the company should have refused the indentures of subordinate and junior subordinate noteholders when "it knew that in the event of litigation they was bound to be a conflict of interest between the classes of noteholders."

He urged Mr. Justice Parker to consider commenting in his judgment on what he called the "deplorable practice" of one agency acting under several indentures.

Closing arguments were centred on three broad areas: Whether Mr. Justice Parker had jurisdiction, whether the GAC proposal had merit enough to deserve consideration by the court, and whether GAC had a right to be bidding for assets of Atlantic when it had performed some duties on behalf of the receiver-manager.

The proposal approved by the court, it had been estimated previously, would — together with other Atlantic assets—ensure senior noteholders of payment of claims totalling $100,000,000. Subordinate noteholders, however, protested that it would leave nothing for settlement of their $29,000,000 in claims.

Ever since Eve plecolu'd the Apple Serenade to that Garden of Eden rattler and had Adam thrown out of the park, music has charmed the savage breasts of the mere males, including the ranks of athletes.

Phil Linz, the musical Yankee, harmonica'd, "Please Don't Talk About Us When You're Gone" in his famous bus concerto to Yogi Berra.

Tony Kubec and Bobby Richardson, other mouth-organ maestros of the Bronx Bombers, softly trem(o)ed revival hymns and spirituals in the sanctity of their hotel rooms.

Dizzy Dean, Pepper Martin and two or three others of that wild, woolly "Gashouse Gang" of St. Louis, once took over an orchestra in a posh hotel and rendered the first version of "The Death of the Blues."

Bo Belinsky, the night club-loving playboy of the west coast, once literally drummed himself out of a high-class nightery with his self-composed Fifth Symphony after inhaling a bottle of the same quantity.

Babe Ruth, it is stated, used to croon "After the Ball Is Over" as he spindle-legged his way around the sacks after knocking one out of the park.

Sugar Ray Robinson became the darling of the Parisien boulevards while doing his roadwork as a song-and-dance man on the "boards" of Montmartre and other hotspots.

Maury Wills, the Dodgers' prize pilferer and the Raffles of the major league, is a banjo virtuoso and carries his instrument with him. Wills with a small combo has bookings after the fever of the world series has subsided.

And now the tubs that are thumping the publicity for the upcoming Ernie Terrell - George Chuvalo brawl November 1st in Maple Leaf Gardens, state the "world champion" from Missouri has music in his muscles.

In an off-beat the other day they revealed that Terrell et al, qualifiers Elvis Presley, the Beatles, the Animals, et al, merged into one rhythmic chunk.

Digital members of the fist that has taken part in 41 fights, rocked 37 opponents and rolled but four times, can plink a guitar with the gentleness of a butterfly's embrace.

The handsome six-foot-six negro has his own rock 'n roll group he calls "Ernie Terrell and His Heavyweights."

It's a family affair with brothers J. C. and Leonard and sister Velma Jean. There's a drummer and feminine vocalist to round out the combo.

There is no doubt the big guy has talent. In his off-beat theatrical role he is wrestling plus. He writes songs including both words and music, sings, dances and plays the guitar.

He is probably the first world heavyweight champion to warble since John L. Sullivan bleeted, and burped in a London, England, ring. "Give me a sixpence, a pocket full of rye."

Terrell can belt out a song all right. He first gained recognition as a singer on the Johnny Carson "Tonight" show last November and which has been repeated.

His combo made its first professional appearance at the "Whiskey-Go-Go" in Chicago in April and from there appeared in other Windy City nightspots.

Hawks Belt Habs; Blues Dump Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens have been having a ball against minor - league opposition in their pre-season exhibition schedule. But it's a different story when they come up against the big boys.

The Stanley Cup champions, last of the National Hockey League clubs to abandon their policy of staying away from NHL opponents until the season opens, ran up a string of eight victories against farm clubs before tackling the big-timers this week. So far, they've met Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks and lost both times.

The Hawks, with four previous games against NHL clubs under their belts, bombed the Habs 4-2 Friday night, firing 32 shots at Charlie Hodge and Gump Worsley, who alternated in five - minute shifts. Glenn Hall and rookie Dave Dryden made 37 saves for Chicago.

In other games, New York Rangers topped Detroit Red Wings 6-4, despite a three-goal performance by Gordie Howe, and Boston Bruins defeated their first NHL rival in five starts by downing Toronto Maple Leafs 4-2.

The Hawks got their goals from Stan Mikita, Chico Maki, Bobby Hull and rookie Ken Hodge at Chicago while John Ferguson and Claude Larose tallied for Montreal in a split-lined game in which 30 penalties were called by referee Frank Udvari.

Dryden's appearance in the Chicago nets in the third period came as a result of the surprise demotion of Denis Dejordy to St. Louis Braves of the Central Professional League. DeJordy played 30 games as Hall's backup man last season and compiled a 2.52 goals-against average.

Dryden, a 24 - year - old Toronto schoolteacher, saw his only NHL action as a junior four years ago as an emergency fill-in for the Rangers during a visit to Maple Leaf Gardens. He played a few games on an emergency basis last season for Buffalo Bisons, the Hawks' American League farm club.

Although Howe was the individual star in the New York-Detroit game at Kitchener, setting up Alex Delvecchio's goal as well as scoring the other three, the Rangers finished on top as Lou Angotti scored twice and Gary Peters, Bill Hicke, Phil Goyette and Jim Neilson completed their total.

Defencemen provided most of the firepower for the Bruins at London, Ont., as veteran Leo Boivin scored twice against the Leafs and Ted Green accounted for the winner. The remaining Boston goal came from Johnny Bucyk while former Bruin Orland Kurtenbach and Red Kelly were the Toronto marksmen.

Seven other Hawks accompanied DeJordy to St. Louis—defencemen Pat Stapleton, John Misruk and Gary Kilpatrick and forwards Dave Richardson, Art Stratton, Dick Meissner and Oscar Gaudet.

Alston Manager Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Alston, the quiet man who piloted Los Angeles Dodgers to a rousing seven-game World Series victory over Minnesota Twins, was named National League Manager of the Year for 1965 in the annual Associated Press poll Friday.

Alston collected 171 votes in the balloting by 328 sports writers and sportscasters. Herman Franks of San Francisco Giants was second with 125 votes followed by Harry Walker of Pittsburgh Pirates with 31. The voting was based on regular season performances.

This is the third time the 53-year-old Alston has been selected for the honor. He was named in 1955 and 1959, both times after the Dodgers won the pennant.

Alston's managerial ability was put to a stiffer test this year than in any previous season. The Dodgers finished sixth in 1964 and few gave them a chance to win the flag, most selecting St. Louis, Cincinnati or Philadelphia.

Palmer, Lema Beaten

Thomson, Player In Final

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP)—The two cripples of the Piccadilly World match - play golf championship teed off today in the final, each well equipped with a bag of medicine.

Peter Thomson, British Open champion from Australia, met Gary Player of South Africa, the United States Open king, in the 36-hole joust for $14,000 first prize. Second money was $8,400.

"I am carrying a special anaesthetic spray," Thomson said of "it freezes the skin."

That makes it possible for Thomson to forget the pain in his back. He pulled a muscle during the Canada Cup matches in Madrid.

Player, bouncing with exuberance after beating Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., on the 37th hole, said he was prepared for are curing fibrositis in his back which stretches up to his neck. When it comes, he just can't swing a club. It forced him to withdraw from the British Open this year.

The way Player subjugated the 6507 - yard, par-74, West-worth West course Friday it was hard to imagine he had any pain. He threw a 67 at Lema, pulled back from being seven down at one stage and seized triumph out of seeming disaster.

Horseman Dies

BOLTON, Ont. (CP)—Doug Ness, owner and trainer of race horses for many years, died at his home here Friday. He was 70.

Mr. Ness also bred thoroughbreds, trotting horses, show horses, hunters and jumpers at his farm near Downsview, in suburban Toronto.

Four-Way Battle For Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The figure fiberts are having fun in the Western Conference as the playoff race goes down to the wire.

Calgary Stampeders have clinched a playoff berth. The other four spots still are in the running with three games remaining for all except British Columbia Lions, who have four.

Last - place Edmonton Eskimos have no chance of making the playoffs unless they win all of their remaining games. Edmonton visits the Stampeders tonight in one of the three weekend games that see all the WFC teams in action.

The Calgary game starts at 8 p.m. MST (11 p.m. EDT) and will be televised on the CBC's western network.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers play Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina Sunday starting at 2 p.m. CST (4 p.m. EDT). The Lions play Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders in a Sunday-Tuesday eastern swing.

Calgary has 20 points, Winnipeg 16, B.C. and Saskatchewan 13 and Edmonton 10.

B.C. head coach Dave Skrien does not plan to add new talent to his Grey Cup champion squad despite the fact it is in fourth place.

"When you lose you've got to expect criticism. . . . On a performance basis we are only inches away from last year's level when we won it all."

Calgary coach Jerry Williams says quarterback Eagle Day will play despite a knee injury.

Jim Fauver will take over from injured Bill Tobin as Edmonton's fullback. Dalton Hoffman, a late cut from Hamilton Oilers of the American League, also may see action at fullback.

Grandpa coach Hal Patrick said the Bombers are healthy and "we're improving all the time."

Lions Face Survival Test In East

Meet Tigers, Riders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If it's any comfort to British Columbia Lions, the West has won 13 of 18 games against eastern opposition so far this season in the Canadian Football League.

But the Lions aren't likely to be thinking too much of statistics when they open a two-game eastern tour Sunday in Hamilton against the Tiger-Cats, eastern conference leaders.

It's the league's only interlocking game this weekend, but it could count dearly in the Lions' chances for making a western playoff berth. They have to beat the Ticats, and then do the same thing to the Rough Riders in Ottawa Tuesday night, to assure themselves a playoff berth this year.

Sunday's game won't be televised.

In the only other weekend action in the East, the Toronto Argonauts, with nowhere to go, play host to Montreal Alouettes, who have already sewed up a berth in the three-team eastern playoff.

WILL HONOR SHATTO

Argonauts will use the game, to be carried on the CBC eastern network, to stage Shatto Day in honor of their 12-year veteran halfback who is retiring after this season.

Alouettes can still catch the second - place Rough Riders, whom they trail by four points. To do it however, Montreal would have to win its three remaining games and Ottawa lose the three it has left in the regular schedule.

"Ottawa are 6-5 for their 12 points, while we're 4-7, but they have to meet B.C., Toronto and us, while we have Toronto, Hamilton and them," Trimble figures the Lions will snap out of their season-long lethargy to help Ali Eskimake Riders.

"Vancouver has a big, rugged team," says Tiger Cats coach Ralph Sazio. "I want more speed in our backfield."

HOPES FOR DEPTH

He's hoping two returning veterans, end Hal Patterson and two-way star Bobby Kuntz, will give his team enough depth to overcome the injuries of recent games. Halfback Johnny Counts, who missed the last three Hamilton games because of injury, is due to return Sunday. Dave Fleming, who replaced Counts, will sit out.

Toronto coach Bob Shaw will have two replacements for Jackie Parker, probably out for the season with an injured knee. Grant McKee, a recent arrival from Edmonton Eskimos, will likely take Parker's defensive backfield position. Gord McTaggart will be on hand to back up quarterback Pete Liske, a job Parker handles when he's in the lineup.

A knee injury to Ted Elsby will force Trimble to move guard Wilbert Scott to the defensive line. Charlie Baillie will start at centre for the Alouettes, while Don Estes will move from centre to replace Scott at guard.

Flyers Defeat Baby Habs

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association Jr. A series started their season here Friday night with a 4-2 loss to the Memorial Cup champion Niagara Falls Flyers.

Each team scored twice in the first period before the Flyers took their second game in as many starts with single goals in each of the second and third periods.

Injuries and penalties were prominent in the game. Jean Pronovost of the Flyers suffered a shoulder injury after three minutes of the first period in a collision with Serge Savard of Montreal. The Canadiens' Richard Pumple was carried off the ice after being boarded, while Debrody suffered a leg injury.

WINS TITLE

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Adios Dominion, a five-year-old pacer, won his fourth victory of the season at Garden City Raceway Friday night.

Purchased as a yearling by Ken Galbraith, and now owned jointly with D. Ruston, Adios Dominion has banked $14,412 during his four years of racing.

Cardinals Meet Steelers

Unbeaten Packers Clash With Lions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota gets a chance this weekend to get back some of its lost sports prestige.

Just after the Twins' loss to Los Angeles Dodgers in baseball's World Series, Minnesota Vikings' top host Sunday to Chicago Bears in one of the top tests of a full weekend of U.S. professional football.

If the up-and-coming Bears pull an upset it would undoubtedly mean an end to the Vikings' dream of the National Football League Western title.

The Vikings are 5-2 and the Bears 3-3 in won-lost records.

The improving Bears last week got their first victory, 31-6 over Los Angeles Rams. But the Vikings also pulled out of a spin, mangling New York Giants 40-14.

Baltimore Colts, also 3-1, are at Washington Redskins. Dallas Cowboys are at Cleveland Browns. St. Louis Cardinals at Pittsburgh Steelers, Philadelphia Eagles at New York Giants and San Francisco at Los Angeles Rams in other Sunday contests.

The Browns and Cardinals are in front of the NFL Eastern Division with 3-1 records. The Giants, Eagles and Cowboys are 2-2, with the Steelers and Redskins 0-4.

In the American Football League, Oakland Raiders, still in a position to challenge for the Western Division title, play New York Jets in New York.

San Diego Chargers are at Boston Patriots, Buffalo Bills at Kansas City Chiefs and Houston Oilers at Denver Broncos Sunday.

Oakville Defeats Woodstock

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Oakville Oaks opened the Ontario Hockey Association Western Senior A hockey season Friday night with a 10-4 victory over defending champion Woodstock Athletics.

Jackie Price scored four Oaks goals and assisted on two others. Moe Galand scored twice while Doug Hillman, Norm Sibbick, Bob Bishop and Charlie Doucett added one each.

Aces, Reds Win Openers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Aces wrapped up their American Hockey League opener in the first period Friday night, defeating Springfield Indians 7-2.

It took Providence Reds three minutes of an overtime period before the outcome of their league opener against Rochester Americans was decided in their favor.

Wayne Larkin's 15-foot backhander at 3:36 gave the Reds a 3-2 win after they trailed 1-0 and 2-1 in the first two periods.

Quebec got three first-period goals from Bill Sutherland, Jean-Guy Gendron and Ed Hoekstra to give them all they needed. Gordon Labossiere, John Hanna, Leon Rochefort, and defenceman Don Johns added the other Aces goals.

Veteran Bill Sweeney scored both Springfield goals.

Besides Larkin's goal, Providence also got goals from Bob Leduc and Willie Marshall. Gerry Ehman gave the Americans a brief first-period lead and Larry Hillman added another in the second. Eddie Shack and Ehman assisted on Hillman's goal.

Wins College Tennis Crown

HAMILTON (CP) — Peter Burwash, a third-year physical education student, sparked University of Toronto to the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association tennis crown at McMaster University Friday.

In the matches against McGill University, Burwash defeated John Tibbets 3-6, 6-2, 6-1 in the singles event and combined with Paul Kent to beat Tibbets and Tom Gavin 6-0, 6-0 in the doubles.

Burwash also won the overall singles championship by defeating Pierre Brunet of the University of Montreal 6-3, 6-3.

Has Propelled Football Ten Miles

Shatto Could Set New Records Today

By ED SIMON

TORONTO (CP)—When Dick Shatto trots off the field after Toronto Argonauts' game against Montreal Alouettes today he will have carried, passed and otherwise propelled a football just under 10 miles—more than the distance from Exhibition Stadium to his home in Willowdale—during his 12-year professional career.

If he scores a touchdown or catches a pass during the game he'll set a Canadian Football League record. He'll break an Eastern Conference mark every time quarterback Pete Liske hands him the ball.

The soft - spoken halfback, who joined Argonauts from the University of Kentucky in 1954, holds or shares 21 club records in categories ranging from his three touchdowns on the ground in a single game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in 1958 to his eight EFC All-Star nominations.

Shatto's one-man assault on the record books will end on its familiar note in Hamilton Oct. 31 when he retires. Argonauts will finish the season in last place, out of the playoffs for the eighth time since he joined the club.

But the official designation by Mayor Philip Givens of Saturday as Dick Shatto Day is convincing evidence that Toronto doesn't blame the greying, 32-year-old veteran for the club's shortcomings.

He has scored only one of his 90 touchdowns—a CFL mark—during the current campaign. But Bob Shaw, Argos' freshman coach, has phased him out of a primary role in the team's offence, using him only in spots as a rusher and pass-receiver.

DICK SHATTO

The EFC's top receiver for the three previous seasons, Shatto has caught only 16 this year, ranking a distant 10th behind rookie Terry Evanshen of the Alouettes, who leads the conference with 30, but giving him a lifetime total of 460, tops in the CFL. He has carried 41 times for 196 yards, also good for 10th place.

Shatto features most prominently in current statistics in running back kickoffs, having toted 12 for a total of 336 yards. That's just 24 yards short of Bo Scott of Ottawa, the EFC leader and second only to the club record of 636 yards he racked up in 1956.

He also took on a new off-the-field role this season, serving as secretary - treasurer of the Canadian Football Players Association, formed last May.

Shatto, a naturalized Canadian and a permanent resident of Toronto, was one of several players who criticized the CFL last summer when it introduced a new rule limiting the number of naturalized United States-born players who could be classified as non-imports on team rosters.

MAY COACH KIDS

Although Shatto, is common with his team - mates, had his share of lapses on the field during a dismal season in which the Argos lost 10 of their first 11 games, his popularity appeared to be undiminished.

A retail salesman with a Toronto radio station, he was vice-chairman of the Ontario Red Cross fund - raising campaign in 1961 and chairman the following two years, making speaking tours on behalf of the drive.

The father of two boys, and three girls, Shatto plans to stay in Toronto, possibly coaching a minor football club. He has expressed interest in helping the Argonauts scout Canadian talent.

He recently rejected a bid to enter federal politics as a Progressive Conservative candidate for the Nov. 8 election but said he may try running for local office.

"I shied away from the federal level when I read about Red Kelly's complaints that it didn't leave him much time for his family," he explained. "That's what I'm trying to avoid—a job that keeps me away from the family."

RIFLES DOWN INDIANS

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Rifles took over sole possession of second place in the Eastern Division of the Continental Football League Friday night, bombing Rhode Island Indians 48-10 before a crowd of 6,700 Friday night. The win gave the Rifles a 7-3 record and moved them to within two points of Philadelphia Bulldogs.

Y.M.C.A. Basketball

The YMCA will be starting its men's basketball program on Monday, October 18th. Plans are for a house league to start as soon as organizational arrangements can be completed. The first few nights are practice sessions with pick-up teams organized. The season can be expected to run from now through Easter.

The league is open to all young men in the Belleville area, except high school students. Students will not be permitted to play in this loop but may play in the "Y" house league which practices at 3.00 p.m. at Moira S.S. on Saturday afternoons.

YMCA members will be admitted at the door. Men who do not hold a "Y" membership are requested to pick up a 75c pass at the "Y" desk on the way to the program.

Moira Secondary School gym will be used for play and practice each Monday night from 7 to 10 p.m., except when holidays or special school events are scheduled.

No Bowl For Gaels

KINGSTON (CP) —The Queen's University senate has ruled the university's football team, Golden Gaels, will not compete in the Nov. 20 Canadian college bowl in Toronto if it is selected.

Al Frost, athletic director at Queen's said Friday the decision was made in keeping with the school's policy of not playing football games after Nov. 15.

NHL Opening Said Latest In 20 Years

MONTREAL — When the 1965-66 National Hockey League season opens in Montreal and Toronto, Oct. 23, it will mark the latest beginning of a NHL season in 20 years and the first since 1944-45 that the schedule has started on a Saturday.

The last time a schedule began later than this year's was the 1945-46 campaign when each team played 50 games "The coming season is the NHL's 49th and the 17th in which each team has played 70 games.

The later opening also means the 210-game schedule will finish the latest in history —on Sunday, April 3.

Sunday and Saturday dates are the most popular with 70 games scheduled for Sunday and 64 for Saturday. There are 43 Wednesday games, 29 Thursday, three Tuesday (at Boston, Detroit and Chicago) and one Friday (Dec. 31 when Chicago visits Detroit). There are no games scheduled for a Monday.

The home openings for each of the six clubs are: Montreal—Oct. 23 against Detroit; Toronto —Oct. 23 against Chicago; New York—Oct. 24 against Montreal; Boston—Oct. 24 against Chicago; Detroit—Oct. 30 against Toronto; Chicago—Nov. 3 against Boston.

The schedule, by calendar weeks, is shorter than other years, going one day beyond 23 weeks. There are, however, 24 weekends in the season.

Toronto Maple Leafs play all of their home games on Wednesdays and Saturdays with 11 games in midweek and 24 on Saturday. The defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens have 22 Saturday dates at home, seven Thursday (all against Toronto) and six Wednesday games.

New York Rangers are at home 18 Sundays, 13 Wednesdays and four Saturday afternoons. Chicago Black Hawks play 18 Sunday home dates, 11 Wednesdays, four Saturdays, and one each on Tuesday and Thursday.

Boston Bruins have 17 Sunday games, nine Thursday, six Saturday (including one afternoon), two Wednesday and one Tuesday game. The defending League champion Detroit Red Wings play 17 games Sunday night, 12 Thursday, four Saturday (including two in the afternoon), and one each on Tuesday and Friday.

No games are scheduled Christmas Eve but a full schedule goes Christmas Night and also Dec. 26. The Montreal-Detroit game is the only one scheduled for New Year's Eve and two games are on New Year's Night.

As usual, the start of the season will be preceded by the 10th Annual All-Star Game, which this year will be played Wednesday, Oct. 20, at Montreal. The Canadiens will oppose the All-Stars coached by Billy Reay, whose Chicago Black Hawks were finalists in the 1965 playoffs. This will be the first time in nine years that an All-Star game has been played on any night other than Saturday.

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the golden era, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot was bedecked by such stars as Jean Harlow, Norma Shearer, Myrna Loy, Hedy Lamarr, Joan Crawford and Rosalind Russell.

What's her secret?

"I count the money and never take myself seriously," says Roz. "I only take my work seriously."

At the moment, she is the mom of Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad. Next she plays the role of a mother superior in The Trouble With Angels.

Roz freely admits she was born in 1912, although she doesn't look it.

"I have never been afraid of age—or playing aged character parts," she says. "I have always welcomed character roles. Maybe that's because I'm such a character myself. I did Craig's Wife when I was 25—and she was a middle-aged woman.

"I have been told that I have abnormal energy. When I was a child in Waterbury, Conn., my mother would reminisce that I was loud, but my father would counter that I was the only one he could understand at the dinner table.

"Mother was right. I am loud — maybe because my father owned a for steamship my folks have sailed on—the SS Rosalind."

"When I went to Marymount College in Tarrytown, N.Y., I played the part of St. Francis Xavier in the freshman class play."

HOOKED ON THEATRE

By the time she had done the lead in the senior class play, she knew she was hooked on the theatre.

Her first call to Hollywood came in 1934 from Universal Studios where they wanted to put her under a seven-year contract. Just before signing, she heard of a better deal at MGM, the biggest and most glamorous of all the studios. She joined MGM.

In those days, every new actor or actress was given the threat to a star so the bosses could keep the big ones in line.

Roz was signed as a threat to Myrna Loy.

The Women not only gave Roz her biggest boost, but was responsible for getting her the only husband she has ever had.

"I'm the only Hollywood husband who ever fell in love with his wife before I met her in person," says producer Fredric Brisson. "I came across the Atlantic on a liner that carried a one movie aboard. No matter where I went on that ship, it seemed I heard Roz's name.

"Finally, I saw the movie myself and said I'm either going to marry that girl or kill her." Roz recalls: "He proposed a number of times but I put him off with: 'Never ask at night.'

"So one morning about 6 o'clock, he rang my doorbell . . . and said 'Is this early enough?' I accepted and have never regretted for a second since."

Dittfach, 29, won the third race with Dudley, took the sixth with Runadir and rode Allrifla to victory in the last race.

In the sixth, Runadir paid $2.80, $2.20 and $2.10 and combined with mutuel-up Silbering Same for a $5.70 quinella.

TORONTO (CP) — Some of North America's finest turf horses are expected to enter the 280th running of the Canadian Championship at Woodbine Racetrack Oct. 25.

The weight-for-age classic will be run for a $50,000 added purse over a mile and five-eighths course.

Vancouver - owned George Royal, winner of the $125,000 added Sun Alaska Capilano Handicap earlier this year, is expected to be a start as is Quick Pitch, a five-year-old gelding owned by Fortune P. Ryan.

Don Richardson, a former Ryan's trainer, says the horse will "be ready for the championship" although he has lost three previous starts here.

Quick Pitch, who won the Niagara Handicap at Fort Erie and the Jockey Club Cup at Woodbine, holds the North American record for a mile and five-eighths on the turf.

AT THE PARK — Zany Playgirl — It's Audrey Hepburn as Holly Golightly accepting a light from Martin Balsam as George Peppard looks on in a scene from "Breakfast at Tiffany's", which is featured with Miss Hepburn's other great role, "Sabrina", opening Monday in Paramount's special double-bill presentation at the Park Theatre. Whether she's a gay girl-about-Manhattan or a lovely modern Cinderella she's one of the screen's most captivating gals. One complete show starts at 7.30. "Breakfast at Tiffany's" at 7.35, "Sabrina" at 9.45.

AT THE BELLE — Famed platinum blonde Jean Harlow's incendiary role to movie stardom began when she met Hollywood agent Arthur Landau. Lovely Carroll Baker, versatile Red Buttons portray these top roles in Joseph E. Levine's epic Technicolor and wide-screen film, "Harlow", showing Today, Monday and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre. Michael Connors, Martin Balsam, Peter Lawford, Angela Lansbury and Raf Vallone co-star.

Now A Free Agent

Giants Release Spahn

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Veteran Warren Spahn, winner of more games than any other left-handed pitcher, was given an unconditional release Friday by San Francisco Giants.

All other clubs in the National League had waived on the 44-year-old southpaw and the Giants' action leaves him free to make his own deal for the 1966 baseball season.

The Giants signed Spahn, who gained his fame with the Braves in Boston and Milwaukee, after New York Mets released him in July. He won three games for San Francisco and lost four.

In a career dating back to 1942, he won 363 games, most ever for a left-hander and sixth on the all-time list.

The Giants signed Spahn as a free agent last year after he was released in New York. He made 16 appearances for San Francisco and finished the season with an over-all record of 7-16.

At his cattle ranch near Hartshorne, Okla., Spahn said he wants to play baseball next year.

"I might be with the Giants again next year," he said. "I think it was to their advantage to give me a release. Everyone is thinking of roster room."

Jack and Mary Benny Moving Out of Mansion

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Oh my goodness, what am I going to do about the vault?"

This was Jack Benny in a bit of whimsy prefaced on the fact that he has put his Beverly Hills mansion up for sale. You know the vault — that mythical underground depository of treasure that even Goldinger wouldn't try to steal. He wouldn't have a chance, not with Good Old Ed guarding the inner door with his musket.

House, grounds, pool and vault—if there is a vault, outside of the imaginations of Benny's writers—will be going to some moneyed purchaser.

After 28 years at the same address, Jack and Mary Benny are moving a couple of miles south to occupy the former apartment in the new Century Towers.

"It's just too big a house to keep up, what with the help and all," said Jack. "And we're so seldom here anyway. We'll be spending about six months each year at our place in Palm Springs. The rest of the time I'll be on the road. So who needs the big house?"

LIFE CHANGES

Jack's life is changing in more than residence. This is the first season in 33 years that he has not appeared on a weekly show in radio or television. How does it feel?

"Great!" he declared. "At last I can do the things I've always wanted to do, without being tied down. I do concerts. I appear at fairs. I play night clubs. I'm going to Tokyo in November on vacation, although there's a chance I may do a show there.

"I may end up doing a Broadway play, which is about the only thing in show business I've never done."

Jack's humor still will be seen on television this season, and not only with the re-run that crowd the CBS air weekdays and on Friday nights. NBC has signed him for a pair of specials in color. The first will appear Nov. 3.

What does he think of the new, Benny-less season on television?

"I'm too busy to watch television. There are too many things I like to be doing."

Green Gaels Beaten In Benefit

HAGERSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Ohsweken Warriors, bolstered by six players from Fergus Thistles who won the Canadian Senior B championship, edged Oshawa Green Gaels 11-10 Friday night in a benefit football game watched by a capacity crowd of 1,000 fans.

Proceeds of the game went to the family of Earl Hill, a former member of the Ohsweken club, who died in an industrial accident Oct. 1.

Green Gaels, winner of the Canadian Junior title for the last three seasons, had only seven of this year's Minto Cup champions in uniform as a number were attending universities or hockey training camps.

$28 Ivbhyicve woodbine oct16

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Hugo Dittfach consigned his winning ways at Woodbine Racetrack when he won three races on the eight-race card Friday.

Dittfach, 29, won the third race with Dudley, took the sixth with Bluebeard and rode Ardrulla to victory in the last race.

Dittfach with 136 winners this year leads Woodbine riders. He is also the leading rider at Woodbine's autumn meeting with 17 victories.

In the sixth, Runadir paid $2.80, $2.20 and $2.10 and combined with Bluebeard in Slithering Same for a $5.70 quinella.

TORONTO (CP) — Some of North America's finest turf horses are expected to enter the 26th running of the Canadian Championship at Woodbine Racetrack Oct. 23.

The highly-of-age classic will be run for a $50,000 added purse over a mile and five-eighths course.

Vancouver - owned George Royal, winner of the $125,000 added San Juan Capistrano Handicap earlier this year, is scheduled to start as is Quick Pitch, a five-year-old gelding owned by Fortune P. Ryan.

Don Blenkarn's George Royal's trainer, says the horse will "be ready for the championship" although he has lost three previous starts here.

Quick Pitch, who won the Niagara Handicap at Fort Erie and the Jockey Club Cup at Woodbine, holds the North American record for a mile and five-eighths on the turf.

Giants Release Spahn

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Veteran Warren Spahn, winner of more games than any other left-handed pitcher, was given an unconditional release Friday by San Francisco Giants.

All other clubs in the National League had waived on the 44-year-old southpaw and the Giants' action leaves him free to make his own deal for the 1966 baseball season.

The Giants signed Spahn, who gained his fame with the Braves in Boston and Milwaukee, after New York Mets released him in July. He won three games for San Francisco and lost four.

In a career dating back to 1942, he won 363 games, most ever for a left-hander and sixth on the all-time list.

The Giants signed Spahn as a free agent July 19 after he was released in New York. He made 16 appearances for San Francisco and finished the season with an over-all record of 7-11.

At his cattle ranch near Hartshorne, Okla., Spahn said he wants to play baseball next year.

"I might be with the Giants again next year," he said. "I think it was to their advantage to give me a release. Everyone is thinking of roster room."

Jack and Mary Benny Moving Out of Mansion

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Oh my goodness, what will I have to do about the vault?"

This was Jack Benny in a bit of whimsy prefaced on the fact that he has put his Beverly Hills mansion up for sale. You know the vault — that mythical underground depository of treasure that even Goldfinger wouldn't try to steal. He wouldn't have a chance, not with Good Old Ed guarding the inner door with his musket.

House, grounds, pool and vault—if there is a vault outside of the imaginations of Benny's writers—will be going to some moneyed purchaser.

After 28 years at the same address, Jack and Mary Benny are moving a couple of miles south to occupy the penthouse apartment in the new Century Towers.

"It's just too big a house to keep up, what with the help and all," said Jack. "And we're so seldom there, anyway. We'll be spending about six months each year at our place in Palm Springs. The rest of the time I'll be on the road. So who needs the big house?"

LIFE CHANGES

Jack's life is changing in more than residence. This is the first season in 35 years that he has not appeared on a weekly show in radio or television. How does it feel?

"Great!" he declared. "At last I can do the things I've always wanted to do, without being tied down. I do concerts. I appear at fairs. I play night clubs. I'm taking Mary to London in November on vacation. Although there's a chance I may do a show then too.

"I may end up doing a Broadway play, which is about the only thing in show business I've ever done."

The Benny humor still will be seen on television this season, and not only with the re-runs that crowd the CBS air weekdays and on Friday nights. NBC has signed him for a pair of specials in color. The first will appear Nov. 14.

What does he think of the new, Benny-less season on television?

"I'm too busy to watch television. There are too many things I like to be doing."

Green Gaels Beaten In Benefit

HAGERSVILLE, Ont. (CP)— Ohsweken Warriors, bolstered with six players from Fergus Thistles who won the Canadian Senior B championship, edged Ohsweken Green Gaels 13-10 Friday night in a benefit lacrosse game watched by a capacity crowd of 1,000 fans.

Proceeds of the game went to the family of Earl Hill, a former member of the Ohsweken club, who died in an industrial accident Oct. 1.

Green Gaels, winner of the Canadian Junior title for the last three seasons, had only seven of this year's Minto Cup champions in uniform as a number were attending universities or hockey training camps.

Agriculture Minister Hayes In 4-way Fight at Calgary

By DAN POWERS

The straight - talking former cattle auctioneer wasn't sure in 1963 that he wanted to be a member of Parliament but he ran successfully in traditionally Conservative Calgary South and entered the cabinet. Conservatives have won the seat in all but two elections since 1925.

This time he is in a four-way fight for the urban seat and actively campaigning in Manitoba, Ontario and northern Alberta in an effort to break Conservative strongholds.

Near the end of the week the agriculture minister was in hospital with a mild form of pneumonia. However, an aide denied a doctor's saying the illness was not serious and was caused largely by weariness.

Mr. Hays, 53, topped Conservative Jack Leslie by 21,000 votes to 19,633 in the last election with Social Credit and New Democratic Party candidates far behind.

His opponents this time are Conservative Ray Ballard, 47, a Calgary alderman; Leonard Pearson, 32, a Calgary dentist and Social Creditor; and David Gravelle, 36 — a labor - official who is NDP candidate.

His opponents are taking a more diversified approach to attract votes in the constituency which covers nearly all downtown Calgary, large suburban areas with a high proportion of higher - income families and some industrial sections. Conservative Prime Minister R. B. Bennett once represented the area.

Mr. Ballard criticized the government's fiscal policies, maintaining the Liberals are bragging about inflation rather than actual gains in the gross national product.

Mr. Pearson said the election call was "political overkill" and a blow to Confederation. He echoed Social Credit opposition to the federal - government's proposed medical care insurance program, saying it should be carried out under a voluntary, not compulsory, system.

Mr. Gravelle, president of Local 360 of the International Moulders and Allied Workers Union, said Mr. Hays let farmers become caught in a cost-price squeeze and he criticized the Liberals for allowing a vital source of water to be lost to the Prairies through the Columbia River treaty.

Mr. Hays, a former Calgary mayor who says he's "not taking anything for granted," plans three large meetings in the home constituency, plus coffee parties and television appearances. The other candidates have similar campaign plans.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are new here from Ireland, and would like you, through your travel column, to tell us something about the province of Ontario. Could you also give us some statistics on important items? — Mr. K., Belleville

ANSWER: Ontario, a land of 250,000 sparkling lakes, extends 1,000 miles from east to west, 1,050 miles from north to south, from polar bears at Hudson Bay to peaches in the Great Lakes area, where the southernmost tip of the province has the same latitude as Northern California. Ontario, comprising a total area of 412,582 square miles, is about equal in size to the following 14 states of the U.S.A.: New York, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, and, believe it or not, it is twice the size of Texas.

Toronto, the capital of Ontario, is one of the fastest growing cities in the world with one third of Canada's buying power in a zone with a radius of 100 miles from this city.

Population of Ontario is 6,236,092 out of a total Canadian population of over 18,238,247, with an average annual increase of 150,000 or three percent, exceeding that of the rest of Canada and nearly double that of the United States.

Road mileage totals 90,000 miles, exclusive of cities, towns and villages, with many miles of fine four-lane highways. There are 12 railroads with 10,000 miles of single track, 90 licensed airports, 42 daily newspapers, 300 weekly newspapers, 70 radio stations and 24 television stations.

Ontario offers vacations of infinite variety — from the attraction of delightful, modern cities, combining old and new world charm, — to thousands of square miles of forest area with rivers and streams stocked with game and fish, providing fishing and hunting in season that has no equal anywhere in North America. The border between Canada and the United States is the longest undefended and friendly border in the world.

September 25th was an exciting day for H. K. Schaefer of Montreal, as he became the Canadian Automotive Museum's 50,000th visitor, since the museum's opening in June, 1963. Mr. Schaefer was presented with a model antique car by Mr. Jack Mano, manager of Canada's Auto Museum located in Oshawa, 32 miles east of Toronto. Mr. Schaefer is marine superintendent of Canadian Vickers Shipyards and visited the museum while holidaying in central Ontario. The museum is open seven days a week, which gives tourists an opportunity to see the history and development of the automobile, particularly Canada's part in the past and present story of an industry affecting the lives of all Canadians. In addition, the country's first comprehensive library of automotive reference is being established as an educational service to schools and universities. Tourists on reaching the museum in a few minutes from Highway 401 are at 99.

QUESTION: What is the new highway that has just been completed from Watertown, N.Y., to the Ivy Lea Bridge and how much time will it save to Watertown? — A.M.S., Belleville

ANSWER: This is the four-lane Interstate highway from Watertown, which has just undergone construction for the past two years. This new highway will now give motorists a fast-er driving time from the bridge to Syracuse direct, without going through towns and villages on highways 12 and 180. It should save about 15 minutes driving time from the bridge to Watertown, and, of course, provides much safer driving.

INSURANCE FACTS.....

From the Belleville Fire & Casualty Insurance Agents Association

In 1963, 34,473 people were injured in Ontario in automobile accidents. In 1964, 38,808 people were injured. An increase of 4,333 people injured in Ontario alone!

Your premium is reduced by 35% if you are three year accident free; so it pays to drive safely.

The Ontario Safety League states that Saturday is the worst day to drive and Tuesday is the safest.

In the first six months of 1964, motorists collided with 26.7% more deer, cows, moose, dogs, skunks, horses and other animals than in 1963. It seems that animals are getting more careless all the time.

The Insurance Bureau of Canada has estimated, that when the final figures are completed, the Insurance Companies writing automobile and truck insurance will lose $20 million in 1964.

It is estimated that four drinks can cost you $512.00. The fine could be $200.00 for impaired driving, $150.00 for legal fees, $14.00 for police towing, $10.00 to file financial responsibility, $115.00 increase in auto insurance rates, $18.00 for getting the car fixed up after the suspension period is completed and $5.00 for a driver examination fee. Obviously it doesn't pay to drink and drive.

Thomson Once Expected To Be Governor-General

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—Lord Thomson, in a rags-to-riches career studded with victories and some disappointments, once believed John Diefenbaker would appoint him governor-general of Canada.

This unfulfilled hope is recounted as a mere incident in the dynamic, wealth-producing life of the former $5-a-week Toronto clerk in a new biography, Roy Thomson of Fleet Street, to be published by Collins in Britain and Canada next week.

In the process of accumulating one of the world's most productive publishing and broadcasting empires, now valued at an estimated $300,000,000, Thomson yearned to be filled with what he regarded as the emerald of social acceptance, the British nobility. But biographer Russell Braddon noted that as long as he retained Canadian citizenship, Thomson could not be given a title, no matter how skilful his salesmanship or his ability to dissect a company balance sheet.

In July, 1961, the tenth, hard-driving descendant of impoverished Scottish sheep farmers and border raiders, who quit school at 14, was installed at the age of 67 as chancellor of Memorial University of Newfoundland.

OFFER BY DIEFENBAKER

Later, in the privacy of the Newfoundland lieutenant - governor's drawing room, Diefenbaker, then prime minister, is reported to have questioned Thomson about filling the role of the Queen's representative at Ottawa.

"Roy, would you accept the appointment of governor - general of Canada?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's something I can give you without having to ask anyone else."

Within a few hours, biographer Braddon noted, Thomson not only had been installed as a university chancellor, but had been virtually designated as the next governor-general. It was "quite a day."

But this centrepiece of official adulation elated the man who could spring from disasters to new pinnacles of fortune. In the end, Thomson had to yield his Canadian citizenship before, in 1964, he became the first Canadian-born peer in almost a quarter-century, Baron Thomson of Fleet, of Northbridge in the City of Edinburgh.

NATIONAL "NEWSPAPERBOY DAY" OCTOBER 16th

National Newspaperboy Day, October 16th

'The Boy Most Likely To Succeed'

This term is one often used in tribute to the young man who is starting to climb the ladder to success, aided by the unequalled training gained by newspaper route experience.

WE HONOR THESE YOUNG BUSINESS-MEN . . . THE LEADERS OF TOMORROW

CANADA

PRIME MINISTER — PREMIER MINISTRE

As a former 'paper boy" I am particularly pleased to join in the recognition being given on National Newspaperboy Day to all young Canadians whose task it is to deliver our newspapers.

The job done by news-boys is an integral part of the complex process of maintaining an informed nation. I believe we sometimes overlook the importance of your service to thousands of Canadian homes — often long before dawn. The rewards include valuable experience in operating your own business; self-confidence achieved by meeting and dealing with people; the dependability and responsibility news-boys acquire. There are few school-day vocations that offer such a combination of training, experience and discipline.

I congratulate all of you for a job well done.

L. B. PEARSON.

AWARD OF HONOR

Presented to 2 Former Belleville Carriers

MR. PAUL RUSHLOW

Mr. Paul Rushlow, 69 Church St., Belleville, age 19, has now entered Queen's University in the field of Dentistry for the next 5 years.

He has been an Intelligencer Newspaperboy for the past 10 years and has been presented with the AWARD OF HONOR, plus a Bond valued at $50.00 from The Intelligencer.

Paul saved a total of $2,500 while being an Intelligencer carrier.

MR. STEVEN SCOTT

Mr. Scott, 216 Pine St., age 17, also another AWARD OF HONOR Newspaperboy received a $50.00 Bond from The Intelligencer and has carried over 100 papers a day for the past 3 years. These awards are presented by The Canadian Newspaper Circulation Managers Association.

National Newspaperboy Day, October 16th

PROCLAMATION

NATIONAL NEWSPAPERBOY DAY

Saturday, October 16

WHEREAS the Council of the Corporation of Belleville highly endorses the training, business experience and citizenship provided the young men and women of this community by the press:

AND WHEREAS the Council of the Corporation of Belleville praises the honesty, dependability and responsibility portrayed by these young people because of this training:

THEREFORE, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the said Council I declare Saturday, October 16, to be National Newspaperboy Day and call upon the citizens of Belleville to recognize and praise the vital service which these young people provide daily to our community.

J. R. Ellis
MAYOR

HIS FUTURE:
Salesman ?
Professional Man ?
Tradesman ?
Executive ?

Ask War Foes

'Marchers, You Red Or Yellow?'

NEW YORK (AP) — Promoters of organized Viet Nam protests say they are pleased with the results of the weekend demonstrations, but leaders — in official and civic life — are questioning the motives of some of the marchers.

A survey shows the latter ask, in effect: Are some just trying to get out of the draft? And if they are sincere, are they being led on by Communists and Communist sympathizers?

He called out: "Are you red or are you yellow?"

Frank Emspak, chairman of the National Co-ordinating Committee to end the War in Viet Nam, said Sunday in Madison, Wis., that more than 70,000 persons took part in Saturday's demonstrations in scores of cities.

Emspak said he has started planning for another series of nationwide demonstrations Nov. 6 or Nov. 20.

U.S. Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach, in Chicago Sunday night, said the justice department has begun an investigation into the movement and has uncovered "some evidence" that some persons very closely associated with organizations working for the Students for a Democratic Society.

ECHO PEKING

"Whenever you have a situation in which people are saying things similar to what is being said by Peking, you are likely to find some Communists involved in it," Katzenbach said, then added:

"There are some Communists involved in it."

Overseas, the Peking radio quoted the Chinese Kwangming Daily as saying that the protest movement "is a continuation of the American people's protracted struggle against the United States policy of aggression and war."

The demonstrations, in various cities from New Haven, Conn., to Hawaii, were noisy but for the most part orderly. Heckling by anti-demonstrators from the sidelines contributed to the uproar.

In New York city, where more than 40,000 anti-war adherents marched down Fifth Avenue Saturday, there were several fist-fights and the burning of eggs and red paint, but the police kept things from getting out of hand.

THREATENS ARREST

The VFW commander, Vincent J. DiMatina of Brooklyn, said if Miller was allowed to go free "we are allowing the seeds of dissension to be sown in the midst of Americans."

Wisconsin Governor Warren P. Knowles, commenting Sunday on the arrest Saturday of 11 demonstrators at the gates of the Truax Air Force Base, Madison, as they attempted a citizen arrest of the base commander, said the demonstrators

'Rhodesia Rejects Mission'

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesia has rejected Britain's proposal for a Commonwealth premiers' mission to come to Salisbury in a bid to solve this white - dominated government's independence crisis, it was announced today.

Prime Minister Ian Smith described the proposal as "not practical" in a personal message to British Prime Minister Wilson.

Smith also repeated his warning that a decision on a unilateral declaration of independence may be made within the next few days.

Smith told Wilson it would be impossible for Rhodesia to "reserve a principle and to commit ourselves to the decisions or recommendations of any Commonwealth mission."

He said it was "less than fair" that Commonwealth countries should be asked to "sit in judgment upon the Rhodesian case."

Such a mission suggested by

Prince Charles to Attend Aussie Grammar School

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, will spend 3½ months next year as an exchange student in Australia, Buckingham Palace announced today.

A palace spokesman said Prince Charles will attend the Geelong grammar school, a Church of England institution.

The prince, who will be 17 Nov. 14, now is a student at the Spartan-like Scottish school, Gordonstoun.

The spokesman added:

"It is understood that he should go on exchange for the term beginning Feb. 1, 1966, and it is expected that a boy from the Australian school will attend Gordonstoun for the equivalent term."

A source close to the Royal Family said "the idea originated with the Queen and Prince Philip," and it has been discussed with British Prime Minister Wilson and Australian Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies.

Prince Charles will be the first member of the Royal Family ever to attend an overseas Commonwealth school.

Geelong, which caters for boys who plan professional careers, has more than 700 students—and the fees are $184 (£322) a term. The school is divided into sections, several located at different parts of the country.

Prince Charles will be at Timbertop, which is 100 miles north-east of Melbourne. He will help in supervising the studies of boys from 14 to 16. The Timbertop institution is designed to encourage the development of initiative and self-reliance.

The establishment at Timbertop was started in 1953. There are about 120 boys and they live in groups of 15 in huts.

Prince Charles will live in bachelor quarters in a bungalow.

Pickersgill Denies Bribery, Marcoux Makes Charges

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Transport Minister Pickersgill has threatened to take legal action against anyone accusing him of bribery or any wrongdoing in the "affair of the six."

In a statement issued Sunday in Ottawa, he denied having bribed or attempted to bribe any Social Credit MPs who pledged their support to the Liberals five days after the 1963 election, thus helping the Liberals to oust the Diefenbaker government.

He accused Dr. Guy Marcoux, who published allegations about the "affair", Wednesday, of "scandal mongering" and spreading "political propaganda."

"I repeat my statement (of Wednesday) that I bribed no one," Mr. Pickersgill said.

"I tried to bribe no one; I had no knowledge of any bribe at the time; and I have seen or heard no evidence since of any bribe."

The minister also denied being involved in a "plot" to persuade Social Credit MP to support a Liberal government.

Missile Launcher Smashed

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. jets smashed a Soviet-supplied missile launcher in North Viet Nam during the weekend, but five American planes were lost in other raids on the north, a U.S. military spokesman reported today.

Four of the American airmen were presumed captured and two others were killed when three navy planes were lost Sunday 40 miles north of Hanoi, the spokesman said. Two U.S. flyers were listed as missing after two air force jets were lost Saturday on a raid south west of Hanoi.

Peking broadcasts claimed seven U.S. planes were downed and "several" pilots captured in North Viet Nam, which has threatened to try captured American pilots as war criminals.

The U.S. planes downed during the weekend brought to 118 the number lost in Communist territory since American planes began attacking targets in North Viet Nam last February.

Four A-4 Sky Hawks and an A-6 Intruder from the U.S. 7th Fleet carrier Independence hit the mobile anti-aircraft missile unit with eight tons of bombs. Pilots said they left a missile smoking on the ground and launchers and 10 vehicles in flames.

U.S. aircraft are known to be hunting at least five of the mobile missile units, which can be assembled or dismantled within 24 hours.

The defence department says five U.S. planes have been knocked down by Soviet-supplied missiles.

NATO End Urged In Article Passed By Gen. de Gaulle

PARIS (Reuters)—An article reported to have been written by the French general staff and passed by President Charles de Gaulle urged Sunday the breakup of integrated NATO forces, exclusion of the U.S. from European defence and no West German voice in the use of atomic arms.

The article, in the quarterly organ of the Centre for Foreign Policy, was signed "XXX"—the traditional signature of "Ate - flying" articles inspired by the French general staff. The magazine is often the unofficial mouthpiece of the French foreign ministry.

The article said the Atlantic alliance should become a simple system of treaties, and all integration of staff, troops and infra-structure should be removed from NATO.

After taking integration out of NATO the author proposed to put it back into a special European defence force. This would involve a guarantee of West German security by the French nuclear force, and would keep Germany's finger off the atomic trigger.

The article was the first detailed outline of what was believed to be French official thinking about the reform of NATO which de Gaulle has been urging for seven years.

The author said that while integration of staff and troops would be abolished, the system could include a permanent coordination of Allied strategies, "or at least, of the strategies known as deterrent."

Kashmir Fighting Erupts

NEW DELHI (AP) — Firing erupted Sunday in five sectors of Kashmir and India charged that Pakistani tanks, backed by artillery, had been in action at other points.

Indian officials also reported that an exodus of guerrillas from Kashmir, which started several weeks ago, has greatly reduced the number being chased by Indian security forces.

It was clear from a defence ministry communique, however, that trouble is not ended.

Regular Pakistani units opened fire, the communique said, on Indian troops in the Tithwal, Haji Pir, Naushera and Jhangar sectors. This would mean there was skirmishing virtually the entire length of the ceasefire line, established in Kashmir by the United Nations in 1949 after an India - Pakistani war over the Himalayan state.

ENGAGE RAIDERS

In addition, India said its forces engaged Pakistani raiders in the Mendhar sector in southwest Kashmir and killed one guerrilla.

Tank-artillery action was reported in distant southwest Kashmir along the ceasefire line established last month after the recent 22-day India-Pakistan war.

The defence ministry said Pakistani infantry, backed by tanks, artillery and machine guns, attacked Indian positions Friday in the Kehnor-Nawatala region, about 74 miles southeast of Gadra city in Rajasthan state. India claimed the capture of a jeep and other booty, in addition to killing three Pakistanis.

New Delhi also accused the Pakistanis of violating the ceasefire in the Jammu and Sialkot sectors of the western front—indicating there was no let-up in skirmishing and blood-letting that has been a daily occurrence since the ceasefire ostensibly went into effect Sept. 23.

Pakistani Ambassador Agha Jad Ali said the attack was directed against Pakistan's Kashmir post in the Rajasthan sector, "which has been in our possession since before the ceasefire came into effect."

He mentioned it in a letter to Secretary-General U Thant, accusing India of 10 ceasefire violations outside disputed Kashmir in the past week. In another letter, he accused India of four ceasefire violations inside Kashmir in the last five days.

Both letters were made public Sunday.

Indians Asked To Refrain From Voting

TORONTO (CP) — Andrew Maracle of the Deseronto reserve near Belleville told an Indian meeting here Friday they should have nothing to do with the Nov. 8 federal election.

He called on Indians Saturday to abstain from voting as it would lead only to the eventual loss of their lands.

Mr. Maracle accused the federal government of a long-term plan "to do away with the reserves."

Speaking to an "Iroquois Speak" meeting, Mr. Maracle said treaties with the Indians were signed by sovereign powers and today's Indians are still a nation apart.

By voting, he said, they will be endorsing the government's plan to wipe out the Indian's right to self-government.

7 Former Ministers In Running

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Seven of the 18 Conservative cabinet ministers who either retired from politics or were defeated at the polls in 1963 are bidding to return to Parliament in the Nov. 8 federal election.

Most prominent of the seven is George Hees, the former trade minister who quit the Diefenbaker cabinet four days after the Conservative government lost a non-confidence vote in the Commons Feb. 5, 1963. He said then that he feared Mr. Diefenbaker would take an anti-American line in the campaign for the April 8 election.

Mr. Hees, 52, is bidding to unseat Liberal Pauline Jewett in Northumberland, a mainly rural constituency fronting on Lake Ontario about 100 miles east of Toronto.

The others:

Davie Fulton, 49, who held the justice and public works portfolios before leaving the federal field to become Conservative leader in British Columbia. He is seeking to recover his old Kamloops seat.

Howard Green, 69, external affairs minister when he lost Vancouver-Quadra to a Liberal last time and is now three years down.

Richard A. Bell, 52, former immigration minister, campaigning again in the Ottawa area riding of Carleton which in 1963 elected a Liberal for the first time since Confederation.

Raymond O'Hurley, 56, defence production minister from 1958 to 1963, trying a comeback in Lotbinière, where he was defeated last time.

The three ministers of 1963 who did not sit in the last Parliament and are not seeking run for the next one are Donald

Tories Declare Britain Is European Power, Hint At Quitting Africa And Asia

LONDON (CP)—The opposition Conservative party's view of Britain's external role is receding to the horizons of Western Europe from the global outlook that has characterized British foreign policy for 300 years.

Tory leaders voiced strong suggestions at the annual party conference last week in Brighton that Britain should acknowledge its diminishing strength by abandoning all pretence of being a world power.

Enoch Powell, the party's chief spokesman on defence, forecast a military withdrawal from Asia and the Middle East into a kind of "Fortress Europe."

Edward Heath, the new party leader who led Britain's vain effort to join the European Common Market two years ago, foresaw Britain playing its primary foreign role in a dynamic Europe.

The conference paid little more than lip service to the importance of the Commonwealth or the United Nations in Conservative plans for Britain's future. Even the party program discussed last week carries the title Europe and the World over its foreign policy section.

Powell, whose speech Thursday was rated by many observers as the most substantial and thoughtful of the whole conference, declared bluntly that "the United Kingdom is a European power."

"An alliance which can successfully defend Western Europe against attack . . . has an overriding claim on the resources which we can devote to our defence."

Powell added the condition—a rejection of an all-inclusive Atlantic or West European military force—that Britain must resist any commitment "which would irrevocably rule out any possibility of independent action."

Powell hinted strongly he thinks Britain would be wise, on both economic and strategic grounds, to withdraw from military commitments in Asia and Africa. Further, he suggested that any Western military presence remaining in Asia and Africa may be unwise.

He put the proposition that the limits of Communist advance in Asia and Africa will be fixed ultimately by "a balance of forces which will itself be Asiatic and African."

Heath was asked later whether Powell was advocating the abandonment of British bases at Aden and Singapore, while the party policy document says "present commitments" require a continued British military presence.

Heath evaded the question by replying that Powell was laying the long-term basis of a defence policy.

In his own speech, Heath said the most important change in world power is "the changing balance between the two sides of the Atlantic."

"Europe today is rebuilt, prosperous and flourishing in trade and finance . . . It is in this position that I want Britain to be able to exert its influence."

Gerald B. Hyde Heads Provincial Lawn Bowlers

Gerald B. "Jerry" Hyde, past president of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, and an ardent bowler for many years, was elected president of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association at a meeting of the Association held at the Balmy Beach Bowling Club in Toronto on Saturday. Besides being a bowler of note in the district he has taken an active part in the social, civic and church life of the city. He is at present chairman of the Public Utilities Commission and was a Alderman and served as Mayor of the city in 1958-59.

His election to the presidency of the PLBA is a distinct honor to the local club. He is the 36th president and probably the youngest member to attain the president's chair and follows another member of the local club, the late "Cliff" Argue, who was president of the Association in 1950. Another president from this district was Dr. A. E. Carlaw of Stirling in 1938. Mr. Hyde came up the hard way in the Association. He was named Provincial Director in 1950 and served in that capacity until his election as vice-president last year. Serving with him will be Clarence E. Veigel of Paris as vice president and a new secretary-treasurer, Cy English of Leaside.

Mr. Ray Knight, the efficient secretary-treasurer of the Association for the past eighteen years, retired on Saturday and the Association thanked him with a life membership as honorary president and the past presidents banded together to present him with a red jacket with crest.

There are 194 clubs in the

GERALD HYDE

Association in the Province and comprised of 6,801 men bowlers and in addition there are 3,000 women bowlers registered. There were 60 delegates present at the meeting and they decided to hold the Ontario championships in Ottawa in 1967, Centennial Year. The Canadian championships will be held in Winnipeg and Montreal in Centennial Year will be held in Montreal.

The new president was authorized to attend the Sportscaster dinners at Toronto and London this year and instructed to present cheques of $500 to each from the Benevolent Fund of the Association to further the work among crippled children.

Charles Iredale, the retiring president of the Association, presented to the members a gavel which was turned out of a wooden bowl used by the first winner of the singles competition for the Province.

Role of House Member Given By Temple

The role of a member of Parliament and the duties he owes to the individual, his constituents, riding and country were outlined to a group of United Church young people in Belleville and neighboring counties by Liberal candidate Robert Prudic last night. The meeting attended by more than 80 was held at the Holloway Street United Church.

Mr. Temple described the actual work of an M.P. in the House of Commons as he explained "taking part in debates in the highest form in Canada". He related specific experiences as a Canadian representative at NATO and while he acted as co-chairman of the Justice Committee in the last parliament.

"There will be universal education for all regardless of their financial status," he said pointing out that such a program would require a centralized approach and that would be dealt with as a matter of course. Higher education benefits the individual, the family, the community and Canada, he explained. He referred to the government's plan to distribute 10,000 Canadian scholarships in 1966 when top students will receive $1,000 to continue learning.

The Belleville District Committee held an executive meeting at the home of Mrs. C. Lynch recently to discuss plans for the annual meeting.

The annual District Committee meeting is to be on Thursday, October 21 at Hillcrest school—turn right at the Spur gas station on Canniton Road and the school is on the south side at the next corner.

Special guest will be Mr. G. Brennan, Scout Executive for "The District Scout Work Service House. What it is and What it Does."

Would all auxiliaries please note the write-ups of their meetings in within a week to the publicity chairman.

It was announced at the executive meeting that there was to be a day long study course in Toronto provided by the Provincial Advisory Board if each auxiliary has been advised to send a representative to this meeting.

All auxiliary members are invited to attend the Belleville District Council annual meeting, 8.00 p.m., St. Thomas' Parish House on Oct. 27th.

All the auxiliaries of Belleville District are invited to attend the Scouter Conference for ladies' Auxiliaries on Saturday, Nov. 6, at St. Thomas Parish House.

Yvon Dupuis Still Considers P.M. as Chief

NAPIERVILLE, Que. (CP)—Yvon Dupuis, former minister without portfolio in the Pearson cabinet who was dismissed as a result of allegations that he was party to a $10,000 bribe offer, told an audience of 1,000 Sunday that he is still a Liberal and considers Prime Minister Pearson "still my chief."

The meeting launched the campaign for Mr. Dupuis' re-election. He has been nominated in the riding of St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville by Jean Desmarais, a notary and former mayor of St. Johns, who was named official Liberal candidate a week ago by Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Dupuis said he is "very hurt and disappointed" the way he has been treated but that he backs Mr. Pearson's policies and considers himself the official Liberal candidate in the riding.

The 30 - year - old candidate, who was appointed to the cabinet at 27 and has held the riding 25 miles south of Montreal since 1958, said that Mr. Desmarais was being foisted on the voters without their having any say in the matter. He said that he has challenged and is still willing to challenge, Mr. Desmarais in an open convention battle for the nomination.

Mr. Dupuis said that since this challenge has been ignored "I consider myself the official Liberal candidate." He polled 14,656 votes against 7,061 for his closest rival in the only contest in 1963.

Mr. Dupuis complained of "persecution" and said that other members of the Pearson cabinet—such as State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne, former justice minister Guy Favreau, Postmaster-General Rene Tremblay and, recently Transport Minister Pickersgill—have all been under a cloud and the object of some accusations.

Mr. Dupuis said there appears to be some "odious machination" to bring discredit on French Canadians in government.

He said that while none of the others was asked to resign, his house and personal effects had been searched by the RCMP and he had suffered "the dignity and humiliation" for months with his name "dragged in the mud."

Dr. J. S. Melvin Will Speak at Alumni Dinner

Well known Queen's graduate and Orthopaedic Surgeon, Dr. W. J. S. Melvin will address the Belleville District Branch of the Queen's Alumni Association at 7 p.m., October 19th, in the Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, at a dinner meeting.

Born and educated in Kingston, where his father was Professor of Physiology and subsequently Dean of Medicine, Dr. Melvin logically proceeded to Queen's University where he obtained both his BA and MDCM degrees. After service in the Medical Branch of the RCNVR Dr. Melvin did post graduate work in England, leading to the FRCS of London. Thereafter he spent a year in Boston, returning to the Department of Surgery at Queen's University.

A restless nature and boundless energy served to expand the scope of his activities. Over-the years he has worked on and in each room. The latest he is chairman of the Athletic Board of Control at Kingston Penitentiary and the Rehabilitation Centre in Kingston, which he was instrumental in establishing.

Further afield he serves on the Board of Directors of both Queen's and Toronto Universities of Ontario, and the Polio Foundation. He is chairman of the Board of the Ontario Medical Association.

Workers Find Bodies of Last Four in Mine

SARDIS, W.Va. (AP)—Rescue workers have found the bodies of the last four miners trapped inside the smoldering coal mine near this central West Virginia town. They were found together deep in the mine, where a fire already had claimed three lives.

Shortly before the bodies were found, rescue workers discovered a message scrawled in chalk on a mine regulator. It said "couldn't get out." Another was signed with the names of the four men trapped since Saturday night.

E. E. Spottee, vice-president of the Clinchfield Coal Co., said the men apparently had started toward the fire, were driven back by deep smoke in the mine which runs six or seven miles back into a mountain.

The last victims to be found were Clell Leedy, 53, Robert Savage, 57; Isaac Moats, 39, and Jesse Jones, 44.

Bodies of two victims, who died from smoke inhalation and not burns, were found earlier today. They were Carl Banish, 45, and Kenneth Kerr, 33.

The first victim, Charles Lantz, 36, was brought unconscious from the mine late Sunday night. He died en route to hospital.

Lantz, Banish and Kerr were found in an area about three-quarters of a mile beyond the point where a mining machine cut a power cable, touching off the fire.

GRADUATES

Very Reverend J. G. Clancy, pastor, then presented the certificates of standing to the graduates as:

Sharon Boutet; Frances Briand; Patricia Coughlin; Catherine Donnelly; Ian Forbes; Douglas Gorman; Patricia Hay; Anthony Klemencic; Gilles Lavergne; David MacDonald; Rod-ney MacFarlane; John Mcdonald; Susan Murphy; Robert Norman; Peter O'Neill; Jacques Vannier and Linda White and Elizabeth Worth.

After presenting certificates Father Clancy urged the graduates not to forget the ever useful principles learned at St. Peter's. The modern world tries to play down one's sense of values, he said. Don't let this external pressure they should never succumb but keep their minds on the higher things in life.

Robert Norman was valedictorian. He presented gifts of appreciation on behalf of the graduating class, to Sister Mary Angeline, Sister Mary Stanislaus and Mrs. Julie Rosa.

SPEAKER HEARD

Rev. Father Weagel, chaplain at RCAF station, Trenton, gave an inspiring address to the graduates. He reminded the students that they have now reached another plateau in life — one approaching young adulthood. He expressed the wish that they would advance in wisdom and grace.

Although parents and teachers guide and instruct — the ultimate decision is up to themselves. The game of life is one of adventure and risk. He urged them to play it very carefully making special use of the great benefits provided.

Pupils of grades 9, 9 and 10, under the direction of Mr. Wm. Long, sang several appropriate songs during the program.

Two Youths Hurt in Crash On Gilmour Hill

TRENTON — Two youths are in Trenton Memorial Hospital as the result of an accident on Gilmour Hill last night.

James Charles Spence, 19, of 19 Meyers Street and Robert Leland, also 19, are both suffering from concussion.

Police say Spence was driving a car owned by Joseph Cook, 6 Cook Court Street. The car went out of control as Spence attempted to negotiate a right hand turn at the top of the hill, leading onto Dundas East. The vehicle skidded 163 feet and struck a pavement island, also striking a utility pole. The vehicle was damaged to the extent of $100.

NDP Meeting At Cobourg Is Postponed

TRENTON — A New Democratic Party nomination meeting for the Northumberland riding, planned for tonight in Cobourg, has been postponed until Wednesday night.

Ontario NDP leader, Donald C. MacDonald will be the guest speaker tomorrow night in the Engineers' hall on Pine Street. Others in the candidate for Hastings South will be nominated.

The NDPers are planning to attend a rally on Nov. 4 in the Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, when premier Robert Stanfield will be the guest speaker. Here were guests of honors at an informal meeting in the Trenton Club Saturday night. Mr. Hees spoke briefly, outlining the PC policy on a number of items.

During the day, Mr. Hees went from door-to-door in Campbellcroft, Grafton, Stanley Heights, and in the evening, met an estimated 90 persons in the Westmount Park home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Patrick. By unofficial count, Mr. Hees shook 250 hands Saturday.

Gone dear father, gone to rest,
God took you home, sore and pain,
May you rest in peace, dear father,
Until we meet again.

—Ever remembered by the family.

GREEN — In loving memory of Kenneth Green, who passed away October 19th, 1955.

So, suddenly, he died, happened no other.
Since you were called away,
So many things to share with you.
Had you been left to stay.
Your place is filled, years back,
Your hand we cannot touch.
Your face, we see in the memories,
Of the days we loved so much,
You have not left the love you
Nor have you travelled far,
Just entered God's many mansions
—Sadly missed by wife Vivian and family.

Graduation Exercises Held At Moira Secondary School

Ann Thompson Moira S. S. Valedictorian

"Mr. Read, honored guests, members of the staff and fellow graduates: These commencement exercises, for many of us, mark the end of four or five years of study in high school. At the beginning of the fall term, when Grade Nine students were attending classes in Moira Secondary School for the first time, a large number of we Moira graduates found ourselves away from home, possibly for the first time, either working or attending some institute of higher learning. I'm sure that none of us could say that we weren't lonely, at one time or another, and perhaps slightly overwhelmed by the independence and responsibility which it entailed. Several times I found myself thinking about my five years at Moira, when I suddenly was flooded back but I also asked myself the questions, "What am I leaving behind?" and "What is there for me in the future?"

RECALLS ARTICLE

Perhaps the first question can be answered for all of us in this article from the Reader's Digest, entitled, "Why I enjoy experiencing the same feelings of reminiscence":

"Valedictory—It was one day during the last few weeks of school that I first saw her. It was on my way to my first primary when, out of nowhere, she came roller-skating down the cracked sidewalk. She was full of long silk hair ribbons, of cotton ranger and taffy.

Childhood was such a magic time!

The next day I saw her again. She was standing across the street when school let out. After that I saw her almost sometimes more than once in a day. She had long brown-gold curls and wore a pale little dress which seemed strangely familiar. I never saw her face very clearly; it was always in the shadows. Who was she? Why did I see her so often? I tried to approach her but when I came near she would run away. She would always come back though, and watch me from the shadows. But as graduation drew nearer I had little time to wonder about her. I never knew who waited — for what? I didn't know.

A TOUCH OF SADNESS

Commencement night came at last, with its excitement and tension and a touch of sadness. All day long I had been rushing about, trying to keep out the memories of the past years and the friends I'd be leaving. As I went out of the house something seemed missing. I realized I hadn't seen the child all day and suddenly I felt very lonely.

The evening passed swiftly. As we turned into the aisle to march out I looked through the crowd searchingly. There she was, sitting by my parents. As she looked at me I saw her face for the first time. In that moment I realized who she was and why she was there. An overwhelming sadness passed over me. This was the crossroads; she had come to say goodbye. Perhaps I would see her again somewhere in the far distance, but it would never again be as it once had been. Our eighteen years together were ending. I had to go on without her. As I went through the door I took one last look. She was gone. I knew she would be back.

The question of the past can be explained by such an article but the question more dominant in our minds as graduates is "What does the future hold?" and it cannot be answered. We are entering the stage of life where we are expected to rely on our own and all future success is dependent solely on ourselves. Fortunately, we are not totally unprepared for we have several assets gained from our school days. We have formed working habits, learned to co-operate with teachers and fellow students and to observe rules for the betterment of school administration, and we have made lasting friendships. This background, together with the most important — understanding guidance, loyalty and love which our parents have given us given, will help us to accept our role in society.

EXPRESSES GRATITUDE

It is fitting now to thank all those who have provided guidance and inspiration in our lives, who help in the preparation for our step into the adult world. First our parents, who have endeavoured to maintain high standards as an example for us and, just as important, our teachers closest to us, our parents. Far too often the "thank you" to our parents remains unspoken.

I would like to conclude my address with a quotation by Longfellow, which has a suggestion not only for the graduates but also for everyone here tonight.

"Look not mournfully to the past — it comes not back again. Wisely improve the present — it is thine. Go forth to meet the shadowy future without fear and with a manly heart."

By RETA LAWRENCE

"What is Man?" asked Monsignor, Right Reverend J. P. Sullivan, D.D., P.P., in his address to the graduating classes of Moira Secondary School, at the graduating exercises on Saturday evening.

With the auditorium filled to capacity with proud parents and relatives, over 200 students took their places to receive the diplomas, awards and plaudits due to them as tribute to their successes during their years of learning at Moira Secondary School.

Following the invocation by Reverend N. W. Hutchinson, Mr. L. R. Read, Principal of the school, welcomed the audience and expressed his great pride and his wonder at the abilities of the boys and girls who, though burdened with the tomes of learning and the harassment of their teachers, manage to acquire all the knowledge needed for graduation and still find the time and energy for extra-curricular activities in the form of sports, dating and devising ways and means of keeping our dear mentors from becoming bored with ordinary routine.

PRINCIPAL'S REMARKS

Mr. Read said, "The future of our graduates challenges the imagination. We are proud of what they have been, are and will be." He also expressed sincere gratitude to the graduating staff, and to Mr. W. J. Musgrove, former Principal, he wished great success in his new position as Principal of the new Centenary Secondary School.

Mr. C. R. Rowe brought greetings from the Bay of Quinte District High School Board, in Brydon's absence and E. A. Orr presented certificates of training to 20 young people.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Pat Bennett introduced the guest speaker, Right Rev. J. P. Sullivan. "Monsignor Sullivan," she said, "entered the ordination in Kingston in 1938, has had an outstanding and dedicated career in the furtherance of the work of his faith."

Since coming to Belleville by has, besides carrying the routine tasks of his church, served on the School Board, was active with the Children's Aid Society and is a Director of the Belleville General Hospital. He has been a leader in the ecumenical activities which are such a credit to our city.

Monsignor Sullivan dealt with the problems and the blessings of present and future automation and stressed the necessity for young people of today to pursue and attain the essential qualities of character and integrity.

"I will phrase my philosophy in the form of four questions," he said. "What is the relation between human dignity and useful vocation? What is the economic meaning of the fact that man's nature is fallen? What is the essential human quality implied in man's creation in the image of God? Finally, for what is man responsible beyond survival?"

EXPLAINS QUESTIONS

Citing living examples to explain his answers to the four questions, Monsignor Sullivan concluded, "Parents must not abdicate their responsibility wisely as objects of love, but as people needing usefulness and dependence on the part of the human. If those who are graduating this evening are to live lives of meaning and to find contents envision for them they must have a philosophy which is based on the truth of things. In short, these graduates must be aware of the answer to the question, "what is Man?"

Following the speaker, Mr. H. Irwin, Mr. E.P. Voteary and Mr. L. Holland presented the graduation diplomas to Miss Ann Grove and Mr. H. Berkinshaw presented the bonor graduation diplomas.

Dick Doherty, left, Circulation Manager of The Intelligencer, presents an Award of Honor and a $50 Canada Savings Bond to long-time Intelligencer newspaperboy, Steven Scott, centre, and Paul Rushlow. The ceremonies took place Saturday in conjunction with National Newspaperboy Day.

Miss Ann Thomson, who is now attending the University of Toronto was valedictorian. Her address in its entirety appears elsewhere in the edition of the paper.

PRESENTATIONS

Mr. R. Phillips presided at the presentation of the scholarships and prizes. Honor pins were presented by Alex McLaurin and Penny Ross.

Gold "M's" by Mr. McGaughey and Bob Young and presentations to the prefects by Mr. W. J. Musgrove.

After the recessional a reception for the parents and guests was given in the cafeteria, followed by a dance in the auditorium.

African Unity

Just how swiftly the winds of change have swept over Africa can be appreciated by a look at the map that accompanied Canadian Press correspondent Joseph MacSween's recent article on the theme of African unity.

Pan-Africanism has long been the dream of President Nkrumah of Ghana, ever since that country achieved its independence in 1957 and paved the way for the severing of colonial links in other lands.

How such unity is to be achieved in a continent of such varied customs, superstitions, languages, dialects and levels of education and economic progress is another thing.

Many of the new countries of Africa have maintained economic and cultural ties with their former colonial masters, the British, French and Belgians, although this has not been achieved without some early misunderstanding and even bloodshed.

The Soviet Union and China have also been busy trying to fill the vacuum that was left by the political unrest that accompanied independence in many regions of Africa. They have sent diplomatic and trade missions, but there is little evidence today that they have made a strong impact on the African people.

Significantly, Mr. MacSween says there is considerable resentment in some African capitals that Ghana, with a population of 7,000,000 and what is frequently called a dictatorship Marxist regime, "should aspire to lead the unity movement."

To a surprising extent then, the new countries of the continent are making their own way in the world and are suspicious of any overtures from the big power blocs. What are the names these fledgling nations? Well, apart from Ghana and the Arab states of the Mediterranean region they include the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Dahomey, Gabon, Togo and Malawi. These are but a few of the emerging nations of Africa, and sandwiched among them, in the northern half of the continent are two small territories in the old colonial tradition—Spanish Sahara and Rio Muni, another Spanish possession lying between Cameroon and Gabon (where the hospital founded by the late Albert Schweitzer is situated.)

These countries still have far to go in the way of political and social achievement. It may be that most are too busy with their own problems to be serious thought of the question of unity. In such a huge area, with so much to be done, the practical everyday things as they apply to each country must receive priority.

Inadequate Diet

"Are Your Busy Students Becoming Mealtime Drop-outs?" That is the question posed by the American Dairy Association in an advertisement in U.S. News and World Report.

The question is a good one, for although students may take advantage of wholesome meals in their schools and at home they do not. And if they should go down town their standard fare seems to be french fries and a soft drink. As often as not they maintain this tiresome and inadequate diet when they leave school and go into jobs.

The teen years, the Dairy Association observes, "are especially important. They are years of accelerated growth and activity when most nutritional needs are greatly increased . . . In most instances, what, and how much, children eat, is determined largely by the food habits and the supervision of the parents.

"Teenage girls in the United States, a country noted for its present abundance of healthful food, often damage their own health and deprive themselves of a full measure of the pep and vitality they want because they have not learned to eat the proper foods.

"For too many parents," the Dairy Association continues, "either do not realize or overlook the damage that can occur when children do not learn good eating habits. Some children do achieve all that they might in school and in other activities simply because their bodies are not properly nourished, and this happens in high income homes as well as in low income homes."

This is good counsel. The food intake of our young people, in Canada as well as the United States, is often inadequate. And in a land of plenty this is a situation that need not arise.

Promoting Goodwill

An English "Bobby" is one of the representatives from the other side of the Atlantic visiting Canada in connection with British Week in big city stores. This is an excellent way of fostering relations between the two countries.

When it comes to goodwill, however, the Danes appear to have gone one better. They invited a trim young policewoman from Israel to do traffic duty in Copenhagen. Elisheva Pirchi, of Tel Aviv, handled the city's rush-hour traffic so well that the Danish police asked her to stay on for a while.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 18th, 1945

Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment officers and men, veterans of the greatest and most expensive and devastating war in history, the Second World War, will be hailed with joy as they return with their unit to the old familiar places in this district, their homes and friends.

This week they come back from the wars and will receive a welcome of a proud people, — of parents and wives and children and friends — with expressions of gratitude and thanksgiving and happiness as they reach Belleville, for here will be paid tribute to the Regiment and its personnel whom the records of service honor and whom history will remember for what they did for mankind in the years 1939-45. The homecoming will be one of the great events of local history in this district represented by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment because every element in the community, every section of the life of the people will pay its meed of praise and duty to these veterans. The warmth and glory of the greetings by relatives and friends will be beyond the power of words to tell but they will be expressed as the human heart prompts both the thankful and brave and those who have awaited their coming.

The Rev. R. G. Stewart of St. John's Presbyterian Church, Toronto, formerly minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, and Mrs. Stewart were weekend guests of Mrs. David Wright, Park Ave. East. Their son, Mr. Claire Stewart, also spent the weekend in the city, the guest of Mr. Gardiner Duff.

Mrs. J. Embury, the former Miss Eva Mylchreest, was the guest of honor at a delightful miscellaneous shower last evening at the home of Miss Lillian Kennedy, Foster Avenue. Fifteen girl friends of Mrs. Embury were present.

Miss Ida Elliott of this city is visiting her brother, Mr. Harry Elliott, in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Huffman of this city spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. R. Huffman.

Mrs. James Kincaid of Madoc, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Wilbur Fox, in this city.

Messrs. D. Grass, A. C. Dafoe, R. Gouby, G. Gardiner and Capt. Bottum will leave in a few days for Wesleymoon Lake where they will remain until the close of the deer hunting season.

A number of the members of the Belleville Men's Bible class in connection with Bridge Street Church enjoyed themselves in a game of carpet ball in the Trinity school rooms last evening.

During a meeting of the city council a subscription list was signed by the members present which resulted in $30 being obtained for the Red Cross Society and the Order of St. John.

Anyone for Politics?

Financial Post

Politics is the only profession for which no preparation is thought necessary. So wrote Herbert Louis Spencer, the famed 19th century author.

But evidently there is a young Englishman who thinks differently. He lists his impeccable credentials in a personal advertisement in The Times:

"Educated, aristocratic, 28, ambitious, chess and croquet player, fly fisherman, Bisley medallist, musical; seeks position in politics."

Strictly Personal

To Be 'Livid' Is Not To Be Angry

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A psychiatrist friend, the other night, was protesting against the misuse and vulgarization of Freudian terms in ordinary speech. "I don't mind the public using jargon," he said, "but why must people invariably make the meaning so that it makes little sense?"

This, I suppose, is the way in which language is shaped. In one time, it is the Freudian vocabulary that is distorted; before then, even ordinary medical terms were wrenched out of context and made to mean what people wanted them to mean.

Consider some words we use nearly every day — words like "frivid" and "hectic" and "chronic" and "allergic" and "contagious" and "infectious." Almost none of them is nowadays used in its original sense; indeed, the original sense has never been known, except to medical specialists.

"Livid," for instance, has utterly changed its color. When we say, "He got livid with anger," most of us visualize someone getting red or purple in the face; actually, "livid" means getting paler, a sort of a sky gray or bluish leaden color. What we are thinking of when we say "livid" is "apoplectic," an old-fashioned medical word that is scarcely used any more.

"I had a hectic day at the office" bears absolutely no resemblance to the medical origin of the word. It comes from the Greek "habit," and meant the kind of flush that consumptives have, a flushing from coldness, flushing and blushing. A "hectic fever" in the 19th century was reserved to illicit tubercular patients, and that was all.

"Chronic" was originally opposed to "acute" in describing a disease or ailment; a chronic ailment was one lasting a long time. Today, however, we use chronic in the sense of "bad" or "severe" or "intense," which is a wholly blundering or useless term.

The latest of these medical popularizations, of course, is "allergic," which has come to fill a genuine need in the language. "I am allergic to him" is a succinct way of expressing a feeling, even though it has little to do with the dictionary definition of "sensitivity to generally harmless substances, such as foods, pollens, etc., which results in dermatological or respiratory symptoms of discomfort."

In the Freudian realm, we call people "fatalist" and "masochists" who are neither; we label as a "complex" what is not; we give "repression" a meaning wholly at variance with Freud's; we speak of "fixation" and "introverts" and "traums" with no idea of their precise meaning. And we will keep on doing so, despite the protestations of scientists and the sneers of semanticists. In language, we are all Humpty-Dumpties.

Keep Aspirin Dosage Low for Child of 3

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: How much aspirin is too much for a child three years old with a lingering cold? Would the medicine dull symptoms of disease that would not be recognized by a layman? — Mrs. F. F.

* * *

Instead of trying to establish the maximum, it's much better to stick to a reasonable dose which has a suitable margin of safety and will still do all that is necessary.

For a three-year-old, one of the small size aspirins (2 or 3 grains) four times a day would be reasonable. Or if you are using the liquid Aspirin size, a half tablet four times a day.

More than that is not likely to do any additional good anyway.

Preferably give the aspirin after the child has had something to eat, or a glass of milk. This minimizes the chance of irritating the stomach.

* * *

There is no great likelihood of aspirin dulling or obscuring important symptoms except that it can reduce fever — but rather large dose are required for any appreciable reduction.

However, this lingering cold sounds disturbing. Aspirin won't cure a cold. All it does is make the patient more comfortable (by subduing aches (head and muscles) and curtailing inflammation to some extent.

If the "cold" is lingering, perhaps it isn't a cold. Instead of just continuing with aspirin, have your doctor see whether the trouble is something other than a cold: pneumonia, sinus infection, or what.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a lump in my breast. Must it be removed before I can have an operation. In your opinion, is surgery always necessary? I have been very careful of my diet and can eat without discomfort. I would be grateful for any advice you can give. — Mrs. B.

Weight, diet, and even the way you lie down, all have their effects on fatal bernia. No, surgery is not always necessary by any means, although in certain cases, when the simpler methods cannot keep you comfortable, it is the only sensible solution. The size of the hernia is not as important as the symptoms produced. A small one may give more trouble than a large one.

Rather than go into a great deal of detail here, I suggest that you read my booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Simple Ways to Combat It." To receive a copy, send 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 196, Dundee, Ill.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My brother-in-law claims an egg is very easily digested if boiled for half an hour. I say 10 minutes is enough.

We are oldsters and I say a soft-boiled or poached egg is best for us and easily digested.

The best way to cook an egg is so the white is firm — and I don't mean hard as a rock, or frizzled, unless you prefer it that way. As long as the white is firm, there is no difference in digestibility. So cook yours for 10 minutes and if you don't let your brother-in-law wait another 20 minutes if he thinks he gains anything by it.

At your age, eat as many eggs as you find agreeable to your taste, whether soft-boiled, hard-boiled, poached, fried, scrambled, coddled, or devilled.

* * *

Note to Mrs. R.O.: A fatty tumor is harmless, unless it becomes large enough to be a nuisance. As to your other question a persany often provides enough support for the bladder so that you remain comfortable without requiring surgery.

Today in History

The electorate of Britain was doubled at one stroke 30 years ago today—in 1867 —with the passage of the second Reform Bill. It gave the vote to most male householders and tenants who occupied premises worth £10 yearly and thus opened the balance of power away from the landed gentry toward the rising middle class. The reform was undertaken by Disraeli's minority government under threat from Radicals in Parliament and was thought a rash step by many public men of the time.

1648 — Father Jogues, founder of the Mohawk Mission, was murdered.

1888 — General John R. Brooke accepted the surrender of Santiago de Cuba to the United States.

First World War.

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — Major-General Sir C. C. Monro succeeded General Sir Ian Hamilton as commander at Gallipoli; Sir Edward Carson resigned from the British cabinet over Balkan policy.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—Japan bombed Kunming, the Chinese terminal of the Burma Road; Vichy France adopted strict anti - Semitic measures; Vice-Admiral John C. Tovey succeeded Admiral Sir Charles M. Forbes in command of the British Home Fleet.

Ancient Mariners

Louisville Times

In the American merchant marine, the ancient mariners are not men, they are ships. Rep. William S. Mailliard, a member of the House merchant marine committee, said last month that "except for the subsidized liner fleet . . . we don't have anything that is not more than 20 years old." Not one tramp cargo ship has been built in American yards since 1956.

Canada's Waters

Regina Leader-Post

The continental approach to water resources rests primarily on the assumption that all waters in North America belong to the continent, for use for the benefit of the continent as a whole.

Irrespective of the flights to which they sometimes take Canadians, if they are wise, will not buy that.

Those writers which flow wholly through Canada, are as much Canada's possession as the waters through which they flow.

This does not say we will deny the use of some of this water to our neighbors, on the understanding that we expect to derive tangible benefits from any arrangement that may be made.

Calls for Policy on Water

Vancouver Sun

It will be soon enough to talk about a continental resource in respect of water when . . . American markets become continental markets when American capital becomes continental capital and when U.S. technology becomes continental technology. — Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing, speaking at Saskatoon.

* * *

It is well Mr. Laing has put this matter forcibly to the Canadian electorate. It is of extreme importance to Canada's future.

A few days earlier, speaking to the Montreal Canadian Club, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, called on political leaders to place definite water policies before the Canadian electorate in the face of growing U.S. demands on Canada's water supplies.

There should be hardly anything more definite than Mr. Laing's response. But perhaps it should be reinforced by Prime Minister Pearson, by Mr. Diefenbaker and other party leaders.

Gen. McNaughton is disturbed by the Heeney-Merchant report on Canada-U.S. relations. He quotes its recommendation that "Canada and the United States should work out their problems in the resources field and in the energy field behind closed doors."

Gen. McNaughton's answer to that is: "I venture to suggest that, whether under such a formal discussions to proceed in private only after a firm policy in that way. Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 18, 1965

The electorate of Britain was doubled at one stroke 30 years ago today—in 1867 —with the passage of the second Reform Bill. It gave the vote to most male householders and tenants who occupied premises worth £10 yearly and thus opened the balance of power away from the landed gentry toward the rising middle class. The reform was undertaken by Disraeli's minority government under threat from Radicals in Parliament and was thought a rash step by many public men of the time.

1648 — Father Jogues, founder of the Mohawk Mission, was murdered.

1888 — General John R. Brooke accepted the surrender of Santiago de Cuba to the United States.

First World War.

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — Major-General Sir C. C. Monro succeeded General Sir Ian Hamilton as commander at Gallipoli; Sir Edward Carson resigned from the British cabinet over Balkan policy.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—Japan bombed Kunming, the Chinese terminal of the Burma Road; Vichy France adopted strict anti - Semitic measures; Vice-Admiral John C. Tovey succeeded Admiral Sir Charles M. Forbes in command of the British Home Fleet.

Ancient Mariners

Louisville Times

In the American merchant marine, the ancient mariners are not men, they are ships. Rep. William S. Mailliard, a member of the House merchant marine committee, said last month that "except for the subsidized liner fleet . . . we don't have anything that is not more than 20 years old." Not one tramp cargo ship has been built in American yards since 1956.

Canada's Waters

Regina Leader-Post

The continental approach to water resources rests primarily on the assumption that all waters in North America belong to the continent, for use for the benefit of the continent as a whole.

Irrespective of the flights to which they sometimes take Canadians, if they are wise, will not buy that.

Those writers which flow wholly through Canada, are as much Canada's possession as the waters through which they flow.

This does not say we will deny the use of some of this water to our neighbors, on the understanding that we expect to derive tangible benefits from any arrangement that may be made.

Trials of a City Editor

Ottawa Journal

"It must be great to live in the capital" — so say other editors to us when we go afield. They seem to think our life a continual round of diplomatic parties and being called on mysterious evenings to help Mr. Pearson or Mr. Diefenbaker get over a difficult hurdle. "Actually, as a matter of fact," life can be pretty dull at times to the heartbeat of a nation, daily.

Next time we live we hope to be fruit inspectors or one of the experts in the left knee joint of some rare antipodean waterhog. But if we do have to live again, it will be in some forthright place like Yellowknife, NWT. When a reporter comes in by way in a leaking basket the editor, Mr. Ted Horton, greets him with the most warm and mindful only of Mehitabel's Pollyanna bell," to her friend archy. It was during a visit of a week two weeks ago up in Yellowknife, and Ted was showing Horton on his front page, honestly and lovably as always:

Ted Horton's front page this week faced an unusual assortment of gremlins even for this establish ed rag. For example there was a mistake in the Election Proclamation which required us to run (on Wednesday night) to start all over again to it and on the paper — and it wouldn't start all either. Then the machine that sets the type for paper was on the fritz and required repair in Edmonton, this coupled with the normal amount of grief with the press meant we got in late — we don't look too damn pretty — but we're still trying."

Texan Myth Dies Hard

Brantford Expositor

There are still Texans who cling to the idea that Texas is the biggest in the Union. The fact that it dropped to second big-gest when Alaska became a state a few years ago does not appear to faze them, a case of a myth being dead at about 300,000 square miles.

Now comes word that Alaska has widened the already substantial gap by 10 acres, thanks to the earthquake a year last March. Army engineers dredging the harbor floor at Cordova when the quake had lifted, had a problem of what to do with the mud. They decided to use it for fill. The result is ten acres of flat land, a rarity in that mountainous region. And in a year, two businesses have been located, a shop and a tavern.

If the Texans hear about this they will probably ignore it as they have long ignored the fact that Ontario is bigger than Texas. For the record: Alaska 586,400 square miles, Ontario 413,582, Texas 267,339.

Car Prices Compared

Windsor Star

Chrysler and Ford of Canada have announced prices of 1966 models... As expected, these are somewhat less than the comparative prices of the 1965 models. General Motors yesterday had revealed its reductions.

The reductions by Chrysler Canada Ltd. are up to $372 and those of Ford Motor Co. to $108.40.

The comparison is based on the 1965 and 1966 models, plus certain optional equipment, and that of the 1966 model is based on such equipment now is standard.

The companies are to be complimented for providing explicit tables showing what has happened. This should eliminate the confusion about what the reductions mean.

The price cuts by the Canadian industry should take the curse off the political criticism of car prices. The Canadian automobile agreement, even though not yet fully operative, has had some price effects to say nothing of much greater employment already a sequel to it.

No Interest Being Shown In Election

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—Is the Canadian electorate apathetic about the Nov. 8 election? Many capital observers think so and cite evidence to back up their theory.

Leaders of all political parties have been drawing crowds on the hustings, but these observers say the general tone of the reception has been something less than wild enthusiasm.

Further evidence of a disinterested electorate is seen in the preliminary voters' list. It shows 10,191,925 names, well short of the 10,400,000 that could be reasonably expected on the basis of population growth.

Revisions will doubtless add more names to the list, but nowhere near enough to take up what past experience indicates is a slack of about 200,000.

The 70,000 enumerators who gather the names for the list cannot do everything, the reasoning goes, and the voter has some obligation to see that his name is on the list.

DON'T BOTHER

The preliminary list of eligibles for Nov. 8 is smaller than the final 1962 list in four provinces: Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Manitoba.

If many voters are apathetic, what made them that way? One suggested answer is that voters are fed up with too many elections. This is the fifth federal general election in the last 8½ years and familiarity might breed contempt.

Moreover, a number of observers say that the early stages of the current campaign have lacked clear-cut issues to stir the voter.

The final answer on the apparent voter apathy will come election day, but at this early informed opinion is looking for a 10-per-cent reduction from 1962 in the number of eligibles who vote. This would put the figure at 69 per cent.

Canadians Win $1,340,000 In Sweep

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians shared in more than $1,340,000 on Irish sweepstake tickets Saturday with three Canadians each winning $150,000.

Karelia placed second and seven Canadians collected $60,000 each on him while another Canadian won $30,000 with a ticket on third-place Langley Park.

In addition, more than 400 other Canadians held tickets on non-starters or horses who finished out of the money and will collect prizes of about $1,100 each, based on the total of the pool.

Tarqogan's win gave $150,000 each to Canadians R. L. Macdonald of Toronto, a Mrs. S. Koropecki of Edmonton and W. T. Edwards of Mission City, B.C.

Among the six $60,000 winners were Don Desilppe, Harrow, Ont., and Mrs. J. D. Johnston, Bells Corners, Ont.

Langley Park's win gave $30,000 to Bella Kavanaugh of Windsor, Ont.

English Police Comb Moors For Victims of Mass Killer

MANCHESTER, England (CP)—More than 100 policemen mounted one of Britain's biggest murder hunts at dawn today by combing the desolate Pennine moors for the victims of a mass killer.

Detectives said they believe as many as eight and perhaps 11 missing persons, three of them children, lie buried in shallow graves on the wild moors along the border between Yorkshire and Lancashire.

During the weekend, after searching six days, they found the dismembered body of Lesley Ann Downey, 10, near a main road between Ashton-under-Lyne and Huddersfield.

"We are certain that more bodies will be found, possibly in the next few days," said a senior police officer.

DISAPPEARED DEC. 26

Lesley disappeared last Dec. 26 after visiting a Christmas fair near her Manchester home.

Eight days ago police were tipped that a Manchester man had boasted of killing children and carrying their victims to the moors by car. Police say they know the man and can bring him in as soon as they have built up their case.

Paul Reade, 16, who vanished on June 12, 1963, is believed to be one of the killer's victims. Others include John Kilbride, who disappeared in December, 1963, and Keith Bennett, who vanished in June, 1964. All lived in Manchester or its suburbs.

Laing Against Water Export To States

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (CP)—The United States should not seek a solution to its water shortages by looking "suddenly" at Canada as a potential sources of unlimited quantities of fresh water which can be tapped at any time," Canada's resources minister said here Saturday.

Arthur Laing said he was referring to the North American Water and Power Alliance, a $100,000,000,000 project to provide the western United States with Canadian water.

The huge scheme, brainchild of the Ralph M. Pearsons Co. of Los Angeles and New York, involves the collection of water from rivers in British Columbia, the Yukon and Alaska which would drain into the Pacific and Arctic oceans.

Trapped in giant reservoirs, water would be channelled through a series of lifts and tunnels into the Rocky Mountain trench. It would form a 900-mile lake from Prince George, B.C., to Libby, Mont.

Mr. Laing, who spoke at a meeting of the Alaska State Chamber of Commerce, said the flooding of vast areas of Canada "in itself, is undesirable."

SEES ALTERNATIVE

"Even if some return accrued to Canada from this scheme, it may not be as beneficial to the nation as the establishment of local industries and a local population to use the same water in Canada.

"We are becoming more and more aware of the potential value of this tremendous resource and it is certainly not our intention to dispose it without first investigating all alternative uses and assessing which may be of most benefit."

Much of the water shortage problem in the more densely populated parts of North America could be solved by adequate planning and control.

"Its particularly hopeful that the densely-populated regions will realize how valuable fresh water can be, and perhaps take more rapid steps towards controlling pollution and reclaiming many of the fresh water lakes and streams that have already been severely damaged."

Friday Prime Minister Pearson said in a television broadcast that Canada must be careful "not to alienate this great resource without taking care of our own needs."

Exporting water to the United States "can be one of the most important developments in our history; this can be as important as exporting wheat, or oil or anything else . . . and one day we'll find out how important this resource is.

"We will be discussing this with the United States who are very anxious to work out arrangements by which some of our water resources are moved down south," Mr. Pearson said.

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Robert Thompson, national Social Credit leader, says that government plans to diecut water exports to the United States are "out of order" at this time.

He said in an interview Saturday Canada must first guarantee an ample supply of water for its own needs. An extensive study of demand and resources should come before any talk of exporting water.

Mr. Thompson was commenting on a statement by Prime Minister Pearson that the government plans to discuss with the U.S. arrangements to export water south of the border.

Many People Become Panicky Says Marcoux

QUEBEC (CP) — Dr. Guy Marcoux told his first election rally Sunday that many people in high places have become panicky since the publication Wednesday of his pamphlet about the decision of six Social Credit MPs to support the Liberals following the inconclusive 1963 federal election.

The pamphlet alleges, among other things, that Transport Minister Pickersgill and mining promoter John Doyle took part in a deal tied to the pledge of allegiance.

At the rally, Dr. Marcoux did not identify the persons he said were panic-stricken.

Dr. Marcoux also told the rally of a conversation he had in Ottawa last year with Auguste Choquette, Liberal member of the last Parliament for Lothiniere. He had told Mr. Choquette of his investigation of "the affair of the riot" and Mr. Choquette had said he was not surprised that Mr. Pickersgill was involved "because he is the one who does all the dirty work (cochonnerie) in the Liberal party."

DENIES CONTACT

Mr. Pickersgill has denied having had "any contact whatever with any Social Credit MP" at the time the alleged deal was made.

"If anyone has the courage to charge me with any wrongdoing in connection with this incident or any other," he said, "I intend to take whatever action the law permits me to take."

Dr. Marcoux, Social Credit member of the last House for Quebec Montmorency, is running in the same constituency as an Independent.

He said he would be happy to be taken to court over the statements in his pamphlet.

"If anyone wants to sue me, let him go ahead. That will give me a chance to bring my documents and my witnesses before the court."

"You'll have to wait Mr. Moruzzi . . . his wife just went in and he's taking dictation."

Dr. Marcoux also challenged Senator Maurice Bourget, chairman of the Quebec organization committee of the federal Liberal party, to prove that Quebec businessman Moise Darabaner was not a habitue of the Reform Club, a social club for Liberal party supporters.

Senator Bourget said at a press conference Friday that Darabaner, awaiting trial here on fraud and arson charges, was not a club member and "has never been a member of the Liberal organization at any level whatsoever."

ments and an independent candidate in the Nov. 8 election, said Sunday night many persons in high places have become panicky since he published his 24-page pamphlet.

The pamphlet did not accuse Mr. Pickersgill of bribery, but alleged that his multi-million-dollar promoter John Doyle, wanted in the U.S. for ballot-jumping, and fraud suspect Moise Darabaner played various roles in the events that led to the statement signed by the six MPs April 12, 1963.

At another point, Dr. Marcoux wrote that a Social Credit organizer was offered a $25,000 bribe if he would supply the names of five or six MPs who would agree to back the Liberals in the Commons. The organizer had turned down the offer.

Speaking at his first campaign rally in Quebec-Montcalm, he quoted Liberal MP Auguste Choquette as saying last year that Mr. Pickersgill "was all the dirty work in the Liberal party."

Dr. Marcoux said he told Mr. Choquette that Mr. Pickersgill was involved in "the affair of the lists" and the Liberal MP had remarked that he was not surprised.

Dr. Marcoux also told the rally that Mr. Doyle is "hiding" in a Montreal hotel, registered under an assumed name known to Dr. Marcoux.

TELLS OF THREATS

In a filmed CBC television interview yesterday, Dr. Marcoux said he received many threatening calls from the underworld before he published his pamphlet.

Some of the calls had been made by persons who have since been arrested on found dead in a Quebec investigation into a fraud and bankruptcy fraud rackets, he said, declining to elaborate.

Dr. Marcoux said he would be happy to be sued for libel over the statements in his pamphlet. "That will give me a chance to bring my documents and my witnesses before the court."

He repeated his contention that Mr. Darabaner, a Quebec and Montreal business man, is a member of the Quebec Reform Club, a Liberal party meeting place.

Senator Maurice Bourget, chairman of the Liberals' Quebec election committee, said Friday he doesn't know Mr. Darabaner and denied that he is a Liberal organizer or member of the Reform Club.

Mr. Pickersgill also denied knowing Mr. Darabaner. He had "no contact whatever" with any Social Credit MP in the days following the 1963 election.

"If anyone has the courage to charge me with any wrongdoing in connection with this incident or any other, I intend to take whatever action the law permits me to take.

The transport minister's statement to the press was a copy of a telegram sent to CBC President Alphonse Ouimet, declining an invitation to appear on the television program This Hour Has Seven Days.

All six Social Credit MPs who signed the 1963 statement and withdrew it later have said they plan to file libel suits against Dr. Marcoux after the election.

One of them, Gilbert Rondeau said in a statement Saturday the six took their unusual step to block a "secret deal" for a Conservative-Social Credit coalition to keep the minority Diefenbaker government in office.

He charged that the deal called for cabinet appointments for Social Credit Leader Thompson and Dr. Marcoux.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Thompson denied this statement. The Conservative leader told reporters he never thought of having Social Credit MPs join his party.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that had it not been for the statement by the six MPs that Liberals have been in a position to summon Parliament and request a vote of confidence in his government, but shortly after the six announced their move in 1963, he made an appointment with Liberal Leader Pearson to discuss the changeover of government.

Mr. Thompson, reached at his home in Red Deer, said "the very day that Mr. Rondeau was negotiating with the Liberals, we held a caucus meeting at which we agreed there would be no coalition and we'd let Pearson and Diefenbaker struggle out their positions."

In Penticton, B.C., Diefenbaker was praised for his leadership by Davie Fulton, Conservative candidate in Kamloops who has announced he will seek the party leadership when the post becomes vacant. Mr. Diefenbaker toured the Okanagan Valley and accused the government of bungling and covering up a recent forest fire. He said inflation is becoming a serious problem.

Mr. Pearson addressed Saturday meetings in Fredericton and Charlottetown, scoring Mr. Diefenbaker for deceiving the voters when he promises to boost old age pensions to $100 a month before July by using funds from the Canada Pension Plan. This would be illegal.

Marchers

"have done a great disservice to themselves, the University of Wisconsin and the state."

Authorities, said Knowles, "cannot tolerate civil disobedience no matter what the professed cause may be."

In Philadelphia, some 40 members of the Jenkintown-Yeardon Junior Chamber of Commerce held a one - hour "prayer march" around city hall in defence of U.S. policy in Viet Nam Sunday.

PICKET PLANE PLANT

The march followed two days of anti-U.S. policy demonstrations and open-picketing at city hall, the University of Pennsylvania, and a Boeing Co. plant in Morton, Pa., where some of the helicopters used in Viet Nam are manufactured.

In Berkeley, Calif., Quakland, Calif., police presented a solid wall against several thousand demonstrators, whose parade goal was the Oakland army terminal.

Police estimated Sunday, an estimated 1,000 to 1,500 marchers filked without incident over a two-mile route from Golden Gate Park to the city's civic centre. There was some backlog but no disorder.

At a Trenton, N.J., anti-war demonstration Saturday, the marchers carried such signs cards as "LBJ, how many boys will you kill today?" and "Demand unconditional peace."

Fleming, finance and justice; Ellen Fairclough, immigration and post office, and Pierre Sevigny, associate defence minister. Mr. Fleming retired while the other two were defeated in 1963.

Robert Winters, public works minister when he went down to defeat in 1957, is the official Liberal candidate in York West.

Yvon Dupuis, fired by Prime Minister Pearson early this year from his post as minister without portfolio, says he'll run for re-election anyway in St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville despite Mr. Pearson's selection of an official Liberal standard - bearer there. Mr. Dupuis is awaiting trial on indictment - pedding charges.

Two pre - 1963 Conservative ministers are also in the contest.

William J. Browne, 68, solicitor-general before his personal defeat in St. John's West in the 1962 election, has switched his attention to the St. John's East seat.

Henri Courtemanche, 49, state secretary until Mr. Diefenbaker named him to the Senate, will run as an Independence-Conservative in Labelle. He resigned from the Senate after a Quebec inquiry said he took kickbacks on provincial hospital grants.

FIRE HITS SCHOOL

BUFFALO (AP)—A stubborn five-alarm blaze swept through public school buildings Sunday night, causing damage estimated at $500,000 and snarling traffic. One fireman suffered minor injuries. The flames destroyed one building that housed classes for 420 pupils, a music room, an auditorium and a gymnasium. Two nearby buildings with classrooms for 300 suffered extensive smoke and water damage.

U.S. Air Force Does Not Believe in Flying Saucers

By AL GOLDBERG

That's not just a snap conclusion, but is based on the investigation of more than 9,000 reported unidentified flying objects by Project Blue Book, the air force's—and in fact the U.S. government's—agency charged with analysis of serial phenomenon.

"There is nothing to indicate that any of these phenomena are extraterrestrial in nature," said Maj. Hector Quintanilla, Jr., a serious, 42-year-old physicist in charge of the project.

Take, for example, the numerous sightings in at least eight states—mostly in Texas Oklahoma and Kansas—this summer. Quintanilla claims "the many persons who reported seeing UFOs actually were looking at the planet Jupiter and four prominent stars. He said atmospheric conditions "gave them a scintillating effect" and made them appear close together and in formation.

What about reports that Tinker Air Force Base at Oklahome City and the weather bureau at Wichita, Kan., spotted the UFOs on radar?

WRONG CONCLUSIONS

"They never said they had spotted these particular UFOs," Quintanilla replied.

"They said they had sighted something they couldn't identify and since everyone was seeing things, people put two and two together.

"The radar sighting at Tinker was on the opposite side of the spectrum to the reported UFO sightings."

Fine, but what was it radar had fixed on?

"A balloon, we think at this point. An inversion—an atmospheric condition brought on by the meeting of fronts and varying temperatures — caused the radar beams to become like a fix on something on the ground. The Tinker fix remained stationary on the radarscope for 40 minutes, indicating something not moving. Don't forget, the sighted UFOs were reported as moving."

The major explained that inversion phenomena have for many UFO sightings involving radar, if the richocheted radar beam fixes on a truck or a train moving away from the radar facility, he said, it gives the impression of a high-flying unidentified object.

"The first thing I do when I get a reported sighting is check the weather in the area and my Universe."

STUDIES STARS

His Universe is a large, round, movable map - like affair on which all the planets and major stars of the universe surround the earth. It can be moved so that the position of any planet or star can be set to show what area it was visible from at any given second.

He said his Universe and the weather bureau provide the solution to the majority of UFO sightings.

Evidence compiled by Blue Book in its 16-year history places all UFOs in one of 19 categories:

1 — High flying balloons. "There is much balloon activity, much of it governmental, much private. Some of them get away and are hard to trace, but, we can usually note their path and find out who put it up, where and the direction the wind was blowing."

2—High-flying aircraft, illuminated by the sun after the sun had set on the ground.

3—Nightly reflections in the atmosphere of distant light sources on the ground.

4—Satellites, both U.S. and Russian.

5 — Meteorites, fireworks, flares and chaff.

6—Pieces of satellite decay.

NOT METEORITES

"Satellite decay," he said, "is a recent addition. These are pieces of junk from satellites that fall back to earth from space. As they pass into the atmosphere and burn up, they leave a red-hot glow which lasts several minutes. We have often found pieces of this debris—they after it was sighted, have analyzed it and identified it as from earth satellites. They look similar to meteorites, but travel much slower."

7—Planets Venus and Jupiter, or other visible astronomical bodies.

8 — Searchlights illuminating cloud layers and the like.

9—Jet engine exhausts, condensation trails.

10—Hoaxes or mirages. "So far this year, there has been only one reported hoax."

Quintanilla admits there are 663 unsolved UFO sighting cases—nearly half of them in the peak year of 1952, when 1,501 sightings were reported. But, he adds: "None has ever given any indication of being a threat to our national security . . . of being beyond the range of present day scientific knowledge . . . or as being extraterrestrial.

Despite his scientific approach to UFO, what does he think of the possible existence of an advanced life in outer space?

"It would be egotistical for man to believe that God chosen earth as the only place in the universe where he placed life," he said.

Indian Affairs Branch Blames Self For Abject Poverty on Reserves

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—The govern. ment's Indian affairs branch says poverty, inertia and long lessnees prevail among intabitants of Indian reserves and k blames itself for this unhappy state of affairs.

In a brutally frank self-assessment, the branch admits that its past approaches have "tended to emasculate development work at the community level."

Now A plans sweeping new measures under which the country will provide the tools and, the branch hopes, the Indians will do the job, in a program aimed at infusing reserves with community spirit.

The self-assessment says the current situation in many areas is reflected in statistics on Indian mortality and extra rates, school drop - outs and living standards.

Despite notable exceptions like Alberta Senator James Gladstone and Montreal model Khan-Tineta Horn, "a few Indians have become "bystanders on the national scene," largely as a result of their dependence on the "umbilical cord" the Indian affairs branch has become for them.

LACK LINKS

Often the Branch and its agents are the only link a reserve has with the outside world.

"An economic, social and cultural gulf separates the Indian from the non-Indian. This gulf may be widening, and concerted emphasis on broad rehabilitative measures is indicated," the branch continues in a specially - prepared document.

During the last decade, its spending has increased 300 per cent. Much of the $100,000,000 budget goes into a school system for 58,000 children. It has the highest rate of drop-outs in the country. While relief cheques have climbed to $13,000,000 annually, living standards have been sliding.

The branch tells of a virtual cold war between its agencies and the reserves, with the agencies trying to hold the budget, and the reserves trying to get it increased.

Indians who leave the reserve are worse off, if anything. A Vancouver coroner estimated half the 1,000 Indian women living there were on the skids.

Seeking a remedy for the situation, the Indian affairs branch has brought in a Toronto specialist, Prof. Farrell J. Toombs, to educate band. picked men in community development.

URGE SELF-HELP

Thirty already are on key reserves and eventually there will be more than 60, their object to get the Indians themselves to bring reserves up to the social and economic level of surrounding municipalities.

The initial group include. three Indians, a former CBC producer, a lawyer and an assortement of Indian affairs veterans and bright young men. They were thrown into a therapeutic three-month course under Prof. Toombs that provide plenty of opportunity for self discovery.

"I found I've been an Indi for 16 years," said an India affairs superintendent, wit more wonder than wit.

It was also a revelation fo Isaac Beaulieu, 27, from Manitoba's Sandy Bay Pond reserve. Mr. Beaulieu, one of 2. Indians employed by Indian affairs, said that despite seven years of work in the United States and Canada, he found himself "at home with the white man" for the first time in the Toombs course.

Walter Rudnicki, 30-year-old director of the branch's social programs division, says the community development officers will be backed by "all the considerable resources of the country."

Rather than councillors, they will be consultants for the Indian, liaison men with the intricate world of federal, provincial and municipal programs.

GIVE INDIANS CONTROL

Once the spark of self-development has been ignited, the branch hopes to be able to put grants into bank accounts opened by band councils rather than into the hands of the traditional administrator of all Indian funds, the agent.

Mr. Rudnicki says everything depends on the community development officers and the trust they can win from the suspicious reserves.

A pilot program indicates they may do well.

Since Garth Crockett arrived two years ago at Fort Alexander, Man., the off-the-track community of 1,700 Indians has set up a logging co-op and his own newspaper.

The RCMP tersely reports "a new attitude" and there has been what amounts to a civic revolution, the old guard sweep out by spirited new blood.

Mr. Rudnicki and Mr. Crockett, both in their 30s, are themselves representa ive of new blood in Indian affairs. And the new approach is being welcomed by veterans as well.

"We're giving training courses you can't get in any Canadian university," says deputy minister Claude Isbister of the citizenship department. "We've obtained the very best people.

Dozen Lapps Still Pan Gold 2 Decades After Big Rush

By CARL BUCHALLA

ON LEMMEN RIVER, Finland (AP)—In the age of space flight, the gold-panning prospector of Lapland seems out of place.

But here in the treeless tundra of Lapland, he flits into the lonely landscape.

In the cold north of Finland a few rugged individuals pan the streams that feed into the Lemmen River, sifting out enough yellow grains and nuggets to provide an existence, but little more. Their stubborn endurance is staked by the traditional prospectors' dream: The strike, the day of hitting it big.

It is the same dream that over 100 years ago fed the gold rush of California and nearly 70 years ago brought panners to the Yukon.

Yrjoe Korhonen, 36, is one of Lapland's 12 hard - core gold panners who search for gold in the summer month, and either lumberjack or trap wildlife in the winter.

PANNED FOR YEARS

Korhonen is a wide - shouldered giant of few words. He has panned for gold for 17 years.

He is typical of his race, breed:

"The life is ok. I can live from it and even save a little. . . . And one day, who knows, perhaps?"

Korhonen stores his gold grains in a bottle, the small nuggets in a leather pouch. Once a year he flies to the Finnish capital of Helsinki to sell his gold to a jeweler.

For about $3 a day, a tourist can pan for gold at Korhonen's water sluices. They have little success. A German tourist entered these comments in the guestbook of a nearby cabin-hotel.

"We have washed for gold here. The take was 16 grams. The insect plague was much greater."

FIND FEW NUGGETS

The first gold finds on the Lemmenjoki (Lemmen River) were made about 70 years ago by nomadic Laplanders. In the sand of the river bank, they found an occasional nugget.

Not until 1947 did the rush catch on. It was triggered by three Lapps who found gold in the upper reaches of the river and brought it downstream to the communities of Inari and Ivalo.

Adventurers, get - rich-quick types and outdoorsmen flocked in from all Finland. At the end of 1948 there were 200 panning the Lemmen and its tiny tributaries. The biggest find was a nugget of 102 grams.

As in the gold days of California and the Yukon, there were the inevitable fights and knifings, but the violence was minor.

No big strikes were found. Only the true believers stayed—such as Korhonen—although a government survey showed there was not enough gold to warrant the construction of an organized mine.

LARGEST NEWSPAPER

Doctor Claims Asthma Is Hereditary

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. L. Dell Henry of Michigan says she is skeptical of doctors who diagnose asthma as a pure ecological or emotional condition.

Dr. Henry, a pediatrician who specializes in allergies, said in an interview here that asthma is an hereditary disease.

She attended the Zonta International, District IV conference here over the weekend. Zonta is a women's service club.

Dr. Henry said "any child whose background has a history of allergies is potentially allergic." She said it is important to pay close attention to the food given to such a baby in its first year.

Many babies acquire food sensitivities, she said, because they are fed the same food over and over again. Babies should receive different varieties of cereals, meats, vegetables and fruits.

She said its "all right to dislike one or two foods; but not all right to like only one or two foods."

Dr. Henry said babies who are born allergic "will die allergic". However, she said, "the sensitivity may alter its course."

Plants Give Garden Look

With fall comes the transition to indoor living — but summer's "garden look" can linger on in the home, all through the autumn and winter months. One way to accomplish this is with container plants.

One of the newest pot plant treatments is achieved with hanging planters and curtain rods. These ready-made hanging baskets consist of two chains, clay pots and their matching saucers, treated to keep water from seeping through.

Holes have been drilled in the saucers to insert chains, caught at the top by a hook attached to the curtain rod. The clay pots fit neatly into their saucers and, when filled with fresh foliage or year-round flowering plants, create a living curtain effect.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The fall thank-offering meeting of the Afternoon Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. was held in the Sunday School hall with a fine number present. The president, Mrs. H. Elvidge led in the devotions and Mrs. Chester Adams assisted.

The business period followed when reports from the various secretaries were heard and notes of appreciation read. Miss Pauline Brown was the missionary chosen for prayer. Mrs. Ivan Rollins contributed a vslo.

Mrs. Elvidge introduced the guest speaker, Miss Frieda Matthews, director of immigration for the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Miss Matthews gave an interesting account of her work in the Immigration Department, touching on every phase of the work. There are different types of people coming to Canada, farmers and the skilled and professional people. Miss Matthews also mentioned those who come to Canada for a short term, usually agricultural workers, who later return to their native land. All of these are lonely in a strange country and the Immigration Department is trying to do their part in making the newcomers in their midst feel welcome and happy in their new homeland. This is a real challenge to the church.

Mrs. V. Weir thanked Miss Matthews for her inspiring and informative talk.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the group in charge.

MARMORA C.W.L.

MARMORA — Rev. Father W. P. Healey opened the October meeting of the C.W.L. held in the Parish Hall Monday evening. Mrs. Breen O'Connor presided and welcomed the 30 members present.

Spiritual convener, Mrs. Charles Ringle, left copy of pamphlets on the ecumenical movement for study at future meetings.

Mrs. John Clairmont, sewing convener, distributed tickets to be sold on the bake, quilt now on display at Simpsons-Sears. This will be raffled at the bazaar on October 20th.

Membership convener, Mrs. Hugh Brady reported that membership has now reached 85 and an effort will be made to increase this number to 100. Birthday cards were sent during the month by social action convener, Mrs. Herb English.

Five missions, Mrs. Charles Lajoie asked members to gather used clothing to be packed and sent to the missions in November.

Mrs. A. M. Jones asked the women to consider the urgent need for a Brownie leader in Marmora.

The president reported on the interesting and informative regional meeting held in Belleville in September, stating that since each Diocesan convention holds workshops at these meetings, many ideas can be obtained for local councils.

In discussing the coming bazaar on October 19th-20th, the president asked for donations for the basket of groceries to be raffled. Members were asked to be present on Thursday evening to clean the kitchen and utensils in preparation for the dinner, and a final meeting will be held after Sunday Masses on October 10th.

Father Healey addressed the meeting, commenting on the significance and importance of the Pope's Peace Mission to New York.

UCW Meetings

ELMBROOK U.C.W.

The October meeting of the Elmbrook UCW was held in the home of Mrs. Frank Ditchburn. President Mrs. Arnold Acker man opened the meeting with the "Thought for the Day." She reported the purchase of two tablecloths.

Treasurer Mrs. Arthur Stone gave the financial results obtained from the anniversary service and the recent ham supper.

The November meeting is to be held at the Picton home of Mrs. Herb Lister, with Mrs. Ackerman in charge of the lunch; Mrs. Stone the program and Mrs. Arnold Welbanks the contest.

President Ackerman outlined the events that are scheduled to take place at the UCW Regional Rally Workshop, to be held in the Demorestville hall, October 28.

An excellent reading, pertaining to autumnal glory and God's divine assistance, was given by Mrs. Lister; excerpts being: "Our reactions to various things in life are determined by the kind of person we are. Let God into our hearts. Make every day a day of thanksgiving."

Mrs. Orval May took charge of the worship service, assisted by Mrs. Gerald Norton. A chapter was read from the Brazil study book, pertaining to the life of missionary Lloyd Strachan and his wife in Brazil, by Mrs. May. An amusing contest concerning the ability to recognize various household flavors was conducted by Mrs. Ackerman.

A pleasant social hour followed.

A vote of thanks to the hostess, on behalf of those present, was extended by Mrs. Lister and Mrs. May.

WOOLER U.C.W. UNIT 2

WOOLER — The October meeting of Unit 2 of Wooler U.C.W. met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Homer Lowe. A large attendance was recorded. The leader, Mrs. Stan Hyde, presided, assisted by the secretary - treasurer, Mrs. R. J. Read.

Mrs. Hugh Fox led in the devotional, with Mrs. J. Dorland reading the Scripture lesson.

Mrs. W. A. Adam, the newt pastor's wife, gave a most interesting talk on her personal findings through the years regarding Christian stewardship.

At the close of the meeting the unit held an auction of baked goods.

Mrs. A. Gunner and Mrs. Lowe served lunch and a social time was spent.

Young Widow Still Suffering From Shock

DEAR DORIS: Our daughter-in-law lost her husband, our son, just after their baby was born. She has never come home with the baby yet. We go and see them quite often, send gifts and phone; she always calls and thanks us for the gifts.

She treats us wonderfully when we go, always a kiss when we come and leave, and we have the baby the whole time we are there. She never goes to see any of their old friends. Of course she never knew them till she was married; I can see her point there.

What I really want to know is, should we continue as we have or stop? I want to do what is right. God knows she has been hurt enough and I wouldn't want to do anything to hurt her more. Friends say leave her alone, but Grannies are different!—GRANNY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR GRANNY: Keep up the good work, Grannies and Grampas are different. Your daughter-in-law is still suffering from shock; she may still also feel she doesn't know you too well. Have you ever issued a direct invitation?

Next time you visit, give her the feeling you need her. This should be a two-way street.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: Please tell me what I can do about dark black circles under my eyes. They look just terrible. I don't want to wear make-up and anyway that doesn't help very much. I go to bed around ten at night, so I think I get enough sleep, although I lie awake for quite a while before falling asleep.— BLACK CIRCLES.

* * *

DEAR BLACK: Depends on what's causing them. If it isn't fatigue it is something else out of kilter and needs your doctor's skill to spot it.

But you say you do lie awake. If you do a sit-down, brain fagging job during the day, it may be you are lacking in physical exercise. Try joining a sports club, or taking a mile walk every night. You may need to stretch those physical muscles before you can relax and sleep.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: Am writing for several ladies (50's) as well as myself. We have been thinking of making a move to where there would be a majority of men — but we don't have a clue as to where to go. Would you be so kind as to offer some suggestions on this matter? — UNATTACHED.

* * *

DEAR UNATTACHED: Could you stand the rigors of the so-called frozen north? Or venture into some of the untamed frontiers of civilization? For that's where the unattached males will be, sweating it out to find gold or subdue the land for our benefit.

Unless you'd like to go to Australia. But for my money it's far better to find some substitute entertainment where you are.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I am going to the city in the next few days for a job interview. The job is one which I might get. My problem is, what do I say to the people I'll be working with? I am terribly shy and often do not know what to say.

I need help desperately as I want this job and want to get along with the others who will be there.—SHY BUT FRIENDLY.

* * *

DEAR SHY: We've all been through the jitters of that first job!

If your supervisor knows his business, he'll see that you are introduced to those you'll be working with. If he doesn't, introduce yourself, by saying your name and that you are going to be working here!

When those near are friendly, tell a little about yourself and show an interest in them. Soon you will find out what is done about lunch times and coffee breaks; there'll be a time to chat with one or two informally.

Those first hurdles are not merely as forbidding as they look, so take heart.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My son was killed in an accident two years ago. He was married just a few months, and his widow now plans to be married again. She is going to wear a long dress in color and carry a bouquet. Do you consider this appropriate for a second wedding? To me a suit and corsage would be more discreet and I also think it should be a quiet wedding. She is 22. She had such a lovely wedding the first time, I don't see why this one should be so busy. It sort of hurts so soon after my son's death. — MISSING MY BOY.

* * *

DEAR MISSING: Don't ever think she doesn't miss your son too. But most of her life is still before her; she needs love and a husband; her little son needs a father. Yet he still needs you, his grandmother!

Perhaps this time we should forego some of the restraint imposed on more mature widows. I'd approve a long gown in color; but I'd go for a corsage, or a flower on a prayer book, rather than a bouquet. Don't let her know you criticize.

Women's Institutes

MELROSE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Melrose Women's Institute held a most interesting meeting recently in the Tyendinaga township hall with "Agriculture and Canadian Industry" as the main topic.

Mrs. Jack McGuinness was hostess for the evening and Mrs. Gerald Stratton opened the meeting in the usual manner. Mrs. Arthur Long read several thank-you notes and gave the financial report of two auction sales where the W.I. had furnished the lunch.

Mrs. Charles Bates, Mrs. Sherry Demille and Mrs. Malcolm Lanier were asked to assist at the Tweedsmuir tea to be held at Roslin. Several members volunteered to help at the annual tea and bazaar at Hastings Manor. A committee of Mrs. Grant McLaren, Mrs. Carman Milligan and Mrs. Sherry Demille will be in charge of a wedding reception in November. Other correspondence included a most interesting letter from Mrs. Peters who is at present attending ACWW in Dublin. Mrs. Grant McLaren listed the two solutions which will be presented at the Area Convention at Club Canoe on November 25 and 26.

Twenty-four members and several visitors were present.

The program convener, Mrs. Charles Bates introduced the first close relationship of Agriculture and Canadian Industry. She stressed the neither could stand alone as both rely on each other for their existence.

Mrs. William English introduced the guest for the evening, Mrs. Berie Summers, who entertained with beautiful pictures of Australia. She acquainted members with the agricultural set-up, animal life, education, housing, travel and their customs of living. In an enthusiastic and humorous manner Kay related their experiences during their four-year venture in that southern continent.

Mrs. E. Pascoe presented Mrs. Summers with a small gift of appreciation and the meeting closed.

The hostess and her assistants served lunch.

TEACHES IN SOUTH

VANCOUVER (CP) — University graduate Gwyneth Davis has left home to teach for one year in Guatemala on a government sponsorship. She will teach English at a high school in Tes, 50 southwest of Guatemala City.

France. While at university, Gwyneth held a $3,200 General Motors scholarship.

College Guild Hears Talk on Trinidad

For the first Autumn meeting Albert College Guild held a pot-luck luncheon. This was served in the Recreation room of the Manor. After all enjoyed the food provided, the president, Mrs. Davidson called the meeting to order. A short business meeting followed.

Miss Grace Tucker led the worship service, the theme of which was Thanksgiving. She also introduced the speakers, Dr. and Mrs. Swan. Mrs. Swan is a valued member of the Guild and Dr. Swan had been a member of the Albert College staff. A signal honor was given them last winter when ex-students invited them to visit them in Trinidad and see the fruits of their work there.

Dr. and Mrs. Swan are a team, and their talk was delightfully informal as they told of the changes that have taken place in the Island.

Mrs. Swan spoke first and was followed by Dr. Swan who showed pictures taken during their visit. There were glimpses of the Island scenery, of fine new buildings and of the people, especially the ex-students.

During their six weeks' visit they saw many changes and improvements in Trinidad. Best of all it was a joy to see their ex-students in positions of trust and importance.

Mrs. Charles Hyde thanked the speakers for their interesting and informative talk and showing of pictures.

Mrs. Davidson added her thanks.

U.C.W. Meetings

BRIDGE STREET U.C.W.

The UCW of Bridge Street United Church met over a pot luck supper for the fall thankoffering meeting. With the president, Mrs. J. B. Leslie at the head table were those taking part in the program.

The supper arrangements were in the hands of the three vice-presidents. Miss Helen Sullivan used the traditional decorations of fruits and vegetables for the tables' which were colorful and attractive.

The Explorers and CGIT with their leaders, Mrs. C. McCoy and Mrs. G. Shaver, were guests seated among the members at the other three tables.

Two members of evening unit 1, Mrs. T. Milliken and Mrs. J. MacDonald, conducted the worship service. The theme was "Faith and The Fragmentary Life" with two jigsaw puzzles they demonstrated. The pieces of one refused to fit together into a picture. The pieces of the other fell quickly into the pattern of a cross. The solution for fragmentary living is a strong, control care. "In Him all things hold together."

Mr. T. Franklin closed the worship service with a reading.

VISIT HOLY LAND

Mrs. E. Farnsworth introduced Mrs. Erik Denyes and Mrs. Kenneth Denyes. Accompanied by they returned from an Observer Tour of the Holy Land, conducted by Rev. L. Purdy and Mrs. Purdy. With colored slides and an interesting commentary they shared their experiences of people and places.

They were the guests of Canadians from all across Canada. The journey to this ancient land began with a train flight from Montreal to Copenhagen in six and a half hours.

In the course of the journey took them to Cairo, the Holy Land, Athens and Rome there were many interesting experiences. Among these which made a deep impression were a visit to the tomb where Jesus was buried, a view of the sunrise over the Sea of Galilee and a communion service by the sea.

Mrs. A. Guest expressed appreciation of the privilege to the two speakers and presented them with small tokens.

MARSH HILL U.C.W.

MARSH HILL—The October meeting of Marsh Hill U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Farley Lindenfield with 15 members present.

Mrs. Berson Mitts was in charge of the worship service on the theme of Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Lindenfield read the Scripture and three members took in prayer.

Mrs. David Little sang the Thanksgiving hymn and Mrs. Harry Cooke read a Thanksgiving poem.

Mrs. Allyn Fiskle took the Mission Study on Trinidad, telling of the customs of the people and the work that is being done there. All joined in singing the national anthem of Trinidad.

During the business, conducted by the president, Mrs. Harold Detlor, the members reported sending 27 cards and three letters and making six house calls.

Mrs. Alan Tanner gave a reading on Stewardship.

A letter was read from Mrs. Don Williams, chairman of the Presbyterian finance committee, and also one from Mrs. Ralph Mills, regional vice-president for East Hastings region.

The members were reminded of the regional which will be held at Halloway Church Tuesday, October 19. An invitation was given to the bazaar and tea at Stone United Church, October 27.

UNIT 1 U.C.W.

The secretarial report was given by Mrs. Frank Rabel and the treasurer's report by Mrs. Walter Morrow. The flower fund report was given by Mrs. W. Scott.

The worship service and program opened with a reading and prayer by Mrs. Morrow. Mrs. J. Beach presided at the piano. Mrs. W. Morrow read a poem on "Thanksgiving."

Mrs. R. Osterhout took charge of the study book on Brazil. She gave an enlightening talk. Mrs. G. Harrington gave a report of Rev. Floyd Honey on his return from Brazil.

Mrs. W. Morrow sang a solo accompanied by Mrs. F Charlesworth at the piano. Mrs. Preston Chase and Mrs. J Beach gave readings.

Lunch was served by the hostesses: Mrs. W. Morrow, Mrs. F. Phillips and Mrs. R. Osterhout.

Ann Landers
Father Went Too Far In Role of Barber

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing in behalf of my brother who is a man he is actually cross-eyed. (One eye sort of goes over to the side when he gets excited and this morning he was madder than I have ever seen him.)

Oogie is 15 and has a mind of his own and which I admire him. He likes the Beatles and also the Rolling Stones. Oogie is no nut but he does happen to wear his hair longer than most kids. This has been talked about at the dinner table a lot lately because my folks hate it.

A few days ago my Dad ordered Oogie to get a haircut. Oogie said he'd think about a trim but not an actual cut. Well, early this morning my Dad went into Oogie's bedroom with a pair of scissors and he whacked off big chunks of hair on the side and in the back. Oogie woke up a few minutes later and boy did he ever get mad. He screamed about liberty and human rights and the four freedoms. My dad said the freedom to let your hair grow like a sheep dog is not one of the four freedoms. Oogie said how a person wears his hair is his own personal business. My dad said as long as a kid lives in his parent's house, and eats and sleeps there, it is their business, too.

How do you feel about this? — CUT TO THE QUICK.

DEAR CUT: If there's anything I have no desire to get mixed up in it's a fight between a sheep dog and his parent.

I do feel, however, that your Dad should have laid down the law and ordered Oogie to get his hair trimmed instead of wielding the scissors himself.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My father was a successful but conservative business man. He would never buy a used car because, in his words, "It's foolish to buy somebody else's trouble." When I told him I wanted to marry a divorced man, he used the same phrase.

Although I am only 24 and have been married less than a year people who meet me on the street ask me if I've been sick. My husband has made a nervous wreck out of me with his fault finding. I can't do anything to suit him. He has a terrible temper and is tight with money.

So, Ann, when women write and ask if they should marry a divorced man, tell them what my Dad told me — advice I was too stupid to believe: It's foolish to buy somebody else's trouble. — WOULDN'T LISTEN.

* * *

DEAR WOULDN'T: Thank you for letting us know how it is with you, but the statistics tell another story. The chances for a lasting marriage are slightly better when one of the partners has had a previous marriage. Surprised? I was, too.

When you get to the two-time losers, however, the statistics take a sharp turn for the worse. And the more often a person marries after that the slimmer his chances for making a go of the next one.

* * *

Confidential to SHOULD I OR SHOULDN'T I? — You shouldn't. The man you describe has all the qualities of a dog except loyalty. Tell him to get lost.

* * *

No teen-ager is as confident as he appears. Get clued in. Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don't," enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Rebekahs Visit Tweed for Installation

A large number of Tweed members was present, who proceeded to transact the usual lodge business, after which the impressive and colorful installation of officers took place. The musician, Sister Merle Mumby of Thomasburg, presided at the piano for the floor work and also accompanied the soloist, Sister Doris Lawrenson of Thomasburg and Sister Ruth Owens of Tweed.

The District Deputy gave an inspiring message of friendship. "A person without friends" she would be a lonely existence and a true friend is a friend at all times. She gave several pointers on ways that members can help in the meetings and spoke briefly of the happy memories she had of her membership in the Tweed Lodge before she transferred to the Crescent Lodge of Thomasburg. She and the new Noble Grand, Sister Elliott, both Crescent Lodge at the same time. Sister Fisher was presented with a pin by Tweed Rebekahs.

Tweed Lodge presented a skit. Junior Past Noble Grand, Sister Hilda Lawrenson was assigned by the singing of the birthday song, in honor of her birthday on the same day. She was presented with a gift and a bouquet of roses, in recognition of her work as Past Noble Grand.

A banquet was served by the Tweed members, for which the District Deputy President graciously expressed the thanks of all.

A FAVORITE PLUM DESSERT

A doctor, two social workers and an advertising executive tasted my plum dessert. I said "Okay, if it is so good you people can think up a name for it." Our crazy crowd took up the challenge: "Plum Crumb," "Plum Delicious," "Some Plum Crumb," "Plum Crumb Cum Laude," "Yummy Plum Crumble," and "Plum Crazy" all were bandied about.

"Plumb Crumb" describes it better than the rest and I hope you will try it while plums are still on our local markets. You too will be crazy about it.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Meat Loaf; Tomato or Mushroom Sauce;. Fried Onion Rings; Lima Beans Creole; Sliced Cucumbers and Green Peppers; Compote of Peaches and Pineapple Chantilly; Tea.

PLUM CRUMB (serves 6)

4 cups quartered, pitted red plums (see below)
½ cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1¼ cups sifted but unsifted flour (or 1 cup flour and ¼ cup rolled oats)
1 cup light brown sugar, packed
½ cup butter
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon mace or nutmeg
½ pint fresh dairy sour cream

Wash, cut into quarters and pit the plums. (I bought 24 medium-sized plums which weighed 2 lbs.. Arrange plums in medium-sized baking dish and sprinkle with the ¼ cup granulated sugar and the lemon juice. With a pastry blender or your finger tips cut the butter into the flour (or flour and rolled oats), brown sugar, salt and spice until crumbly. Take care not to mix it too well or it will be oily. Pat this crumb mixture evenly over the plums. Stand the prepared dish or centre shelf of oven. (Note: If pudding is baked on bottom shelf of oven the plums cook too quickly and boil up over the crumb mixture and prevent browning.) Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 30 to 40 minutes — time depending on size of plums.

The highlight of this luscious dessert-is the fresh dairy sour cream which is ladled, ice cold, over it fairly generously when you pass it at the table. This fresh plum pudding is at its best served slightly warm. Try naming it yourself.

QUESTION:

My husband prefers "runny" butter tarts - . Linda P.

ANSWER:

Here they are. Glad to oblige.

SYRUPY BUTTER TARTS.

Line medium tart tins with Flaky Pastry: Sift 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour with 1 teaspoon saR. Cut in 1 cup shortening and 3 tablespoons butter until size of peas. Drizzly over about 6 tablespoons cold water, tossing with fork Pack into ball, roll out to very thin sheet. Spoon 1 teaspoon corn syrup into each lined tart tin. Fill 2/3 full with Filling: Mix together ½ cup each butter and corn syrup, 1 cup currants, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon each lemon juice and vanilla. Bake at 425 deg. F 12 to 15 minutes. Let stand a few minutes then carefully remove from pans.

Raise Status Of Secretaries First Concern

TORONTO (CP) — The first concern of the National Secretaries Association (International) is to raise the status of secretaries to the professional level, says Merle Law of London, Ont.

Miss Law, the first Canadian national president of the association whose northeast district met here during the weekend, said the group is likely to heavy emphasis on education leading to the certified professional secretary certificate.

"In that way we hope our competence and intelligence will be recognized by employers—and also command higher salaries," Miss Law told the association.

But trying to make secretaries professional is more uphill job, Miss Law said. Of 500 Canadians belonging to the association, only 25 hold the certificates which are earned by examination.

Norman Mason of the business school at Sir George Williams University, Montreal, scolded the 300 delegates at a Saturday luncheon for lack of interest in professional studies.

"Don't be just another women's club," he said. "Educate yourselves properly for the work you wish to do and then when the boss looks around for a qualified person to do the job —he might pick one of you instead of a man."

Women's Institutes

UNIONDALE W.I.

The October meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Maurice Bird on the Fourth Concession of Sidney.

The topic on mental health was given by Mrs. Robert Burkitt, with Mrs. Ross Fleming as convener. A donation of $25 was given to the Belleville branch of the mental health association.

Current readings were given by Mrs. Harry Bleecker, Mrs. Ross Dafoe and Mrs. George Bird. Karen Bird played a piano selection.

Thank you letters from three members were read. Mrs. Griffin explained the resolution to be dealt with at the area convention at Club Canara in Belleville on November 25 and 26.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Maurice Dafoe on the Sixth Concession of Sidney, when the district president will pay a visit.

Susanna's Family Fare

THE NUMBERS GAME

Dear Susanna: I always read your column with great interest, and hope you can help me with my problem. A friend and I are planning a bridal shower and would like some new ideas for decorating, games to play and food to serve.

Both women and teenagers will be invited and the games we have are pretty well worn out. I am thanking you in advance for helping to make our shower a success. — Miss B. McK.

As always, I'm such an incurable romantic that there is nothing I'd rather discuss than brides. In fact, I got so carried away with the subject that about five pages of suggestions and ideas are now on their way to you — marked, of course, rush.

I included one rather bright tantalizing game that many of you may Brwer have tried. Here is what to do:

Supply each guest with a set of numbers, either on sheets of paper or written on a blackboard. The list I sent you has about 20 combinations. Give everyone a pad and pencil and ask her to list the meaning of each number. E.G., for the numbers 1918, 98, 60-15, 113 and 100, 36-25-36, and 32, the answers in order are: end of World War I, normal body temperature, stealing weight: and quality or weave, information and long distance telephone dialing, beauty-queen-type measurements, freezing point of water.

If you like the idea you can elaborate by including local numbers such as highways, radio and TV stations or even the number of the bride-to-be's house, or the date of her wedding.

If you feel it is too difficult, you might supply the guests with 3 scrambled partial list of the answers. Here's another, how about it? T-4-21—SUSANNA.

SEW NEW FIRST

Dear Susanna: If you must make a dress larger by letting out the seams, it is much better to sew the new seams first and then rip out the old ones. This saves basting and there is no stretching or sagging of the seams.

FULL GOSPEL C.A.

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle held its C.A. Friday evening service at 8 p.m. October 10th.

Mrs. Willard Whitman was in charge of the meeting, opening with the C.A. theme chorus, and Mr. Glen Post led in prayer. Several gospel hymns were sung. Two solos were sung by Mr. Willard Whitman and Miss Bev. Wannamaker.

Miss Linda Fisher read the Scripture and Mr. Paul Spurrell led in prayer.

The C.A. offering was received by D. Spring and B. Reilly. Mr. Willard Whitman sang a solo, and the evening's message was brought by Mr. Lonnie Reilly. The service closed with a time of prayer.

Ladies of Belleville

The Quintebelle Chorus asks you:

1. Do you sing a little ditty while doing your chores, even though you don't read or understand music?
2. Do you often say "My voice isn't much, but I enjoy trying to sing"?
3. Would you like a fun-filled evening out with other ladies like the above?

St. John's United Church Marks 100th Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD—St. John's United Church, Campbellford, celebrated its centennial anniversary on Sunday, October 17. Large crowds attended morning and evening services; many visitors were present, those who had made St. John's their church in previous years, returned for this special service.

Speaker for the morning service was Dr. Kingsley Joblin, who chose as his subject "New Life From Old," based on the Biblical text "They that dwell under His shadow shall return, they shall revive as the corn and grow as the vine."

In the evening the guest speaker was Dr. H. B. Neal, a former minister who chose as his theme "The Marks of a Christian."

A social hour followed the morning service and a fireside gathering after the evening service.

Guest soloist for the morning service was Mr. Reginald Peters with special music by St. John's choir. In the evening, adding to the special choir music a mixed quartet of Messrs. J. Chynoweth and William Rothwell, Mrs. D. D. Bennett and Mrs. J. M. Benor.

A small booklet outlining what could be obtained as history of St. John's was prepared by W. A. Kingston and those who wished a copy were able obtain one after the services.

The centennial celebrations will continue until October 31. Sunday, October 24th will be youth Sunday. The guest speaker will be Rev. Robert Nicholls, a local young man who spent his school years in the town.

In the evening two other local young men who are in the process of becoming ordained ministers, Mr. Ron Pierce and Mr. Earl Taft will take the service.

Guest soloist for October 24 will be Miss Susie Goldie of Peterborough. Mrs. Stratton, violinist, will also contribute to the music along with the junior choir.

On October 27th, a Church Fair will be held and on Sunday, October 31st, the guest minister will be Rev. Stanley Gibson of St. Andrew's United Church, Peterborough, in the morning, and in the evening an historical pageant will be presented.

During the past century, 24 ministers have served the congregation, eight of them have served as presidents of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

The members of the committee preparing the Centennial celebrations were: Dr. D. M. Smith, pastor; Mrs. D. D. Bennett, Mrs. H. Beattie, Messrs. J. C. Chynoweth, W. A. Kingston and G. H. Free.

CORN WOULD GROW

WINNIPEG (CP) — After three years of testing, Dr. Vernon MacKay says southern Manitoba and southern Alberta could profitably grow corn, perhaps enough to supplant the 75,000,000 bushels Canada imports every year.

Gemini Streaked Across Sky Powered by 126-year-old Idea

By JOHN BARBOUR

NEW YORK (AP)—The Gemini 5 spacecraft darted across the summer night like a small excited star—with a hot, 126-year-old idea in its tail.

Probably within the coming decade that idea will be providing power for more and more travelling North Americans.

It is a neat, simple and beautiful idea. But it will be some time—if ever—before fuel cells produce the power for your home. Still it's nice to think about.

The compact package in the basement or the hall closet—not so much as a whisper loud, fuelled by gas tanks delivered each month, unaffected by storms or winds.

The fuel cells that powered Gemini 5 weighed less than an astronaut. Yet they did the job of a ton of storage batteries.

BORROW ELECTRONS

The beauty of the fuel cell is that it uses a natural and highly efficient phenomenon: The oxidation of an element—actually the quiet burning of hydrogen gas. It borrows the electrons freed temporarily in this chemical reaction, uses them as electricity, and returns them to complete the reaction.

The silence, portability, smokelessness and smogless-ness of the fuel cells make them ideal for some uses—as low weight power for battlefield radar; for trucks that operate on electricity indoors; for isolated, unmanned stations like beacons or buoys.

Perhaps eventually, some fuel cell manufacturers hope, the silent, smogless power may operate cars and trucks.

Fuel cells are by far more efficient than internal combustion engines. They get more power out of a given chemical reaction than does the mechanical use of the same reaction in which burning gases expand drive a piston.

MORE EFFICIENT

Fuel cells can reap more than 80 per cent of the potential energy in a chemical reaction—while steam turbines reap only up to 40 per cent and gasoline engines up to 30 per cent.

The fuel cells that operated on Gemini 5 were capable of efficiencies up to 70 per cent.

Even at that, the cost of producing power with fuel cells could come nowhere near the low cost power from central electrical plants where burning cheap fuels produces steam to turn electricity - producing turbines.

Ironically the fuel cell is an old idea. The first one was made by Sir William Grove in 1839. By the end of the 19th century it was being widely hailed as the power source that would warm and run homes within a few years.

It still hasn't happened.

But 20th century know-how and materials are producing efficient fuel cells like the ones on Gemini 5—and manufacturers expect to begin testing their industrial and domestic uses.

That means rot-proof, warp-proof, dent-proof, blister-proof, peel-proof.
It's rodent-proof and fire-proof, too!

What more proof do you need?

"Well, for one thing," you ask, "will I have to keep repainting it every year or so? That's a nuisance. And expensive."

Answer: Johns-Manville Asbestos Siding will never need paint to preserve it. The colors are as beautifully permanent as the science of acrylics has been able to make them. Yet, if you should wish to change the color some day (you know what wives are like), this asbestos siding makes a perfect, fast-bonding surface for paint.

"Great," you say, "but what's so special about asbestos siding?"

Answer: You tell me. What other siding can offer you all of the above features? What's more, unlike metal siding it won't conduct electricity.

"OK," you admit grudgingly, "but is Johns-Manville asbestos siding easy to install?"

Answer: J-M siding is very adaptable. Comes in three different styles to suit your needs: Colorbestos, Rock-Shakes and Rockspan Clapboard!

To find out which style you need, see your nearest Johns-Manville dealer or home improvement contractor.

"How about colors?"
Answer: There's a whole rainbow-full.

"How economical is Johns-Manville Asbestos siding?"
Answer: Very.

"Is it really weatherproof?"
Answer: No fooling, it stands up better to everything.

"But I live in a lighthouse."
Answer: No problem.

P.M. Pledges Federal Aid To Maritimes

By BEN WARD

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson made a fast-paced campaign swing through the Maritimes Saturday, pledging continued federal aid to the region's economic development and taking a rare swat at John Diefenbaker over the Conservative leader's pension promises.

He told a jam-packed reception here Saturday night that Mr. Diefenbaker is deceiving the voters when he talks of raising old age pensions to $100 a month by using funds from the Canada Pension Plan.

The prime minister said the money that wages — earners and employers pay into the contributory plan could not be used for other purposes and it was "deceiving" to suggest that it could.

Mr. Fredericton earlier in the day Pearson said Ottawa is prepared to pump fresh funds into the Atlantic Development Board when the agency's original $100,000,000 allotment is exhausted—it is "soon will be."

He spoke to 1,500 delegates gathered there for a one-day convention of the New Brunswick Liberal Association.

Here in Charlottetown, a crowd estimated at between 1,500 and 2,000 persons turned up at Mr. Pearson's informal reception in the Fathers of Confederation Memorial Building. Some had to be turned away.

On the pension issue, he said Mr. Diefenbaker's policies, to boost the universal old age pension to $100 monthly from $75 would cost the treasury $850,000,000 a year.

The Liberals planned to deal with the problem "in a more responsible way," boosting pensions for those elderly persons in actual need, possibly to $125 or even higher if necessary. But he would "not "trade promises" with Mr. Diefenbaker on this issue.

A group of 50 students from the University of New Brunswick heckled Mr. Pearson on his arrival at Fredericton airport, waving signs and chanting: "We want our vote."

SUGGESTS TALK

Mr. Pearson strolled over and invited one of them to "come and have a cup of coffee and talk it over."

Instead of replying, the student unrolled a cardboard sign decreed: "Tell us about Rivard, Pichill, Denis, Dupuis and others."

Mr. Pearson snapped: "I'll talk to you, but not if you want to dig scandal!" Then he turned his back and walked off, obviously angry.

In his speech Mr. Pearson thanked the students "for the stimulation of your opposition" and the heckling died out. Later, outside the building, he spent about 10 minutes shaking hands with students and signing autographs.

The prime minister's chartered airliner flew him from Ottawa Sunday morning and he plans to spend today at his office before heading into Western Canada Tuesday.

NDP Leader In Public Life For 30 Years

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP)—A crowd of 1,200 linened out Saturday night to congratulate T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, on his completion of 30 years in the public life.

He spoke beneath a sign that said "The Little Man who stands up Tall." Around the hall were lesser signs which commemorated "firsts" achieved by Saskatchewan's Co-operative Commonwealth Federation government when Mr. Douglas was premier there. Some of these included medical care insurance and government hospital insurance.

Although the meeting had been billed as non-political, it had a definite NDP complexion which included tables for "donations" at the doorway. Speakers were mostly NDP stalwarts.

Plans for the celebration were started before the Nov. 8 federal election was announced.

RECEIVES TRIBUTES

Mr. Douglas received tributes from Howard Green, veteran Progressive Conservative external affairs minister, who referred to "my old friend Tommy Douglas."

Mr. Green and the present Conservative member, Paul Martin, were elected for the first time in 1935, as was Mr. Douglas.

Mr. Martin, who had at one time been expected to attend the celebration, accepted his "warmest congratulations."

Mr. Douglas told his audience "these have been magnificent years—these last 30 years."

He said the 27 years he was premier of Saskatchewan were the most exciting and interesting of his life. He said the celebration was not a tribute to him, but to all the people who had worked in the movement in the last 30 years.

Diefenbaker Delighted With Receptions

By STEWART MacLEOD

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—A five-day western swing has brought Conservative Leader Diefenbaker past the half-way mark in his election campaign — in which his own confidence appears to be climbing—and the views of political observers are conflicting.

"I've never seen anything like it," he often says, "It's 1957 and '58 all over again."

Many observers, who travelled through the West with Mr. Diefenbaker in the earlier campaigns, say that changed circumstances make comparisons virtually impossible.

The issues are not the same, and neither are the crowd patterns. While organizers were delighted with the 3,500 people who turned out to hear the 70-year-old leader in Calgary—they said it was the biggest party rally in the city's history —they were equally disappointed with the 12 people who turned out for a 15-minute whistle stop in Regina.

During his nine days in the West, Mr. Diefenbaker met several thousand people at 44 rallyway whistle stops, delivered 11 major speeches—all more than an hour long—and attended receptions and mainstreeted at a murderous pace.

CAN'T KEEP UP

"They used to say I was decrepit," he tells his audiences. "Now they can't keep up with me."

Saturday was one of his busiest days. He flew from Victoria for a morning press conference, boarded his plane again for a one-hour flight to Kelowna airport, drove 28 miles to Vernon for a noon speech, back another 28 miles to Kelowna for a harvest festival, then another 39 miles for an evening rally in Penticton, topped off by a 40 - minute flight through a vicious windstorm to Kamloops.

Inspired by demonstrations of party unity, Mr. Diefenbaker told his audiences at every opportunity about the "new spirit of unity".

"They thought we were divided, and that's why Mr. Pearson called the election. Look at us now."

Basically, there are few changes finde from day to day in Mr. Diefenbaker's campaign speeches, which have tended to jell into a formula since he took to the hustings.

OUTLINES PLATFORM

He outlines the party's platform — increased old-age pensions, tax relief for home-owners, more federal aid to education and other programs announced earlier. Then he gets down to what he considers the heart of the matter, as he jabs the air with his finger, and proclaims:

"Ladies and gentlemen, we will clean up the mess."

His issue of honesty-in-government tends to dominate his speeches, and he usually launches the subject like this:

"It was on c night like this—warm—that Rivard asked the warden for the hose to wash the rink."

Spending at least 20 minutes on the subject, he talks about Rivard—"that destroyer of the souls of men"—the bankruptcy cases, Dr. Marcoux's book, and Mr. Pearson's "selective memory."

The new flag often gets a brief mention—"we have no apologies for the stand we took"—and he charges the Liberals with whittling away at Canada's ties with such British institutions as the monarchy. This was a central theme of his speech to 2,000 people in the tradition-conscious city of Victoria.

REVIEWS STANDS

Most of his speeches contain a resume of his own stands, dreams and achievements. "I dared to stand," he frequently says.

Mr. Diefenbaker's speeches in the West varied from 45 to 92 minutes, with nearly all of them longer than 75 minutes.

What confused many observers on the western trip was crowd reaction. While Mr. Diefenbaker's speech at, for instance, Medicine Hat, brought out frequent bursts of applause, there was a relatively quiet response at Lethbridge. One of the warmest audiences was in an old, low-ceiling hall at Assiniboia, Sask., while at Steinbach, Man., there was little response.

The noisiest meeting was at Victoria where a peace-group bombarded Mr. Diefenbaker with chants and heckling about Viet Nam. The sharpest heckling was at Winnipeg, and while the Calgary meeting started with frequent interruptions, it quietened after one of the hecklers was interrupted himself by a punch on the nose.

Mr. Diefenbaker spent five full days whistle - stopping, jumping off and on the train to meet from three to 1,500 people. The crowds, say organizers, depended largely on advance publicity and local organization.

Drawing on a sharp memory, the Conservative leader would recognize many of his western supporters and call them by name.

Years of Inferior Schools Have Left Negroes Behind

By G. K. HODENFIELD

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bitterness and heartache are shared for thousands of Negro pupils and Negro teachers in the southern United States, even if full school integration should proceed without incident.

The harsh fact is that years of segregated, inferior education have left them ill-prepared to cope with the higher standards they will find in previously all-white schools.

Hundreds of Negro teachers already have lost their jobs as a direct result of desegregation. Where there is a surplus of teachers, the Negro usually is first to go.

In some cases this is outright racial discrimination, and redress may be available through the courts. The federal government is keeping a close watch and is prepared to step in where discrimination can be proved.

The National Education Association, too, is pledged to fight what it calls "illegal and capricious dismissals, intimidation and punitive transfers."

But in a tragic number of cases, it isn't discrimination. The Negro teacher just does not measure up.

Dr. Dave Darland of the NEA said recently:

"Their education is traditionally bad. They are victims of inferior elementary schools, inferior secondary schools and inferior colleges.

"They started behind, they have stayed behind, and it would take a superman to catch up."

LOW SCORES

In Florida, all teachers must now pass the national teacher examination as a requirement for certification. Two hundred Negro teachers have lost their jobs there because of low test scores.

Throughout the South this year, there were special summer institutes for teachers of disadvantaged children. The institutes were sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education.

Within a week after they started, it was apparent that the problem wasn't only disadvantaged children, but disadvantaged teachers as well.

The director of one such institute, herself a Negro, said in an interview:

"We had 40 Negro teachers here from four southern states. Some of them had advanced degrees from Negro colleges.

"Only one or two could write coherent paragraph. The level of spoken English was just as bad."

And what of the children?

A Negro youngster entering the ninth grade in a previously all-white school will be at a terrible disadvantage in competition with white classmates who have had eight years of the best education available.

It will be easier, perhaps, for younger children who are integrated at the first and second grade levels. But it will be difficult for them, too, if they come from homes where they never have seen a magazine, never held a pencil in their hand, never had story read to them.

CITIZENS OF THURLOW:
What Are The Issues?

The issue on October 20th is NOT whether Thurlow will be dry or wet because:

1. All citizens of Thurlow are able to purchase alcoholic beverages conveniently in Belleville.
2. The same citizens can frequent dining lounges just as conveniently.

THE ISSUES THEN ARE:

1. Are we willing to turn down good tax dollars from potential enterprises that would require the dining lounge licence.
2. The present laws discriminate upon present establishments in Thurlow that require a licence to compete with similar establishments in Belleville.
3. Has any citizen the right to tell his fellow man that he can or cannot drink.

Lord Thomson's Biography Is One of Candor

LONDON (CP)—A biography just published about Lord Thomson of Fleet, the Canadian-born newspaper baron, leaves some of London's reviewers breathless with its candid view of the man.

The Sunday Express speaks of the "staggering candor" of Russell Braddon's biography, entitled Roy Thomson of Fleet Street, while a fellow peer writing in the weekly Observer comments: "Here he is—warts and all."

Published by Collins in Britain and Canada today, the book recounts Thomson's rise from a penny-pinching youth in Toronto to a barony and one of the largest and richest newspaper empires in history. It was written with Thomson's co-operation.

Reviewer Robert Pitman, in the Sunday Express, says that the book covers such episodes in Thomson's life as his prolonged flirtation with bankruptcy in Canada, exploitation of employees, closeness with money, and outright pursuit of his British title.

Says Pitman: ". . . I can find no other instance of such staggering candor in any official biography of an important and successful man. That it should be written when the hero is still alive and in action is entirely without parallel. In its way it is as much a landmark as Rousseau's Confessions."

THOMSON PRAISED

All of Sunday's reviewers have praise for Thomson himself.

Lord Francis Williams, noted author and student of the British press, describes the Canadian peer as an "attractive, unpretentious man, with a genius for making deals and a flair for figures."

Francis Williams lauds Thomson for bringing a "cold douche of commercial realism" to the British press, without debasing editorial standards. But he contends that Thomson is a prisoner of the myth which he himself created — that of a profit-hungry philistine — and that this myth conceals the Canadian's "real contribution to the press."

In The Sunday Telegraph, Randolph Churchill sums up Lord Thomson's newspaper philosophy by writing: "The great merit of Roy Thomson as a newspaper proprietor is that he does not interfere with the editorial policies of his papers. . . . He looks after the business side. . . . He chooses good people and lets them get on with the job. That is why he is prosperous."

Churchill, only son of the late Sir Winston, says Thomson has succeeded by "industry and absolute integrity."

Donald Zec in The Sunday Mirror praises Thomson's candidness, and says Braddon has done a good job of painting the image of a "man with guts, drive, amiable ruthlessness, but instinct honesty."

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

GROUP COMMITTEE

THOMASBURG — The first meeting since June of Thomasburg Boy Scout group committee took place recently in the United Church hall with ten present. Scoutmaster William Keen opened the meeting.

Some discussion about a new meeting place for the Scouts and Cubs took place. A representative from the committee and also one from Crescent Rebekah Lodge are to attend a meeting of the stewards of Thomasburg United Church regarding this matter.

A letter regarding registration for the Cubs and Scouts was read and it is important that all the boys register as soon as possible in October.

The president, James Seeblings, announced that the District Scout banquet will take place at Bonarlaw on October 20. A parchment which had been sent to Queen's Scout, Jack Newman was displayed by Scouter Geen, who also reported on various Scout activities since the last meeting, including the District Scout parade in Stirling on June 20. A new t' g for Thomasburg groups was dedicated by the Rev. Thompson of Madoc and a trip to 1000 Island attended by 13 Scouts from Thomasburg and 12 from Tweed.

The final event for the summer had been a hayride to Schwager's where a wiener roast was enjoyed. Cubmaster Allan Howell reported that the Cubs' activities for the summer had closed with a barbecue.

A fund raising project, possibly a variety night, was the subject of some discussion. Assistant Cubmaster Anne Howell announced that the Cubs would be selling Christmas cards.

After the meeting adjourned lunch was provided by Mrs. Marion Martin.

Dedicate Park To Honor Of Publisher

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) A municipal park was dedicated Sunday as F. H. Leslie Park in honor of Frank Howard Leslie, 89, publisher of the Niagara Falls, Review.

Mr. Leslie donated property to the city in 1926. The area was used as the site of a swimming pool and wading pool and was later developed into a 4½ acre park, including land acquired by the city.

Mr. Leslie came to Niagara Falls 61 years ago to publish The Review and developed it into a daily newspaper 10 years later.

Mayor Robert F. Keighan unveiled a plaque, bearing the name of the park and the inscription: "In appreciation for outstanding service to the City of Niagara Falls as publisher and citizen and for his foresight in making available lands for the swimming pools on this park site."

Man Who Flipped Coin to Decide Vote Is Back on Job as Returning Officer

By STUART LAKE

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que. (CP)—On the night of April 26, 1963, with Judge Paul Ste. Marie of the Quebec Superior Court among his spellbound audience, the returning officer for the federal riding of Pontiac-Temiscamingue took a 25-cent coin from his pocket, flipped it into the air, caught it and said one word:

"Martineau."

J. Denzil Moodie, a private contractor between elections, thus ended the nip-and-tuck battle between Conservative Paul Martineau and Liberal Paul Goulet for the right to represent the western Quebec riding in the 26th Parliament.

Now getting ready for the Nov. 8 balloting, Mr. Moodie recalled the moment in an interview.

The official count in the federal election campaign April 8 that year gave Mr. Goulet a 10-vote edge over Mr. Martineau, mines minister in the Diefenbaker government.

After two recounts, the count stood at 6,648 for each. Judge Ste. Marie, presiding at the judicial recount at the courthouse in this town about 65 miles northwest of Ottawa, then turned to Mr. Moodie and asked him to cast the deciding vote.

GIVEN 15 MINUTES

"I asked the judge whether I could have three months to make up my mind like the other voters had," said Mr. Moodie with a smile. "The judge told me I had 15 minutes."

Mr. Moodie, appointed a returning officer after the Conservative landslide victory of 1958, said he used the time to make a telephone call to a person he doesn't care to name.

"He told me I would be following British tradition if I used either a pack of cards or a coin to help me make the decision."

Had he decided on heads for Mr. Martineau, tails for Mr. Goulet, or vice-versa?

"I didn't say," replied Mr. Moodie. "I just went back into the courtroom, tossed the coin and announced my vote for Mr. Martineau."

Had the coin come down head or tails?

"I don't know," he said. "I was too excited to look."

Both candidates were among the spectators at the courthouse. Mr. Goulet shook hands with the returning officer and Mr. Martineau, a family friend, invited him to a victory party. Mr. Moodie declined the invitation in favor of a few brazers among his friends at the Royal Canadian Legion.

A popular story in the riding is that Mr. Moodie sold his 25-cent piece for $100. But he insists he gave it away to an asker.

LOST PROVINCIAL JOB

A man who likes to tell a funny story—so he says—Mr. Moodie is going into his third federal election as a returning officer. He acted in the same capacity for several Quebec provincial elections but "got the bounce" after Premier Jean Lesage's government took office.

Farming, lumbering and mining are the main sources of income for the 38,000 eligible voters in the riding. It's a sprawling one with its southern tip only a few miles from Ottawa and its northwesterly portion extending just beyond the north end of Lake Timiskaming. It includes a great chunk of Verendrye Park whose few isolated polls are a special worry to the returning officer.

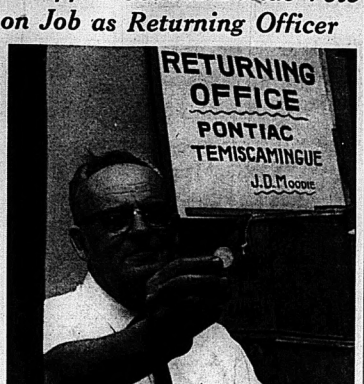
Mr. Moodie, who looks to be about 60 but doesn't like to say how old he is, describes himself as a "lowland Scot" with enough "habitant French" to carry out his duties in the bilingual riding. The Pontiac portion, which has 69 of the riding's 125 polls, is predominantly English-speaking; the Temiscamingue portion is mostly French-speaking.

Father of three grown children, Mr. Moodie enjoys election night when he supervises the duties of about 250 workers and keeps a friendly eye on a group of reporters who set up shop in his headquarters to get election results as they become available.

An affable, easy-going man, Mr. Moodie sees that coffee is served during the night and "perhaps we have a beer or two when it's all over."

PLANT BY MILLIONS

The Ontario department of lands and forests hopes to harvest 258,600,000 black spruce seeds, weighing only 640 pounds, in 1963.



HE FLIPPED FOR THE WINNER—On April 25, 1963, J. Denzil Moodie, the returning officer in the federal riding of Pontiac Temiscaminque, took a quarter from his pocket, flipped it and announced that the seat had been won by Conservative Paul Martineau. Mr. Moodie, a private contractor between elections, had been ordered by the judge presiding at the judicial recount to cast the deciding vote after two recounts had ended in a tie. The 1965 election will be Mr. Moodie's third federal election as a returning officer. (CP Photo)

N.B. Conservative Stronghold Shapes Up as Tough Fight

By JOHN MOSHER

WOODSTOCK, N.B. (CP) — One of the hardest fights in its electoral history is shaping up in Victoria-Carleton, a Conservative stronghold since 1940.

The formidable man to beat for any victor in the counting agency's federal voting Nov. 8 is Hugh John Flemming, 66, Progressive Conservative winner of successive provincial and federal contests dating back to 1944.

New Brunswick premier from 1952 to 1960, Mr. Flemming defeated the sons of his father, the late J. K. Flemming, premier from 1911 to 1914 and later an MP. Mr. Fleming had Victoria-Carleton majorities of more than 4,000 over Liberal candidates in 1962 and 1963. He polled 10,572 votes in the latter election.

This time he is opposed by Liberal Paul Maddox, 46, a Woodstock barrister. Harold E. Shaw, a barber at Bristol, had been named as New Democratic Party candidate but he withdrew last week because, he said, he had too many other commitments. No replacement has been named yet although NDP candidates have been chosen in all other New Brunswick ridings.

Mr. Flemming was federal forestry minister from 1960 to 1962 and revenue minister in 1962. In his nomination acceptance speech, he put national unity and the need for honest government at the top of the issues.

As another issue the PC veteran mentioned the memory of Prime Minister Pearson, "who conveniently forgets anything which may embarrass him."

Mr. Maddox, accepting nomination as "a job and challenge," is emphasizing development of the riding's agricultural and mineral potential "so boys and girls in the ... won't have to go elsewhere ... jobs."

He is reported to have ample financial backing in his strong bid for victory. Both parties have planned extensive radio time and newspaper advertising. The Liberal candidate, never before tested in an election, has been a quiet but key party worker on the County level.

Both counties of Victoria-Carleton, in western New Brunswick bordering Maine, are predominantly rural, with potato-growing and lumbering the principal occupations.

It already has most everything else.

Bucket seats. Floor-mounted stick shift. Padded dash. Whitewall tires. Independent torsion bar suspension. Front-wheel disc brakes.

The kind-of sporting extras they charge so much money for on other cars.

It has a dual carburetor 1600 cc. engine tucked neatly away in the back. Air-cooled so that it never needs water. Or anti-freeze.

It has an electric clock. A four-way flashing indicator for night emergencies. A carpeted floor. And seat backs that adjust to seven different angles.

About the only thing you could want more of in our fastback sedan is load space.

You get it in the model with the square back. About twice as much of it. Even more when you fold the back seat down.

Aside from that, the two cars are just about identical. Same kind of performance. Same kind of gas mileage. Same kind of fun.

In fact, you may have to keep looking back to see which one you're driving.

Hit by Ball, Lady Churchill Breaks Arm

LONDON (Reuters) — Lady Spencer - Churchill rested "fairly comfortably" today after falling and breaking her right arm when she was hit in the face by a soccer ball in London's Hyde Park.

Sir Winston's 80 - year - old widow was taking her usual Sunday walk on a charge of criminal negligence arising out of the death by starvation of Gary Craig, 2, one of their eight children. The boy weighed less than 13 pounds when he died last Dec. 15.

Mr. Justice A. H. Lieff of the Ontario High Court said after the verdict:

"I wish I had the heart and mind to sentence these people today but I have not. I feel I shall require a few days to consider. I could be less than fair if I were to pass sentence now."

Evidence during the trial was that Gary lived on a diet consisting almost entirely of milk for almost a year before he died.

Soldier Flees Ont. Hospital At London

A province-wide alert was issued by police for William Charles Clark, formerly of London's Wolsley Barracks, who escaped by climbing out a window of the hospital.

Clark was charged with attempting to kill a man and a girl were attacked Aug. 25 with a butcher knife and a straight razor at their home in Masonville, about 30 miles northwest of Guelph.

He was appearing in court in Guelph charged with the attacks. Clark was returned to the Ontario Hospital for a two-month examination.

Parents Found Guilty in Child's Death

OTTAWA (CP)—An all-male jury returned a verdict of "guilty with a strong plea for leniency" Saturday in the criminal negligence trial of James and Muriel Craig.

The 30-year-old civil servant and his wife, 40, are to be sentenced next Friday in the coroner's court of their son's death.

The short-lived bid for power, with Communist backing, threw Indonesia into the most violent political upheaval since its independence in 1949.

It brought into the open the deep hatred between the army leadership and the Indonesian Communist party (PKI), the third largest in the world with a claim of 3,000,000 members. It has left Indonesia under the threat of civil war and seriously shaken the one-man rule Sukarno—"president for life"—has wielded over a politically unstable and economically ailing nation.

What is the story behind the coup attempt by Lt.-Col. Untung? Months may pass before the true story is known. But here, piecing together bits of information presently available, is the story:

FEARED ARMY

Sukarno feared the army as the greatest potential threat to his dictatorial sway over Indonesia. Deterioration economic conditions produced increased criticism. The ailing, 64-year-old president felt the army might capitalize on these unsettled conditions to attempt a takeover.

The president knew leading generals were disturbed over the Communist-Sukarno wife-building up with Communist China, which in turn supported the PKI led by D. N. Aidit.

While Sukarno did not trust the army leadership, he apparently also was angered by criticism directed against him by Army Chief Nasution, centred mainly on Java.

Untung, who many believe was operating with the knowledge of the Communists, established contact with Sukarno around midnight Sept. 29 and launched the coup. He told the president a group of generals were preparing a coup.

Untung cited the growing number of troops appearing in Jakarta. Military units had been moving in for Armed Forces Day, four days hence. But Untung said it was a ruse—a tactic to cover a move against Sukarno.

APPROVED MOVE

Sukarno, already in a disturbed state, apparently was convinced and approved a counteraction. He proceeded to Halim Perdanaku-Sumah, an airbase here. This is the head-quarters of Air Vice-Marshal Omar Dhani, first military leader to publicly support the coup—but later to disown Untung's group after it failed.

Untung had organized five battalions in the Jakarta area for the strike. The precise whereabouts of these generals marked for arrest were well known.

The bloody work began. Untung's followers went in with some blasting against the generals' guards whenever there was a resistance.

Nasution's men were allowed to dress. Others were seized partly clothed.

The Halim committee of Communist youth, men and women, awaited them. The six generals were shot and a lucky lieutenant aide were beaten, tortured and mutilated. The bodies were tossed into the hole.

MISSED KEY MAN

The assassination squad missed the key man they were after—the armed forces chief of staff and defence minister, Abdul Haris Nasution. He is believed to have been warned and when his house was attacked, he jumped over a back wall, injuring his legs. His five-year-old daughter was shot and died days later.

Nasution made his way to the home of Maj. - Gen. Suharto, commander of the army strategic command, who was on the wanted list of the rebels.

The two generals went to the strategic command headquarters to organize counteraction against Untung.

Jakarta residents awakened Oct. 1 to a day of confusion. An early morning broadcast said Untung had taken over to prevent a coup by army generals; that generals were plotting against Sukarno with the support of the American Central Intelligence Agency.

At 1 p.m. the radio announced a 45 - member revolutionary council had been established to rule through a five - member presidium. Sukarno's name was not mentioned.

SEIZED RADIO

The 7 p.m. newscast did not come on. A special regiment of commando troops, under direct control of army headquarters, was seizing the radio without a fight.

Shortly after 8 p.m. Suharto came on the air to announce that the coup had been crushed. The rebellious rebels fled Jakarta, with little will to fight.

The Jakarta military command established a state of martial law on Suharto's orders and a widescale crackdown on the Communists started.

Civilians said that later they saw truckloads of corpses and captured communists being hauled away from the vicinity of Halim.

Execution continued as to the whereabouts of Sukarno, but on Oct. 2, he made it known he was at Bogor, his palatial mountain residence 40 miles from Jakarta. His brief radio broadcast, with a tired, dull delivery, confused the situation more. He did not denounce the coup leaders or associate the Communists with it.

He said he was appointing Suharto to restore order.

TURNED AGAINST REDS

The death of the six generals was officially announced Oct. 4, and the army's crackdown on Communists went into full gear. Political parties began rallying to the army's support and demanding that the PKI be banned.

Sukarno called the generals heroes and promoted all of them posthumously by one rank. But he also let it be known that if he had learned later that any had participated in a plot against him, the promotion would be cancelled. This left a bitter taste for many Indonesians.

The best evidence available in a confusing coup—whatever fiction whitewashing is done—is that Sukarno approved of a counterattack. The regiment that told the generals were planning a coup. There is a question whether he knew how far the Communist-backed rebels were planning to go.

The consensus is that Sukarno was in at the start of the Untung movement and was not happy with his approval but not for the purposes which Untung and the Communists were planning—a complete takeover of Indonesia. Sukarno wanted to stop the army and still remain in the driver's seat.

Untung now is a prisoner of the army and there is little chance to tell his story publicly.

Meanwhile, his 20-hour effort will reverberate through the country. The real winner still is to be decided.

President Sukarno's Govt. Badly Shaken in Recent Coup by PKI

Mystery still surrounds much of what has been going on in Indonesia, but it is evident that President Sukarno's government has been badly shaken. Here, for the first time, is an uncensored reconstruction of how the recent revolt developed, and what has followed. The writer, chief of AP's Southeast Asian services, has followed Indonesian developments closely for the last nine years.

By DON HUTH

JAKARTA (AP)—He was an unknown lieutenant-colonel commanding a battalion of President Sukarno's personal guard.

The coup he lunched lasted less than 20 hours. It was time enough to massacre six Indonesian generals, known nonCommunists and to gain temporary control of the capital and announce a revolutionary council as the government.

The short-lived bid for power, with Communist backing, threw Indonesia into the most violent political upheaval since its independence in 1949.

It brought into the open the deep hatred between the army leadership and the Indonesian Communist party (PKI), the third largest in the world with a claim of 3,000,000 members. Socred Claims Thompson, Marcoux Had Agreement to Keep Diefenbaker in Power

ST. CESAIRE, Que. (CP)—Gilbert Rondeau, who was one of six Social Credit MPs involved in a 1963 statement of qualified support for Liberal government, said Saturday the sworn statement was made the same day Dr. Guy Marcoux and Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson concluded a "secret agreement."

By virtue of this agreement, said Mr. Rondeau, "Thompson and" Marcoux would be appointed ministers in a coalition Diefenbaker cabinet."

He said the agreement between Dr. Marcoux and Mr. Thompson on the one side and the Tories on the other was apparently designed to give the Conservatives the support they needed, after the 1963 election, to stay in power.

No new government was formed under a Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker, and the Liberals took power as a minority government.

Mr. Rondeau, who was the Creditiste member for Shefford in the last House, said a pamphlet published by Dr. Marcoux Wednesday about the circumstances leading up to the support statement in the six "was just a big balloon."

Mr. Rondeau supported statements made Friday at a press conference given by five of the six, together with Creditiste MP Gilles Gregoire, in Quebec City.

PREPARED STATEMENT

During the conference, Gerard Perron of Bourget, another of the six, said the statement was prepared by Mr. Rondeau, with whom he had conceived the idea.

In his pamphlet, Dr. Marcoux, a Social Credit member in the last Parliament and an independent candidate in the Nov. 8 election, said the statement was prepared by rluber Ducharme, described as a lawyer for industrialist John Duffy.

Mr. Rondeau, in a telephone interview from his home in this community 25 miles east of Montreal, said Dr. Marcoux published his pamphlet "because he missed the boat as a possible government minister and wanted to take Mr. Caouette's place as leader of Social Credit in Quebec."

He said the 1963 statement, made after the inconclusive election of that year, "was not made secretly but openly."

"At no time was there any question of money," said Mr. Rondeau.

HAD NO OFFERS

He said the six members "acted freely, without pressure and no one offered us money."

He added that they solicited money from no one and "no one among us received any."

As for the role of Marcel Dadsaneer, Mr. Rondeau said Alexandre Bertrand, then Quebec vice - president of the Social Credit party and a witness to the statement, saw fit to have the statement sworn to before Dadsaneer, a commissioner of the Quebec Superior Court.

Mr. Rondeau said Dadsaneer happened to have his office in the building where Social Credit also maintained an office.

Dadsaneer now is before the courts on charges of fraud and arson and conspiracy to commit fraud and arson.

Mr. Rondeau said the sending of the statement to Conservative-General Vanier served to "dedicate a secret agreement between Dr. Guy Marcoux and Robert Thompson made without the knowledge of Mr. Caouette and the other Creditistes."

Mr. Rondeau went on:

"In fact this conspiracy (committee of which Dr. Marcoux was to be one of the beneficiaries should have come to fruition the same day we decided that it was just and reasonable that we should go to the majority group in Parliament."

EDMONTON (CP) — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson says a statement that he and Dr. Guy Marcoux concluded a "secret agreement" to join a coalition Diefenbaker cabinet in 1963 is a "disgusting" untruth.

"There is no truth whatsoever in it," Mr. Thompson said in a telephone interview from his Red Deer home Saturday. "It's disgusting."

Mr. Thompson said Saturday: "The very day that Mr. Rondeau was negotiating with the Liberals we (the Social Credit party of which Mr. Rondeau then was a member) held a caucus meeting at which we agreed there would be no coalition and we'd let Pearson and Diefenbaker struggle out of their positions."

"Mr. Rondeau in making such a statement (about a Marcoux - Thompson - Diefenbaker coalition move) is merely trying to cover up the very fact that he was one of the original two in negotiations with the Liberals to support Liberal government."

GOES FAR TO WORK

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—When he retired, Ralph Tryser followed his doctor's advice to get plenty of fresh air. He took a part-time summer job as a fire spotter with the department of lands and forests—365 feet in the air. "Anyone who isn't a real nature lover would change his mind after a spell up there," he says.

Wagner Praised By Caouette For Big Cleanup

QUEBEC (CP) — Creditiste Leader Real Caouette publicly commended Justice Minister Claude Wagner of Quebec Sunday night "for the big cleanup he is doing in Quebec.

"I congratulate him for this cleanup because security no longer exists and you never know when you'll be attacked on the street corner by thugs who are connected in high places," Mr. Caouette told a rally of some 450 persons in suburban Levis.

"Where are we going when bandits can walk right into the offices of minister in Ottawa?"

"I say the Liberal party is financed by the underworld in Canada and the underworld in turn controls the Liberal party."

Mr. Caouette said "Lucien Rivard collected funds for the Liberals in the Montreal area and Dardanyan has already said he was a collector in the Quebec area."

He apparently was referring to Moise Dardanyan, a 43-year-old Quebec businessman awaiting trial on fraud and arson charges.

Sweethearts Escape From Cuba To Wed at Religious Ceremony

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Two sweethearts who said they wanted to get married in a religious ceremony — "something we couldn't do in Cuba"—and a barefoot TV actress were among 20 Cuban refugees who arrived here today.

Juan Crucet, a 61-year-old Havana mechanic, said he and his bride-to-be, 35-year-old Rosalia Suarez, wanted to be married by the Roman Catholic priest who married his sister three years ago in Union City, N.J.

Caridad Oliveira, a 24-year-old television actress, said she arrived barefoot because her baggage and shoes were lost in a Cuban customs office.

The latest batch of refugees arrived aboard the 24-foot cabin cruiser Nimo. It was operated by four Cuban exiles who live in Key West.

One refugee, taxidriver Antonio Fernandez, 38, of Havana, said rumors were circulating in Cuba that Premier Fidel Castro wanted dollars and medicine from the United States in exchange for political prisoners.

Fernandez and other refugees said Cubans were lining up for several blocks in front of the interior ministry offices in Havana in an effort to get permission to leave. The refugee movement began two weeks ago.

The shuttle from Camarioca, Cuba, to Key West has increased the U.S. Cuban colony by about 470 but an expected stream of boats appeared delayed.

Two boats made it Sunday, bringing a total of 44 refugees from Fidel Castro's island.

There was some feeling that delay in stepped up crossings, for which the coast guard prepared itself during the weekend, could mean that an agreement with Cuba over a systematic exodus plan sought by the United States might be near.

Meanwhile, the government-controlled Cuban press apparently has begun a campaign to discourage would - be refugees from leaving.

The official Communist party newspaper Granma devoted half its front page Sunday to a letter written by a Cuban mother to the U.S. defence department. She asked Secretary Robert McNamara for the death of her son, who she said was a Cuban exile killed in action in Viet Nam as an American soldier.

The publicity mills that are grinding out gobs of copy on the upcoming Ernie Terrell - George Chuvalo brawl slated for Maple Leaf Gardens November 1st aren't missing any angle.

According to the latest release the "world champion" Terrell has had some of the Cassius Clay braggadocio rub off on him.

Terrell, it says, is a quiet, confident giant who says he's the greatest fist fighter in the world and he'll fight all the leading heavyweight contenders to prove it.

"I'll fight any of 'em," he is reported as saying, "because that is the only way I can establish my reputation as the champion of champions."

"I'm going to beat Chuvalo and he isn't going to be able to hit me," says Terrell following the Clay script. "I thought I could of took both Patterson and Chuvalo the night they fought in New York. I was a good club fight but neither one of them was smart. They was just throwing punches."

Chuvalo, the home-town boy, who the ballyhoo boys predict will "sell out" the home because it is the first time a Canadian has a chance to win, is garbed in a more modest gown.

"It will be a different type of fight than the one I had with Floyd Patterson," he is quoted as saying, "but it will be good and tough. I plan an aggressive type of fight."

But it is admitted that Chuvalo with 23 victories, including 27 knockouts, to his credit in 44 professional fights, has to be no worse than even money against the "reigning champion" when the bell rings.

It says here the 28-year-old power-hitter was surprised when Patterson backed up in their twelve-round battle last February in New York and was awarded the decision. He feels he would have kayoed the former champion if he had fought any other way.

Tush, tush, men, cool off your typewriters.

There was no question as to what fighter won that bout. The only "surprise" Chuvalo and his entourage had came when Patterson failed to fall when hit by the vaunted Chuvalo "powerhouse" right.

Chuvalo's stock rocketed when he knocked out Doug Jones, a victory that opened the door to bigger and better bouts. He created a favorable impression among the bigwigs with his fight with Patterson but since then he has just been weeding the garden.

He stopped Bill Nielsen in eight; Sonny Burns in one; Dave Bailey in three and Orvin Vesprey in two, none of whom is to be found in boxing's blue book.

Terrell, the rock 'n rolling ding-dong daddy from Missouri, hasn't much to back up his reported "I'm the greatest fist fighter in the world." But he's done rather well considering he was a practical unknown a little over three years ago.

His bouts were newspaper fillers until he was brought in as a substitute to fight Cleveland Williams in April, 1962. He was knocked out on that occasion but got even later by scoring an unanimous decision in ten rounds at Philadelphia.

He defeated Zora Folley in 1963, then cleaned four weeds out of the heavyweight garden to set the stage for his "title" match with Eddie Machen. He beat Machen in 15 rounds in Chicago last March.

Despite that, Chuvalo, the Canadian champ, is expected to attract a record gate in Toronto. If you like it close-up it will cost you fifty bucks—and wear your own tuxedo. If you're a rafter pigeon, you can birds-eye view it for a fiver.

Cats Claw Lions; Argos Nip Larks

LIONS' ATTACK — Backfielder Bob Swift (35) takes off with two B.C. Lions teammates for a long gain against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Canadian Football League game at Hamilton Sunday. With Swift are tackle Bob Oetting (61) and guard Steve Cotter (58.) Hamilton won, 25-7. (CP Wirephoto)

It was a great weekend for Monday morning quarterbacks in the Eastern Football Conference.

All season, long, Hamilton coach Ralph Sazio has been hearing from disgruntled Tiger-Cat supporters who wanted him to give Frank Cosentino more work at quarterback. And Toronto supporters have been burning coach Bob Shaw's ears for neglecting Dick Shatto in the Argonauts' offensive backfield.

Shaw picked Dick Shatto Day as the appropriate time to give way to the clamor and the 12-year veteran rewarded his coach Saturday by spearheading the last-place Argos to a 34-21 victory over Montreal Alouettes.

The next day, Sazio brought Cosentino off the bench to replace Joe Zuger and the home-brew quarterback engineered three long touchdown plays as the Tiger-Cats whipped British Columbia Lions 25-7 in a Canadian Football League interlocking game and moved within one victory of their 13th EFC title since 1950.

Cosentino's heroics left Hamilton with an 8-4 won-lost record, four points ahead of Ottawa Rough Riders, while the Lions remained tied with Saskatchewan Roughriders for the third and final playoff spot in the Western Conference. Saskatchewan lost 17-9 to Winnipeg Blue Bombers Sunday.

LIONS MEET RIDERS

However, the Lions have a chance to break the tie Tuesday night in Ottawa when they tangle with the Rough Riders. The game will be televised on the CTV network and starts at 8 p.m. EDT.

Cosentino passed 48 yards to Tommy Grant for a second-quarter touchdown, hit end Hal Patterson with a 50-yard pass for another touchdown in the fourth quarter and figured in a 44-yard lateral which set up a last-quarter touchdown gallop by Willie Bethea.

Don Sutherin converted all three and kicked a 48-yard field goal and a single in round one for the scoring.

Joe Kapp passed 24 yards to Peter Kemp in the first quarter and Kemp converted for the Lions, who have been able to down the Ticats only once, in last year's Grey Cup game in Toronto.

Patterson, who came out of retirement little more than a week ago, caught his first two passes for 69 yards.

DROP PASSES

A porous front wall stifled the Lions' offence and Kapp's receivers dropped the ball six times when they were in the clear.

Hamilton picked up 14 first downs on 98 yards rushing and 226 passing, completing 12 of 21 aerials with two intercepted. The winners lost the ball twice on fumbles and were penalized four times for 13 yards. The Lions had 15 first downs, rushed for 66 yards, completed 13 of 31 passes for 172 yards with one picked off and were penalized five times for 44 yards.

Shatto, playing his last home game after 12 seasons with the Argos, scored a go-ahead touchdown on a one-yard hurdle over the Montreal line, carried 14 times for 110 yards and caught two passes for 21 yards.

Since joining the Argos in 1954 Shatto has made the EF

Portland Up To Old Tricks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Western Hockey League opened a new season during the weekend, but defending champion Portland Buckaroos used the same old tricks — they quickly took over first place.

Portland extended a two-test-son mastery to 10 straight games as they bounced Seattle Totems'is a home-and-home series. The Buckaroos won their home opener 6-3 Saturday after winning 2-1 in Seattle Friday.

Victoria Maple Leafs earned a share of the lead, but took three games to get four points. Victoria had a two-game winning streak snapped in a 3-1 loss at Seattle Sunday. The Leafs swept two games from Vancouver Canucks, winning 7-2 at Victoria Saturday and 4-2 at Vancouver Friday.

In the only other action, San Francisco Seals scored seven straight goals in beating visiting Los Angeles Blades 9-5 Friday.

ELBOW AILING

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Veteran right-hander Bob Roberts will undergo surgery this week for removal of a bone chip in his right elbow. Roberts, the winningest right-hander in baseball today with 281 victories and a 5-2 record with Houston Astros in the last six weeks of the 1963 season, will enter hospital Tuesday.

Tied With Lions

Bombers Nip Riders; Esks Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan Roughriders failed to help themselves Sunday so they need help from Ottawa Rough Riders Tuesday night.

The Roughriders took a damaging 17-0 whipping from Winnipeg Blue Bombers before 17,819 fans—largest crowd of the Western Football Conference season at Regina—and were tied with British Columbia Lions for the third and last WFC playoff spot.

Saskatchewan coach Eagle Keys thinks B.C. will lose to Ottawa. "At least I hope so. . . or there is no way (for the Roughriders) to make the playoffs."

Edmonton Eskimos had a slight chance to make the playoffs before they ran into Calgary Stampeders in front of 21,476—fans at Calgary Saturday night. The Stamps, who have clinched a playoff spot, downed the Eskimos 26-10.

COULD CREATE TIE

Mathematically, the Eskimos are not eliminated. A tie between B.C. and Saskatchewan Oct. 24 in Vancouver would leave Edmonton with a chance to create a three-way tie for third place at 14 points. However, the Esks points for-and-against totals are far behind their rivals'.

Winnipeg led 7-0 after the first quarter, 8-0 at the half and 9-0 after three quarters.

The Bombers held Saskatchewan to 115 yards in total offence as Art Perkins and Dave Ramey scored touchdowns.

Fullback George Reed of Saskatchewan netted only 26 yards in six carries and lost his conference rushing lead.

MOVES PAST REED

Lovell Coleman rambled 96 yards on 17 carries to move four yards ahead of Reed.

The Stampeder touchdowns were scored by end Herman Harrison, flanker Bobby Taylor and halfback Ted Woods. Larry Robinson, leading WFC scorer, kicked two field goals and three converts and Jim Furlong hoisted a 46-yard single.

The only Edmonton touchdown came on a two - yard plunge by fullback Jim Fauver. Tommy - Joe Coffey accounted for the rest of the scoring with four field goals and a convert. His four field goals tied a record shared previously by several players.

Calgary led 8-7, 15-13, 22-19 by quarter.

Taylor and Harrison scored on passes from quarterback Eagle Day, who connected on 13 of 20 passes. Edmonton pivot Bill Redell was good on 18 of 25 tosses.

The Stamps totalled 240 yards on offence on 144 yards rushing and 196 passing. The Eskimos gained 241 yards passing and 171 yards rushing.

SHERBROOKE WINS

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP)—The University of Sherbrooke, Que., the defending champion, topped seven other collegiate teams in an annual tennis tournament Saturday. Royal Military College of Kingston was winless.

Hawks Sweep 3; Habs Bounce Back

Blazers Bump Bruins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens at least ended the weekend on the right note.

The Canadiens lost two National Hockey League exhibition games to Chicago Black Hawks Friday and Saturday nights, but rebounded Sunday to snap New York Rangers' eight-game undefeated string by downing them 4-2 in New York.

The victory was the first for Montreal against an NHL opponent in pre-season play. The Habs, who until this fall prepared for the season only against minor league opposition, have lost three times to NHL clubs.

The Hawks made a clean sweep of it on the weekend. After trimming Montreal 4-1 Friday and 2-1 Saturday, they knocked over Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League 5-0 Sunday before 9,000 in Quebec City.

Toronto Maple Leafs took three of a possible four points at the expense of Detroit Red Wings, tying 3-3 with them Saturday in Detroit and defeating them 3-1 Sunday in Toronto.

BRUINS FLOP

Boston Bruins disgraced themselves in front of a home crowd of 8,377 Saturday by bowing 3-1 Sunday to Oshawa City Blazers, their farm team in the Central Pro Hockey League. The Bruins, who have one win and a tie in five games against NHL teams, have played the Blazers five times and have split with them, winning twice, losing twice and playing a tie.

Red Berenson, Dave Balon, Gilles Tremblay and Claude Larose scored for Montreal against the Rangers, who got both their goals from Vic Hadfield. He scored them 40 seconds apart in the third period.

The Hawks got standout goaltending from rookie Dave Dryden on the weekend. Dryden, who played last season for Galt Terriers of the Senior Ontario Hockey Association, got into both games by sharing duties with regulars Glenn Hall.

Ken Wharram, Bill Hay, Ken Hodge, Bobby Hull and Phil Esposito scored for Chicago in Sunday's shutout win. The Hawks got goals from Pierre Pilote and Eric Nesterenko Saturday night. Henri Richard scored the Montreal goal. The Canadiens waited until Dryden retired after playing the first two periods, then peppered Hall with 17 shots in an abortive bid to pull even in the third.

The Hawks lost centre Stan Mikita, last season's scoring leader, midway through Saturday's game with a groin injury when he was boarded by Terry Harper of Montreal. It is not known how long Mikita will be out.

Marcel Pronovost, obtained from Detroit in an off-season trade, paced the Leafs Sunday against his former mates by scoring a goal and an assist. Dave Keon and Bob Pulford added a goal each for Toronto, which now has won four, lost four and tied two. Bruce MacGregor was the only Red Wing to beat goalie Johnny Bower, who played the entire game.

Another player the Leafs picked up in the off-season, Orland Kurtenbach, broke through Toronto from behind with goals against Detroit Saturday night. Kurtenbach, who was obtained in a trade with Boston, scored his second in the third period to clinch the tie.

George Armstrong scored Toronto's other goal while Alex Delvecchio, ex-LeM Billy Harris and Norm Ullman countered for the Wings, who have two victories and two ties in eight pre-season encounters.

The Leafs played without defensemen Bobby Baun and Carl Brewer, who are still having contract differences with manager-coach Punch Imlach. Brewer was scheduled to talk with Imlach today.

Forwards Pulford and Keon and Tim Horton, a defenceman who is being used frequently as a winger, are also unsigned by the Leafs.

Sparks Wins Welter Title

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Lennie Sparks of Halifax, reigning on a streak of seven straight knockout over Peter Schmidt of Toronto Saturday night to win the Canadian welterweight boxing championship.

In other bouts, Canadian bantamweight champion Jackie Burke of Saint John retained his title with a unanimous decision over Jo Jo Jackson of New Glasgow, N.S.; and Alex Martin of Trenton, N.S., scored an 11th round TKO over Dickie Peterson of Saint John for the vacant flyweight championship.

Trenton Wins Quinte Handgun Tournament

Trenton won the Quinte Handgun League tournament and the LaBatt Trophy with an aggregate score of 1244.

Quinte marksmen were second with 1227 and Northern Electric third with 1206.

WILL PRESENT TROPHY

TORONTO (CP) — A trophy honoring the late Pete Petersen of Midland, Ont., will be presented to the winner of the Canadian ski championships, the Canadian Amateur Ski Association announced Sunday. Petersen, whose clinics helped promote ski jumping, was killed in a car accident last year.

Kitchener Rangers are tied for first place in the Junior A series of the Ontario Hockey Association and they've never had it so good.

Since moving to Kitchener from Guelph two seasons ago, the Rangers have been at the tag end of the standings and missed the playoffs both years.

But Sunday they mutilled London Nationals 7-0 for their second victory in three outings. Rangers also have a tie and the five points leave them at the top of the heap with Peterborough Petes.

The Petes stayed deadlocked by tying Oshawa Generals 3-3 Sunday in Peterborough. Saturday, Oshawa handed Montreal Junior Canadiens a 6-1 loss. But the Habs did better Sunday, coming from behind for a 3-3 tie against St. Catharines Black Hawks.

David Hainsworth, a nephew of George Hainsworth, a former goaltender with Toronto Maple Leafs, blocked 27 shots at the Kitchener net for the shutout. John Beechey led the winners with three goals, Jim Krulicki added a pair and Bill Hway and Ken Johnson scored one each.

Danny O'Shea scored twice for the Generals in their tie Sunday with Brian Morens getting the other. Dave McLeish, Danny Grant and Andre Lacroix scored for the Petes.

O'Shea was the big gun Saturday for Oshawa, counting three goals in the win over Montreal. Chris Hayes, Billy Little and George Babcock scored the balance while Ron Liesemer got Montreal's only goal.

Rookies Michael Lapalme and Jim Bannotyne and sophomore Christian Bordeleau scored for Montreal Sunday. Jim Stanfield counted twice for St. Catharines and Paul Terbenche scored the other goal.

Clay Suspension Lifted

HOUSTON (AP)—The World Boxing Association lifted its suspension of Cassius Clay Sunday.

Clay's reinstatement is conditional however, on the posting of bond by both Clay and Floyd Patterson for a match between the winner of their fight Nov. 22 and the winner of the Nov. 1 fight between Ernie Terrell and George Chuvalo of Toronto.

Terrell is the WBA heavyweight champion, and his fight with Chuvalo in Toronto will be a WBA championship fight.

Clay was suspended a year ago for signing for a return bout against Sonny Liston in defiance of a WBA ban.

Tom Johnson Given Release

BOSTON (AP) — Defenceman Tom Johnson, a veteran of 15 National Hockey League seasons, was given his outright release by Boston Bruins Sunday night because of a serious leg injury suffered in a game with Chicago Black Hawks last February.

Bruins' owner Weston Adams said the 37-year-old Johnson will be retained by the Bruins as a scout, coach in player development and public relations representative.

Johnson played 12 years with Montreal Canadiens and two with the Bruins.

Parsons Defeat Crusaders

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

STROKE FIRMLY ON RETURN PUTT

Many golfers who over-shoot the hole on their first putt have a tendency to 'baby' their return fly. This may be psychologically logical, but it certainly costs me many three-putt greens.

Actually, a golfer should have some advantage on the return putt. If he has observed the break of his first putt, he should have a pretty good idea how much break his second putt will take (see illustration).

With this knowledge, he should give the second putt a firm, smooth stroke. There should be no hesitation or jerkiness about it.

I know it takes nerve to putt boldly on that second try, but I also know from experience "firm" beat "over-won fair maiden" on the putting surface.

Belleville Parsons meet Batawa for the Kingston District Soccer League "B" series championship at Zwicks's Island next Saturday, starting 4 p.m.

Parsons won their way to the finals with a 4-1 victory over the Kingston Crusaders Saturday.

Parsons dominated the play for most of the game, but the poor condition of the field did not allow any good soccer.

Both Isaenza and Crowle hit the crossbar early in the first half. Despite sustained attacking it was 40 minutes before Parsons scored, Crowle heading home a corner kick.

Ten minutes had gone in the second half when the Crusaders' goalie stopped a shot from Crowle. Rutherford put the rebound into the net.

Joe Isaenza made it 3-0 with a superb shot from 25 yards out on a free kick.

All-Star team eight times and has carried, passed or caught the ball just under 10 miles. His touchdown Saturday, his second of the season, broke his own CFL career scoring record of 58 touchdowns. The last two passes he caught ran his career total to 562, a CFL record.

This season, however, Shatto has been used sparingly carrying only 42 times and gaining 187 yards for a respectable average of 4.45. He has also caught 18 passes for 215 yards.

TO RETIRE

Shatto will retire after the team's final two games of the EFC schedule, both on the road. He received a flock of gifts Saturday that included a convertible from a car manufacturer, a rocking chair and slippers from R.C. Bloom, a gift certificate from the Ticats, a lounge ensemble for his swimming pool from the Als, curling links, a color TV, a freezer and the game ball.

Proceeds from the game above what season ticket holders paid, will be turned over to the building fund for the hospital for Sick Children in Toronto. Als defeated them in both their games this season.

The other Argonaut touchdown was ten Sparks on a 75-yard pass-and-run play while John Wlusas kicked three field goals, one of 31 yards in the fourth quarter to break a 21-21 tie, and added two converts. Dave Jerel added a single.

The Als got touchdowns from Chuck Ellis on a pass from Knuppen and Larry Tomlinson with Knuppen converting two of them and Charlie Baillie adding the other on a wide field goal attempt from 29 yards out.

Jerel had a big statistical edge. They gained 504 yards—331 passing and 173 rushing—against 338 for the Argos with 240 rushing and 124 passing. Montreal quarterback Bernie Faloney completed 19 of 28 passes while Toronto's Pete Liske managed five of 14. The Als had 20 first downs to the Argos' 20, and Montreal lost possession on both its fumbles while Toronto lost two of four.

Ottawa Teams Set Hot Pace

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two Ottawa teams are setting a hot pace in the Ontario Intercollegiate Football Conference.

They each won their weekend games to tie for first place, each with four wins and no defeats.

Ottawa University Gee Gees drubbed Royal Military College of Kingston 27-3, while Carleton University Ravens of Ottawa defeated McMaster University Marauders 24-21 at Hamilton.

In other weekend conference games, Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks clipped University of Guelph Redmen 20-14 and Waterloo Warriors toppled Montreal's Loyola College Warriors 20-7.

The big star of the weekend was quarterback Bob Amer, who completed 24 of 40 aerials for 361 yards to carry Carleton to their slim win over the Marauders.

Chicago Bears' Rookie Scores 4 TD's

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookie halfback Gale Sayers scored four touchdowns, one on a 96-yard kickoff runback Sunday as Chicago Bears won their National Football League game over Minnesota Vikings 45-37.

The University of Kansas star twice put the Bears ahead in the second half, catching touchdown passes of 18 and 25 yards from Rudy Bukich.

He then put them ahead to stay with about two minutes left, smarting Fred Cox kicked on the run at the four-yard line, shooting through the onrushing Minnesota tacklers and scampering the rest of the way untouched!

Sayers carried 13 times for 64 yards, caught four passes for 63 yards, completed the lone pass he threw for seven yards, set up a field goal, and ran back four kickoffs for 170 yards.

In other NFL games, Green Bay Packers came from behind for a 31-24 victory over Detroit Lions, Cleveland Browns downed Dallas Cowboys 23-17, St. Louis Cardinals hocked off Pittsburgh Steelers 30-7, Baltimore Colts walloped Washington Redskins 38-7, New York Giants outlasted Philadelphia Eagles 33-27 and San Francisco 49ers crushed Los Angeles Rams 45-21.

SAVE PERFECT RECORD

Green Bay fell behind 21-3 at halftime before rallying for the victory that left them the only unbeaten team in the league. Bart Starr fired three touchdown passes in the third quarter, the third a 77-yarder to Carroll Dale, and ran for another score in the fourth.

Three field goals by Lou Groza, one a 46-yard boot, kept Cleveland in front of Dallas and tied for the Eastern Conference lead with St. Louis. Jim Brown raced 10 yards for the Browns' first touchdown and Frank Ryan tossed 29 yards to Walt Roberts for the second.

A 71-yard scoring pass play from Charley Johnson to Bobby Joe Conrad early in the fourth quarter broke up St. Louis' close game with winless Pittsburgh.

Baltimore remained close to Green Bay in the Western Conference as Johnny Unitas passed for two touchdowns. The Colts' defence also helped send winless Washington to its fifth defeat, Al Haymond scoring on a pass interception and Billy Ray Smith intercepting to set up another touchdown.

Earl Morrall tossed for four touchdowns, giving New York a 35-7 lead before Philadelphia rallied for three touchdowns. All on passes by King Hill, in the second half. One of Hill rail's scoring tosses was an 89-yarder to Homer Jones.

John David Crow and Ken Willard each scored twice as San Francisco built a 28-7 lead in the first half. Los Angeles never was in the game after that.

Reds Win Pair In Overtime

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds have served notice on the rest of the American Hockey League that they are planning to beat them this season had better do it in the regulation 60 minutes. They're murder in overtime.

The Reds established the pattern in their season-opener Friday night by knocking off Rochester Americans, the defending champions, 3-2 in three minutes of extra time. It took them a minute longer against Hershey Bears Sunday before they won by the same score.

The Americans also went into overtime for the second time in a row before slapping down Springfield Indians 5-4 Saturday night. Hershey downed Pittsburgh Hornets 5-3 in another Saturday game while Buffalo Bisons 6-3 Sunday.

Veterans Willie Marshall was the Providence hero on Sunday, scoring on a breakaway while Bill Sutherby was shorthanded. Pete Georgan and Wayne Hicks also scored for the winners while Gary Dornhoefer and Ralph Keller replied for the Bears.

Runner Smashes Kidd Mark

TORONTO (CP)—A Hamilton relay team established a meet record in a 15-mile relay Saturday and a Toronto runner smashed a 30-mile meet record formerly set by middle-distance runner Bruce Kidd.

Dave Knox, Russ Evans, Gord Dickson, Ron Wallingford and Hyike Vanderwal won the relay event in one hour, 42 minutes and 50 seconds, to lower the mark by almost two minutes.

A Toronto team of Brian Richards, Peter Buniak, Jim Irons, Andy Boychuk and Dave Ellis finished second. Their time of 1:23.37 was also better than the previous mark.

Ellis, running the anchor leg, covered the 30-mile distance to achieve the world's first jump mark this year, the New China news agency reported.

CLAIMS JUMP MARK

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China's high jump champion, Ni Chih-chin, cleared seven feet, four inches Sunday to achieve the world's first jump mark this year, the New China news agency reported.

The Tracks

The victory was worth $10,210 for Langcrest, bringing his career earnings to $109,600. He will be retired to stud at the Nashville Stud Farm, 10 miles north of Toronto.

Langcrest dogged the steps of E. Day during the early going, before sweeping into the lead at the final turn and edging Victorian Era at the wire to return $15.

NEW YORK (CP) — Buckpasser came from off the pace in the home stretch Saturday and easily won the 94th running of the $223,875 Champagne Stakes for two - year - olds at Aqueduct.

The strapping son of Tom Fool-Busanda reached the end of the mile four lengths in front of Our Michael. Advocator trailed by another one-half length in third place.

In winning $163,875 for his owner and breeder, Ogden Phipps, Buckpasser boosted his bank account to $568,096, a money-winning record for two-year-olds. Sadair set the mark of $498,217 last year.

In Cherry Hill, N.J., the consistent Steeple Jill picked up her 26th suppositive cheque when she won the Garden State Land Handicap at Garden State Park by two lengths over Cordially.

Tosmah set all the pace but tired in the stretch, although taking a third money from Straight Deal.

The 1¼ miles was accomplished in 1:49 4-5. The winner's share was $36,855.

In Lexington, Ky., Claiborne Farm's Moccasin, her stock for two-year-old filly honors soaring, charged to a 15-length victory in the $37,735 Alcibiades Stakes at Keeneland.

The victory was worth $23,200 to Moccasin and ran her bankroll to $151,914.

In Chicago, Marion H. Van Berg's Hinsdale Road caught the front-stepping Kiliqua in the early stretch run and went on to win the $28,200 Misbreed Handicap by three lengths at Hawthorne Saturday.

Ramblin Road, scoring his fifth victory of the year, was timed in 1:16 2-5 and earned $10,250.

In Laurel, Md., Raymond Firmels Chestnut lost the lead at the seventh-yard pole, then came again to win by a head from Verna Lea Farms' Martin Bay in the $25,000-added Laurel Turf Cup.

Oaks Whip Galt 10-4

OAKVILLE (CP) — Oakville Oaks won their second straight Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game Sunday, defeating Galt Hornets 10-4.

The Oaks opened the season Friday night with another 10-4 win over Woodstock Athletics. Oakville now is in first place with four points.

Doug Hillman fired three goals, two in the final period, to lead the Oakville attack, while Moe Galand and Charlie Doucette both scored twice. Defenceman Brian Pryce, Jack Price and Bob Bishop scored the others.

Sheffield Holds Lead

Spurs Crush Manchester 5-1

LONDON (Reuters)—In England's big soccer match Saturday Tottenham Hotspur boosted its First Division title hopes with a shattering 5-1 home win over Manchester United before a nearly 60,000 spectators.

United lost its star forward Denis Law at the end of the first half—John Fitzpatrick substituted — but was struggling long before his departure, in fact from the moment Scottish international Alan Gilzean put Tottenham in front in the 20th minute.

It was learned later Law was worried by a leg injury.

Neil Johnson, Spurs teen-aged winger, scored his first goal in league football when he hammered home the second goal after 38 minutes. Then Tottenham scored two goals in two minutes by Jimmy Graves and Eddie Clayton early in the second half. Jimmy Robertson scored Spurs fifth and Bobby Charlton got a consolation goal for United.

HARD LOSS FOR BUSBY

It was a heartbreaking result for Matt Busby, who completed 29 years as United's manager Saturday. He was hoping to celebrate by breaking the Spurs record at home—they have not been beaten there in 22 matches.

Sheffield United kept its place at the top of the table by beating Coventry 3-2. Sheffield has 19 points, followed by Leeds, 17, and Arsenal, West Bromwich, Tottenham, Burnley and Tottenham—all with 16.

Sheffield appeared to be cruising to an easy win over Stoke City when it led 3-0 after 22 minutes. But Stoke fought back gallantly and was slightly unlucky in the end to drop both points. The deciding goal came one minute before the final whistle.

LEEDS ROCKED EARLY

Manchester, the bottom club, shook Leeds with an opening goal after 14 minutes but Leeds equalized almost immediately afterwards, Peter Lorimer scoring two goals in the first 6 min.

Arsenal, with hopes of going to the top by winning at Blackpool, were disillusioned when Blackpool recovered from being a goal down after 10 minutes to win 3-1 on goals scored by Arsenal win centre forward Day Charnley netting three.

The visit of West Bromwich attracted 45,000 fans, the largest crowd of the season, at Villa Park, to see the great Midlands rivals draw 1-1 in a scoreless game.

Liverpool, before 48,000, kept well in the championship race with a 3-0 home win over Newcastle United.

One of the few crowd incidents of the day occurred at Fulham where police broke up a fight behind the Fulham goal and escorted an Everton supporter from the ground. Ten minutes from the end Everton's Colin Harvey was sent off the field. Fulham won 3-2.

GOALS SPOT

Millwall retained leadership of the Third Division with a 1-0 home win against Swindon on a goal by centre forward Alan Brown.

In the Fourth, Torquay regained leadership by winning 5-0 at Halifax, Chester slammed Newport County 6-1, scoring five of its goals in the first half to maintain their challenge.

In Scotland, Rangers and Celtic both had to fight for league points. Two by Alec Willoughby gave Rangers a 2-1 win over Hibernian and a late goal by Bobby Lennox helped Celtic beat Falkirk 4-3.

Dundee beat Hamilton 7-0, Partick Thistle still is without a win this season, drawing 3-3 with Hearts. Morton scored three goals in four minutes to beat Stirling Albion 4-2.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Kwik Kat, owned by Ed Arthur and Cyril Sired of Otterville, Ont., came from fourth position at the head of the stretch to win the $3,660 Upper Canada Stakes at Garden City Raceway Saturday.

Overlooked in the betting at 5-1, the sturdy four-year-old pacer, who was purchased for $1,600 as a yearling, nipped Stoney Burke to finish in 2:04 3-5 over the mile track.

The victory was the third stakes win of the season for Kwik Kat and boosted his career earnings to $28,943. He returned $18.90 and combined with Sonny Creed for a $106.60 quinella.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Barbara Johnston, owned by Gerald and Helen Johnston of Dresden, Ont., came within fourfifths of a second of the track record when she captured the featured $1,500 Invitational Pace at Western Fair Raceway Saturday night.

The five-year-old mare, with Gerald Johnston driving, covered the mile in 2:04 4-5, four lengths ahead of Satarlite, to return $4.40.

HULL, Que. (CP) — Nevelle Jamie, a brown gelding owned by Lionel Houle of Deschenes, Que., Sunday won the feature $500 trot at Connaught Park Raceway.

Claude Miville got the seven-year-old away in the closing stages, hitting the finish of the mile in 2:09 to pay backers $7.50, $5.30 and $3.70.

Bills' 'Wedding' Deal Pays

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

When George Saimes of Buffalo Bills said "I do" at the wedding he got a job instead of a wife.

The all-star defensive back turned in the key play Sunday by speeding 18 yards with a fumble for the clinching touchdown in Buffalo's 23-7 American Football League victory over Kansas City Chiefs.

Saimes, an all-American at Michigan State in 1962, originally was drafted by the Chiefs. But Buffalo owner Ralph Wilson got chatting with Saimes when he attended the wedding of Dave Behrman, a college team-mate and the Bills' No. 1 draft choice.

One thing led to another. Wilson asked Saimes if he'd like to play for Buffalo and Saimes was saying, "I do."

A tight-jumpsuit was arranged and Saimes moved over to Buffalo.

JARS BALL LOOSE

A victim of the safety blitz, he tried the manoeuvre against the Chiefs midway in the fourth quarter with Buffalo holding a precarious 10-7 lead, jarred quarterback Pete Beathard loose from the ball and raced for the touchdown that put it out of reach.

Defenders also played key roles in the other two games. San Diego Chargers threw back repeated threats by Boston Patriots in the second half while holding on for a 13-13 tie and defensive back John Griffin scored. Denver Broncos' final two touchdowns in a 28-17 victory over Houston Oilers.

In a Saturday night game, New York Jets and Oakland Raiders played to a 34-34 tie.

Mustangs Whip Redmen

Gaels, Blues Set Score Mark

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

University of Toronto Blues defeated Queen's University Golden Gaels 1-0 Saturday in the lowest - scoring football game in the history of the Ontario - Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association and its various predecessors.

It was the first win for Toronto over Queens in six years and gave the Blues second place.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs maintained their undefeated record with a 28-13 win over McGill Redmen in Montreal. The loss was McGill's third in as many outings.

Until Saturday, the lowest score in the intercollegiate league since it started in 1898 was a 3-0 decision Queen's registered over U. of T. in a 1927 game played in a foot of water at Richardson Stadium in Kingston.

The Blues beat the Gaels before 18,370 in Toronto. The loss left the Gaels third with a 1-2 won - lost record and little chance of catching the leading Mustangs.

FUMBLES HURT

Queen's had more scoring chances than Toronto, but fumbles, broken plays and missed blocks wiped out all of them.

The Blues' offence also was guilty of sloppy play, fumbling three times and losing once. Queen's lost its only fumble.

Queen's blew a great chance to pull out the win late in the fourth quarter by choosing to go for a touchdown instead of a field goal from the Toronto 10 - yard - line. The Gaels had third down and needed three yards but failed to make it. Toronto lost a touchdown late in the fourth quarter when Bryce Taylor's pass from the Queen's four was intercepted in the end zone by Guy Potvin of the Gaels.

$10,000 Raise For Twins' Mele

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Sam Mele, who marshalled Minnesota Twins from a disappointing tie for sixth place in 1964 to the American League baseball championship this year, was rewarded Saturday with a two-year contract calling for a $10,000 annual raise.

Mele's new contract calls for a salary of $47,000 for each of the next two years.

CLEAN

EXTRAORDINARILY! OIL HEAT

Fuel oil is a champagne-coloured liquid.

Surprised it isn't thick and black? Then here's another eye-opener—oil heat cannot cause household "dirt" or window "film".

Dark streaks above vents and radiators occur with all types of modern heating systems—oil, gas, and electricity—but are not caused by the heating fuel. They occur because this is where air circulates most, and air carries dust, dirt and grime, brought indoors on shoes, through open windows etc. As to "film" on windows and mirrors, analysis has proved that 90% comes from cooking fumes, cigar or cigarette smoke. Oil heat is clean heat, and it also saves you money.

Less cost—continuously! Depending on where you live, you can save $50 or more every year on fuel bills by choosing oil instead of gas—and, save much, much more by choosing oil instead of electricity.

Safe—unquestionably! Oil is non-explosive. You could safely extinguish a lighted match in it. Of course, all fuels are safe—if handled and consumed with proper care. Oil, however, is safe under all conditions.

The oil supplier of your choice is on the job 24-hours a day to give you personalized, no-cost, dependable service.

He Golfs on Winter Ice And Fishes in Summer

By STUART LAKE

HOLMAN ISLAND, N.W.T. (CP)—One of the strangest golf courses in Canada has to be the 18-hole layout Bill Joss stakes out each winter on the ice in this Arctic settlement off Amundsen Gulf.

The 54-year-old Hudson's Bay Company store manager admits with a grin that the older Eskimos here "think I'm a little crazy." But the small fry can be depended upon to form a gallery when Joss tees off for a round.

A junior champion in his native Scotland, Joss took his golf clubs along when he was first posted to Northern Canada in 1928. At such Arctic outposts as Read Island, Baffinurt Islet and Coppermine, he's always managed to play at least a few games each year.

A big problem is finding opponents. Both pilots and RCMP constables have been cajoled into playing rounds after they get over the initial shock of being invited onto the ice for a game.

An Anglican missionary-stationed here has been Joss's regular partner for the last few years. He was posted elsewhere this summer and Joss is hoping his replacement also is a golfer.

He says the cold weather is no deterrent to a game. He's played in 35 degrees below zero. But winds blowing off the Arctic Ocean are a problem. When they get up, the games are called off.

Ground rules include bare hands when hitting the ball and conceding a putt when the ball is within a club length of the pin.

To keep from losing his putting skill, Joss has cut a hole in the living room of his home. Here he spends hours in summers and winters practising putts.

With warmer weather and the ice breaking, Joss puts away his clubs for another season.

"Winter golf has one big advantage," observed Joss. "It leaves the summer open for fishing."

AT THE PARK — Everyone's Sweetheart — That's glittering Audrey Hepburn, lit up by George Peppard as she appears in "Breakfast at Tiffany's," which is teamed with the hilarious British comedy "Saturday, Sunday, Monday" in a Paramount special double-bill as the Park Theatre for three days only. One complete show starts at 7.30. "Breakfast at Tiffany's" at 7.35, "Saturday" at 8.45 p.m.

Find Secret Of Mystery Mansion

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)—A mystery house has given up its secrets under the hammer blows of demolition workers.

"We had to hack our way through a tangle of vines and trees," said foreman Thomas Cullen. "When we did get inside the place we were absolutely amazed at what we found."

In the dining room the table was laid for tea. In the middle of the table were a mouldy cake and cream and sugar bowls.

In a bedroom the workers found a child's school book. Inside was a scribbled name and date—Mary Asquith Brewerton, 1898.

This had been the home of Mary Brewerton.

"It was just as if whoever left had done so at a moment's notice," explained the foreman. That was exactly what happened.

"In the 1930s Miss Brewerton fell in love with a man of lowly birth man. They were going to get married, but he and his brother went back to Ireland to do some fighting. They were mixed up in the Sinn Fein.

"These were troubled times in Ireland. The young man that Miss Brewerton loved never returned. He and his brother were killed in the fighting.

"The day Miss Brewerton learned of their deaths she closed up the house—just as it was—locked outside and never returned."

She continued to live nearby, in another house she owned. She died last year.

Moscow Resident Protests To Alexander Graham Bell

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—One Moscow resident has found an outlet for the frustrations he has suffered because of his telephone.

Instead of pitching it out the window when his battery, he simply sits down and writes a polite letter to Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the instrument.

So far, however, the correspondence has gone world (Bell died in 1922) has been a one-way affair. It has failed to get a response from Moscow telephone authorities.

"The Moscow telephone department is still silent," he lamented in the second of two letters published by a Moscow evening newspaper.

He had the satisfaction of knowing, however, that his article done complaints had struck a responsive chord among newspaper readers.

Bogoslovsky, well known here as a writer of popular songs, wryly noted in one letter that Bell's invention provides one the opportunity to make new acquaintances.

"After you dial one or two figures, sometimes you can hear a conversation of two people talking on their telephones, and if you are the social type you can join in the talk."

Bogoslovsky also remarked caustically on a shortcoming that must make Moscow unique among great Western cities—the absence of a public telephone directory.

Everybody keeps his own little directory, adding names and numbers to it as the need arises, and guarding it as one of the most precious things of life.

It's possible to obtain telephone numbers (though not 1-1-3 a set of important officials whose numbers are kept from the general public) by dialling 09. But this method is so busy that most Muscovites don't bother to try it any more.

Your other hope is one of the information booths around the city. For a small fee they provide a variety of information ranging from phone numbers to directions on how to get somewhere. But they're also extremely busy and getting the desired information involves a long wait.

"It is a sad" Bogoslovsky wrote, "that in old times [end of the '50s of our century] a telephone book was published. I think it is an invention."

A directory was published some years ago but available copies were quickly snapped up; and in any case it is long out of date by now.

Bogoslovsky told Bell of another "novelty" the Moscow system had developed: "When you have dialled all the figures you hear dead silence—as if the telephone is amazed that you have at last reached the end."

U.S. College Football

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Arkansas, third-ranked team in U.S. college football, came from behind on the strength of Joe Brittenum's passing to Bobby Crockett in the final minutes and defeated top-ranked Texas 27-24 Saturday.

The victory snapped Texas' winning streak at 10 under the extended Arkansas' to 17.

Nebraska, rated second, walloped Kansas 44-6 and behind the passing and running of Fred Duda, running its record to 5-0.

In other games topping unbeaten teams, Michigan State crushed Ohio State 32-7, Southern California stopped Minnesota and Purdue edged Michigan 17-15 and Florida whipped North Carolina State 24-7.

Notre Dame didn't play.

WIN ARMY SHIELD

HALIFAX (CP)—Major-General G. A. Turcot, commander of the Royal Army Service Corps Eastern Command, presented the Commonwealth Shield to the Halifax service battalion. The shield, presented to Canada in 1956 by the Commonwealth division of the RASC, is awarded to the most efficient service corps company of the Canadian militia.

Montreal Group Praised By Soviet Theatre Review

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The Soviet Union's leading theatrical publication praises the Montreal theatre group, Le Rideau Vert, which performed here last May.

The latest issue of Theatre says the group's performance of the comedy L'Heureux Stratageme (The Happy Stratagem) by 18th century French author Pierre Marivaux is faithful to the playwright's style.

"The play preserved Marivaux's style with its prudence under the pale of sentimentalness, carefully-thought-out rayings and a denouement that the characters had already prepared for themselves in the course of play.

(At the time, Tass news agency said director Florand Forget "displayed a sensitive understanding of Marivaux's stylistic finesse to create a delicate, sparkling production.")

"Only the smile of Denise Si Pierre as Lisette was perhaps a bit cold," says the review. "Yvette Brend'Amour spoke about feminine incontinancy a little more coldly than is the countess would do, and the swings in the finale for some reason looked like a pre-ballet dulum."

It adds that "the love stratagem of 18th century ladies and gentlemen was presented by Le Rideau Vert with ritual seriousness.

"Le Rideau Vert was in control and forgot they were watching a Montreal and not a Paris company. "There was no trace of the Canadian accent which could confuse Moscow experts in the French language."

LAUDS ACTRESS

The group had "touched upon the hidden strings [a tool of French - Canadians, bringing them within reach of their ancestors' art."

The magazine notes that in the second play performed here by Rideau Vert, Eddy Malon . . . Un Jour by the French-Canadian novelist and playwright Francoise Loranger, the action takes place in Canada and the characters have Canadian names.

"But in spite of this they reminded viewers of characters in modern Russian plays.

This Cherry Orchard a la Sartre, as Theatre describes the play, is written in a "hot-too-theatrical form, with endless monologues and action which is often unexpected. The performance is remembered for the sincere, emotional, talented actress Genevieve Bujold."

"Her Natalie, a self-willed girl with the sudden movements of a lanky teen-ager, in the scene with Daniel, becomes beautiful. She is spellbound by her love.

"Then follows an explosion of furious despair when she realizes that—her feelings are doomed, and again—a silence, but now, a helpless and humble one.

"Genevieve Bujold plays something not written by the author and, not played by the others."

Outdoorsman Found Dead In His Home

BISCOTASING, Ont. (CP)—M. U. (Mike) Bates, one of the best-known guides and outdoorsmen of the North, was found dead Saturday in his home here, 90 miles northwest of Sudbury.

Police said they received a report of the death from Station Stevens, who bought the Bates tourist camp here a few years ago. He was in his late 70s.

Mr. Bates came to the Sudbury area in the early 1900s where he was employed as the first CPR telegrapher in Northern Ontario while operating a tourist camp.

He retired from the CPR about 10 years ago and later sold his tourist camp here and another at Metegama.

A champion for animal rights, Mr. Bates argued that man should play a role in the balance of wildlife and maintained that the bounty on wolves should be increased in order to limit the deer and beaver kills.

Mr. Bates was also a part-time writer, founder of the Sudbury District Tourist Outfitters Association and co-founder of the Northern Ontario Tourist Outfitters Association.

'Making of a President' To Be Shown Tues. Night

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The last few months of U.S. network television have been so extraordinarily exciting, so stimulating, so provocative programs that the prospect of a painstaking, thoughtful documentary is like an invitation to a feast for a hungry man.

The promised banquet is The Making of a President, 1964, from 9:30 to 11 p.m. EDT on CBS Tuesday. It was produced by the same team of political writer Theodore H. White, director Mel Stuart and independent producer David Wolper who turned out the fine Making of a President, 1960 that won an Emmy when broadcast on ABC.

White, who worked simultaneously on his recently published book of the same name, has been thinking about the project ever since the previous presidential election. The physical job of obtaining film and assembling the program was both enormous and expensive. Special crews were hired and assigned to cover events that might be important—and often turned out not to be. Special footage often had to be acquired from local TV stations.

SEARCH FOR FILM

Thousands of feet of film were inspected and junked in search for one tiny illuminating sequence in which, for example, Barry Goldwater summed up in a single sentence the heart of his political beliefs. And more thousands for a matching statement from Lyndon Johnson.

"We wanted to compare the two candidates," White said. "We had crews working on it. We got excited about showing Johnson at home in Texas. But those films didn't work out at all — great moments come almost by accident. In this case we got what we wanted in some film showing Johnson relaxing in his shirtsleeves and talking politics with great glee. It revealed the man just as we think we have revealed Goldwater in some film showing him watching television just as the moment he was being nominated at the convention."

The Perry Como Show, NBC, 9-10 EDT, first special of the season for the singer whose guest stars include Nancy Ames and Anthony Newley.

DESIGN

The architect's task in designing is extremely challenging especially when he has a sloping lot to work with. Here he has created maximum space from one room at the expense of another. The solution to the problem is less complex but equally challenging when you consider the necessity of utilizing every square foot of the utmost and enlarge.

A four bedroom split level in Stanley Park illustrates this art in its highest form. Situated on the top of the four levels, the master bedroom has the most exclusive master bedroom. Just below the second bedroom is large but has average proportions. The third is long for maximum use of space and the fourth is a small bedroom. Closet space is easily accessible while all wastage has been eliminated by the clever use of hallway.

On the second or main floor, the usual weakness of most "splits" in which the kitchen of the kitchen well makes the kitchen dark and cheerless has been avoided by this oversize bay which gives extra length and breadth to the kitchen and dining area. The fireplace can be entered from both the living and dining areas. The lower level also often alternate dining space. The third floor is the ideal counter touch with fourth bedroom. The fourth floor is the ideal counter touch with fourth bedroom. The fourth or basement level is divided into recreation room, second level within a few steps are second bathroom, door to patio and utility room and workshop. Another door gives indoor access to the garage.

The fourth or basement level is divided into recreation room, recreational laundry, storage, mechanical room with bar — ideal for either family or entertaining.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the architect's triumph is his success in creating more square footage of living space than can be bought elsewhere for $22,000.

Ottawa Bureau Chief for Star Dies Suddenly

OTTAWA (CP) — Norman Phillips, 49, Ottawa bureau chief for the Toronto Star, died of a heart attack in Ottawa General Hospital Sunday night.

Mr. Phillips, appointed to the Ottawa post in 1963, had been under heavy pressure in the current federal election campaign and had returned to Ottawa only a few days ago after accompanying party leaders on the hustings.

In April, 1960, he was jailed for three days in South Africa and then expelled from the country for "taking what the South African government called "violently prejudiced" stories about racial strife there.

Later that year Mr. Phillips wrote a book, The Tragedy of Apartheid, about racial segregation. It was banned by the South African government.

DETENTION PROTESTED

His detention touched off a wave of protests from the Canadian government to the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association. The Canadian Press and dozens of newspapers around the world.

He was released on condition he leave South Africa immediately.

Eric Louw, South African external affairs minister, later defended the detention in Parliament. He said documents and papers found in Mr. Phillips' room had requested articles dealing mainly with aspects of violence.

In protesting his detention the CDNPA said his dispatches had indicated he "observed the highest traditions of the free press in reporting facts as he has observed them without prejudice."

Charles H. Peters, then president of the Canadian Press, had cabled the South African Government: "In the interests of free flow of information international news without interference . . . (CP) protests the detention of Norman Phillips while in the course of his work. . ."

Mr. Phillips, a graduate in economics from Trinity College, University of Toronto, worked as a reporter for The Star for three years before the Second World War, then enlisted in the tank corps. He was next overseas as a lieutenant and served in public relations positions during the war. He was the last editor of The Maple Leaf, the Canadian soldiers' newspaper.

Anti-viral Pill Used to Reduce Colds

CHICAGO (AP) — An anti-viral pill may be the main ingredient in the most promising pellet for warding off the common cold.

A medical researcher said Sunday that some anti-viral compounds he and his associates now are testing have shown promising results in the prevention or in the inhibition of the action of rhinoviruses, one of the principal causes of common cold symptoms.

Dr. Jack M. Gwaltney said the annual convention of the Association of Teachers of Preventive Medicine that great progress has been made in understanding the multiple causes of the common cold and some of the factors that make people susceptible to them. "We are now able with information and techniques now available, and leads now developing, to make bold promise of continued success."

Dr. Gwaltney, of the University of Virginia, said that because colds are caused by large numbers of different types of viruses, several compounds, or major families or groups, it is unlikely that a single solution will be found—such as development of a common cold vaccine.

Montreal Mayor Has Corps Of Personal Ambassadors

MONTREAL (CP) — During the last 10 years Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal has built up a corps of personal ambassadors that now extends into at least 30 countries and is particularly active in Paris, New York and London.

Fellow members have no diplomatic status. They are businessmen—nationals of their own country, chosen by the mayor efficiently than protocol-bound diplomats.

The mayor doesn't like to talk about the arrangement, saying "the results of their work are more im portant than their names," but he concedes that one of the top men is Georges Marchais, a Paris lawyer and furs wood and wine merchant.

His name appeared locally because he was reported connected with the proposed tower for Expo 67, plans for which have since been discarded.

For official business the mayor deals through the federal department of external affairs but a man like Mr. Marchais is considered invaluable when information is needed quickly.

Mayor Drapeau's reason for establishing his contacts is his belief that Montreal as an important international city and because of Expo.

Mr. Marchais is a vice-president of the Franco-Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Paris. He is also a man who has consulted by Canadian politicians and civil servants as well as by Canadian business men.

His co-operation undoubtedly does no harm to his business affairs. It was during a visit that Drapeau said Mr. Marchais has never received a cent of public money for his services.

"His mission is strictly that of my personal representative in political matters," said the mayor.

He met Mr. Marchais in Paris in 1956 when the mayor was paying his first visit to France. With a partner in Montreal, Mr. Marchais was connected with the export of Provence wine to Canada. He was extremely useful in putting the mayor in touch with the right people in the city.

"Since then he has been willing to help Montreal as much as he could. He has been invaluable, a real friend to Montreal. He helps us because he is a Frenchman who has discovered he loves Montreal and Canada."

Mr. Marchais carries a card which describes him as a friend of Montreal, Mayor Drapeau's name and title and Mr. Marchais' own name and title, "Conseiller Charge de Mission pour l'Europe."

Asked whether the title might suggest a conflict with Ottawa's diplomatic connections with Paris, Drapeau said the word "mission" in French hasn't got the strong diplomatic flavor it has in English.

Diefenbaker Endorsed by Davie Fulton

By STEWART MacLEOD

Mr. Fulton, who returned to B.C. to lead the provincial Conservative party, is a candidate in Kamloops in the Nov. 8 federal election.

Appearing on a platform Saturday night with Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Fulton said "The Conservative party is united in the national interest and behind the leadership of John Diefenbaker."

Mr. Fulton said there's a new movement in the Conservative party, and he wants to share the platform tonight with my national leader, who has made this movement possible.

"I am anxious to serve again with John Diefenbaker."

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke in Penticton after speaking the day visiting the Okanagan Valley, including a noon speech in Kelowna and attending a harvest festival at Kelowa.

He told more than 1,500 people that Canada is in the midst of an inflation "that has major possibilities.

"The present inflation is no longer of the creeping variety. While the cost of living goes up steadily, there is also a rise in the Canadian dollar' keeps dropping.

Speaking to a relatively quiet audience, Mr. Diefenbaker said the present government is responsible.

He said the Liberals are asking him where he will get the money to finance his election promises, while the government now is spending $30,000,000 more per year than the Conservative government did.

He said he was surprised that the Liberals, who are distributing risks around the country, would ask such a question.

On the issue of integrity in government, Mr. Diefenbaker said there have never been as many events "in so many places, by so many people in so many years."

In voting for the Liberals, he said "you go ahead and say you want a government going to have an open season declared for crime!"

"That's all you have to decide."

51 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 51 persons died accidentally across Canada during the weekend with Canada and Quebec accounting for 30 of the fatalities.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, showed at least 42 persons throughout Canada died in traffic accidents, two drowned, two were killed in hunting accidents and one each in fires, a plane crash and British Columbia.

Two persons also were drowned in Ontario, one died in a fire and another was killed by lightning. Ontario also suffered in a hunting accident in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick reported the death of a man in an unclassified death in Prince Edward Island.

Newfoundland and Saskatchewan were fatality free.

Vietnamese Authorities Disarm Mountain People

By PETER ARNETT

BAN ME THUOT, Viet Nam (AP) — Vietnamese authorities are becoming impatient with the mountain peoples of the central Vietnam who want "their own autonomous state.

"We had put up with a lot lately," the Vietnamese officer said. "This was the time to act."

The acts were firm and swift.

"You can go back to your villages, join the regional forces or become regular soldiers," the 200 Rhade tribesmen inside the camp were told.

"But whatever you decide, leave your weapons behind."

The tribesmen complied, and the 12 American special forces men in the camp with them rounded up weapons and other gear.

The camp, established three years ago, was then destroyed by Vietnamese engineers.

Farther south, a Vietnamese marine task force inched toward a village occupied by nearly 400 well armed Rhade tribesmen. It looked as though a fight would start, but the tribal chief stepped forward and surrendered.

HAVE WEAPONS

These were the latest moves in an age-long dispute between Vietnamese lowlanders and mountain tribesmen. Now the dispute has broth because the highlanders have weapons, courtesy of U.S. special forces men who talked the late president Ngo Dinh Diem into approving the program in 1962.

The problem is compounded by U.S. interest in the fate of the Montagnards, who have pride and intelligence but who are terribly primitive and poor.

"There are three programs for the Montagnards," a Vietnamese officer said sarcastically. "One put forward by U.S. embassy, another by the U.S. military high command and the third by the Vietnamese government.

"We believe that the Vietnamese government's program should have preference."

The issue has become so sensitive that no American in Ban Me Thuot is prepared to make an on-the-record statement.

The current crisis is centred in the Montagnard political organization called Fulro that has demanded two - thirds of Viet Nam as an autoonomous state for mountain tribesmen.

LEADS GROUP

This organization is led by a Rhade tribesman called Y-B Ham who lives along the Cambodian border west of Ban Me Thuot. He has become virtually the Messiah of 100,000 Rhade tribesmen in the central highlands.

He says he is anti-Communist.

His influence was felt in the Uon Brieng special forces camp in particular. Last July Montagnards in the camp staged a short-lived coup against the Vietnamese camp commander. For three days they held hostage the senior U.S. officer in the camp, Capt. Jack Rugden.

Nearly 200 of the camp members fled to join a Fulro group.

In recent weeks, Vietnamese and American authorities have detected rising dissension among the Rhade tribesmen. The decision was made to end any rebellion plans.

The Viet Cong can capitalize on the situation if the Rhades and other tribesmen get disenchanted with the Vietnamese government. The United States, while recognizing that this government has full authority to act in the Montagnard matter, is working to see that does not happen.

Shepherds and Hunters Really Italian Police

ROME (AP)—If you're looting any 2,000-year-old Etruscan tombs this season beware of the patient shepherd and the forger bird hunter.

Italy's police have added them to the hazards for the illegal excavators who annually supply hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of Etruscan art works to the international market for museums and private collectors around the world.

The Etruscans were a pre-Roman civilization of Italy's past. They buried their dead in domed, round, chambered tombs like family-sized homes. With the dead they buried now-priceless art objects, including ceramics, statues and jewelry.

All this the state claims as its own. Export of all archeological material and ancient art works is prohibited. The price on the foreign market for such contraband is tremendous—and for all the vigilance of Italian authorities, the forbidden trade prospers.

DON DISGUISES

The fact that police are disguising themselves as shepherds and hunters to catch the contraband diggers came to light with the arrest of three men the disguised agents had watched loading loot on a truck for hauling to Rome.

Previously the secret excavators mostly had to worry about overhead helicopter patrols and hidden police with powerful binoculars perched on hilltops throughout the Etruscan country north of Rome. These had made the job tough for tomb looters—but not impossible.

This is the looters' usual technique: They search in the early morning or near twilight, walking the fields and probing likely looking mounds with slender 10-foot-long steel rods. If they hit stone where there should be only deep soil, they probably have located a long - buried tomb.

The hole for the break-in is dug stealthily by night. Toward dawn or sunset the huge urns and statues and the rare necklaces and bracelets are hoisted to the surface and hidden in nearby woods, grainfields or along streams. Later, the contraband is loaded on trucks and hauled away.

Believe Bed of Tiber in Rome Contains Treasured Art Caches

By JAMES M. LONG

It has been known all along that they were there. More than a century ago Roman Prince Torlonia offered to pay all costs for diverting the Tiber around Rome — if he were granted rights to all art works he could find in the river bed.

The wealthy Torlonias, bankers for popes, could have financed such a project. And they probably would have ended up with a terrific profit.

DUMPED INTO RIVER

From at least the fourth century on, Romans dumped their treasures into the river during major invasions of the city rather than leave the art to advancing hordes.

And much of what they did not throw into the Tiber themselves, the conquerors did when they found it was too heavy or cumersome to cart away.

Little of this wealth in gold, silver and statuary was recovered. Even in dry weather the river is too deep, and it is filled the tawny Tiber because it is full of silt which fills up the river bottom rapidly.

A scant sample of what is buried under 15 to 20 feet of silt at the bottom of the river came to light 30 years ago when the present embankments were being built.

Although only the edges were touched and digging was not deep, workmen came up with major pieces of statuary which now are among the treasures of Rome museums.

These included objects thrown into the Tiber when Napoleon's troops took the city at the end of the 18th century. Below these were found objects believed dumped in by the soldiers of Charles V of Spain in the sack of Rome in 1527.

Archaeologists are sure that deeper digging would bring up the jettisoned art treasures of earlier invasions. And much more would be found in mid-river, particularly under the site of the ancient bridges from which the art works were thrown.

One thing about daily newspapers:

they make a gal's shopping easier

Many a gal has thanked her daily paper. Why, with a newspaper close at hand, you don't need to trudge from shop to shop searching for the perfect nightie. You just look at the ads. That way, you find out what's available—and where—before you ever leave your doorstep.

And isn't that exactly what most people do? Window-shop through the pages of their daily paper first? According to a survey validated by the Canadian Advertising Research Foundation, 83% of all Canadians use their newspaper as a shopping guide. They know it's a reliable source of information about nationally advertised products and services. A good place to look for values in local stores and shops. So it shouldn't come as much of a surprise that they make most of their buying decisions at home. While reading the paper. Canadians, of course, are subject to a number of other buying influences in the home—radio, television, magazines, etc. But they find newspaper advertising more reliable (41%) and less irritating (92%). And no other advertising has the same profound effect on their buying habits as the daily newspaper.

As you might suppose, advertisers know this. They've learned to expect consistently good results from newspaper advertising. So year after year they run more and more ads in daily newspapers. And that makes a gal's shopping easier and easier.

Quebec Quartet Held To Blame For 4 Slayings

By REMY D'ANJOU

QUEBEC (CP)—A coroner's jury found four men criminally responsible early today for the killing of four men described by Claude Wagner, Quebec Justice minister, as victims of a struggle within a Quebec arson ring.

The five-man jury found Andre Lamothe, 41, a tire dealer, Ovila Boulet, 52, a laborer, and Fernand Quiron, 43, all of Quebec City, and Jean-Jacques Gagnon, 33, a Montreal contractor, responsible for the shootings.

The four men found shot and buried in quicklime were: Alcide Bilodeau, 50, of Ste. Marie de Beauce, Que., Paul Chandonnet, 38, of Sherbrooke, Que., Redemptor Faucher, 47, and Paul Brie, 44, both of Quebec City.

The dead men are four of at least seven men who Mr. Wagner said earlier were killed to cover up for a Quebec arson ring which now is the object of a massive legal investigation.

The bodies of other men the justice department thinks were killed have not yet been located.

KILLED WITH SAME GUN

The inquiry established that three of the men — Bilodeau, Faucher and Chandonnet—were killed with the same gun, a golden, .32-calibre, Smith and Wesson pistol. A total of 17 cartridges were retrieved from around the area where the men were found. Bilodeau was shot twice and Chandonnet five times.

Individually, Lamothe was found criminally responsible for the deaths of all four men including the nine-hour inquest in the Quebec courthouse.

Boulet was found responsible for the deaths of Bilodeau, Faucher and Brie. Quiron for the deaths of Chandonnet and Bilodeau, and Quiron for the death of Bilodeau.

The courtroom was packed with reporters and police who enforced strict security measures including frisking all who entered the room.

Gagnon, after receiving the protection of the court, agreed that testimony given Sept. 30 and Oct. 5 before a provincial

Are Picking Jury To Try Klansmen

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Lawyers in the second trial of a young Ku Klux Klansman changed with murdering Mrs. Viola Liuzzo try today to pick a jury and begin calling witnesses.

Selection of 12 jurymen bogged down Monday when state prosecutors, headed by Attorney - General Richmond Flowers, conducted a grueling quiz of 30 men listed on the jury panel and failed to qualify 20 as required by state law.

With only 26 white men and three Negroes tentatively agreed upon, Circuit Judge T. Werth Thagard picked 10 more names from a box and added them to the list.

Fifty - five prospective jurors had been called to hear evidence of the trial of 21-year-old Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr. of Fairfield, Ala., accused of killing Mrs. Liuzzo, a Detroit civil rights worker. However, 16 were excused for legal reasons permitted by Alabama law and two were disqualified for saying they had fixed opinions in the case or that they did not believe in capital punishment.

Wilkins, a chubby, baby-faced mechanic whose first trial ended in a deadlocked jury six months ago, sat quietly through the proceedings, smoking cigarettes one after the other.

SHOT MARCH 25

Mrs. Liuzzo was shot through the head last March 25 while ferrying civil rights workers from Montgomery to Selma after a massive four-day march to the Alabama capital.

The other two men under indictment, Eugene Thomas, 42, a steel company worker, and Wilburn O. Eaton, 41, a retired steel employee, both of Bes-

Hostages Held By Convicts

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—Four Negro convicts, two of them crazed by narcotics and all brandishing knives, held four hostages for several hours Monday while they complained to a reporter about discrimination.

The convicts seized a supply of drugs in the hospital at Southern Michigan Prison here and they barricaded themselves into a corridor in the surgical suite as the hospital's fifth and top floor.

"Talking, is what finally got them out of there—no question about that," said Prison Inspector Joseph Dembosky, 58, who was held hostage for nearly six hours.

The four were assured their complaints would be investigated and no harm would come to them.

And after releasing the hostages unharmed, the prisoners were placed in isolation cells while prison officials considered whether to file charges.

ASK FOR REPORTER

During the siege, the four demanded to see a reporter to make their complaints public.

Officials brought in Don Hurst of the Jackson Citizen-Patriot, then one of the four accused officers of mistreating them and said all Negroes could expect in the prison system. He was assigned to the "hull crew" (manual labor).

The prisoners, including two serving life terms for murder, released Dr. W. R. Latchaw, 62, after about four hours and released Dembosky and guards, Ben Thompson 22, and George Hutchins, 47, two hours later.

Officials identified the convicts as Hillen Thomas, 20, Otis Adams, 27, Alvin Shaw, 30, and Edward Whitehead, 27. Shaw and Whitehead are serving life terms for murder.

Rhodesia Detains Ex-Premier; Wilson Makes Despairing Plea

By BRIAN CHARLESWORTH

SALISBURY (Reuters) — The detention of a former prime minister known to favor majority rule and an 11th-hour plea by Britain against a seizure of independence by Rhodesia heightened today the growing crisis in this self-governing African colony.

Only a few hours after Prime Minister Ian Smith rejected a British proposal for a Commonwealth premiers mission to visit Salisbury to discuss the independence issue, Prime Minister Wilson sent a cable pleading with the Rhodesian leader not to declare unilateral independence and to continue negotiations.

Shortly after Wilson's cable was received in Salisbury, the Rhodesian government made a dramatic move of its own by imposing a 12-month restriction order on former prime minister Garfield Todd as he was about to leave for Britain to take part in a teach-in on Rhodesia at Edinburgh University.

The order restricted Todd to his farm at Shabani, 250 miles south of Salisbury. A government statement said the order was made "as a result of information received through security channels" under the Law and Order Act.

Todd, a 57-year-old former missionary, was forced out of office in 1958 when he resigned over his handling of an increase in the minimum wages of Negro workers.

DEMAND GUARANTEE

Cracks for the colony's 4,000,000 Negroes, who outnumber Rhodesia's whites by 18 to 1, has led Britain to veto any move for independence unless it is preceded by guarantees that the Negroes will take over within "a reasonable amount of time."

Talks between the Rhodesian and British premiers to resolve the independence issue ended in deadlock earlier this month and emphasized the seriousness of Smith's threats to declare independence unilaterally.

In his message to Smith Monday night, the British prime minister said:

"At this zero hour . . . we are open to any new ideas, to any further way of seeing whether agreement can be reached between us. So far you have not responded."

Wilson added:

"Before any irrevocable step is taken, I beg you again—even at the 11th hour—for the sake of your country, for the sake of Africa, and for the sake of future generations of all races, to pause before bringing hardship and misery . . . to your people and to countless others. . . .

"You cannot be in any doubt about the tragic consequences of the illegal and unconstitutional action which you have said you have in mind."

Wilson has said a declaration of independence would be an act of defiance against the Crown that would subject Rhodesia to an economic boycott by the rest of the Commonwealth

Milk Prices Forced Up By Costs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Spokesmen for Ontario's dairy industry say cost factors that forced an increase in Toronto's retail milk prices are common across the country and will eventually lead to price rises everywhere in Canada.

Borden Co. Ltd. and Dominion Dairies Ltd. announced a one-cent - a - quart increase in Toronto Monday, giving higher wage and distribution costs as reasons.

Their action pushed the price of a quart of homogenized milk to 27 cents. The one-cent boost also applied to the cheaper milk grades of skim and two per cent. Toronto's last price increase in milk was two years ago.

Other major dairies in Toronto already have indicated they intend to implement the increase.

The price of a quart of milk varies across the country, between 25 cents in Halifax to between 24 and 26 cents in Vancouver. Generally, prices go up one cent a quart on milk delivered to the home.

FARMERS GET $5.26

The negotiated price of milk paid to farmers in the Toronto market since September, 1963 has been $5.26 a hundredweight, equivalent to about 38 quarts. Dairy industry and food for products such as cottage cheese and creams increased last July 1 to $5.72 from $5.67 a hundredweight.

Dairies in Brantford announced a one-cent increase Monday for quart milk. In Sudbury, dairies said the price rise was the result of the Sudbury and Copper Cliff Milk Producers Association decision to increase the basic milk industry board for an increase in the price paid to farmers.

In most Ontario centres, the basic price for a quart of milk is 25 cents, making Ontario's the most expensive province for retail milk purchasing.

France and U.S. Must Soon Co-ordinate Nuclear Strategy

WASHINGTON (AP)—French ambassador Herve Alphand expects France to start talks with the United States next year on co - ordination of its nuclear strategy with U.S. nuclear strategy.

The small French force is due to become operational in a few months. The problem of its coordination with the U.S. and NATO strategy is one of several critical issues, involving France and the Atlantic alliance, which are due to reach a crisis probably next year.

Of a possible Paris-Washington summit conference in the near future, Alphand said:

"Nothing has been decided about a meeting. I think it probable certainly by very useful to have one one day, but probably not before we have much clearer views about some very important problems that we have to discuss. . . ."

U.S. officials are skeptical about any kind of Johnson-de Gaulle conference without a lot of diplomatic spadework before-hand to provide some kind of basis for agreement. At the moment it is even difficult to see where such work would begin.

Alphand himself may play an important role in the search for a basis for some resolution of French differences with the U.S. and with other NATO allies. After nine years as ambassador in Washington he is going home at the end of the week to become the top career diplomat in the French foreign office.

In a pre-departure interview he stressed his view that despite differences France and the U.S. share many fundamental interests in common.

"During my long mission here we have had many differences of opinion on important matters," he said. "But on essential matters we were always on the same side. . . .

He recalled how the U.S. and France stood together with other Allies when Soviet Premier Khrushchev wrecked the East - West summit conference at Paris in 1960, how they formed a common front in dealing with Berlin crises and how de Gaulle lined up with the late President Kennedy in the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

The problems coming to a head next year are these — so

May Sight Comet Just Before Sunrise

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — You'll have to get up early and get out where you can see the sun rise over the horizon if you want a good look at the Ikeya-Seki Comet.

But be careful. The comet, expected to loop around the sun while this side of the world is dark Wednesday night, is racing nearer the sun every hour and now is so close you could get an eyeful of blinding sunlight trying to spot it.

Two Japanese astronomers first detected it Sept. 18, when the comet was far out in the solar system and just beginning its fight up from the sun's rays. Since then, several astronomers have seen it as it rose above the horizon an hour or so before sunrise.

Now it's so near the sun that it rises only a few minutes before the sun pops up and dims its light. It is racing toward the sun at what will be nearly 1,000,000 miles an hour by Wednesday night.

The comet and its 10,000,000-mile long tail will be visible just before sunrise Wednesday and, if it doesn't explode in the solar encounter, again before sunset Thursday, say astronomers at the California Institute of Technology.

The North American viewers it could be the brightest spectacle since the great comet of 1882, which broke into three pieces during its approach to the sun.

Streaking in from the edges of the solar system, it will make a hairpin loop around the sun during a five-hour period beginning at 10 p.m. PDT Wednesday (1 a.m. EDT, Thursday). Then, if it survives, it'll head back in the direction it came from, toward the outer reaches of the solar system.

There's a chance the comet's tail, rising faintly across the sky, can be seen Wednesday night after the sun and the comet's head have slipped below the horizon.

Charges of Chiselling Laid Against Liberals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Diefenbaker accused the Liberals Monday of chiselling away at Confederation.

T. C. Douglas said they were chiselling the Cape Breton coal industry.

Such were the main ingredients of the election campaign just three weeks from the Nov. 8 vote.

Mr. Diefenbaker, speaking at Fort William, said Prime Minister Pearson's brand of liberalism amounts to a denial of what all the great Liberals of the past stood for. No other Liberal prime minister had ever said that Canada was not one nation, that provinces could make treaties or that any province could say it would not accept a national scheme.

The Conservative chief said if the provinces were raised to the status of associate states Canada would have 11 sovereign governments to a greater or lesser degree.

"When that day comes, this nation will never hold together" he said.

Mr. Douglas attacked the recent federal agreement to import $25,000,000 into the Cape Breton coalfields, demanding that the government make public the "small print" in it.

The New Democrat leader said at Sydney, N.S., the opening of a new mine and improvements to existing collieries are not the only things involved in the deal.

He quoted an article in the Financial Times that the agreement will hold coal production at its present level, reduce freight subsidies, lower tariffs on United States coal and reduce employment to 4,500 from 6,000 through attrition.

It was a case of giving money with one hand and taking back three or four times as much with the other.

Mr. Pearson spent the day at

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Extremely warm settled weather will prevail over southern and central Ontario this morning. Temperatures in the province are expected to climb well up in the seventies as far north as the Cochrane region today. The weather is expected to continue through Wednesday in southern Ontario. Mild clouds and showers with showers is expected in Northwestern Ontario as a disturbance moves out of the mid-western United States today. Cloudiness and showers from this disturbance will likely extend into central Ontario late Wednesday.

JEWS CELEBRATE

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of Russian Jews sang and danced in the street in front of the central Moscow synagogue Monday night to celebrate the Torah festival. The annual outdoor celebration went on for hours in freezing weather. Police did not interfere and there were no incidents.

Must Give Higher Priority To Solving World's Monetary Problems

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP)—World economists need to put a higher priority on solving the major problems of international liquidity and the growth of developing countries, A. K. Stuart, president of the Canadian Export Association, said Monday.

He told the association's annual conference that discussions on the world's monetary problems which opened recently in Washington are being conducted "in the spirit of free, but cautious, investigation."

"The question is, can the world afford to wait," he told the 225 delegates. "Countries such as Britain need a background of expanding world trade to put their balance of payments on a sound basis."

He said that, although the world's trade and productive capacity is growing steadily, "the world monetary reserves for the financing of this trade have in fact declined, for the first time in many years.

"Adequate liquidity arrangements have helped to sustain world financial confidence. But this confidence is still in danger of breakdown, particularly if Britain and the United States continue to experience difficulties with their balance of payments."

With few exceptions, Mr. Stuart said, Canada's principal trading partners are having foreign exchange reserve problems — "the whole multilateral trading world is, in fact, just beginning to face up to what may be a serious liquidity problem." This obviously presented dangers to the Canadian economy.

He also said there has been a discouraging lack of progress in efforts to develop multilateral trading rules and conditions. The current General trade talks had seen a series of frustrations and little attention had been given to reducing tariff and non-tariff trade barriers of developing countries.

The slowdown in the growth rate of the world's economies to about two or three per cent artificially "means very serious setbacks for the developing countries who depend heavily on their export earnings and who labor under adverse terms of trade."

He repeated warnings that a potential inflationary period Canada may be entering could seriously damage the country's competitive position internationally.

"Many Canadian firms now realize the value of striving to

Total $46,123.64.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Bar Association last week heard an earnest appeal from one of its members, Judge Norman Boyd Parkes, Kaskasa, on behalf of the United Appeal. The Campaign was also fully endorsed by Judge W. C. Anderson, who also appealed to the Association to give their strongest support to the campaign.

Members rallied behind the appeal to such an extent that they raised their 1965 returns 80 per cent over last year's returns, to a total in excess of $1,600.

United Appeal Headquarters commented that support of this kind will contribute substantially to the city's professional-group objective of $7,200.

Hillcrest Area Children Get Bus Transportation

Residents of the city's Hillcrest area who a month ago protested to the public school board about the dangerous traffic conditions which their children had to contend with in walking to distant schools have won their point.

At last night's board meeting approval was given for transportation by city bus to be provided morning and afternoon for 11 children in grades 7 and 8, residing in the Hillcrest area and attending the King George and Prince of Wales schools.

At the same time the superintendent of public schools was authorized to secure information and prepare details necessary for an addition of classrooms to the Hillcrest school so that at September next year this building might accomodate all children in kindergarten to grade VI who reside east of the river and north of College Street.

WILL GET RELIEF

The recommendations were presented to the board by a special committee appointed by board chairman Dr. J. Russell Scott at the September meeting to survey and investigate problems relating to the Hillcrest, Prince of Wales and King George School areas.

School children in the Avondale area are also to get relief from present difficulties in getting to and from school.

Information was presented that k was to be expected that a walk-way would be provided from the north of Wright Ave. to Palmer Road, and that title to the site north of the Ontario School On the Deaf should not be much longer delayed. The board gave instruction that no time be lost in securing the necessary details to enable it to secure permission to proceed with a construction program for five new classrooms to serve junior pupils in this area.

Sewer and water services are to be a very important consideration at this time, but, provided these obstacles can be overcome, the capital program of the city provides for sufficient funds to accomplish the purpose. —

Total enrolment at the end of September was 3152, 114 more than at September in 1964. Attendance efficiency for the city schools was 97.39%.

The Board approved a teaching contract for Mr. Harry Rands of Deseronto, and granted releases for Mrs. Jane Bell and Miss Sandra Brown at such time as suitable replacements can be secured.

AGREEMENT REACHED

Several items regarding school sites received attention in the report of the Property Committee. A special committee met with a similar committee from the Bay of Quinte District High School Board, and an amicable settlement seemed to have been achieved regarding exchange of property and fencing between the Quinte Secondary School and the King George School. Agreement was reached also, to assure the Department of Public Works, Ontario, that the Board would pay an additional $949 for 949 acres added to the school site north of the Ontario School for the Deaf. A negotiating special committee was authorized to continue conversations regarding purchase of a further school site in the north west of the city, price not to exceed a stated amount per acre.

Authorization was given the school superintendent to purchase equipment for processing electronic stencils when a suitable machine can be secured at a price consistent with the work required. The Directors was given to investigate cost and other implications for printed signatures of the elected representative on Board cheques. Minor changes are being made in payroll and accounting procedures, requiring additional equipment that would cost about $600.

Current accounts totalling $78,885.38 and building accounts amounting to $12,534.43 were approved as presented.

An interim report was received on the Board's insurance coverage and procedures, this item to receive further attention at the November 22nd meeting.

School Guards Favored by Councillor

TRENTON — Councillor Edward Todd thinks that because Trenton was last week cited in Industry and Business as one of the few Ontario communities to have passed the first six months of 1965 without one street fatality, the present traffic set-up, which incorporates the use of safety guards at strategic corners, should be retained, and "hang the cost."

"Leave things as they are," the councillor advised Councillor Paul Tripp, when the latter suggested that council take a practical look at the difference in cost of paying the school guards, $19 a week, and installing "push button" lights for the children to manipulate themselves.

The "push-button" light idea (cost, $1,500) was tried out last year near the Dufferin Ave. Prince Charles School. The older children were put to work, supervising the younger children's use of the light. But the home and school club and parents objected, and the light system was replaced by a guard.

Councillor Todd reiterated his stand that cross walks, such as are used in the city of Toronto, should be made standard across the province, or "thrown out."

The councillor said it was ridiculous for persons coming from a community where cross walks are used in the traditional sense, to a community which has marked off areas for pedestrian crossing, but where it is not obligatory for the motorist to stop and let them cross.

Councillor Todd agreed, however, to supply Councillor Tripp with facts and figures on the cost of hiring school crossing guards.

Town Asked To Get in on Ground Floor

TRENTON — Mr. Robert Towns, the member for Hastings South in the last parliament, took time off from hand shaking in his constituency last night to come before Trenton council with the suggestion that representation be sent to Ottawa immediately, to see if the town could "get in on the ground floor" of parts of King's Highway 401.

Thinking it over, council decided if the club would agree to have some cleared from the street before school children start on their way in the winter mornings, the restriction would be lifted.

Charge Laid After Crash on Dug Hill Road

TRENTON — Provincial police from Brighton detachment laid charges of careless driving against 45-year-old Kaspar Jacob Beitel of R.R. 1, Carrying Place, after Mr. Beitel's car was in collision with a car driven by 50-year-old Clayton Weir of Consecon on Highway 33, west of the Dug Hill-Road, yesterday noon.

Neither driver was injured. Damage to the Weir car was $1,000 and to the Beitel car it $300.

CHARGE IS LAID

Police Chief R. J. Rutherford said today a charge of "taking a car without consent" has been sent, "had been laid against 19-year-old James Charles Spence of 18 Sidney Street, Belleville following an accident early on Monday morning, in which a car, owned by Mrs. Ruth Ellis, was damaged to the extent of $1,000. Spence, and a passenger, Robert Leland, also 19, were taken to Trenton hospital, suffering from concussion.

Mr. Gould told a reporter he had been riding with the two youths and had run into his home for a few moments, leaving the key in the ignition. When he came out of the house, the car was gone.

Later, the car with Spence as driver, went out of control on Gilmour Hill and struck a guard railand and a flasher signal post.

15-Ton Limit On Bridge Is Suggested

TRENTON—Trenton council will give some thought to having a by-law prepared which would enforce the load limit of 15 tons on the new bridge.

Mayor James MacDonald told council some truckers were exceeding the load limit on the new bridge and crossing over with 40 ton cement trucks or heavy gravel trucks.

It is the job of the police force to enforce the load limit, but a means of weighing the trucks seems to be lacking. It was pointed out that spot checks could be made, as each trucker carries a weigh bill. However, to really enforce the weight limit, it is necessary to pass a by-law and have this approved by the Department of Transport.

To Hold Votes On Sabbath Films, Sports

TRENTON — Trenton voters will be asked if they (1) approve of Sunday sports for gain, after 1:30 p.m. on Lord's Day; (2) Sunday movies, concerts or lectures, for gain, on the Lord's Day and after 1.30 p.m.

But council will glean more facts and figures on proposed swimming pool in the community gardens' area before a vote by ratepayers is prepared.

Mrs. Marion Spencer, armed with a petition, came before council early in the evening, and said a plastic domed pool could be built for $44,000.

What Mrs. Spencer hadn't allowed for was preparatory work on the land; water pipes to the pool; sewer pipes away from the pool and other incidentals.

The cost might be closer to $80,000" said Councillor Paul Tripp, "We might end up with a waterless pool."

Mrs. Spencer will be asked to confer with experts in pipes and sewers and excavation and present a revised figure to council.

Rescind Parking Ban On Opposite Golf Club

TRENTON — Trenton town council last night voted to rescind a resolution which called for "no parking" on the north side of King Street, between McColl Street and First Ave., across from the Trenton Country Club.

F. F. Hurley, club president, told council at an earlier meeting this month the club was being embarrassed by the ban. It was immediately, to see if the town could "get in on the ground floor" of parts of King's Highway 401.

Thinking it over, council decided if the club would agree to have some cleared from the street before school children start on their way in the winter mornings, the restriction would be lifted.

Water Storage Pond Approved By Council

TRENTON — Trenton council last night approved a public utilities committee recommendature of around $110,000 towards the building of a water storage pond and a 6 in. main in the former late Margaret Lepper.

He was a member of Sacred Heart Church and had spent most of his life in Marmora where he was a barber. He was still carrying on his trade at MaryCrest.

Surviving are one brother, Joseph Darrah of Marmora, and one sister, Mrs. Sandford (Margaret) Lawrence, Marmora; Mrs. Harry (Catherine) Phillips, Marmora; Mrs. John (Edith) Andrews, Belleville; Mrs. Annie Attorney, Toronto; Mrs. Bertie Collins, Brighton; Mrs. Fred (Kathleen) O'Neill of Orono, Ont.

The funeral was held from the Howden Funeral Home on Wednesday, October 13th, 1965, to Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. W. P. Healey.

Interment was in Sacred Heart Roman Catholic cemetery.

CHARLES MILTON McCANN (Marmora)

The death occurred in Belleville General Hospital on Monday, October 15th, 1965 of Charles Milton McCann in his 69th year. He was born and educated in Rawdon Township, a son of the late William McCann and his wife the late Letitia Gawley. His wife the former Annie Mason, predeceased him a few years ago.

He was a well known and respected resident of Marmora and for many years served as an elder of Eldorado United Church. Mr. McCann resided at his home in Eldorado until Monday, October 18th when the funeral service was held at Eldorado United Church by Rev. E. W. Potter of Madoc. Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. Percy (Freda) Neal, Oshawa; Mrs. James (Ida) Bailey, Eldorado, Miss Mildred McCann at home, Mrs. William Haight (Verna), Oshawa; Mrs. Lloyd Hennessey (Bessie), Belleville and Arthur at home. Two sisters, Mrs. Albert Weatherall of Oshawa, Mrs. Arthur Pack, Marmora, one brother, David McCann of Oshawa, 14 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The bearers were Beryl Carman, Bert Hickman, Lorne Palmer, Fred Campbell, Gerald Blackburn and Charles Pigden.

Funeral was under the direction of the Howden Funeral Home.

ARTHUR CHARLES SUMMERS

Stricken suddenly with a heart attack, Arthur Charles Summers, 46 Prince of Wales Drive, died at Belleville General Hospital on Sunday. He was in his 62nd year.

Son of Mrs. Rose Beatrice Summers and the late Charles John Summers, he was born in England but had lived in the Belleville area for 40 years, he was a member of Christ Church and was active in local lodge work.

He was Past Noble Grand and District Deputy Noble Grand of No. 81 Belleville I.O.O.F. and was a member of Moira Encampment No. 56 and was Past Chief Patriarch. He was a member of Quinte Rebekah Lodge No. 132.

He was also a member of the Canadian Order of Railway Conductors and General Workers No. 126.

He is survived by one son, Clifford (Kip) Summers and a daughter, Miss Lillian Summers at home. His wife, the former Cecile Violet (Verna) Lloyd, died last year.

Also surviving are a brother, Ernest Summers of Belleville and six sisters, Mrs. Henry (Mabel) Sharkey of Toronto, Mrs. Gerald (Ina) Fiddler of Brighton, Mrs. Gordon (Hazel) Booth, Mrs. George (Rosie) Booth, Mrs. Douglas (June) Cronkright and Mrs. Robert (Bernice) Ford, all of Belleville.

The funeral was held this Tuesday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home with interment in Belleville Cemetery.

CHARLES HENRY STINTON

The funeral for Charles Henry Stinton was held from John R. Bush Funeral Home on Monday afternoon. Rev. Alexander McDowell, conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites at Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were George Stinton Jr., Harold MacDonald, Clayton Martin, Harry Scott, Ralph and Ronald Seore.

Council Votes To Air Issue Before OMB

TRENTON — The town of Trenton, with a number of laneuits (against the town) still impending, or by rumor, in the making, has decided to take a stand in the case of Lange and Potter Motors.

Solicitor R. W. Hurley has notified the town that unless some action is taken to settle the alleged "illegal" fill which may be taken before the "expropriation board." (Mr. Hurley used the wrong phrase, he should have said the Ontario Municipal Board.)

Acting on the advice of town solicitor, Roderick Campbell, (who said the town always seemed to come out best when items of contention went to arbitration), council voted last night to put the issue in the hands of the OMB.

Lange and Fetter claim loss of business, because the land in the front of their property was finished when Dundas Street was widened last year. The town is being sought from the town.

Council Accepts Sewer Tender

TRENTON — Trenton council voted last night to accept the tender of Ross Bros. Ltd. for the installation of a sanitary sewer and a storm sewer on Roscoe Ave. at a cost of $9,000, under the Local Improvements' legislation, by which the owners on that street pay 50 per cent.

Original estimates for the work had been $17,000. Carr's was the lowest tender.

It was decided to "make up the difference" by turning funds set aside for the installation of a sanitary sewer on McNichol Street, as owners there have agreed to pay for the work. A two-thirds majority of "yeas" was necessary to proceed with the work.

Garage, Boat Lost in Fire

Yesterday, Philip Hebbard of 91 Water Street, stood by helplessly as flames destroyed his garage, where his pride and joy, the "Llewelyn," an 18-foot plywood and fibre glass outrigger was stored. Also destroyed in the $1,600 fire was a large supply of lumber, and garden implements, including a lawn mower. Cause of the fire, which broke out around noon, is not known.

Mr. Hebbard designed the Llewelyn, made the moulds and built her this summer. He had had several trial runs on the bay and termed the sailrigger, "the fastest sailing boat on the Bay of Quinte."

An investors sailor. Mr. Hebbard said ruefully at the fire, "Well, it's back to the drawing board for me."

Sub-dividers Must Grade Park Areas

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Parks' Management has come up with a number of suggestions for additions to the existing agreement and they now makes with sub-dividers. All to the parks' property.

Afraid that potential developers might be "scared off" by having to agree to do such things as "erect fire hydrants, link fences between parks' and private property, and to have one and a half inch water mains to the parks' area," council did agree last night to incorporate some suggestions into the agreement: parks' areas in sub-divisions must be graded and stones, stumps and undesirable foliage removed; six inches of good topsoil must be put on the parks' area and an access road to the area must be "navigable."

Motion to Transfer Control Of City Market Deferred

Belleville city council will take a second look at a public works committee motion to transfer control and management of the city market over to the city parking authority.

The motion was deferred when the question was raised whether this was a move to gradually rule out the farmers' market, although Alder man Jack Deacon denied this was the case.

Alderman Deacon said that the proposed agreement with the parking authority would guarantee continuation of the market.

Alderman Ben Corke took exception for a different reason. He said that city council was gradually seeing its authority disappear and would soon be little more than a collection agency for boards and commissions. He suggested instead that the parking authority be disbanded.

MOVES DEFERMENT

Alderman Don Joss moved for the motion to be deferred to give Alderman Corke the opportunity to bring in a motion for abolishing the parking authority if he so desired.

The proposal to take over control of the market was originally came from the parking authority which stated that due to the area being controlled by two separate authorities (parking authority and city hall) the management was somewhat both confusing and conflicting.

The Parking Authority feels if they had complete control conflicting interests would cease and would allow for better management.

W. D. Embury, Veteran Printer In City, Dies

A veteran Ontario printer and a man well-known in his community, Wallace Derwin (Wally) Embury, 275 George Street, died today in Belleville General Hospital.

He was 84 and had lived and worked his craft most of his life in Belleville. His death ended a period of ill-health.

Mr. Embury was born in Maple township, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Cameron Embury. For many years he worked as a printer at the old Ontario Intelligencer commercial printing department. He quit the publishing concern in 1927 and opened his own printing business.

He retired only four years ago — and was at that time one of the oldest active printers in the province.

Mr. Embury was one of the most vigorous members of Masonry in his home area. He was a life member and past master of Belleville Lodge, No. 123 AF AM No. 123; past Grand Steward of The Grand Lodge; past district secretary; past president of the Past Masters and Wardens Association; member of Quinte Friendship Chapter Royal Arch Masons, No. 227, former grand master of Trinity Temple Corporation; past Worthy Patron of the Minerva Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

He was an active member of many years' standing of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club.

FINE MUSICIAN

An accomplished musician he played in groups ranging from a Sunday School band to the (now disbanded) Argyll Light Infantry and the old 49th Hastings Regiment.

He was a member of Tabernacle United Church and served on its Board of Sessions.

He leaves his wife the former Beatrice Bateman, two daughters, Mrs. Samuel (Grace) Anderson, Kingston; Mrs. Edward (Marie) Wells, Sarnia; two brothers, William of Farrington, Michigan and Ray of Birmingham, Michigan.

Also surviving are 11 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

A son, Jack, was killed during service with the RCAF in World War II. Mr. Embury was also predeceased by a sister, Mrs. Mamie Clarke.

Mr. Embury is resting at the Thompson Funeral Chapel. The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon with interment in Belleville Cemetery.

Glenn Salter, right, president of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation, Belleville Branch, presents branch awards to Eleanor Cardiff and Stephen Badgley, Grade 9 students at BCI. Robert Horwood, principal of Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School, where the two students attended until graduating last year, looks on.

Computer Role In Hospitals To Be Studied

Computers and their possible role on the patient-care team will be one of the items discussed at Canada's largest annual hospital event — the 41st annual convention of the Ontario Hospital Association.

Discussing computers will be the man who set up the computer system in the Alton, Ohio, Children's Hospital, Charles Campbell, the hospital's assistant administrator. The Akron hospital pioneered the use of a computer to store and produce a demand complete information on patients, medications and staff assignments.

In Ontario, electric monitoring of intensive-care patients is used in many hospitals but so far the computer has been confined to administrative chores.

The 5,000 delegates at the Oct. 25-27 convention will discuss whether the computer will destroy traditional staff-patient relationship or whether it will free hospital personnel from routine paperwork for their patients.

Another topic, considered significant in view of hospital personnel moves toward setting up collective bargaining units, will be Are Hospitals Good Employers?

The Ontario Hospital Association is a voluntary association of all public general, chronic and convalescent hospitals in the province.

Attending the convention from Belleville will be S. J. Johnston, Belleville General Hospital Administrator; his assistant, Mr. Charles Plummer; Board chairman, A. McLean Haig and Board member, John Sparrow, along with heads of individual hospital departments.

Teachers Present Awards To Two P. S. Graduates

The Public School Teachers' Federation, Belleville Branch, representing 50 men teachers in Belleville and area, last night presented awards to two 1965 public school graduates.

The award winners, both graduates of Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School, and presently Grade 9 students at the Belleville Collegiate Institute, were Eleanor Carleton, 15, and Stephen Badgley, 14.

Glenn Salter, president of the Belleville Branch, said: "The $15 awards are based on scholarship and citizenship. This is the 4th Annual Award. A committee chosen from the branch reviews the situation, considering every Grade 8 student in Belleville and district, approximately 600 total, and chooses the winners."

Wants to Raise Per Diem Rates At Hospitals

A notice of motion asking that the Ontario Hospital Services Commission accept the principle of increasing per diem rates at hospitals as a means of helping to retire capital costs, was introduced at yesterday's meeting of city council.

Alderman Enos David presented the notice of motion which will be discussed at the next regular meeting of council.

Council Hires Firm to Call Tenders, Supervise Work On Centennial Park Project

The firm of Toronto consulting engineers who drew plans for the development of Belleville Zwick's Island park will also call tenders and supervise completion of the city's $100,000 centennial park project.

Yesterday council voted to enter into an agreement with Proctor, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon, consulting engineers, to call tenders and supervise the park construction project. The work, however, will be under the over-all supervision of the city parks board.

Ald. Thomas Lally, chairman of the city's centennial project committee, told council that with plans for the centennial project approved, there were two ways which the necessary work could be carried out.

One was to hire a firm of consulting engineers to call tenders for the project, while the other was to handle everything from city hall with only a minimum of supervision from a consulting firm.

He said the project was of some magnitude and unless it was directed by a firm of consulting engineers he was in fear the project would not have the desired results.

FINAL PAYMENT

Council approved the final payment of $2,881.36 to the Proctor Redfern firm for preparing plans for the Zwick's Island development project. The firm's total fee for plans was $3,201.32.

A further fee of six per cent will be paid to the consulting firm for call tenders and supervising completion of the centennial park project.

Yesterday Alderman Lally was asking only for discussion on the manner in which the park project was to be carried out, but Ald. Frank Murray reminded that time was getting short and presented the motion asking that the consulting firm be authorized to call tenders.

Two Million In Debentures Sold by City

Two million dollars in city of Belleville debentures offered by the city will be sold to the Midland Canadian Corporation and Wood, Gundy and Company, Incorporated, at a price of $98.33 (U.S. Funds) plus accrued interest.

The offer of the Midland Canadian Corporation was formally accepted yesterday by city council. The money raised will go toward capital costs of the new hospital addition, a school addition, and other city capital works projects.

The price of $98.33 will be reduced by a commission of 63 cents per $100, leaving a net price of $97.68. The interest rate is 5.45 per cent.

Referring to the sale of debentures in the United States, city finance committee chairman Ald. Ben Corke said the Canadian dollar would have to be discounted 1¼ per cent instead of the present seven and a fraction before the city would lose money.

Club Matters Discussed at Rotary Meet

Belleville Rotary Club's part in the equipping of the International Students' Centre at Queen's University was one of a number of subjects reviewed by Freeman Burrows at the club's luncheon meeting in the Hotel Quinte yesterday.

Belleville and a number of other area clubs are providing the furnishings for the centre.

Mr. Burrows was one of several committee chairmen who presented reports at the club's Information Meeting dealing largely with club matters and a brief review of Rotary's origins and ideals.

Six new members were formally welcomed by President Ernest Burnham.

Bob Michaud, one of a number of members who have returned recently from visits overseas, presented the club with a pennant from the club in Laufen, Switzerland.

Ab Woodcock brought home a pennant from Dundee and raised a laugh when he told members that during his British visit he "found a sixpence in the street."

"I have it in my pocket," he quipped.

semer, were in the courtroom.

Flowers, who allowed Assistant Attorney - General Jay Breck Gantt to question the jurors, said, he intends to call state witnesses today as they become available.

Almost all white jurors questioned admitted they believed Negroes to be inferior to whites but most said they would vote for the death penalty if the evidence is sufficient.

Gantt also asked white jurors if they believed a white person who "socialized and lived with Negroes and helped them march and integrate white churches" also was inferior. Most said they did.

NEGROES INFERIOR

One of them, John B. Traylor Jr., a farmer, told Gantt he definitely thought Negroes were inferior.

"Living here in Lowndes County and seeing the things I've seen, I would have to say they are."

Asked if he considered white civil rights workers inferior, Traylor said, "not necessarily."

Asked then if he could vote for the death penalty for a white person guilty of shooting to death a white civil rights worker, Traylor said, "it depends on the evidence."

Joe H. Marvin, a county employee from Montgomery, told Gantt "Negroes don't bother me." But he said he wasn't sure how he felt about white civil rights workers.

Santa Claus Parade Committee to Meet

Another meeting of the Santa Claus Parade committee has been called for this evening by Fire Chief Ted Puste. It will be held at No. 2 Fire Hall, and all persons interested in assuring a successful parade are requested to attend. Despite the good weather which has prevailed lately, time for organizing the parade is growing short.

Hasty Pees Patrol Tops Provincial Competition

Winners of the area command competition two weeks ago, 27 patrol members from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment militia unit won provincial honors over the weekend when they finished first in an initiative and leadership patrol competition at Camp Petawawa.

As competition winners the local group was presented with the Major General George Kitchen Trophy by Brigadier Max Clarke, of Peterborough, militia advisor to G.O.C., Central Command at Oakville.

The trophy, a 250-pound slab of stone granite from the University Ave. Armoury in Toronto, will remain in the Armouries Mess at Belleville for the next year. All the patrol members received small dagger pins to wear on their uniforms.

Other units taking part in the competition included the Lorne Scots from Western Ontario, the Grey and Simcoe Foresters from Barrie, and the Militia Service Battalion from London.

In their prize winning eight mile patrol through dense bushland, the Hasty Pees group, led by Lieut. Michael Evans of Belleville, and Sgt. Dan Krysilia of Trenton, successfully withstood simulated enemy attack, coming through smoke-screened ambushes to win out over the competition.

The "enemy" attack and harassment was provided by the members of the Canadian Guards.

Lieut.-Col. Kenneth Willcocks, commanding officer of the Hasty Pees, was high in his commendation of the new provincial patrol champions.

"They bested the enemy" and won out with high marks," he said.

Will Ask Engineer to Check Safety of College St. Bridge

An experienced bridge engineer from the Ontario Department of Highways will be asked to come to Belleville to check on the safety of the College Street bridge and report to city council.

Alderman Jack Allin made the request at yesterday's meeting of council stating that in his opinion the College Street bridge was in a bad state of repair.

The alderman exhibited two rotten pieces of wood purported to have been taken from the bridge flooring and said that recently when a truck loaded with steel rails from the Pinnacle Street track passed over, the bridge "bobbed up and down four or five inches."

LONG ADVOCATED

Construction of a new bridge over the Moira at College Street to replace the present one-lane structure has for many months been advocated by Ald. Allin and a pre-engineering report on the proposed structure has been ordered by council. It is expected the report on the bridge will be received in the near future.

But Alderman Don Joss suggested the College Street bridge question was being considered here in Belleville to make a start on other bridges in the city.

"We have had many surveys costing thousands of dollars, and all indicate that a new College Street bridge is needed," he said. "But the surveys also say that we need most a new bridge at Dundas St."

The alderman said there should be a "setting" job on the part of city council members to get on with the Dundas Street bridge and other streets projects.

"I'm interested only in the safety of the College Street bridge," Ald. Allin said as council ordered his motion for a safety check on the structure.

Water Issue Recognized

Canadian water resources and the much-talked of question of sharing it with the United States, with safeguards, of course, to ensure that Canada retains its sovereignty over such resources, have finally been accorded official recognition as one of the principal domestic issues of the day.

Prime Minister Pearson said during a political telecast last week that the government plans to confer with the United States about exports or diversions of Canadian water.

He said the United States is anxious to discuss the possibility of importing Canadian water because its own water supply is being depleted . . . "but we have to be awfully careful not to make arrangements which will not take care of our own needs in the future."

There is the crux of the matter. The U.S. has not husbanded its own water resources as well as it might and it is looking to Canada as a convenient and unlimited source of water.

However, as the prime minister pointed out, Canada must exercise the utmost care before it even considers signing over any large quantities of water to the United States. Hydro-electric power from the rivers and waterfalls of this country are absolutely vital to the development of our own economy. The harnessing of these resources, as in the case of the Churchill Falls in the Labrador interior, is often a technical problem of the first magnitude, involving years of endeavor. Yet today the power they are now developing is now instrumental in supplying homes and plants over a large area of the eastern provinces. How much then can we afford to divert to the United States and what are we to receive in return?

These are questions which must be faced in any discussions on the sharing of Canadian water with the United States.

It has been said Canadian water exports to the United States could be worth more than $45,000,000 a year. Yet such a vast sum would be of no avail if it should result in the depletion of our own water resources.

Water, after all, is priceless.

Jargon and All That

This is the age of slick phraseology, jargon or what have been termed "gobbledegook." Some of it, though irritating, is intelligible, but much of it is not.

In any event people now talk about "teaching," instead of seminars, conventions or what have you. A plain old-fashioned meeting, whether it be in the church hall or at summit level (a political phenomenon that seems to have gone out with Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Khrushchev) is now termed a "dialogue."

Thus we have Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec speaking to McGill University students in the following terms, relative to his western tour and the need for understanding between English of French Canada: "By frankly expressing my views on these questions, I had hoped to provoke a meaningful dialogue between English and French-speaking Canada. It is in fact high time for Canada's two solitudes to get together in order to appraise, understand and accept one another."

Mr. Lesage's meaning was clear enough, although he was guilty of perpetuating the sort of modern idiom that the Irish for example might brand as so much "blather." However, Mr. Lesage redeemed himself somewhat with a rather fine turn of phrase in the last sentence of the passage quoted, when he spoke of the need for Canada's "two solitudes" to get together

Language Barrier

African nations have the same problem with regard to the ideal of unity (or Pan-Americanism as Ghana's Kwame Nkrumah likes to call it) as we have in Canada.

The problem is the difficulty the various peoples of Africa have in understanding each other. Apart from the many native dialects there is the division arising from the use of English and French as official languages, a legacy from colonial days when Britain and France ruled large areas of the continent.

An example of this was afforded at the recent inter-parliamentary conference in Ottawa when a French-speaking, African woman was making some purchases from the shop in the hotel lobby. She spoke only French and the store clerk's French was scanty.

Thus, among its myriad problems, Africa has one similar to our own. President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia (formerly Northern Rhodesia), for example, has urged the teaching of French in schools in former British territories and English in the schools of former French territories.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 19th, 1945

An interesting insight into the origin and progress of the many chain stores now in operation in the United States and Canada was given the Rotary Club on Monday by Rotarian Harry Croll, eastern superintendent of the Metropolitan Stores.

The first chain or multiple unit stores as the speaker termed it, began with the old Hudson Bay Company, which operated outposts throughout the country and in the United States in the early days. The late F. W. Woolworth created the idea of opening several stores and selling merchandise at popular prices.

The grocery chain, he said, originated in a small store in Maine when a foresighted bookkeeper showed his boss the potentialities of opening stores in nearby communities. From this idea was born the well - known A. and P. Stores. The A. and P. chain has grown to 20,000 stores in the United States with the original idea of placing a store in every community. The government clamped on heavy taxes with the result that several stores were closed. The company then amalgamated several shops into one and that was the birth of the Supermarket.

During the 60th anniversary of the organizing of Christ Church parish of which the Rev. C. E. Clarke is rector, a tablet was dedicated to the memory of the members of the parish who laid their lives in the Great War. The tablet, which is on the reredos to the left of the altar, on the gift of the choir, in dedication was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Biagrave, rector of St. John's Church, Northumberland, a former rector of Christ Church parish, assisted by the Rev. A. Given. A tablet on the south side of the altar was also dedicated having reference to the brave and beautiful character in three sections above the altar; the lower part of the reredos bides the original inscription on the window and in order to overcome this the lower part of the inscription as follows: "The windows above the altar were erected in memory of Lewis Wallbridge, Caroline Wallbridge and William Holloway Wallbridge."

Nicotine Tolerance Can Vary Greatly

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please describe how nicotine affects the body — liver, pancreas, nervous system, etc.

I have cirrhosis of the liver and have been told that I am likely to get nicotine poisoning if I don't stop smoking. — B. D.

* * *

We'll start with the nervous system, the "autonomic nervous system" over which we have no voluntary control. At first nicotine stimulates it; more nicotine can to some degree paralyze it.

This translates into such things as a rapid heart beat, feeling of faintness, jitters, spasm of blood vessels.

People vary enormously in their tolerance to nicotine, and hence the point at which they suffer nicotine "poisoning." I have known more than one person, novices at smoking, to faint from the effects of a single cigarette.

I've seen others who were so sensitive that two cigarettes would cause capillary blood vessels to clamp down and prevent blood from flowing. These are the tiny vessels close to the surface of the body, and they give our skin its pinkish tinge. Nicotine can sometimes make these capillaries to clamp down so rapidly that you can see the skin lose its pinkness. (That's why tobacco is absolutely verboten for someone with Buerger's disease or other conditions which limit circulation to the extremities).

* * *

As to the organs you mention, the liver and pancreas, I would suggest that the heart (palpitation) is more sensitive. The liver and other organs are significant in that they play a part in rifding your system of such nicotine as you take in.

Cirrhosis of the liver doesn't make you, basically, any more sensitive to nicotine poisoning, but it certainly restricts your liver's ability to withstand the nicotine. Keep on smoking, and your liver is required to do that much more work if your circulation is impeded, your liver is under that much added handicap.

I understand why people like smoking. I smoked for a great many years until I decided, that I'd gain more in health than I would lose in pleasure. Don't think I don't miss the solace of tobacco, because I do, but I balanced what I was getting against what I was losing, and made my decision. You take it from there.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I enclose the required stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for a copy of your booklet, "Tips on How to Stop Smoking." This is not for myself but for my son. — Mrs. J. W.

Well, all right. It would mean more if he sent for it himself. The most important part of giving up smoking is to want to do so.

At dinner a few nights ago a lovely woman of my acquaintance said she had a copy of my booklet — guess she wanted to flatter me. And then she added, "I keep it in the drawer where I keep my matches and cigarettes." Then she lit another cigarette.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a recent bride. Is there any way I can keep from becoming pregnant for at least three years? I cannot ask neighbor women as we live out in the country. I want to continue to work a while longer. I am 23. — Mrs. N.C.

The birth control pills are as certain a means as exists. Just about as sure results are obtained by a diaphragm, a method that has been in wide use for many years.

In either case, you don't need neighbor women; you do need your doctor. You must have a prescription for the pills, and also need the physician's advice in the case (as occasionally happens) there may be some side effects, although they are rarely of any great consequence.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 19, 1965 . . .

A party of escaped Confederate soldiers raided the town of St. Alban's, Vt., 101 years ago today—in 1864—and returned to Canadian territory after robbing three banks and killing a bystander. It was not the first involvement of Canada in the American Civil War because scores of both sides were abundant in Canada and about 40,000 Canadians had enlisted in the Union armies. The raiders of St. Alban's appeared in court but Canadian judges refused to extradite them to the United States. Consequent resentment among Americans increased their desire to annex Canada.

1926—H. R. Ekiers finished the fastest world circumnavigation to date of bicycle Sept. 30 by airship.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — von Hindenburg's army advanced to within 18 miles of Riga; Italy declared war on Bulgaria; English and French soldiers arrived to garrison Salonika.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—two German raiders were shot down as London and the English Midlands were heavily bombed at night; about 30 Italians were killed and 400 wounded in a patrol battle on the Sudan—Eritrea border; Germany and Yugoslavia signed a new trade agreement.

In Defence Of Cliches

From the Victoria Colonist

Bully for Magistrate William Ostler, whose frequent words of wisdom from the bench do him credit. He has recently gone to bat for the so-called "clichéridden" testimony offered by police officers in his courtroom.

Repetition of such evidence as "silent speech and bloodshot eyes" if sincerely given does not in his view dim its validity; certain symptoms call for plain, unadorned words and if these are voiced frequently before him they indicate the frequency of the sameness of charges laid in court.

The dictionary defines a cliche as a hackneyed phrase, but the wording of the law, invoked as it must be time and time again, is inescapably itself of this vintage.

So to a wide range of human expression. When someone says of a sunny morn "it's going to be a beautiful fine day" or a variation of this theme — and this has been said a thousand times and more each day during the month of September — he is, according to the dictionary, guilty of uttering a cliche.

It is the dictionary that could be taken to task as ignoring the semantic reality of normal speech.

Any book of quotations, it could be said, is filled with nothing but cliches, for its contents are timed times without number. This doesn't lessen their validity either.

Shakespeare, Shakespeare, Burns, et al, are quoted unconsciously every day by countless individuals, because their words have passed into the lexicon of everyday speech in all levels of society.

Indeed a dictionary itself is a vast compendium of cliches, and a good thing too else we would all be dumb.

So bully Magistrate Ostler. He was but talking common sense when he put the so-called cliche in its proper setting — the normal and expected language to be used when it meets the need of the cases before him.

Doctors Have Busy Time

Atlanta (GA.) Journal

Nostalgia enhances memory of the country doctor bravely risking the dark and rutted road to minister to the sick. Today's physician doesn't hitch up the buggy in a driving rain in the dead of night. What does he do?

A major pharmaceutical firm, in a report to stockholders, enumerated his duties. The average physician in the U.S. works 60 to 70 hours a week, sees 30 to 50 patients a day, takes 14 telephone calls from patients daily, and makes house calls and hospital calls. He treats, without charge, 400 needy patients a year, donates 100 hours to civic affairs annually, and devotes 200 hours to professional meetings and research.

That's enough to make any doctor today a little envious of those who hitched up the buggy in a driving rain in the dead of night.

No Room for Defeat in Dief's Aching Desire for Victory

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Notes from the Campaign Trail, — Just look at Dief go!

He's worn out his entourage before—his executive assistants and secretaries and the corps of newspapermen scrambling to cover his campaign — running them, exhausted, into the ground, in other elections.

But never quite like this.

Never so frantic.

The pace in his other campaigns has been furious, but there were pauses and it was possible to catch your breath, rest for a precarious moment, even squeeze in a couple of hours sleep.

But not this time.

Where the stops are close — as they were by bus across populous southern Ontario — or where they are many — as they are train-hopping across the Prairies — Dief's incredible day begins before it breaks.

It is still dark, and reveille can — and actually has — come as early as 5:15 to start the long perpetual motion daily talkathon that mercifully may end 18 hours later.

What drives the man of 70 to such routinely physical and often emotional extremes?

He must see — and — the point almost of hurting — to return, in triumph to Parliament Hill's East Block as Prime Minister, that he aches with the very deep desiring of it.

WHO'S WHO

It seems to befit him when others groan with fatigue.

And he's taken to making jokes from the platform about the "weary young men" in the press party who are "all in across the country like the tail of a comet."

Or they're draws "my strength from the people," who, he swears in all seriousness has "inexhaustible."

And it just could be so.

Some sort of faith in the public, by hints — must propel him.

And there is no question of his enduring ability.

Somebody kidded him the other day that he was the first of the "Pensioners to make the "Pepsi Generation."

That was enormously understating it.

"If Dief gets any younger, he won't be able to vote."

Believing in himself this fiercely, and working this punishingly hard for the political vindication he so deep-burningly wants — what happens to him if he doesn't get it?

It will be the political end for him, of course. For this, as even Dief knows by now, is the Last Hurrah.

It will be that, enough, almost impossible for him to take.

It will be nothing for his friends, to the awful anguish he will suffer in the deeply personal defeat in realizing — and accepting — that he has failed his last and greatest test.

It will be another — more closely, from the front row seats of Parliament Hill these past 25 years — of the "set backs" that as a hard fact that to Dief, disappointment is a devastatingly personal thing.

He experiences it as an actual pain.

And there have been times — twice eye-witnessed — when the pain, seemed almost beyond bearing.

He is impossible of understanding in failure, and even more impossible of reconciling himself to it.

He simply won't accept it. Never has. And if it comes this time, there is no valid reason to suspect he will now to what almost any ordinary person would consider simply as fate, unkind, and even unfair as it might be.

Having seen the actual perturbation of the awful disappointment stand out on his forehead when he lost to George Drew his Conservative leadership in the convention of 1948, you know just how intense the suffering will be if the night of November 8 turns out to be one of anguish.

Those who were there in Prince Albert the night the returns came in from the election a week ago will tell you it was a highly dramatic spectacle. There was the railway car, blinds drawn, on the siding, with a television antenne on the roof beaming it to the impossible news of disaster. There wasn't a sign of life for more than an hour, and then, at last, until near midnight that, John Diefenbaker, ashen-faced and shaking with the shock and pain of disappointment, emerged, briefly, to publicly face the fact that he had become an ex-prime minister.

That a man in public life — who has been in public life for years in the national interest — can care this much is a rare and great gift to a nation.

So many leaders so often don't seem to give a damn.

Dief does.

Strictly Personal

Aggression Is a Strong Trait in Man

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the books I enjoyed reading this summer was "The Year of the Gorilla," written by George Schaller, who observed gorilla life more closely and for a longer period than anyone had before — and with other species — much better than that "higher" primate known as man.

We are all too prone to justify our human aggressions and hostilities as a part of our animal nature; yet nothing could be further from the truth. Human warfare is a social institution, and cannot be blamed on any ancestral tendencies or kinship to the animal world.

A new book published in England this fall, "The Natural History of Aggression," confirms the observations of the gorilla-watcher, and goes much further into the whole matter of animal aggression. The authors describe the behavior of wolves, shrews, geese, monkeys, lobsters, and wasps.

Contrary to popular belief, it was found that animals in captivity are usually more pugnacious than those living freely in their native habitat. Only in captivity do most animals engage in fighting against others of their own species.

Fighting among mammals is usually hard for political indication he so deep-burningly wants — what happens to him if he doesn't get it?

It will be the political end for him, of course. For this, as even Dief knows by now, is the Last Hurrah.

It will be that, enough, almost impossible for him to take.

It will be nothing for his friends, to the awful anguish he will suffer in the deeply personal defeat in realizing — and accepting — that he has failed his last and greatest test.

It will be another — more closely, from the front row seats of Parliament Hill these past 25 years — of the "set backs" that as a hard fact that to Dief, disappointment is a devastatingly personal thing.

He experiences it as an actual pain.

And there have been times — twice eye-witnessed — when the pain, seemed almost beyond bearing.

He is impossible of understanding in failure, and even more impossible of reconciling himself to it.

He simply won't accept it. Never has. And if it comes this time, there is no valid reason to suspect he will now to what almost any ordinary person would consider simply as fate, unkind, and even unfair as it might be.

Having seen the actual perturbation of the awful disappointment stand out on his forehead when he lost to George Drew his Conservative leadership in the convention of 1948, you know just how intense the suffering will be if the night of November 8 turns out to be one of anguish.

Those who were there in Prince Albert the night the returns came in from the election a week ago will tell you it was a highly dramatic spectacle. There was the railway car, blinds drawn, on the siding, with a television antenne on the roof beaming it to the impossible news of disaster. There wasn't a sign of life for more than an hour, and then, at last, until near midnight that, John Diefenbaker, ashen-faced and shaking with the shock and pain of disappointment, emerged, briefly, to publicly face the fact that he had become an ex-prime minister.

That a man in public life — who has been in public life for years in the national interest — can care this much is a rare

Cars Oust Bicycles

A good bicycle is hard to find. It is highly possible that there are more student cars than bicycles at Queen's today. And it's not a matter of cost. Bicycles, surprisingly, have not risen in cost like cars and almost every other product. Twenty years ago, $43.50 would buy a good bicycle; it will do the same today.

Many young people now are able to buy cars or motorcycles. Bicycles? They're just not interested.

Assessors From Six Counties Meet Here for Discussions

Good assessment practices was the topic of discussion at the fall meeting of the District Association of Assessing Officers of Ontario, held Monday at the Recreation Centre in Belleville.

Approximately 60 Association members from the six counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Durham, Peterborough, Haliburton and Victoria, attended the meeting.

Among the topics of discussion at the meeting was the new provincial assessment manual.

Mr. Pat Gillis, director of municipal assessment for the Department of Municipal Affairs, along with supervisors George Johnston, Peterborough branch, and Gerard Walsh and Laurier Courville, president of the Ontario Association, attended yesterday's meeting, along with Paul Simpson of Ottawa, board of governors, Institute of Municipal Assessors, Jack Letner, Toronto, Institute secretary treasurer, and Leighton Thompson of Belleville, second vice-president of the Provincial association.

Branch association executive members are: Chairman, Norman McBain, deputy assessment commissioner for Peterborough; rural vice-chairman, John Ferguis of Haliburton; urban vice chairman, Robert Goody of Cobourg; and secretary - treasurer Clarence Bird of Belleville.

Mayor to Add Protest to Cancellation

Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis will add a further official protest to the two already regarding the cancellation of rail services resulting in no direct rail passenger service between Belleville and Ottawa.

Last week Liberal candidate Robert Temple protested the matter to CN president Wallace Gordon and yesterday Mayor Ellis asked council members if they felt it necessary for an official protest to go out from city hall.

He said he would be happy to write letters to each of the two railway heads voicing objection to the proposed cutback in rail service.

fire commissioner's inquiry in Montreal be admitted in evidence at the inquest.

To a Crown question as to why Bilodeau was killed, Gagnon, Lamothe and Boulet replied:

"Because he had been arrested by police and because he had spoken of the fire which destroyed his hotel at St. Joseph Sept. 30, 1961."

Lamothe testified that he and Gagnon drove together to Ham Sud, near Sherbrooke, and that they there killed Chandonnet. He was then buried in the woods. Lamothe quoted Gagnon as having said after the shooting that "I am very glad that I could get rid of this guy, who stole enough money from me."

In connection with the killing of Bilodeau, Boulet, a Quebec City laborer, testified at the start of the inquest Monday night that he heard the shots which killed Bilodeau and then helped to bury the body.

Boulet said he was riding with Lamothe in a car which was following that in which Bilodeau and Gagnon were riding when he heard the "two tiny noises."

He said that when he and Lamothe reached the other car Gagnon said: "You have just witnessed a murder."

He testified they then took Bilodeau's body to St. Gilles, close to Quebec City, stripped it, covered it with quicklime and buried it. Bilodeau's car was then set ablaze.

On other testimony at the inquest Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel said a bullet found in Bilodeau's head had "the same characteristics" as bullets fired by a .32-calibre Smith and Wesson pistol found near Chandonnet's body.

The revolver was found by Sgt. Marcel St. Marie of the Montreal detachment of the provincial police. He found it on the ridges with the weapon.

The sergeant testified at the inquest that the gun was found because of tips from Lamothe and Gagnon.

Mr. Wagner, who started the massive inquiry into the arson ring when he took office, arrived at the inquest shortly before midnight and quietly took a front-row seat.

Earlier Monday he had been speaking in Montreal.

According to Hoy

By

Claire Hoy

What of the Future?

After five long years of working
At jamming facts in the brain,
You would think there was time to take a rest.
But they are starting all over again.

In they walked, as good looking group of young people as you will ever want to see.

All of them had worked for a long time for this moment, and now that high school graduation had come, they were ready.

It was Saturday at Moira Secondary School. Over 200 students were present to receive their graduation diplomas. But it could have been anywhere. It was the same scene in high schools coast-to-coast — a host of proud, well-mannered young men and women marching up to receive their pieces of receiquitos for all the work they had done.

And it struck me as I looked around the audience that the parents represented all levels of society. There were mink coats in some quarters and plain cotton in others, but I thought how wonderful it was that these obvious differences did not interfere with the process of education.

The boys from the modest homes received the same diploma as those from wealthy ones, and nobody asked, nor cared, how much money was in the family bank account.

And in case someone ever told you that all wealthy people think about is money — they have no time for sentimental things, that is only for those who cannot afford anything else — then, forget it.

The lady two rows back of me had enough milk slung around her shoulders to float a fair share to shame.

"That's my boy," she sobbed, proudly, when her son walked up to get that stage and received his diploma. The look of pride in her eyes was something that all the milk cows in the world could never buy.

Meanwhile, back at my main reason for writing this column, the whole affair struck me as being fantastic.

Here were these students, who for their whole lives have been striving to complete high school.

In every grade they passed, except they ever attended, they heard that old familiar call, "right high school." "Finish high school."

Then it was, the Grade XIII diploma, like a big bubble sitting on top of that ivory tower waiting to burst open with opportunities.

The paradox is this: Now that they had finally reached the position that had been the end, it was really only the beginning.

As the valedictorian, Ann Thompson, asked, "What does the future hold?"

"Fortunately," she said, "we are not totally unprepared for we have several assets gained from high school. We have formed working habits, learned to co-operate with teachers and fellow students and to observe rules for the betterment of school administration, and we have made lasting friendships."

I was glad that she mentioned friendships, because so many people tend to forget how much easier life is when friends share it with you.

And what of the future? What does it hold for them? Well, in many cases it means starting all over again, seeking an education in university. Then, when that is complete, it will be starting all over again in business. And with each new day and each new problem, it will be starting all over again.

Many who decided to call it a day as far as their education is concerned, have gone into business. But they too must continually be educated, though not formally perhaps, if they hope to keep up and not get lost in the woods somewhere.

High school graduation is almost the official growing-up point. It is the time when students stop depending upon their parents for their livelihood and start depending upon themselves. And if they are at university, they still may be depending upon their parents for their livelihood, but they must manage it themselves.

Off to the universities,
Or to the business world they go.
They must keep right on learning
If they want to make a show.

As I made my way out the door, past the throngs of beaming faces, both students and parents, I could not help think that these 200 kids were no longer kids. Whether they were ready for it or not, they were adults.

The foundation is set. The rest is up to them. And by their looks, and by the way they conducted themselves, it seems the foundation is very firm.

Council Hears Report in Closed Session

City council yesterday in a closed-door session prior to the regular meeting, heard a report from Belleville Industrial Commissioner Ernst Kneisel on the work of his department.

For the benefit of the press, Alderman Douglas Boyle later in the council session gave an outline of the Industrial Commissioner's report noting what was being done in an effort to induce industry to come to Belleville.

He reported the commissioner had three likely prospects, two of which would possibly locate in the city in the near future.

The commissioner generally satisfied council that he was working hard trying to bring industry to Belleville," Alderman Boyle said.

Record Number Of Arsonists Are Convicted

TORONTO (CP) — A record number of arsonists were convicted in Ontario last year, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart told the legislature today.

Mr. Wishart said 1,000 persons were charged with arson in 1964 and 800 were convicted.

He said the number of arsonists convicted was the highest since 1956 when 1,000 were convicted.

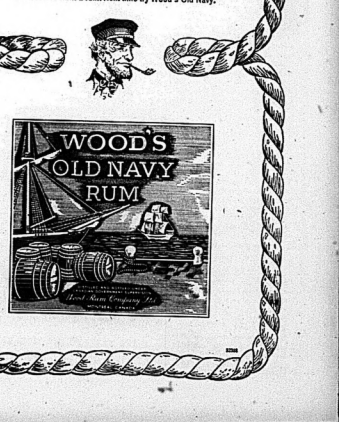
IF RUM IS YOUR DRINK, THEN WOOD'S OLD NAVY IS YOUR RUM



Make no mistake about it: Wood's Old Navy is every bit a man's rum. It's rich and mellow, rugged and robust, a blend of the world's finest rums (many as old as 8 years).

Next time get all the real, full-bodied flavour you expect and deserve from a rum. Next time try Wood's Old Navy.

China's Forward Thrust Thwarted in Indonesia

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The crumbling impact of communism in Indonesia could deliver a shattering blow to China's forward thrust in Southeast Asia. The Communists, with China's apparent support, had staked their prey and now for want of allies, the dragon may be forced to retreat into a cage of its own making.

In search of food, spoils and power, the Chinese had cast their eyes over the western and southern borders. The Soviet nuclear giant stood as an unsurmountable Himalaya. The proddings into South Korea merely aroused another nuclear giant in the West. The soft, tender side of Asia appeared to be the rich rice paddies of the south.

The influence of China spread from Viet Nam to Indonesia. Cambodia's Prince Sihanouk was a pliable ally, as enthusiastic as the politically astute Sukarno. But the Communists in Indonesia made the mistake of being over-eager.

They had hoped to make a quick disposal of the military strongmen, through the usual tactics of turmoil, bloodshed and murder. But their butchery fell short of requirements. Those who survived turned on them with fury.

PARTY BANNED

Now in the Jakarta area, the Communist party has been banned and Chinese centres sacked and burned. Moscow has expressed concern over the Indonesia fury against the Communists for some of them were in sympathy with Moscow as well as Peking. But it was Peking which appeared to have the centre stage and to have provided the major influence and support.

Sukarno had hoped to rule through a middle road, by maintaining the support of both the army and the Communists. The fact that the Communist party was finally banned may be an indication that the ailing leader has succumbed to army domination or that he sees the army in the ascendancy. The one thing that seems clear is that the influence of the Chinese has been badly hit.

By a curious state of affairs, Cambodia's Prince Sihanouk, who worshipped at the dragon's altar, finds an icy wind blowing from Moscow. The Kremlin seems unable to find time for his scheduled visit, especially after his recent visit to Peking.

Sihanouk has expressed shock with this "unprecedented affront." Is he to be left alone with only China's friendship? The fire and brimstone in Indonesia may force him to reflect.

And if the reflection should show a blind dragon retreating, Sihanouk could well decide that it may be better to melt the Moscow ice and hug the Russian bear, even if this means turning his back on the dragon.

Douglas Harkness Likely Winner in Calgary South

By DAN POWERS

CALGARY (CP) — Douglas Harkness, a key figure in the last Conservative government, is fighting the Nov. 8 general election as a friend who still has some differences with his party's chief.

Mr. Harkness, who resigned as defence minister in 1963 over nuclear policy and personal differences with Prime Minister Diefenbaker, says these differences are not the source of support he commands in Calgary South.

"My support stems from the fact that I have been a representative of the riding for the last 20 years and have wide personal acquaintance with many persons in the riding," he said in an interview. "A very large number are ex-pupils of mine."

Mr. Harkness and Mr. Diefenbaker met at an airport here Oct. 15 as the Conservative chief prepared to wind up an Alberta visit. It was their first appearance together since the 1963 crisis.

Mr. Harkness said later: "I would say that the number of people as friends although we still differ on some matters of policy."

Mr. Harkness did not attend the Diefenbaker rally in Calgary because of a speaking engagement elsewhere.

ELECTED IN 1945

Mr. Harkness, former farmer, high school teacher and a George Medal winner for military bravery, was elected in Calgary East in 1945 and in Calgary South in 1952 following redistribution.

He scored an easy victory in 1957 following Diefenbaker.

He scored an easy victory in 1963 when he stood for nuclear arms for Canada in the important thing, he says. He will rely on past strategy, "canvassing, personal contact, door-to-door calls by myself," speaking engagements at clubs and coffee parties.

Mr. Harkness, 62, was born in Toronto but came West and graduated from the University of Alberta with a bachelor of arts degree. He farmed and taught school in the Red Deer area and moved to Calgary in 1939. He was a high school teacher in the 1930s for 10 years. A reserved, almost shy man, he is married and has one son.

A lieutenant - colonel in the army during the Second World War, he won the George Medal in the rescue of men trapped aboard a torpedoed ship bound for Sicily. He became defence minister in October, 1960, after holding posts as northern affairs and agriculture minister.

In the 1963 election, he piled up 21,834 votes against 15,256 for Social Credit's Bob Simpson, now a member of the Alberta legislature. Liberal Marion Lane had 14,210 and the NDP's Everett Baldwin had 4,772.

This election he faces G. Nelson Weston, a Calgary insurance man and former Social Credit organizer in Ontario; Liberal Adrian Berry, Calgary businessman and trust company executive, and NDP candidate Ian Adam, University of Alberta, Calgary, professor.

Rhodesia Defames

At a press conference Monday, at which he announced the rejection of Wilson's proposal for a Commonwealth mission, Smith was asked about plans for a unilateral declaration of independence.

He replied: "I believe we have made up our minds, and you can put two and two together and get the answer to what our decision will be."

Observers took this as an obvious indication that the Rhodesian leader had decided to seize independence unilaterally.

After rejecting the British prime minister's proposal for Commonwealth mediation, Smith told Wilson "think again."

BEING LESS THAN FAIR

"It is evident you have already lobbied all the other Commonwealth countries on the problem of our independence and, being taken their views, I suggest you are being less than fair to us to ask them to sit in judgment upon the Rhodesian case."

Smith insisted he was anxious to avoid strife with his close African neighbors. Any break with Zambia, formerly Northern Rhodesia, would not be caused by Rhodesian action, he said.

He added that he had written Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda saying that if Rhodesia declared independence it would not break off its joint services with Zambia, which include railways, airlines and operation of the giant Kariba Dam with its huge hydroelectric output.

compete on a price-value basis both at home and abroad. The attraction is more than the foreign sales volume, it is also the fundamental fact that if a Canadian product is not competitive abroad there is no assurance that it will remain competitive at home."

He asked industry to consider its responsibility to the national economy, since many of the capital goods being bought in the current expansion boom are imported.

This had reduced Canada's favorable trade balance to $2,000,000 at the end of July compared with $303,000,000 a year earlier and there were valid reasons why capital import could not be relied on indefinitely to protect foreign reserves.

He also said Canadian industries now operating are facing a direct challenge.

DEMAND IS HIGH

"With demand running high at present, there is little evidence that the heavy capital spending program is leading to over - capacity of plants and equipment.

"The real test however will come in 1966 and 1967 . . . when consumer spending together with exports will have to be at much higher levels to ensure full utilization of the new productive capacity."

The delegates approved resolutions calling for maintenance of the value of the Canadian dollar at or near its present level and deploring the grant to some provinces of preferential treatment to local suppliers.

Another resolution expressed alarm and concern that the government has not reviewed the tax policies "to enable Canadian producers to compete more effectively in export markets."

Delegates deleted a clause that referred to the 11-per-cent sales tax on capital equipment as a deterrent to investment in new machinery. They agreed that, in view of the shaky increase in expense now going on, the tax is having little deterrent effect—but noted it could become a serious factor if Canada's economic boom slows down.

Dief Charges Deals Made 'Under Table'

By DAVE McINTOSH

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Conservative Leader Diefenbaker returned to the theme of federal - provincial relations here Monday night and said the Liberal government is chiselling away at Confederation.

He told a packed auditorium crowd of some 1,200, at least a quarter of whom had to stand that the "trouble started" when Mr. Pearson, soon after becoming prime minister, said Canada is two nations.

No other Liberal prime minister had ever said Canada was not one nation, or that provinces had the right to make treaties or that any province could opt out of a national plan.

"Pearsonian liberalism is the denial of what all great Liberals have stood for," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He said if the provinces are raised to the status of associate states "you will have a Canada with 11 sovereign governments in greater or lesser degree."

"When that day comes," he added, "this nation will never hold together."

He charged that "deals have been made under the table" before federal-provincial conferences were held under the auspices of the Liberal government.

Mr. Diefenbaker said his proposed $25-a-month increase in old-age pensions to $100 would cost $300,000,000 and not $850,000,000 as stated by Mr. Pearson from behind his ramparts of mimeograph machines in Ottawa.

On the Canada-United States auto agreement, he asked why, if the agreement had been so effective, Canadian production of cars was down 8.4 per cent in September from the corresponding period last year.

Today Mr. Diefenbaker visits Sudbury and Capreol and addresses an evening meeting in Pembroke. His Air Canada charter flight to Sudbury was diverted to North Bay in the early hours today because of fog.

The plane took off from Fort William in fog and was unable to land at Sudbury. It made it into North Bay about 20 minutes before the fog rolled in there.

Douglas Wants Details of New Agreement

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — National Leader T. C. Douglas of the New Democratic Party says the federal Liberal government should publish complete details of an agreement by which Cape Breton coal mines would get $25,000,000 in federal aid.

Mr. Douglas, waving clippings of a Financial Post article by Clyde Baxter, told a crowd of about 1,500 Monday night there were alleged details in "small print" concerning the agreement with the Dominion Coal Co. about which the public should be told before the Nov. 8 election and not after."

He was referring to a federal announcement that $25,000,000 would be injected into the Nova Scotia coal industry—mainstay of the Cape Breton economy—for opening a new mine and improvements to existing collieries.

He quoted the article as saying pithead prices of coal would be reduced to $9.50 a ton from $12 and that coal production would be held at its present level of 4,500,000 tons a year.

Subventions on transportation to central Canadian markets also would be reduced by $3,000,000 annually until they were entirely eliminated, he said, and a 50-cent-a-ton tariff against United States coal coming into Canada would be dropped.

Mr. Douglas then turned to a clipping from the Financial Times which he said disclosed improvements and automation in Dominion Coal Co. mines would reduce employment to 4,500 men from 6,000.

"I'm giving the Liberal government a chance to publish in full the details of the agreement with Dominion Coal Co.," a subsidiary of Dominion Steel and Coal Corp., the NDP leader said.

Royal Couple Intends to See Many Centres

NEW YORK (AP)—Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowden intend to see all the tourist attractions they can cram into their three-week tour of the United States next month.

The royal couple begin the tour with a 50-minute stopover at New York's Kennedy Airport Nov. 4.

After a quick round of official greetings, they will set out for San Francisco, Los Angeles, Tucson, Ariz., Washington, and back to New York for a week before returning home Nov. 24 via Bermuda.

Like any travellers, they will head for the Empire State Building on one shore, Hollywood on the other, and the Smithsonian Institution and a few other spots in between.

Like any royal travellers, they will be greeted by mayors wherever they stop, dine with President Johnson at the White House and Secretary-General U Thant at the United Nations, and make the round of balls and t---

But they also are leaving themselves plenty of free time to wander, as their itinerary, released Monday, makes evident.

Man Charged With Murder in Stabbing Death

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Harold Lamb, 42, was charged with non-capital murder Monday in the stabbing death of 45-year-old William Beecroft here Saturday night.

Lamb will remain in police custody until his court appearance next week.

When Beecroft was found on a bench at the back of a ramshackle dwelling, he had a stab wound in his groin and was bleeding profusely. He was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

Police took possession of knives, beer and wine bottles found in the house.

Thomson Once Reported to Have Said "For Enough Money I'd Live in Hell"

LONDON (CP) — A new biography on Lord Thomson quotes him as once having said to his wife: "For enough money, I'd live in hell."

Biographer Russell Braddon says the Canadian-born publisher and his wife, Edna, often quarrelled over money—not because Edna was not getting enough, but too much.

"Look," Edna is quoted as once having said to her hard-driving, unrelenting husband, "you've got all this money—why do you need any more?"

"Well," responded Thomson, "you like to go to Florida for the winter—To, have the best doctors and things. I can't afford it."

"You'll put a burden on poor Ken," she would say, referring to the heavy responsibility of controlling a vast publishing empire that would

Or she would switch her attack, saying "You'd live anywhere for money." And less tolerant than usual, he would snap: "Sure, for enough money, I'd live in hell."

The quotes are contained in Braddon's biography Roy Thomson of Fleet Street published Monday. Edna Thomson died of cancer in Florida in early 1952 and something went out of Thomson's life.

"There doesn't seem anything left to live for," he was quoted as telling his children Ken, Irma and Audrey. The early months of 1952 were bleak and soon work became everything to Thomson. His craving for more newspapers knew no bounds and with it a thirst for a British title, for which he pushed with equal zeal.

New Extension Is Proposed

WOODSTOCK (CP) — A $15,000,000 extension to Highway 403 running west from Brantford will be started within the next three years, Highways Minister Charles S. McNaughton said Monday night.

He said the 20½-mile extension will extend to a junction of the Macdonald-Cartier Highway near Eastwood and the Towerline Road in East Oxford Township.

KILLED CATS, FINED

ROME (AP) — The superintendent of antiquities was fined $102 in a Rome court Saturday for killing stray cats in the ruins of the Diocletian thermal baths. The judge said Professor Anton Luigi Pietrogrande used "unorthodox methods" to kill the cats, but did not say what they were. Stray cats have wandered through the baths and other ancient Roman ruins for centuries.

ON THE LIQUOR QUESTIONS IN THURLOW TOWNSHIP

CITIZENS OF THURLOW:
What Are The Issues?

The issue on October 20th is NOT whether Thurlow will be dry or wet because:

1. All citizens of Thurlow are able to purcnase alcoholic beverages conveniently in Belleville.
2. The same citizens can frequent dining lounges just as conveniently.

THE ISSUES THEN ARE:

1. Are we willing to turn down good tax dollars from potential enterprizes that would require the dining lounge licence.
2. The present laws discriminate upon present establishments in Thurlow that require a licence to compete with similar establishments in Belleville.
3. Has any citizen the right to tell his fellow man that he can or cannot drink.

Frightened Husband Plays Brotherly Role

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I can't possibly discuss this with anyone who knows me or my husband. Robert is a prominent businessman and he'd be furious if this got out.

We are both 41 years of age. Our children are high-achievers. Six months ago Robert's closest friend died suddenly of a heart attack. The man was only 43 years old. He had been a bachelor up until his 43rd birthday. He married a girl 22, and toppled over three months later. My husband insists sex is what killed him.

Robert and I have been living like brother and sister for six months and I'm sick of it. I bought exotic night gowns and fancy bed linen to attract his attention. He hasn't noticed a thing. Every night he sits in front of the TV and falls asleep in the chair.

Is it fair for him to expect a woman of 41 to settle for a sexless marriage? — NO SIGNATURE, NATURALLY.

* * *

DEAR NO: It appears that the death of your husband's friend has left him not only grief-stricken but also scared out of his wits. He needs to consult a doctor who will set him straight.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Betsy (not her real name) and her whole family are peculiar people. Since she married my brother (it's really another relative but let I'm saying brother to protect myself) we are thrown together often because they are great believers in families being close.

Betsy and her family speak Spanish (not the real language). Whenever we are together my folks and I sit there like outsiders because we don't understand what is being said.

We were raised in Georgia (it's really another state) where folk are hospitable and friendly. Is there any way we can let them know we feel uncomfortable when they speak a foreign language right in front of us? Maybe if they knew they'd cut it out. — POLLY (Not my real name.)

* * *

DEAR POLLY: It doesn't matter whether he's your brother, or whether the real estate is Alaska or the language is Swahili. Communication is more than words. It's a smile, a look in the eye and a warm feeling that doesn't get lost in the translation.

Instead of sitting there, smoldering, why not let them know you want to learn a few words of their language? Try to teach them some English. It would break the sound barrier and you'll all wind up liking each other better.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A group of us teen-agers got a talking about whether girls should telephone boys.

One of the girls said, "Ann Landers is against girls phoning boys for any reason, except, maybe an emergency. She has mentioned this in her column more than once."

I am a junior in high school and I don't understand why. Several of us would appreciate it if you'd print this letter and your answer. — WILLING TO LISTEN.

* * *

DEAR WILLING: I am opposed to girls telephoning boys just to shoot the breeze for the following reasons:

The girl who telephones a boy appears to be running after him. This never did a romance any good.

If the boy is shy a telephone call might embarrass him before members of his family. So, my advice: "Don't call him, girls. If he wants to talk, he'll call you."

* * *

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How to Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

WILL VISIT CANADA

OTTAWA (CP)—Sir Charles Maclean, chief scout of Britain and the Commonwealth, will visit Canada in 1967, at the invitation of the national council of the Boy Scouts of Canada, it was announced Monday. His visit will be just before or after the 10th world Jamboree at Farragut Park, Idaho, in August, 1967. This will be Sir Charles' first visit to Canada as chief scout.

Adherence to Principles Leaves Order Bloody But Unbowed on 75th Birthday

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The formidable powers of the Daughters of the American Revolution were indicated a few weeks ago when the manufacturer of a panty girdle called Stars 'n Stripes broke and ran.

The creation, known as pop pants and bearing printed stars and stripes, was termed by a DAR representative a "shocking caricature" of the American flag.

The manufacturer in shame-faced surrender said "we will burn the damn things" or send them to some foreign country where our flag isn't involved."

The Daughters of the American Revolution currently are celebrating their 75th anniversary—75 years of dedication to the goals of American history, education and patriotism.

Like the colonial revolutionaries from whom they claim descent, their adherence to principles leaves them at times bloody but unbowed.

The organization has about 185,000 members—four-fifths in the more mature category, but end says the 18 founding members met here Oct. 11, 1890, in a mood of pique because women had been barred from the Sons of the American Revolution, a male counterpart.

In any case, while the men's group still exists, it long since has lost any pretence of cutting a manly public figure. The DAR, which meets here in national assembly every year for deliberations that vary little.

CONDEMNS UN

The United Nations is condemned all round. The late Adlai Stevenson's elder sister resigned several years ago because the DAR would not support UNICEF, the children's fund.

The DAR opposed the limited nuclear test-ban treaty signed by the United States, Russia and Britain and says complete disarmament "can result only in a socialistic one world."

Mrs. William Sullivan, Jr., of Scarsdale, N.Y., president general, told a Senate committee earlier this year that legislation to remove racial discrimination from U.S. immigration contributes destruction of "our first line of defence in perpetuating our institution of freedom and the American way of life."

But while the DAR is assigned a position well in the right wing of the American political scene, and while no Negro has ever been approved for membership, it has its extensive programs of scholarships and other good works.

The DAR's relations with the White House have been correct but none too warm in recent years.

The DAR did not subscribe generally to the ideals of the late President Kennedy and pointedly refused a request from his wife for two antique chairs for the White House.

The DAR through special research once erected a President Johnson with a fighter of 1776—a French Huguenot named Robert Deshaye—and thereby opened the door to membership for his wife and two daughters. So far they have not moved to accept.

Mother's Helper

IN MY OWN FAMILY, we have avoided serious cases of colds, problems with an ounce of prevention! When a child is about two, we warn him against grease foods and other poor diet items. Encourage him to develop the habit of washing his face several times a day. At the first signs of bad complexion, consult your doctor. There are excellent medicated soaps available today. Remember—if you start young, you may have no problem at all! (Thank you to Mrs. Francis Gafney, Santa Marie, Calif.)

WEDDING

SPORRING — MORGAN

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Tweed, was the scene of the recent marriage of Reta Grace Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morgan of Tweed and Peter Eric Sporring, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jens Christian Sporring of Maxville.

The Reverend Toner of Madoc performed the ceremony and was assisted by the Reverend Sinclair of Smith's Falls. Mr. Ewan Morton played the wedding music and the soloist was Mrs. Clifford Wannamaker.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of imported velvet with fitted bodice and lily-point sleeves, designed and made by herself. Her bouffant elbow-length veil was held by a diamond tiara and she carried a heart shaped bouquet of yellow roses and white carnations.

The bride's attendants wore dresses fashioned in a style similar to the bride's. They were Mrs. K. Yarrow of Crookston, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, who wore gold velvet, Mrs. R. D. Pattison of Ottawa, Miss Linda Morgan of Tweed and Miss Karen Yarrow of Crookston as bridesmaids, all dressed in Pacific green velvet. They wore matching wedding ring headdresses and carried cascade bouquets of bronze mums.

Mr. Carl Morgan, brother of the bride, was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Gerald Morgan of Port Hope, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Henry Larson of Toronto, uncle of the bridegroom. Kevin and James Yarrow of Crookston, nephews of the bride, acted as ring-bearers.

At the reception held in the church hall in Tweed, the Reverend Sinclair was master of ceremonies to receive the guests, the bride's mother wore a blue dress with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of red roses. As the bridegroom's parents were unable to attend, his aunt, Mrs. J. Gray of Ottawa assisted in receiving the guests.

On their return, the couple will live at 91 Spencer Avenue, Toronto.

Child Development Topic of Lecture By Psychologist

A sense of trust is the most important gift a parent can give his child, according to child psychologist Richard Shooter.

"During the first 18 months of his life, a child learns whether or not to trust himself to the adult world. Rejection by his mother at this time is often the cause of personality problems in later life," Mr. Shooter told a group of 70 parents attending the first lecture of the series "Meet your school aged child," held Monday evening in Education Hall at Belleville General Hospital. The series is sponsored by the Belleville branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association, whose president, Mrs. Janette Thompson, introduced and thanked the speaker.

Mr. Shooter drew on his experience as a psychologist at St. Michael's Hospital and a consultant with the Metropolitan Toronto Children's Aid Society to illustrate his remarks.

"Normal behavior ranges across a wide spectrum," he said. "Ninety per cent of the children whose behavior exceeds the normal range learned to act that way at an early stage of development. They can change, because what is learned can be unlearned if re-education is begun soon enough."

SEVEN STAGES

Mr. Shooter outlined the seven stages of normal personality development that are common to the children in all cultures.

A child learns a sense of trust during his first 18 months. "A baby has a built-in radar that can detect love or lack of it in those who care for him," the psychologist said. "Consistency should be the by-word in the relationship of parents and children in this stage."

From the age of 18 months to three and one half years the child develops an awareness of his individuality and becomes wilfull. By the time he is five or six he gains a sense of initiative, a primitive need to do things — to begin projects which he never finishes. He has an active imagination and learns the difference between right and wrong.

Between the ages of six and 11, children acquire the sense of duty, industry and accomplishment. Most children love to learn and enjoy their first two years in school. But school work becomes a chore if it is improperly taught.

"Teaching machines used at this time motivate the child to better learning, because they give him instant results for his efforts, whether he is right or wrong," Mr. Shooter explained. "Waiting for results retards learning."

SENSE OF IDENTITY

With adolescence comes the sense of identity and the child finds out who he really is. By his mid-teens the young person learns to accept and love himself and finally to love members of the opposite sex. The last stage of development comes in the late teens and early 20's, when the sense of integrity and responsibility unfolds, and the individual is ready to accept parenthood.

In summarizing his remarks, Mr. Shooter added, "Encouragement and guidance are as essential as love for the development of a healthy personality."

The next lecture in the CIMA subscription series will be held Monday evening in Education Hall, when the speaker will be Jack McDonald of the School of Social Work in Toronto.

Woman Runs Hotel on Upper Amazon

LETICIA, Colombia (AP) — Marcy Elden agrees that it takes some kind of a nut to want to run a hotel on the upper Amazon.

Mrs. Elden is proprietor of the 10-room Hotel Victoria Regia in this jungle outpost.

She is perhaps the only woman innkeeper along the muddy 1,200-mile stretch of the Amazon between Iquitos, Peru, and Manaus, Brazil, and surely the most adventurous.

"I feel like the western pioneers must have 75 years ago," she says. "This country is virtually untouched except that here we have the airplane instead of the covered wagon."

The petite brunette from Laguna Beach, Calif., came up the Amazon two years ago with a crew shooting a documentary film, liked what she saw and stayed.

What she saw was the Victoria Regia, built by the Colombian government a several decades ago. It was named for a jungle water lily which reaches the size of manhole covers, and it was falling apart.

Wild animals roamed through the rooms, cobwebs barred the doors, and when the guests there were strung hammocks outside on the long verandа.

OBTAINS CONTRACT

Mrs. Elden got a five-year management contract from the government and promptly got down with taste of tropical hotel headaches.

Although the Amazon flows at her doorstep, fresh water is rationed, Electricity provided by a Colombian gunboat, is available only during evening hours.

Guests are the uninvited animals and cobwebs, and in came beds, a dining room and kitchen, and a pleasant bar where today the upper Amazon's elite meet in a rustic atmosphere at the jungle's edge.

Wild animals still grace the Victoria Regia, but only those limited by the management.

Parrots, monkeys and a giant rhinoceros beetle have lodged at the Victoria Regia. Among more recent guests have been two ocelot kittens, miniature tigers which alternately hiss and purr their affection.

Infrequent airline service provides the hotel with most of its guests. Occasional river steamers bring a few others—scientists studying such things as orchids and jungle spiders, adventurers and Brazilian and Peruvian salesmen.

Church Gourds

FULL GOSPEL W.M.C

FRANKFORD — On Thursday evening Frankford Full Gospel Women's Missionary Council met at the church. President, Mrs. E. Stronse welcomed all the members. Mrs. Paul Spurrell gave the treasurer's report and Mrs. Lonnie Reilly gave the secretarial report. Letters of thanks were read for gifts of money sent for gospel literature distribution in Africa and China.

Mrs. Stronse brought a Bible-message. The remainder of the evening was spent in packaging Sunday School literature for the mission field in the West Indies.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

* * *

Mrs. William Tenner of St. Catharines was a guest at the 60th wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Seldon R. Homan on Sunday. She was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Burle Summers, R. R. 7, Belleville and will spend this week with her niece, Mrs. Sheldon R. Homan.

MENU Magic

from the TEST KITCHEN

Successful Party-Makers

Hot canapes and crunchy little nibblers may not "make" the party, but they do help to get things off on the right foot. We can't imagine making them without several kinds of Canadian cheese to speed up the job and make them a real flavor treat.

Potted Cheese

Quick Trick

For another quick and easy cracker spread, beat a package of pimiento or chive Cream Cheese until fluffy. Then, blend in very finely-chopped ripe olives and some slightly crushed capers.

Broiler Treat

Hot canapes must be toasted at the last minute—there's just no getting around it. However, many fillings can be made ahead, and spread on bread rounds all ready for the broiler. One of our favorites combines shredded Mild Cheddar Cheese, ("old" gives best flavor) mayonnaise and a dash of Worcestershire sauce. Remember to cover leftovers with clear wrap or foil and store in the frig. on cookie sheets, until ready to bake.

More from the Oven

While you're doing the advance preparation, here's another hot canape that's a nice made with rye bread for a change. Cut the bread into circles with a biscuit cutter and spread with well-seasoned cream cheese. To season the cream cheese add dill, celery salt, thyme, paprika, snipped parsley or chives, or any combination thereof—along with salt and pepper, of course. Over the cheese goes a thin slice of onion and finally a topping of mayonnaise. Broil until lightly browned, keeping a watchful eye so they don't burn.

Nutty Sandwiches

Use salted nuts, sandwiched together with creamy fillings, to fill in any little holes on your party tray. For salted pecans, mix together three tablespoons Cream Cheese with two tablespoons anchovy paste. With walnut halves try equal parts, Blue Cheese and soft butter.

Midget Cheese Balls

Cream Cheese, devilled ham and horseradish make a happy trio. Form into small balls and roll in toasted sesame seeds or snipped parsley. Serve them with pretty party picks, so they'll be easy to eat.

U.C.W. Meetings

DESERONTO U.C.W.

DESERONTO — The meeting of the evening group of the U.C.W. of Deseronto United Church was held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. L. Tunnicliffe. Sixteen members and four visitors were present.

The president, Mrs. J. Gould, gave the call to worship and Mrs. L. Tunnicliffe led the devotional, the Thanksgiving theme.

The members were reminded of the home baking and rummage sale to be held November 6 in Dawson's showroom. Mrs. H. Aylesworth and Mrs. S. Knapp were chosen to act on a nominating committee to select officers for next year. A letter was received from Mrs. R. Kemp thanking the members who helped with the C.N.I.B. canvass. A letter was received from Mr. L. Clement, a resident of Hastings Manor, thanking the U.C.W. for the church bulletin which he receives each week. Mrs. R. Symmills donated flowers for the altar on anniversary Sunday. Members were asked to attend the Presbyterial rally which will be held October 27 at Empey Hill. Mrs. S. Knapp gave a report on the manse. Reverend and Mrs. Finley donated drapes for the living room and aluminum storm windows for the one bedroom. The dining room set from the manse will be sold, as the minister has obtained one of his own. A request was placed for cupboards in the bathroom.

Mrs. H. Transue read the first Thanksgiving Proclamation of the U.S.A.

Mrs. P. Van Vlack, Mrs. H. Van Vlack and Mrs. W. Wood will form the committee to prepare the November meeting.

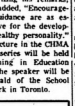
Husband's Internment Has No Significance

DEAR DORIS: I have just learned that my German husband was in an internment camp in Canada during the war, which was long before I met him. This has me very upset. I can't make enquiries locally, because he is well known. Where can I find out whether my wars has taken against many British civilians in Germany.



DORIS CLARK

DEAR UPSET: Calm your fears. Internement of many persons whose only crime was being born German was routine during the war. The internments were unfortunate and generally a result of the hysteria which comes in wartime.

Since your husband is a successful business man, he will already have had his record investigated under routine credit procedures. Obviously he has had no trouble in this connection — further evidence of a clean slate.

Confidential to UNTRUSTING: Make up your mind. Part of accepting an apology is to forget, as well as forgive. It is anguish for you to keep thinking about the times your husband fooled you; anguish for him too. It takes two to make a marriage work, and right now your thoughts should be on improving your companionship towards a more satisfying future.

Laurel Lodge Installation Service Held

STIRLING — Sister Joyce Fisher, District Deputy President of Bellecon District No. 4 and her staff of officers from Crescent Lodge in Thomasburg, conducted an impressive installation service on Friday evening at the I.O.O.F. lodge hall in Stirling when the new officers for Laurel Rebekah Lodge, No. 211, were installed.

Noble Grand Sister Helen Hulin was in charge of the opening of lodge and Sister Nina Neal was soloist with Sister Gladys Sine as musician.

Sister Gladys Sine escorted D.D.P. Foster to the dais and the guard of honor made the presentation of six long stemmed white 'mums to the guest.

Sister Ethel Duffin escorted District Deputy Grand Master of Madoc District, No. 85, Bro. Wesley Farrell of Thomasburg, to the dais.

RECEIVES BADGE

At the beginning of the installation ceremony, Sister Fisher presented Sister Hulin with her P.N.G. badge from Laurel Lodge and she was escorted to the chair by P.N.G.

The incoming Noble Grand, Sister Lillian Johnson, was presented with a corsage by Sister Neva Vandervoort, a gift from her husband and family.

The central theme was an open Bible surrounded with red roses.

A special ceremony depicting Crescent Lodge was carried but by Sisters Elinor Ray, Noble Grand of Thomasburg lodge and Libby Marriette, Lillian McTaggart, Marion Smith Seekings and Joyyce Latchford.

District Deputy President Sister Joyce Fisher gave a brief address and Sisters Olive Thompson and Dorothy Flindall presented her with a gift. District Deputy Grand Master, Brother Wesley Farrell, spoke briefly, as did Sisters Elinor Ray, Olive Whitehead and Helen Hulin.

At the close of lodge, Sister Bessie Patterson and her committee served luncheon in the dining hall which was tastefully decorated in the Thanksgiving theme.

Korean Girl Weds Canadian Army Sergeant

SEOUL (AP) — A Canadian Army sergeant serving here has married a Korean girl in a truly International wedding at a Roman Catholic church in Seoul.

The bridegroom was Sgt. Joseph R. Plourde, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emile Plourde, live in La Tuque, Que.

The bride was Kim Tap-ok, who first met Sgt. Plourde during his first tour in Korea from 1962 to 1963.

At their wedding, a British Army sergeant was best man and an American sergeant was godfather to the bride. The wedding guests included Turkish, Thai, Korean, British and American soldiers.

Plourde, a career soldier with 12 years' service, is the aide to Maj. Gordon M. Logan, Canadian liaison officer to the United Nations command in Korea. They are the only Canadian military men serving in the Republic of Korea.

Plourde now is serving his second tour at his own request.

MILLIONS WATCH BIRDS

The bird guides of Roger Tory Peterson have sold nearly 2,000,000 copies in the United States and Canada.

TWO SWEDISH TEA RINGS

Two Swedish Tea Rings that would serve 25 people amply were made by me at a cost of approximately 45c or 50c They were huge and beautiful and delicious.

I wanted to send one in to a neighbor's buffet party, which I could not attend, and one to take (like Grandma from the farm) to Pete and Margy on my weekend visit.

If you want to save money and appear to be an accomplished cook and invite a crowd in for the evening, these Swedish Tea Rings fill the triple bill. I started the dough just before I went to bed at night and let it rise overnight. It can be made and finished in the daytime.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Barbecued Spareribs; Potatoes in Parsley Cream Sauce; Spinach; Cabbage and Celery Salad; Boiled Dressing; Plum Pudding (see Monday); Fresh Dairy Sour Cream; Coffee.

SWEDISH TEA RINGS (2 from one package of granular yeast):

Dough: 1 package granular yeast, ½ cup lukewarm water, 1½ cups milk, scalded, ¾ cup sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, ¾ cup shortening, 7 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 eggs.

Filling: 4 tablespoons butter, 1 cup sugar, 4 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 cup raisins (or ½ cup raisins and ½ cup peel).

Topping: 6 maraschino cherries, sliced whole pecans or ½ cup chopped walnuts.

Scald milk. Soak yeast in lukewarm water 10 minutes, then stir. Meanwhile sift and measure flour. Pour scalded milk into large mixing bowl and add sugar, salt and shortening. Let stand until lukewarm. Add yeast liquid and 2 cups of the flour and beat well. Add eggs and beat. Add all but ½ cup of remaining flour and mix in as well as you can. Turn out on board floured with remaining ½ cup flour and knead 200 times. Return to bowl, brush top with butter or shortening, cover and let rise in cool kitchen overnight (or until doubled if you start this in the morning). In the morning turn dough out on floured board and knead 50 times. Divide in two. Roll out one half to 20 x 10" rectangle. Spread with half of the butter and sprinkle evenly with half of the 1 cup amount of sugar, half of the cinnamon and half of the raisins (or peel). Now roll up the dough starting at long side, stretching the roll a little to make it uniform. Mine was 28" long. Transfer to greased large baking sheet and shape into a ring, tucking one end inside the other to make a firm joint. With greased scissors make cuts 2/3 way through ring at about 1" intervals. I made 22 cuts. Turn each cut portion on its side to partially expose filling.

Repeat rolling out, filling and rolling up and shaping with remaining half of dough and place it on another large greased baking sheet. Let both rise 2½ hours. Bake at 375 deg. F. 35 minutes, switching pans on shelves at halftime. Be sure they are well baked and golden. Loosen them on the pans while hot to avoid sticking. When cool frost with Plain White Icing: Mix together about 3 cups sifted icing sugar and 3 or 4 tablespoons milk or cream or evaporated milk until of spreading consistency. Ice over top of Rings and dot top at random with sliced cherries and nuts. Make them now and also make your cooking reputation.

Women's Institutes

MARMORA W.I.

MARMORA — Marmora branch, Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. P. J. O'Neill on Forsythe Street, for the October meeting.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. George Dempsey. There were eight members and two visitors present.

Correspondence was read and delegates named for the area convention. The president requested that as many as possible attend for one day.

An invitation was received from Wellman's branch, who will celebrate their 60th anniversary on November 17th.

Mrs. Green read a letter from a former member now in Alberta, and also reported on public relations for the month.

It was decided that a bazaar be held in November.

A social hour was enjoyed with Mrs. Ethel Nobes and Mrs. Ada Sweet as conveners. A contest was won by Mrs G Empey. Miss Green Warren read a paper on Thanksgiving and Mrs. Frank O'Neill won the draw.

Susanna's Family Fare

OVER THE BAR

Dear Susanna: After washing my white fabric girdle should be airdried inside and out. The air won't circulate if it is laid on a towel or over the line — and clothespins tend to mark and weaken the rubber.

The ideal way for anyone with a similar problem is to fasten the four garters right over the bar of a metal clothes hanger and put the whole thing up to dry. A narrow strip of cloth or clear plastic along the bar first, will prevent any possible rusting. — J. J.

Haven't a single snappy comeback left — just remember to always close the zipper before washing. — SUSANNA

DOUBLES BROOM LIFE

Dear Susanna: My mother always cut about 12 inches off the top of a discarded cotton or woollen stocking, folded it in three (like a large elastic band) and slid it over the handle and halfway down the broom. It lasts twice as long as it would otherwise. — Mrs. Wm. Cherry.

O.K. students, let's roll out the world. — SUSANNA

Don't be afraid to use plenty of salt in cooking. Add just enough water to the shell to keep the flower fresh. — Marie Bordeaux

Oo-la-la! SUSANNA

NOW YOU SEE IT

Dear Susanna: The large blinds from my living room window were put away carefully when we installed our drapes — now I have an excellent purpose for them: use them for rolling up wall-size maps in a child's room. (My husband fastened the blind brackets to the moulding in an inconspicuous spot.)

The maps can be taped, cemented or stapled on. The blind itself is a wonderful backing, the spring makes it easy to roll up and down, and the weight keeps it there. — Mrs. Wm. Cherry.

Compulsory Cancer Checks By Government Advocated

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — "Governments, with one stroke of a pen, could prevent deaths from cancer," A. Dickson Wright of London said Monday. "They could forbid the sale of tobacco and alcohol, but they would rob themselves of a source of revenue."

He was discussing the role of government in cancer control at the opening of a five-day international cancer conference for volunteers. Delegates from 22 countries are attending the meeting.

Mr. Wright, honorary treasurer of the Imperial Cancer Society, told delegates governments should make cancer checks compulsory for everyone and assist in finding ways to make early diagnosis possible.

"They should improve the education of the public and the medical profession. The medical profession have great opportunities to discover cancer, but they are not sufficiently aware of them."

He added there is a danger of creating cancerphobia with scare publicity.

"Many suicides after 60 are due to fear of cancer.

"They could control the people treating cancer. England has an act which makes it a punishable offence for the unqualified to treat it, but there is always room for the qualified quack."

REQUESTS AID

Dr. O. H. Warwick of London, Ont., said governments should pay for costly diagnosis and treatment centres. He said a radio-therapy centre costs millions of dollars to build.

He said governments should play a greater role in financing research. The cancer society and the Cancer Institute of Canada, of which he is president, now are the main sources of funds here.

Opening a session on the role of voluntary agencies in cancer control, K. A. Gardner of Toronto said:

"The true function of a voluntary agency is to fill the gap between what is needed and what is available."

Mr. Gardner, vice-president and chairman of the executive committee of the Canadian Cancer Society, said 47 countries have united to fight cancer.

The conference arose out of a suggestion from the Ontario division, Canadian Cancer Society. A committee headed by Carl B. French of Toronto raised $17,000 in Canada to make it possible.

ACCEPT CANCER STUDY

About 62,000 women in Oslofold, Norway, participated in a program to detect cancer of the uterus. Three hundred malignant tumors were found and 251 safely removed.

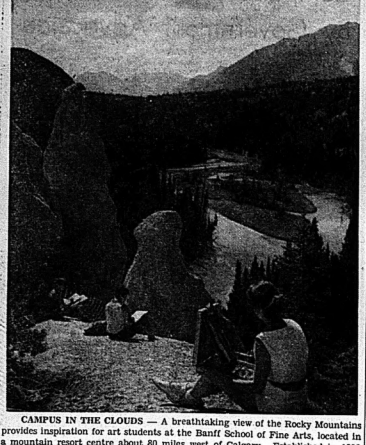
"You Don't Pay More For Quality — Because Quality Pays For Itself"



CAMPUS IN THE CLOUDS — A breathtaking view of the Rocky Mountains provides inspiration for art students at the Banff School of Fine Arts, located in a mountain resort centre about 80 miles west of Calgary. Established in 1933 with fewer than 100 students it now handles more than 20,000 a year in courses ranging from art, theatre, ballet, music to advanced business management.

Banff Fine Arts School Product of Modest Start

By DON MacLACHLAN

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — "What this country needs is not a good five-cent cigar but an honest-to-goodness theatrical training centre."

The remark was made 23 years ago by Leonard W. Brockington, then city solicitor and drama critic in Calgary, later the CBC's first president, and a member of the Canada Council.

He and two other adjudicators were relaxing in a hotel in Lethbridge after the Alberta Drama League Festival in 1932.

One of the other judges is said to have added:

"Amen. And the place to hold it is Banff."

And so was born the idea for the Banff School of Fine Arts, which panhandled its way through discarded beds and prison camp huts to become a $5,529,000 campus handling more than 20,000 students a year.

By 1932, the first phase of prairie settlement and its physical challenges were over. The people of Alberta had time to turn to recreation, to music, theatre and art.

The University of Alberta's radio station, CKUA, attempted to meet the demand. But Shakespeare by loudspeaker wasn't the same as the stage. Paintings couldn't be broadcast. And students couldn't be trained.

ESTABLISHED CAMPUS

In August, 1933, the university's extension department established the "campus in the clouds" at Banff, a resort centre in the Rocky Mountains 80 miles west of Calgary.

The fewer than 100 students lived where they could for the summer school. Many slept in tents. Classes in acting, dancing and makeup were held in Banff schoolrooms rented for a nominal fee.

It was, agrees Senator Donald Cameron, director since the school's early days, a "modest start." But the shoestring held. Enrolment soared and more courses were added. From summer school grew a 10-month operation.

Now adult education draws 10 times as many students as the arts classes. The school has gained prestige in both fields and its staff lists approach the level of a Who's Who in arts and academic subjects.

"Continuing education in all forms, which includes the fine arts, is rapidly becoming the most important aspect of education," says Senator Cameron, acknowledged as a Senate expert on education.

"At present, the 35- or 40-hour week is standard. . . . What do you do when it gets to be a one-hour week? That's when continuing education becomes important, not just for recreation but as a social necessity."

LIVED IN HUTS

But such things as the Banff School of Advanced Management weren't on the list in 1933 when the school decided it could squeeze a painting course as well as drama from a $10,000 Carnegie Corporation grant.

Ten years later, enrolment had reached 427 and another 150 students were turned away. Many lived in huts from a camp at Ozada, Alta., which had housed German war prisoners captured in Africa.

Then what Senator Cameron calls the "panhandler's progress"—of donations, grants and what the expanding university could spare—brought the school to where it pays 89 per cent of its operating costs.

Since it was established, it has collected donations totalling almost $5,059,000. Now it is seeking a further $3,000,000 for expansion.

Senator Cameron studied Denmark's "folk high school" system during a research tour of Europe in 1933 and adapted the idea as the basis for the school's art division.

To date, he says, "at least a dozen of the permanent cast of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival got their start here."

And the school has produced several well-known figures in other fields of fine arts.

At the end of each summer session in the arts division, charter buses take the school's drama, ballet, opera and musical productions through Alberta, British Columbia and the northwestern United States.

Industries send employees to the administration and business courses. The school also is used for academic conventions, educational seminars and scientific conferences.

From tents and 100 students grew a 41-acre campus and expected enrolment of 20,000 in the 1965-66 academic year. An annual operating budget of $7,500 became $1,000,000.

And from a low-budget scholarship program started in 1935 to "advertise" the fledgling campus developed a program of scholarships worth about $38,000 a year.

A student's painting of Senator Cameron hangs in the administration building, away from the school's extensive art collection. It bears a plaque engraved with a quotation he often uses. It reads:

"Make no small plans; they hold no magic to stir men's blood."

Nuclear Power Reactors For Peaceful Purposes Can Now Be Sold to Reds

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — Diplomatic sources and British informants disclosed Monday night a secret decision authorizing sales of nuclear power reactors, for peaceful purposes only, to Communist countries of East Europe.

The decision was reported to have been taken quietly last July by the Inter-Allied Co-Ordinating Committee, a little-known group known as COCOM. Members are all the 15 Atlantic Alliance countries, excepting Iceland, plus Japan.

If the move is followed by firm deals with interested countries such as Romania, Czechoslovakia and Poland, it could, in the British view, mark a multi-million - dollar breakthrough in trade relations between East and West. For years these relations have been subject to strict control of all goods with a war potential.

Informants said the COCOM decision was taken as a result of a British initiative, backed by the United States.

Four NATO countries, the United States, Canada, Britain and France, are both manufacturers and exporters of nuclear reactors.

STRESS SAFEGUARDS

The sources stressed that reactor sales would be permitted only to those Communist countries accepting the safeguards laid down by the International Atomic Energy Agency, headquartered in Vienna, to ensure that the generators and the plutonium they produce are not diverted to military use.

The safeguards include rights of on-site inspection by agency authorities.

A Communist country that buys a reactor also would be allowed supplies of uranium fuel and other necessary equipment.

British informants, in disclosing that sales of nuclear reactors to Communist countries no longer are embargoed, said that individual applications would be favorably considered subject to IAEA safeguards.

A major difficulty has been that Romania has shown an interest in the sort of nuclear reactors which produce the plutonium that goes into nuclear bombs.

But these officials also noted that Romania, as Yugoslavia, has proclaimed readiness to abide by IAEA safeguards and other rules.

Prime Minister Wilson and his cabinet also were portrayed as anxious to build up a sense of international confidence about the efficacy of the IAEA safeguards because these could in theory be applied in the wider field of disarmament.

In Ottawa, a government spokesman said Canada took part in the decision but none of the countries involved have made requests for Canadian-produced nuclear power reactors.

Several Items Cause Rise in Living Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — Cleanliest now and financial protection against unthinkable accident and sickness charges in the future are the biggest contributors to recent increases in living costs.

Compared with a year ago, the latest available official statistics show:

—It costs $264.90 to obtain the automobile insurance which a year ago cost $259.90.

—It costs $289.20 now to pay for the general medical care plan that a year ago cost $283.35.

—And toilet soap which cost 13 cents last year now costs more than 15 cents.

These are increases of more than 25 per cent, 13 per cent and 15 per cent respectively.

The figures don't indicate the costs of specific insurance policies or brands of soap, but are among the results of the bureau of statistics' monthly survey of prices for 300 goods and services most representative in the buying habits of city families.

The survey is taken late in every month to compile the bureau's consumer price index. The index was 126.4 in August, just a tenth of a point off from its 28-time peak. It later dropped three-tenths of a point to 139.1 last month.

With the ups and downs of prices for various items of food stuffs, the August food index meant that it cost $21.78 for a sack of groceries which could be purchased a year ago for $21.51. This is an increase of two per cent.

And in August this year, the combined cost of owning or renting a house or an apartment, along with fuel, electricity, home furnishings and supplies was less than two per cent higher than a year ago.

Taj Mahal Beautiful Beyond All Expectation Canadian Visitor Finds

This is the third of a series of articles by Lavonia Stockelbach. A frequent visitor to Belleville, Mrs. Stockelbach has travelled widely and contributed many articles to The Intelligencer on her visits overseas. Recently she made a world tour by plane, in the course of which she visited India with a party of Canadian ornithologists.

By LAVONIA STOCKELBACH

Rarely does the sight of anything of great renown impress one with the much heralded enchantment of its exquisite beauty. But the monument to Mumtaz Mahal, wife of the Emperor Shah Jehan, proved to be beyond all expectations.

It happened that the window of my hotel looked towards the famous building. It also happened that a fortunate sleepless night permitted the sight of the many changing tints from late until earliest dawn; incredibly delicate shades followed one after another until the bright sunlight revealed the full glory of the marble tomb.

Another bit of good luck was that the guide was an archaeologist—who seemed to know and love every square inch of it and of its story of the river Jamuna and the surrounding country. So many scores of pictures and descriptions can be found that it is not necessary to add to the list, except perhaps for a few refreshers.

Architects and designers from India, Turkey and Persia were called in to plan a worthy edifice. Masons from Delhi, calligraphers from Syria and Baghdad, 40 of them, along with 20,000 workmen, labored for ten years. Diamonds, pearls, garnets, sapphires, emeralds, topaz, to say nothing of the various marbles, sandstone, malachite from Russia, lapis lazuli from Ceylon, turquoise from Tibet, coral, onyx, 40 kinds of precious and semi-precious stones all told, were used in the construction.

At one of the gates is the tomb of a lady-in-waiting to the Empress; at the eastern gate is the tomb of another of the wives of the Emperor Shah Jehan. At the western gate was still another of his wives and nearby the tomb of the governess to his much beloved and faithful daughter, Jehan Ara.

No mazzin call has ever been heard from the four high minarets at the corners, but they are an attractive decoration that enhances the beauty of the design of the Taj Mahal. Such simple lines, enriched inside by hundreds of tiny inlays could pass unnoticed by one to those interested in silent details.

A poem by the Pathan warrior — poet, Khushal Khan, translated by Sir Evelyn Howell, Cambridge:

"Two things I prize
In me mine eyes
In all the world beside,
Where they have loveliness espied.
I prize that loveliness".

This writer is at one with that Pathan poet.

DETAILED CRAFTSMANSHIP

The guide had a fine flashlight — and we had time enough for me to see the construction of the flowers at the side of Mumtaz Mahal's cenotaph, not really of precious stones all of them, perhaps, but — so tiny the pieces that 20 were cut so as to fit in to each other exactly to show the shading of a little leaf. The petals of the flower and the stems had nothing to hold them together except that perfect fit. For this work no sort of modern tool was used, nor could be. No wonder it took so many thousands of hours to complete.

A flight of stairs leads aloft and at a certain spot an echo can be heard, to the huge delight of scores who reach it and yell. The hideous noise, constant all the time I was within the building, seemed like an awful sacrilege and I was glad to get out and walk along the high banks of the Jamuna river.

But the howlings brought to my mind the other and terrible stories of the history of India from the time of Hindu domination to the conquests of the Moslems. It is also impressive to recall that during the most warlike times such beautiful temples and mosques were built, lovely silks manufactured, exquisite paintings produced and some enduring literature written.

In the midst of so many conflicting elements the lack of continuity in the political life seems to have left the masses of the people times and interest and energy to create beauty. Early one evening while resting on the upper deck of our houseboat I watched a man seated in a tiny canoe below, close to a new floating island and doing some kind of embroidery. Never had I seen the human hand move with such speed and dexterity for I am used to the clumsiness of the North American hands. He was completely absorbed and perhaps did hear the singing bulbuls perched on the railing of the boat and perhaps did glance at the sunset and the white tops of the snowy Himalayas reflected in the surrounding water. There must have been many such oases in the time of this builder of the Taj Mahal.

CRUEL DYNASTY

Shah Jehan, who revolted against his father who also had revolted against his father, became Emperor. History reports that he instigated the death by strangling of his elder brother. He fought his father and was defeated. Later the father became prisoner and died there. Finally and Jehan was the only one left of the four brothers. And so on and on goes the story of bloodshed, until his mysterious death in 1665.

Foul as it is, his life and times make fascinating reading in the light of the present days upset, and the connective with the English and other foreign ere.

Shah Jehan, and this favorite wife, to whom the Taj Mahal was built, had four sons and some daughters. Again the sons revolted against their father, still another history of blinding, strangling, poisoning and stabbing until finally one son, Aurangzeb, won and imprisoned his father until death. It is reported he spent much of this time reading the Koran and saying the necessary prayers.

Such were the children of Jehan and his beloved Mumtaz Mahal. The winner, Aurangzeb, lived to be a very, very old man. But the masses of the people lived their own lives and we can still see much of the work of their hands and brains.

RENEWS ACQUAINTANCE WITH HOOPOOS

To recover from the horror of that echo it was pleasant once again to sit on a bench and rest while watching the beautiful Hoopoos playing on the lawn near the entrance

I became acquainted with that bird, the Hoopoos, in the Canary Islands, made further acquaintances of them nesting in South Africa, and finally, here in India, heard the familiar "oo-poo". The two-note in which they had built their nest here was not to be found, but their boldness and perfect confidence at close range was restful.

The bird is about the size of an American robin, feeds on the ground on worms, grubs and insects and is a lovely study in brown, black and white. But its chief charm is its crest which opens and shuts like a fan, higher at back than at front. It opens forwards and shuts backwards. He usually keeps it closed up and turned back but when interested displays it in the most enchanting manner. It rises from the forehead and consists of broad feathers tipped with black and a bar of white.

No wonder the Arabs have such a reverence for it, no wonder an hour spent with this bird restores one to peace and hope.

Drivers Return To Their Jobs, Await Decision

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations were to continue today between the Teamsters' Union and representatives of Ontario trucking firms in a bid to restore lasting labor peace in the industry.

Both federal and provincial labor department officials were to sit in on the contract talks called off two weeks ago during a wildcat strike by up to 12,000 drivers.

The walkout began Oct. 3 after members of the independent International Brotherhood of Teamsters rejected a progress report on negotiations by the union negotiating team with the motor transport industrial relations bureau. The bureau is the bargaining division of the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario which, represents 1,500 trucking firms.

A union spokesman said Monday the truckers agreed to work while negotiations continued and all affected personnel had returned to their jobs. The strikers demanded a reduction of the work week to 40 hours from the present 48 without loss of pay.

A company spokesman said monetary issues, the strike agreed to but not yet ratified, included an across - the - board pay increase of 15 cents an hour retroactive to last Oct. 1, an additional 15 to 16 cents next Oct. 1, and 17 cents an hour Oct. 1, 1967. He also said the drivers previously earned between $2 and $3.50 an hour.

If you're cold in this underwear, better move South

Nothing (except, maybe, the tropics) will keep you warmer than Stanfield's Thermal underwear. This is because thousands of knit pockets actually capture body warmth, and insulate you against below-zero weather.
This winter-proof underwear is made in a choice of weights in all-cotton, cotton and wool, and cotton and terylene. They will keep their shape washing after washing. You can get short-sleeve shirts from about $1.95, or long sleeves from $2.95. Men's elastic-waist longs from $2.50 to $4.95. Boys' shirts will cost you around $1.50, and longs with full double seat about $1.95 to $2.50. Also in combinations, long or short sleeves.
You'll be comfortable in Stanfield's. And they're a lot cheaper than moving south.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

By C. A. MILLER
Retired Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department

TAXABLE AND NON-TAXABLE INCOME

The following types of income are non-taxable and do not have to be reported on the taxpayers return.

(a) Military disability pensions or the "burnt out" pension.

(b) Workmen's Compensation payments or pension for permanent disability.

(c) RCMP pensions and compensations.

(d) Unemployment Insurance received by the taxpayer.

(e) MLA's expense allowance or municipal officers expense allowance — limit on this.

(f) In 1964 and subsequent tax payments received from the Federal Republic of Germany as compensation for persecution under the Hitler regime, when such payment is not taxed in Germany.

(g) Any income that may be designated as a capital gain such as sweepstake or bingo winnings.

(h) Any profit made on the sale of a capital asset, when the taxpayer is a dealer in that commodity such as the sale of his personal residence in which he has resided.

The taxpayer must report all of his earned and investment income. There is no deviation from this regulation. Many taxpayers have written me in past years about the heavy tax they receive on their Canada Savings Bonds as to whether it is taxable or not. This is taxable income and must be reported. If the amount is not of interest of a substantial nature, the Income Tax Department will add it in if the taxpayer has not reported it. The income tax department is advised of all payments to the taxpayer of this nature. This also applies to all dividends the taxpayer receives if the payor corporation has issued a T5 slip. A copy of all T5 slips is also filed with the tax department. Mortgage interest is also taxable income when received by the taxpayer but mortgage interest paid out on the taxpayer's place of residence is not deductible from any mortgage interest he receives.

For a personal reply, enclose a self - addressed, five cents stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1. I sold my home and took back a mortgage on which I receive interest. I purchased a new home and pay interest on a mortgage. Does the interest I pay offset what I receive?

Answer: No. You must report the full amount of mortgage interest you receive. You cannot deduct the mortgage interest you pay.

Question 2: I won a car in a service club drawing. Do I have to show its value on my tax return?

Answer: No. It is a capital gain. Capital gains are not taxed in Canada.

his desk in Ottawa and attended a cabinet meeting. But he managed to get in a bit of politicking during a brief meeting with reporters following the cabinet session.

He rejected suggestions that he and Resources Minister Laing have differing views on the possible export of Canadian water to the United States. Mr. Laing had been talking of the immediate future when he criticized a water diversion plan proposed by a U.S. group; he (Mr. Pearson) had specified long - term prospects when he predicted that water would one day become a major export item.

The prime minister, who earlier had announced appointment of the first Eskimo to the North West Territories council, took a crack of Conservative George Hees for saying the Rhodesian crisis might produce economic benefits for Canada through increased trade.

"It was a strange, short-sighted and irresponsible approach to one of the most critical situations" in the world, he said.

Social Credit Leader Thompson spent the day on his personal re-election bid at Red Deer, Alta.

External Affairs Minister Martin, speaking at St. Thomas, predicted an unprecedented industrial boom in western Ontario under the Canada - U.S. auto agreement. It would stretch from London to Windsor.

Douglas Fisher, the NDP member for Port Arthur in the last House who is retiring from Parliament, said in a radio interview at Fort William the government has a plan to send Canadian troops to Viet Nam after the election. He said the information had been leaked by a defence department source.

Robert Winters, the former cabinet minister running for the Liberals in York West, told a Halifax press conference he has made no deals with anybody about a cabinet post. But he termed as "reasonable conjecture" rumors that he will be in the cabinet if he wins a seat and the Liberals continue in office.

Today Mr. Pearson flies west for platform appearances at Edmonton and Westlock, Alta., while Mr. Diefenbaker campaigns at Sudbury, Capreol, North Bay and Pembroke. Mr. Douglas plans a tour of the Sydney area and an afternoon flight to Moncton; Mr. Thompson visits the Fraser Valley in British Columbia and Mr. Caouette is in Charlevoix riding.

Davey on the Double Heads Liberal Strategy

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—Keith Davey seems to do everything on the double. He even climbs stairs at a lope.

His energy to burn is channelled into his job as national Liberal organizer. As such, he's the best-known of a squad of backroom strategists in all parties trying to organize a victory in the Nov. 8 election.

As a behind-the-scenes political professional, he is the trade's obvious successor to Allister Grosart, now a senator after playing a key role in the Conservative victories of 1957, 1958 and 1962.

Mr. Davey took his Liberal job in 1961 when the fortunes of the out-of-power party were ragging. He joined up from a Toronto radio station where he was an advertising salesman.

Four elections later the Liberals were in power as a minority government. Now the party and Mr. Davey are running hard for the icing on the cake, a parliamentary majority.

Mr. Davey took his Liberal job in 1961 when the fortunes of the out-of-power party were ragging. He joined up from a Toronto radio station where he was an advertising salesman.

Four elections later the Liberals were in power as a minority government. Now the party and Mr. Davey are running hard for the icing on the cake, a parliamentary majority.

MISSES SUPPER

"I haven't been home to supper in a long time," he told a reporter wistfully in his modest ground-floor office in a converted three-storey brick house that serves as party headquarters. The red carpet on the floor is the only executive - suite touch.

"In a campaign you just have to be available when a candidate or a party worker wants to talk to you," he said. The only breaks in his tight schedule are the home games of Ottawa Rough Riders football team, to which he takes his two young sons. The Daveys also have a daughter.

In his 6½ years on the job, physically, "I've borne up exceedingly well."

"I enjoy being where the action is."

Frequently it's in his office. From it, he directs a well-organized, scientific operation that had the bulk of party candidates nominated by Sept. 30, three weeks before the first deadline. The other parties were trailing at this stage.

Pacing restlessly on the carpet, sitting in the chair for a moment, then jumping up, Mr. Davey said that the two key words in politics today are involvement and communication.

"I am quite sure we will have more volunteer workers in this campaign than any party in history. The party that succeeds is the one that can involve the most people."

INFORM WORKERS

In communications, it's important to make sure the people inside the party, the workers — "and others, know as much as possible about the campaign.

Mr. Davey has suffered criticism for use of the new techniques associated with the ad men, such as analysis of voting patterns and public opinion polls.

He's vigorous in defending his position.

"I think that they are both an effective means of assessing your campaign. I think they should be used as fully as your resources will allow."

He is an unabashed Pearson man, sometimes to the point of embarrassment.

"I make no bones about the fact I'm a 100-per-cent Pearson Liberal."

Mr. Davey said no gimmicks are planned this time to help his leader stay in office. Such devices as a propaganda colouring book were severely criticized in the 1962 campaign, "Once bitten, twice shy," he said.

ADMITS MISTAKE

He talks with an occasional touch of candor in a field more noted for double-talk. For instance, he freely admits the 1963 gimmicks were a mistake.

THE MAN IN THE LIBERALS' BACK ROOM—Keith Davey (left) national Liberal organizer, and Finance Minister Walter Gordon check a wall chart in the Liberal headquarters in Ottawa. Davey, a former radio advertising salesman, took the job in 1961 when the liberals' fortunes were sagging and ran two campaigns for the party. Now 39, the vigorous Mr. Davey does not deny that he will return to private business after the November election. (CP Photo)

France and U.S.

far as diplomats and informed American officials can see:

1. Co-ordination of French and clear strategy with that of the U.S. as soon as the French strike force is operational.

2. Reorganization of the NATO command structure in Europe. Alphand judged that this would almost certainly come up next year for Paris-Washington consultation and general consultation among the Allies. A major French concern in this connection is to see that French forces serving NATO purposes in Europe are under French command.

3. More sweeping Atlantic alliance revision, which could be initiated in the planning stage in 1966 though the NATO treaty itself is supposed to run unchanged until 1969.

4. Parallel with these French-U.S. differences is the project on which the U.S., British and West Germany have been working for several years along with other interested allies, for creation of a NATO nuclear weapons force. France is adamantly opposed to such a force which would be an effort to handle West German interests in nuclear weapons under a U.S.-dominated NATO umbrella.

BRITAIN LUKEWARM

West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard is due here in a few weeks to talk with Johnson administration leaders about this problem. The British Labor government, which was once actively interested in throwing Britain's nuclear force into NATO, now is lukewarm. Should West Germany show declining interest, the whole project might be allowed to die, but that seems unlikely, in the view of U.S. officials.

Britain's cooling-off is due to growing British concern with the Soviet Union to block the spread of nuclear weapons to other countries.

So deep are the differences between France on the one hand and the U.S., Britain and other allies on the other that the whole non-proliferation project has failed, like other aspects of disarmament, to enlist French co-operation even in talks at Geneva.

Lions Face Survival Test In Ottawa

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders and British Columbia Lions will be trying to improve their playoff positions when they meet in a Canadian Football League interlocking game here tonight.

Both clubs already are looking ahead to another key game.

For Riders, who have clinched second place in the East and still have a slim chance for first, the big one doesn't come for another three weeks when they probably will meet Montreal Alouettes in the Eastern sudden-death semi-final.

Lions, tied with Saskatchewan Roughriders for the third and last Western playoff berth, meet the Roughriders next week in Vancouver. Even if they whip Ottawa tonight, a loss in Vancouver would give Saskatchewan the nod.

But the game, to be televised on the CTV network at 8 p.m. EDT with Ottawa and Cornwall blacked out, is a must for the Riders.

Ottawa coach Frank Clair still is shooting for first place.

"I've always maintained we have had the potential to win this year," he said Monday. "We'll need the breaks, but we still have a chance."

TRAIL BY FOUR

Riders trail Hamilton Tiger-Cats by four points, but have one game in hand. A win over the Lions would close the gap to two points and leave each club with two games to play. The Ticats whipped the Lions 25-7 in Hamilton Sunday.

But the Riders have lost two of their three games with the Ticats so a tie would still give Hamilton first place. The Riders will need a combination of two Hamilton losses and a win and a tie for themselves or a tie and a loss for Hamilton and two Ottawa wins.

The Riders' prospects for a couple of victories look good, if they can get by the Lions. They play the Als and Toronto Argonauts at home.

Ticats also have a fairly easy finish with games against the same two clubs.

Riders have lost four of their last five games, including their last three in a row.

'DESERVED TO WIN'

"On team effort we deserved to win most of them," Clair added. "But we just ran into a rash of individual mistakes. A key fumble here, a defensive lapse that let the opposition get a long-bomb scoring play—they just killed us."

Lions have had trouble scoring lately, but coach Dave Skrien says none of the fault lies with B.C. quarterback Joe Kapp.

"Kapp has played his heart out," says Skrien, who places much of the blame on his offensive line.

Both clubs have run into injuries this year, but Riders will have corner linebacker Mike Blum back in action. Blum "dressed in the Riders' last game, but didn't get much work.

Clair also has decided to dress halfback Bo Scott and go with his regular backfield of Scott, fullback Jim Dillard, halfback Ron Stewart, flanker Whit Tucker and quarterback Russ Jackson.

Scott has been hampered by a sore leg and has made costly fumbles in recent games.

The Lions lost offensive tackle Bob Oetting in Sunday's game at Hamilton, but Willie Taylor flew in from Vancouver Monday and will dress in his place tonight.

Junior 'A' Scoring

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) A new Junior A Ontario Hockey Association season is under way but the circuit's first official scoring release has a familiar ring.

Sharing top point-getting honors after 1½ weeks in which 13 games have been played are centre Andre Lacroix of Peterborough Petes and Bob Orr of Oshawa Generals, each with nine points.

Lacroix was runner-up to Ken Hodge of St. Catharines Black Hawks last year after leading for most of the season. Orr, a 17-year old defensive stalwart, set a scoring record for defencemen last season with 34 goals and 59 assists.

Lacroix has three goals and six assists for nine points in the three games played by Peterborough who share first place with Kitchener Rangers. Orr has two goals in his three outings along with seven assists. John Beechey is one reason why the Rangers are off to an unbeaten start with two wins and one tie. Beechey shares the early goal-getting lead with Dan O'Shea of Oshawa, each with five goals.

U.S.-born Bobby Ring of defending champion Niagara Falls Flyers and David Hainsworth of Kitchener, both rookies, boast the lowest goals against record for netminders with a 2.50 average.

Each has allowed five goals in two games.

JAZY SAYS NO

ORANGE, France (Reuters) Michel Jazy, France's star middle-distance runner, told reporters Monday he has decided not to take part in track meets scheduled for Jan. 22 in Montreal and Jan. 29 in Los Angeles because he wants to concentrate on one aim for next year, preparation to beat the world 1,500-metre record.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Hugo Dittfach maintained his position as the leading jockey in Canada as he rode two winners at Woodbine Racetrack Monday to bring his total wins for the year to 139—including 39 at Woodbine's autumn meeting.

In the seventh, he rode Chance Encounter, a two-year-old filly to victory. The filly ran the mile and 1-16 distance in 1:46.3 — a second and three-fifths off the track record owned jointly by Hartney, Winistee and Craft Lace.

Dittfach earlier scored with Artic Troops which paid $3.10, $3.30 and $2.40.

Artic Troops combined with Win Dixie for a $35.90 daily double while the quinella of Royal Piper and Well to Do, in the fifth, paid $31.60.

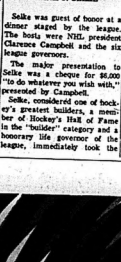
Gives Cheque To Charities

Frank Selke NHL Honor Guest

MONTREAL (CP)—Frank J. Selke, who relired as managing director of Montreal Canadiens in May, 1964, was accorded a testimonial dinner here Monday night by the National Hockey League, and as a result two charities are $3,000 richer today.



FRANK J. SELKE

Selke was guest of honor at a dinner staged by the league. The hosts were NHL president Clarence Campbell and the six league governors.

The major presentation to Selke was a cheque for $6,000 "to do whatever you wish with," presented by Campbell.

Selke, considered one of hockey's greatest builders, a member of Hockey's Hall of Fame in the "builder" category and a honorary life governor of the league, immediately took the podium and announced he was returning the cheque to Campbell.

"This is not a night for witty sayings," Selke said, "I'm giving the cheque back to you to cancel and then have all six governors autograph it for a memento I can frame.

GIVES TO CHARITY

"Mr. Campbell, please issue another cheque and take the $6,000 and give $3,000 to St. Justin's Children's Hospital and the other half to a Jewish hospital or charity where it will do the most good."

In addition, Selke received a Meilene pass to any arena in the league, a color television set from the current Montreal Canadiens club members and a gift for his wife.

At 72, Selke wound up an association with the National Hockey League that dates back 35 years and participation in the sport which goes back to 1913.

Over 250 players, former players, coaches, managers and members of the press joined in the salute.

Selke received a standing ovation when he was introduced by Campbell, who said the former Canadiens' prexy should be honored while he still retained the vigor of good health.

More than 100 messages of good will and honor were received at NHL headquarters here. An album containing the evening program, the messages and pictures of the occasion will be presented to Selke at a later date.

Women Dominate Horse Show

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The ladies continued to dominate the 1965 Pennsylvania horse show Monday night as Kathy Kusner gave the United States its second straight blue ribbon in international jumping competition.

The 22-year-old Virginian showed the skill and daring that made her the leading U.S. lady steeplechase rider in 1960 and 1962, guiding Untouchible, a chestnut gelding, through two perfect rounds to win in a Jumpoff.

England's Douglas Bunn, riding as an individual, was the only other rider to turn a flawless round in the jumpoff, but he and Beethoven were far behind Miss Kusner in time.

Gail Ross of Edmonton, riding The Hood, turned in a clean round but her time was too slow to qualify for the Jumpoff.

GIARDELLO ARRIVES

NEW YORK (Reuters) — A confident Joey Giardello arrived in New York Monday to complete training for his world middleweight title defence Thursday against Nigeria's Dick Tiger.

Chargers Face Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Two members of San Diego Chargers of the American Football League were arrested Monday on charges of seriously injuring a fireman after an argument in a tavern.

Walter Sweeney, a guard, and Edward R. Zeman, a defensive back, were released on $500 bail for a hearing Friday after being charged with felonious assault.

The two players, in town for Saturday's game between the Chargers and New York Jets, were discussing football with the fireman, James P. Collins, and an off-duty patrolman, John J. Powers.

Assistant District Attorney Anthony Giaccombe said the four men got into an argument and the football players caused Collins to fall. The fireman hit his head on the sidewalk and was taken to hospital.

SHUFFLE ROSTER

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees added a right-handed pitcher, Horace Wormack, 26, to the roster Monday and sent Bill Burbach outright to Toledo in baseball's International League.

League Over-Rules President

SARNIA (CP)—The Western Counties Baseball Association has over-ruled its president and declared Wallaceburg the circuit's senior champions for 1965.

President Pete Cullingham of Chatham ruled earlier that no team would be declared after the best-of-five senior finals between Chatham Pontiacs and Wallaceburg went the limit without a clear-cut winner.

Wallaceburg won two games, Chatham one, and two ended in ties.

Cullingham made his ruling after Wallaceburg protested that Chatham had used an ineligible player in posting its only victory in the series.

The executive also suspended umpires Art Provost and Boomer Harding, both of Chatham, for allowing the Pontiacs to field Bob Swift despite Wallaceburg protests that he was not eligible.

Named Coach At Yale U.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (CP-ap) — Ken MacKenzie, Canadian-born former left-hander who pitched with a half-dozen National League clubs, was named Monday new freshman baseball and hockey coach at Yale University.

MacKenzie, a former pitching star at Yale before his graduation in 1956, succeeds frosh baseball coach Ken Raynor, who resigned, and Dick Gagliardi, who moved up to varsity hockey coach.

MacKenzie was born in Gore Bay, Ont. He is 31. In the major leagues he pitched for Milwaukee, New York Mets, San Francisco, St. Louis and Houston.

Whatever fruits the Belleville junior "B" manager, Jim "Snipe" Matthews may have, it cannot be said he is not an optimist.

Sitting with Jim in the "rathbrd" boxes last night watching pro ten coach Stu Muirhead put twenty-five youthful aspirants through physical calisthenics and other phases of early training, I was told "We will have an good a team as last year."

However, it was the general consensus of rink side observers along with club director "Red" Mavety and later concurred in by Matthews that what is needed is two or three good players up front.

Some twenty-five players were out there last night going through the stiff workout with Muirhead driving them hard in an effort to catch up with delayed conditioning time.

While the youngsters appeared to be full of "wim and wigor" spirit and desire to make good, there is a noticeable lack of "beef", especially in the up front division. There is not what you might call a hockey heavyweight in the entire club.

However management is a firm believer it would appear in the old cliche that "good things come in small packages." But good things come in big cartons too, and generally have the edge when meeting in ice combat.

"We are crowding the training camp activities due to the fact the ice was not available in time to give us extended practices," Matthews said.

"Other teams like Cobourg, Trenton, Kingston and Peterborough had ice and practice time at least two weeks of us. They are, as of the moment, engaging in exhibition games."

"With Brant in goal, and a newcomer Ted Lemon of Owen Sound as stand-by, we are pretty well fixed between the nets," Matthews said. "The defence, headed by Doug Potts of Girdling and Bob Townsend at the anchor looks good."

Bob Moon is out of action with a sore foot collected in football while young Fleming will be available.

While it is hard to judge accurately from practice scrambles there is no doubt the team needs some bolstering in the attacking divisions. Efforts, I understand, are being made to have this situation remedied.

Going along with the promise that one exhibition game is worth half a dozen practice sessions, Manager Matthews is trying to arrange a pre-season tilt with Napanee for next Wednesday.

While the regular schedule has not yet been drafted, the B's have started Friday night as their home fixture. They open here October 29th with Cobourg the opposition and are back in the lakeside town on November 1st.

Due to lack of ice time and difficulty in obtaining preferred home fixture night, Belleville, Cobourg and Peterboro will play their home-and-home series as four-point games. Two points will be eliminated from the playoffs in the six-team circuit.

The juniors will likely face a tough uphill struggle at the start of the season due to late starting of training camp. However, practice sessions are planned closely together in an effort to whip the youngsters into condition as quickly as possible.

Stu Muirhead is doing an excellent job as a "helper-coacher" in the coaching department. I understand he is not the permanent coach but is a willing "horse" as far as helping out Gordie Bell is concerned.

He has a fine coaching technique, pitting emphasis on "physical jerks" with stick and puck exercises predominating. I understand he is being sought by the Kingston Aces of the Ontario Senior Hockey League.

Imlach Has 'Ink Woes', Brewer Quits

—'Personal Reasons'

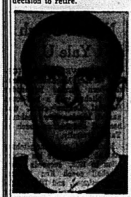
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Punch Imlach, the man who can tell you when he's going to win a Stanley Cup, seems to be equally clairvoyant when it comes to losing a defenceman.

Imlach four years ago defied the National Hockey League experts by predicting a cup victory for Toronto Maple Leafs and then made it come true.

The Toronto coach didn't do any predicting last summer but merely acquired Marcel Pronovost from Detroit Red Wings to bolster a defence already considered the strongest in the NHL.

The trade began to make sense Monday with the announcement of Carl Brewer's decision to retire.



CARL BREWER

Brewer, 27, hinted at retirement last summer but showed up at the Leafs' Peterborough training camp last month.

"Hockey's a great game," Brewer said Monday. "But I've decided to retire for personal reasons."

DIDN'T SAY WHY

Brewer denied that his differences with the Leafs stemmed for his contract, but he wouldn't give his reasons for quitting.

Bobby Baun, Brewer's defence partner and roommate for the last seven years, listed several possible reasons for the decision.

He said hockey took a lot out of Brewer, that he was often up all night after a game and that flying to games bothered him. He worried a lot and at one point was losing his hair in patches and his weight on account of a nervous condition.

Just before Brewer left the Leafs, the Leafs made eight flights in five days. Normally they fly only to Boston and New York for games in the schedule.

Brewer said he did not know what he would do next.

Brewer, a five-foot-10, 180-pounder, moved up to the Leafs in 1958-59. Toronto got second boy Juniors and has been with them since.

He led the league in penalties with 158 minutes in 1959-60 and with 177 minutes last season. He played 70 games, scored only 19 goals but had 121 assists. He made the NHL first all-star team in 1962-63 and was on the second all-star team in 1961-62. He was also scheduled to play in Wednesday's all-star contest in Montreal.

FOUR NOT SIGNED

Detroit Red Wings have yet to sign goaltenders Roger Crozier and Hank Bassen, and forwards Pit Martin, Ron Murphy and Bruce MacGregor. The team reached agreement Monday with defenseman Bob McCord and Bryan Watson and right-winger Paul Henderson.

New York Americans have equally clairvoyant when it comes to losing a defenceman. shipped left-winger Ted Taylor to Baltimore Clippers, their farm club in the AHL.

In exhibition play, Boston Bruins, last in the NHL last season, tied 1-1 against Oklahoma City Blazers, their farm club in the Central Hockey League.

It marked the sixth time this fall the Leafs have played and Boston has done no better than an even split, winning two, losing two and tying two. A Boston crowd of 2,053, about half the number that saw the Bruins lose 3-1 to the Blazers the night before, watched Terry Crisp score for the NHL club and Wright counter for Oklahoma City 35 seconds later.

Syl Apps

Deplores Minor Roughness

TORONTO (CP)—Syl Apps told officials of the Ontario Hockey Association Monday they should take a long look at unnecessary roughness that has developed in minor hockey.

As chairman of the Ontario legislature's select committee on youth, Mr. Apps's words bore the weight not only of a former N a t i o n a l Hockey League all-star centre but of an influential politician.

Representatives of the OHA, the Ontario Minor Hockey Association and the Toronto Hockey League appeared before the committee to spell out hockey activities for youth in Ontario.

The discussion on roughness started when Don Ewen (PC —Wentworth) said sometimes it would be better if referees would just let the kids fight it out instead of separating them.

William Hanley, business manager of the OHA, said he agreed with Mr. Ewen to some extent, but the referees were in a touchy position.

"At what point do you consider fighting a part of hockey?" Mr. Apps asked.

Allowing the kids to fight would be condoning fighting as part of the game, he said.

Russell Rowe (PC—Northumberland) went even further. "It's too rough," he said. "Hockey is a game of skill.

Picks Ford Over Koufax

What Price Yankee Loyalty

NEW YORK (AP)—Eight National Leaguers, including World Series stars Sandy Koufax and Maury Wills of the champion Los Angeles Dodgers, were named Monday to the 30-man All-Star squad for the annual baseball team for 1965 in the annual Associated Press poll.

Koufax was a near-unanimous choicefor left-handed pitcher missing only one of 332 votes cast by sports writers and broadcasters. Whitey Ford of New York Yankees was named as the one baller.

Wills earned 166 votes as the outstanding shortstop, 11 more than Minnesota Twins' Zoilo Versailles.

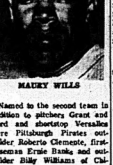
Outfielder Tony Oliva of the pennant - winning Twins and third-baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore Orioles were the only American League players selected.

The others were outfielder Willie Mays, first-baseman Willie McCovey and right-handed pitcher Juan Marichal of San Francisco Giants, outfielder Hank Aaron and catcher Joe Torre of Milwaukee Braves and second-baseman Pete Rose of Cincinnati Reds. Voting was based on regular season performances.

Mays collected the second highest number of, votes, 320. He was followed by Rose with 257, Glava 230, Robinson 180 and Torre 173.

Marichal won in a close vote, obtaining 86 to 79 for Jim Grant of Minnesota and 77 for Don Drysdale of the Dodgers.

SANDY KOUFAX



MAURY WILLS

Named in the second team in addition to pitchers Grant and Ford and shortstop Versailles were Pittsburgh Pirates outfielder Roberto Clemente, first-baseman Ernie Banks and outfielder Curt Flood of Chicago Cubs, third - baseman Deron Johnson of Cincinnati, outfielder Carl Yastremski of Boston Red Sox, second-baseman Bobby Richardson of the Yankees and catcher Earl Battey, Minnesota.

Picton Wins Senior Event

Quinte Cross-Country

Moira Secondary School won double honors in the Bay of Quinte Cross Country Championships staged at the Outlet Provincial Park yesterday afternoon.

Moira won the intermediate and juvenile championships with Picton capturing the senior title and Trenton the junior event.

A. Bell led the Moira juveniles to victory followed by J. Armstrong of Madoc and P. Little of OSD.

John Hayman led the way for the senior Bs in intermediate division with D. Prudhomme, Trenton next and G. Swan of BCI third.

Picton's A. Lindstrom paced the big pack in the senior division followed by Allen taking Trenton to second place and R. Bouma giving Madoc the third position. OSD, Norwood, Brighton, Moira and BCI followed in that order.

Trenton's D. Carl took his school to victory in the junior division with BCI paced by D. Robinson next. Moira was third followed by Picton, Madoc, Tweed, Picton and Stirling.

Picton schools were represented at the meet including Moira, Madoc, OSD, Picton, Tweed, BCI, Norwood and Trenton. A total of 109 runners competed in the four races.

Beautiful weather greeted the packs with the running done over a combination of hard sand and paved roads, gravel roads and dusty dunes, creek beds with about eight inches of water.

The intermediate and senior races were closely contested with only a few feet separating the first few runners.

Eastern Score Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Ottawa Rough Riders hadn't let Dave Thelen go to Toronto Argonauts before the current Eastern Football Conference season began, they'd likely be sitting down the top three spots in the rushing department right now.

But Thelen went to Toronto and last week moved into first place in rushing, replacing Bo Scott of the Riders who has led for most of the campaign.

Jim Dillard, another Ottawa star, is third.

Thelen rushed for 633 yards in 130 carries and is one of the few individual statistic leaders the last-place Argos have this year. Scott has 630 yards in 117 carries while Dillard has 574 yards in 104 carries.

Rick Black of the Rough Riders has the best rushing average in the EFC with a 6.5-yard mark in 49 carries. Black is currently eighth in the over-all list.

Dick Shatto of the Argos, who is third at the end of the season, returned a pair of kickoffs during the weekend to take the lead in that department over Scott, for 374 yards in 14 returns. Scott has 330 yards in 12 returns for second spot.

Ottawa place - kicker Moe Racine continues to top the scoring list with 67 points to 63 for place-kicker Don Sutherin of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

And Russ Jackson of the Rough Riders continues to lead in passing over Bernie Faloney of Montreal Alouettes, who is second, and Pete Liske of Toronto, who is third.

OHA Junior C, D Loops Interlock

OHA Junior "C" and "D" groups merged into a playing whole at a meeting held in Napanee last night.

The "C" circuit consists of Gananoque, Napanee and Picton; the "D" league, Wellington, Trenton and Campbellford.

The combined groups will play a 24-game schedule.

The "C" teams will play four games home and away with member clubs, and one home and one away with "D" clubs.

The situation is reversed in the "D" group with teams playing four home and away and one home and away with the "C" division.

Royal Military College of Kingston was represented but due to school commitments will play one home and one away game with clubs of both divisions. They will not take part in playoffs.

Hope 548 Transplanted Geese To Improve Alberta Hunting

By DON MacLACHLAN

EDMONTON (CP) — Continuation of a three-year conservation experiment to bolster Alberta's apparently dwindling goose population depends on the 1965 hunting season which opened in September.

Wildlife experts hope the success of transplanting 548 geese from Canada geese to deserted lakes in central Alberta will be shown by aerial surveys during the early part of the season.

The geese were trapped by field men of Ducks Unlimited (Canada) on lakes in northeastern Alberta and shipped to waters south of Edmonton where geese had not been nesting.

"We're not sure why they haven't been using these lakes," says Dr. George Mitchell of the Alberta fish and wildlife department which also was involved. "But they do seem suitable for nesting.

"The idea was that if we put some of these young birds on them they might develop a homing instinct for that lake or an adjacent slough and make a home on it."

On some of the stocked waters, "the birds did appear again the next year. But we don't know if they are breeding or nesting. Next year we hope to be able to assess it."

CONDITIONS FAVORABLE

The experiment began in 1963 when lack of water dried up sloughs and caused fear of depleted waterfowl population. Poor breeding years followed in 1964 and this year.

"We know we can't really stockpile geese," says Dr. Mitchell. "But if we can ease the pressure one year we may be able to realize a better return in a bad (breeding) year."

Estimates of waterfowl population in Alberta in 1964 and 1965 show, perhaps inaccurately, drops from the long-time average. The 1965 daily bag limit on mallards has been cut to three from four.

And provincial wildlife workers estimate the 1965 breeding population was down 20 per cent from the average. No figures were available.

"We just don't know why," Dr. Mitchell says. "It may be that a lot of birds weren't spotted in the surveys. The estimates may be well out. But there may have been lack of breeding success.

"Sometimes you get so many birds on a lake that it gets to the point where no more nesting pairs can breed.

"Each pair . . . takes an area, a territory and defends it against other birds. No other pairs can breed. The birds are actually controlling their num bers by their behavior."

REDUCE OVERCROWDING

The transplanting also aims to reduce the crush on the heavily-populated lakes in the Brooks area, 100 miles southeast of Calgary, among them Lake Newell and Jenner and Princo Lakes.

The geese were trapped in mid - June by canoeists who herded them into nets corrals in the lakes. A total of 144 were shipped in crates to other lakes in 1963, 152 last year and 182 this summer.

All were released south of the east-west line through Edmonton which divides the northern and southern Alberta hunting zones.

"We're trying to establish good local populations of geese," Dr. Mitchell says. "The hunting is not necessarily for geese coming down from the Arctic.

"There are lots of local birds shot . . . particularly in the south and around Brooks. In the first week of the season, most of the birds are locals, not from the north."

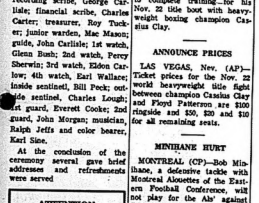
THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

PROPER FINISH IMPROVES ACCURACY

If your finish resembles that of the golfer in No. 1, chances are excellent that your shots do not fly consistently straight. This flat finish indicates an improper shoulder turn on the downswing that can cause everything from a slice to a pull-hook, depending on the position of the clubface at impact.

Probably the clubhead has moved into the ball from outside-to-inside the target line.



The proper high finish I demonstrate in No. 2 indicates a proper lowering of my right shoulder and a return of my right elbow to my side (No. 3) on the downswing. My clubhead will have moved into the ball from inside-to-along the target line. If my clubface was facing the target, a straight shot would have resulted.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing to the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief — here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective case of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions — even cases of long standing.

This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H.. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

TV Political Appeals Having Dressy Look

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Political television appeals for the November 8 election frequently have that dressy look. The aim is to catch the viewer's attention and hold it while the message is delivered.

The intention is to avoid bludgeoning the viewer with a long lecture on party policy. As a result, television ads tend to be polished and professional. It's a soft-sell rather than hard.

On CBC television political broadcasts, Prime Minister Pearson is seen in a living room atmosphere chatting with Liberal candidates or somebody else about party policies.

A large part of the Liberal advertising budget has gone into one-minute filmed or taped commercials.

In keeping with the trend away from the earnest candidate making a straight video appeal, the spots try to make a point by backing into it.

USE INTERVIEWS

One device is a man-in-the-street interview.

The Progressive Conservative television campaign is aimed at showing the party has effective policies and top-level leaders.

In line with this manpower-policy theme, the party had a group of top-echelon men discuss policy on a recent CBC freetime broadcast.

Also arranged are short spots from two minutes down to 30 seconds. The latter allows just enough time for a brief illustrated election appeal.

The New Democrats are emphasizing one-minute commercials.

ARE TOO LONG

Terrance Grier, the party secretary, thinks a five - minute message is far too long on the grounds that they lose the attention of viewers.

National NDP Leader T. C. Douglas is being presented in informal way. One telecast had him sitting with a group of university students on campus. Another NDP candidate, Reid Scott, interviewed them.

Not everybody goes for the contrived approach. Social Credit emphasizes its leader, Robert Thompson, in both one-minute and five-minute tapes.

"He is our spokesman and he gets the message across best," says Frank Howe, the party's campaign director.

Ads that are spruced up a little are subject to broadcasting regulations that generally demand factual presentations with a minimum of dramatics.

WILL HOLD BANK TALKS

OTTAWA (CP) — Peter M. Towe, deputy director of the ex. fund office, will head a three-man delegation to talks in Bangkok, Thailand, this week on establishment of an Asian development bank, an external affairs department spokesman said Monday. The $1,000,000,000 bank to finance economic development has qualified support of the Canadian government along with support of the U.S., Britain, 12 far Eastern nations and others.

Daughter of James Mason Grown Up

LONDON (AP)—"I'm trying to live down my precocious past," said Portland Mason, once described as the world's most grown-up little girl.

Portland, pretty daughter of actor James Mason, will be 17 shortly. She is here to do a movie part, that of a leggy school girl in a comedy—providing she can handle it along with her studies.

"Dad says I can do the film on condition I keep up my lessons," she explained.

Instead of the pudgy, pretentious Portland of nine years ago, the Portland of today is poised, intelligent, shapely and articulate.

Of her early day image it's been said that:

When she was 16 months old she had a night club pallor.

What she wore the first picture at the age of 10, and her first high heels when she was 11.

When I learned to read," said Portland in an interview, "I had to ask dad what pronouns were. When he told me I was furious. You see, there are such simple explanations to the stories that used to go around about me."

Admitting she stayed up until midnight when she was a young child, Portland said:

"Sure I did, but that was because dad went to work in the studios early in the morning and didn't get back home until late.

"If I'd kept normal baby hours and gone to bed in the morning 'til 6 at night—I never would have seen my father. So I used to stay up late, sleep again in the afternoon and then get up to be with dad around midnight or a little bit earlier."

Protest Oil Import at Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Striking oil workers appealed Monday to Prime Minister Pearson to prevent an oil tanker from unloading petroleum products at a British American Oil Co. refinery.

A spokesman said a telegram was sent Monday to the prime minister. It asked that the presence of the tanker BA Canada in Vancouver harbor.

The telegram said in part that the union "strongly protests the importation of petroleum products during the progress of strike breaking in British Columbia."

The tanker, loaded with 160,000 barrels of petroleum products from the Caribbean, arrived in Burrard Inlet Monday. Her normal run is between Vancouver and Montreal.

She was expected to make a run today past a floating picket line in attempt to unload at the BA dock.

Oil workers in British Columbia have been on strike since Sept. 14, when 100 members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (OCAU) died up BA's oil and gasoline storage facilities in Vancouver and other centres, including Chatham, Ont.

The union has asked for 35 cents an hour over a two-year agreement and job security provisions. The company offered 20 cents an hour in a 24-month contract. Wages range from $2.15 to $3.26 an hour.

DAMAGES AWARDED

TORONTO (CP) — Damages totalling $35,000 were awarded Monday in Ontario Supreme Court to the husband and children of a Montreal woman killed in a car crash in 1963, in the crash of a Trans-Canada Air Lines (now Air Canada) jet near Ste. Therese, Que. The settlement before Mr. Justice Eric Moorhouse awarded damages to Alfred George Kingham, 50, whose wife Eva, 36, was among 117 others killed in the crash. Son Richard, 12, was awarded $10,000 and daughter Judy, 13, $8,000.

Pravda Story Paints Grim Coast Picture

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — A Pravda correspondent paints a generally grim picture of the condition of workers and fishermen on Canada's West Coast.

V. Ozerov recently visited the Pacific coast in the course of a 4,700-mile Canadian tour.

In an account occupying nearly one-third of a page in the Communist party's newspaper, he writes that the economic boom in Vancouver "has increased gap between those who keep power in their hands and those on lower steps of the social staircase."

The monthly rental for an apartment on an unnamed Vancouver bay equals 1½ months and even two months salary of a worker, Ozerov writes.

At the other end of the city on Cordova Street poor people stand in line for bad soup handed out "together with prayers," he adds.

George Bernell, executive member of a fishermen's union, is quoted as saying that "with every year it is more difficult to live." Though the fish were not becoming more plentiful, licences to catch them were issued "practically without limit."

At Nanaimo, Ozerov talked to Bob Clerihew, 39, and quotes him as saying he had been out of work for four years. After hurting his spine in a sawmill he got work in a printing house but was dismissed for "progressive activity," the article says.

Clerihew "became his active distributor of the fighting newspaper of West Coast workers, the Pacific Tribune," Ozerov writes, adding that Clerihew's wife, a nurse's assistant, was also unable to find work.

The Pravda article said that, in common with 500 of Nanaimo's 15,000 people, Clerihew's family lives on unemployment compensation.

Minstrel Dropout Record Has Sold Million Copies

By BOB THOMAS

AT THE PARK — Fanciful and Fuzzi Versatile Academy Award-winner Audrey Hepburn is featured in a special Paramount preview presentation of her greatest hit, "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and "Sabrina", showing today and Wednesday at the Park Theatre. With fans clamoring for a glimpse of the screen star, Paramount has arranged that complete films will be shown in addition to the regular feature at the Park Theatre. Shown at top is "Breakfast at Tiffany's" at 7.33, "Sabrina" at 9.42.

AT THE PARK — Surprise — It's Audrey Hepburn in "Sabrina" with Humphrey Bogart. She was rescued from the top round of charts all across the country and now she's reunited for the Paramount movie appearing in Paramount's special preview at the Park and sing-along movie, "Seven Little Foys" at 11.30 p.m. Both features are first class.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Probably the most interestingly popular in the pop music field these days.

One of the biggest hits is Eve of Destruction, a gruff anti-war ballad ("You've old enough to kill but not for vote/ You can't believe in war, but what's that gun you're totin'?").

The record climbed to more than 1,000,000 sales in the United States and now is reported selling big abroad—some 250,000 copies in England alone. Eve of Destruction has brought fame and the prospect of fortune to its singer, Barry McGuire, and author, P. F. Sloan.

They have varying attitudes about the money involved.

McGuire, 30, a brawny, shaggy haired dropout of the New Christy Minstrels, says: "The money? I think it's grouvey. The way our society is set up, money can accomplish a great deal."

Sloan, 20, uses initials because he hates his first name (Phil).

McGuire was born in Oklahoma City. His parents broke up when he was one and his mother brought him to California. A new father was a construction engineer who travelled from job to job during the year; "I changed grammar schools seven or eight times in a year," McGuire recalls.

He left school in the 10th grade for the navy, was discharged a year later for being underage. He tried commercial fishing until the business went bad, then became a pipefitter. At 16 he happened on some folk singers in a Laguna Beach coffee house. At 17 a day he bought a guitar and was on his way.

Sloan was born in New York and came to Los Angeles at 12. He tried college "but I couldn't handle the route." He wrote rock 'n' roll songs with fair success. Then he heard some records of Bob Dylan and Pete Seeger.

Eve of Destruction was banned by some radio stations as unrealistic. McGuire denies that it was political.

"They're trying to make a political issue of me, and I'm not one," he claimed. "The song was not a protest, but a stating forth of the convictions."

Sloan goes further: Eve of Destruction was entirely apolitic. It says to young people: See what's happening, then do something about it. That's what democracy means."

Car Price Cuts Said Political Gesture

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Price cuts on 1966 model cars are just a political gesture to silence the public before the general election, George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers Union, said Monday.

He said in a prepared statement that the "auto companies" public relations department was using to explain how cars are really cheaper this year—though the average price tag scarcely shows it—bides the fact that the auto companies make a tidy profit on every safety item that was optional equipment last year but which is standard equipment this year."

Mr. Burt said that his union led the demand for auto price cuts this year because "without price cuts the very purpose of the Canada - U.S. auto trade agreement is defeated."

The auto companies, he said, have turned their public relations departments loose on being the politicians make the pact look good to the Canadian people.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Virgo, Libra. Special word to Taurus: Emotions run deep. Remember you do have to face yourself in the morning.

FINI... and MONUMENTS

GRANBY, Que. (CP) — When a local house was moved here, three old tombstones were discovered underneath. One is inscribed "John Rannalds, 1834," a second marks the grave of three-year-old Moses Scott in 1871, and the third bears only a poem, with no name or date.

No Word of Guevara Since Leaving Cuba

By Reuters News Agency

Two weeks have passed since Cuban Premier Fidel Castro told the world one of his top lieutenants, Ernesto (Che) Guevara, had left Cuba for a new field of battle against imperialism.

But despite police searches and rumors spanning the world from Cuba across to The Congo, there is still no sign, no word and no clue to the whereabouts of the man often called the brains behind the Cuban revolution.

In Havana Oct. 3, Castro announced Guevara, 37, had resigned as Argentine - born Communist Guevara, 37, had resigned his Cuban citizenship and all the posts he held in the country, and "found Cuba of all responsibility."

Rumor abounded that Guevara, former minister of industries, was ill, abroad, engaged on special duties—or had clashed ideologically with Castro.

Announcement of his departure to "new battlefields" came after six months of speculation over his disappearance from the Cuban political scene.

REPORTED DEAD

Recent reports from Cuba said Guevara died in an ambush in The Congo, along with Congolese insurgent leader Gaston Soumialot.

Both men were reported to have been in a battle at Fizi, on the Eastern Congo, when a group of Congolese insurgents were wiped out by Leopoldville government forces.

But at a press conference in Dar Es Salaam, capital of Tanzania Saturday, Soumialot showed up hale and hearty to confound reports of his death. Guevara was not in The Congo, he said, "and could not therefore have died with me in an imaginary ambush."

Earlier this month, Peruvian authorities ordered the Cuban had arrived secretly. Police office were ordered into the remote jungles of southeastern Peru to check a report that a revolutionary leader was training guerrillas.

But searches in the northeast Peruvian jungles revealed nothing.

Another suggestion is that Guevara was killed in the April revolution led by Dominican Republic.

AURA OF MYSTERY

But all those who suspected that the riddle of Guevara's movements since he quit his Cuban post has added a mysterious touch to his name.

He was born in Argentina of Spanish and Irish descent and his intellectual Marxism inspired him to assist activities in several Latin American countries before he joined Castro in the Sierra Maestra in 1956.

He is often described as the brains of the Cuban revolution and Castro was the boss. He said he used to tell this story of his rise to ministerial power: "I said to myself, 'Ernesto, can you chaps an economist!' I told him, 'I am,' so I got the job."

"But later he asked me: 'Are you really an economist?' I said, 'Well, I thought you said Communist'."

Ont. Launches New Program For Unskilled

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario launched a $300,000 campaign Monday to help industry provide on-the-job training for the unskilled.

Brochures outlining the Ontario labor department program to develop skilled and "semi-skilled" workers were mailed to 20,000 employers.

Under the plan, the province is prepared to supervise programs, pay for instructors, develop a curriculum and help companies assess their training requirements and locate trainees.

Ontario requires 20,000 skilled workers to fill existing needs.

Where unemployed persons are hired, the province, under a federal-provincial pact, starting scheme, will pay as much as 50 per cent of wages for the training period.

Last June, the government launched the first on-the-job training program, a pilot project involving six trainees. Currently, 200 persons are undergoing unskilled people with government assistance.

Government factories are under way with 37 firms to undertake similar projects.

Never Met John Doyle Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Monday he has never met Ottawa financier John Doyle.

The prime minister was asked by Conservative leader Diefenbaker on an allegation by Dr. Guy Marcoux that Mr. Doyle, Transport Minister Pickersgill and fund assistant Moise Darabsaw took part in a secret deal between the Liberals and an Social Credit MPs after the 1963 election.

"I never met Mr. Doyle," Mr. Pearson said after a cabinet meeting.

"I don't know anything about Mr. Doyle's business affairs, or his personal affairs or any other affairs."

Mr. Pearson said he didn't know anything about press reports that Mr. Doyle had increased more than $2,344,0 by the revenue department for taxes he allegedly owed for the years 1950, 1952, 1953 and 1955. Mr. Doyle is reported to be contesting the assessments before the tax appeal board.

The prime minister declined to comment further on Dr. Marcoux's allegations, beyond saying that Mr. Pickersgill had denied them "in very similar statement" Sunday.

Mr. Pickersgill denied Sunday that he bribed or attempted to bribe any MP or anyone else to support the Social Credit government. He told reporters Monday he had nothing further to say.

SEIZE JEWELS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Customs guards at Beirut International Airport recently intercepted a shipment of contraband jewels worth $1,600,000, sources close to the police reported Tuesday. The source said 428 pieces of jewelry were hidden in secret compartments in two suitcases which disembarked aboard a plane from Geneva. The guards opened the suitcases when no one claimed them.

It's What a Man Hasn't Got That Fuels His Daydreams

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It isn't what a man does that keeps him going. It is what he hasn't got around to doing that fuels his happiest daydreams.

Every man has a secret list of unachieved ambitions which may seem odd to others but which hold a fascination to him and keep up his zest in living.

I don't know what's on your list, but I certainly will be unwilling to cash in my chips until I have—

Played Indian hand wrestling with Charles de Gaulle.

Had Elizabeth Taylor peel me a pomegranate.

Ridden a Dromedary with a silver saddle.

Bought the Tiffany diamond.

Broken bread with royalty at Buckingham Palace on a day when the refrigerator was full of goodies.

Thrown rice at the wedding of one of the Beatles to a bald-headed girl.

SPARKED GIANTS

Tossed a winning touchdown for the New York Giants while countless thousands cheered.

Rubbed noses with a pretty Eskimo lass.

Played a cornet solo on the stage at Carnegie Hall.

Won something in a church raffle. Not anything in particular — just any prize. (I've held so many losing tickets I'm beginning to lose faith in church raffles.)

Danced with Mrs. Arthur Murray and had her say, "Gee, I wish my husband had your grace."

Paddled the Atlantic both ways in a nine-foot canoe.

Floated on my back across the English Channel.

Developed a new recipe for martinis that would make them equally popular, wet or dry.

Watched an Ed Sullivan TV show that included neither a dog act nor a juggler.

Canada Rejects Soviet Atom Pact

With Decision Already Made Smith Writes Wilson Letter As Rhodesia Showdown Near

By ADAM KELLETT-LONG

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith said today he is sending an 11th-hour message to Britain on the issue of Rhodesia's independence.

Smith said his cabinet had made a decision in principle on whether to declare independence from Britain unilaterally but he would not reveal what it was until after sending his letter to British Prime Minister Wilson.

He indicated the decision was in favor of unilateral independence when he replied "yes" to a reporter who asked "does two and two still add up to four?"

Smith interrupted today's vital cabinet meeting after three hours to talk to reporters shivering in an unexpected cold spell.

Smith said the contents of his letter to Wilson will be published this afternoon, after it has reached Wilson.

The cabinet meeting is not finished," Smith said, "but we have this morning completed a message to Mr. Wilson in reply to his 11th-hour appeal of the day before yesterday."

DECISION REACHED

Asked if the cabinet had come to a decision, Smith said: "We have made a decision in principle but it is not my intention to divulge it until my letter has gone to Mr. Wilson and until, I hope, I have his reply."

Smith added: "I do not know if Mr. Wilson will reply by tomorrow but if he does then we may publish our decision."

Asked if the cabinet meeting would continue this afternoon, Smith replied: "We may go on for a few days yet. We have a lot of general business to do. There are about 14 or 15 items to discuss apart from the independence issue."

A crowd of about 100 Negroes watched silently as the throng of reporters and cameramen gathered round the prime minister.

Before the meeting began, Mr. Smith had a 25-minute talk with Josiah Gondo, leader of the African parliamentary opposition United Peoples Party.

Gondo told reporters he asked the prime minister to recall Parliament urgently and said Smith had promised to put the request before the cabinet.

(British government sources in London said if an independence declaration is issued after today's meeting it would be possible to recall the British Parliament Friday or Saturday to approve emergency measures.

NO APPROVAL

(Britain has refused to sanction independence for the white-ruled colony until guarantees are forthcoming of increased representation for the country's 4,000,000 Negroes.)

Smith said Monday his white minority government already had reached its decision on the independence issue. Observers interpreted his statement as meaning he had decided to go ahead with a unilateral declaration.

Today's cabinet meeting was to have been held Tuesday but was postponed, Smith said, because various ministerial com-

Surprise Wizard Of Klan

WASHINGTON (AP) —Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton pulled a surprise Tuesday on members of the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities — and they apparently pulled a surprise on the leader of the Ku Klux Klan.

They produced bank records, income tax returns and a handwriting expert to try to prove there was some financial hanky-panky going on within the Klan, with Shelton's aiding a Klan account under a disguised name.

Then chairman Edwin E. Willis, Louisiana Democrat, gave Shelton and his wife a chance to think things over before facing more questions today.

Shelton's lieutenants watched silently as their leader took shelter under the U.S. constitution 72 times in refusing to answer questions about the Klan or its money. He cited various constitutional amendments guaranteeing individual rights.

The Klansmen may not have been cowed, but the committee was.

A source said Shelton and his lawyer walked into the committee offices on the eve of the hearing opening and promised to co-operate, "to tell about the Klan and what he hopes to do with it."

Can Juror Be Fair To Inferiors?

By BEN CHESTER

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)— A young Ku Klux Klansman's murder trial may be put off until spring unless the Alabama state Supreme Court can hand down a speedy ruling today on a juror selection law.

The question asked of the Supreme Court: Can jurors who say they regard Negroes and civil rights workers as inferior be dismissed from the trial on grounds they are prejudiced?

The Klansman, Collie Leroy Wilkins, Jr., 21, of Fairfield, Ala., is charged with the slaying of a white civil rights worker, Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, last March 25 near Hayneville.

Mrs. Liuzzo, a 39-year-old Detroit housewife and mother of five children, was killed as she drove Negroes back to Selma after they staged a 30-mile march on the state capitol.

T. Werth Thagard, Lowndes County circuit judge, said the trial in Hayneville, 28 miles south of here, must resume by this afternoon or be rescheduled next May.

Thagard called a 24-hour recess Tuesday to permit the chief prosecutor, Attorney - General Richmond Flowers, to appeal for a ruling on the question of prejudice to the high court.

Flowers had protested that 11 of 30 jurors qualified to hear the case should be dismissed because they indicated prejudice which would keep the state from getting a fair trial.

Most jurors said Monday they felt Negroes were inferior to whites and they also felt that white civil rights workers are "socialized" with Negroes are inferior.

However, they said they believe they could judge the evidence fairly and in a beneficial, call for the death penalty.

Flowers said, "if they sincerely believe the deceased (Mrs. Liuzzo) is an inferior person, I don't think you could give any credence to their other statement."

P.M. Pushes Medicare, Dief Talks About Loans

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prime Minister Pearson cast-ted his medical insurance proposal west into enemy territory Tuesday while Conservative Leader Diefenbaker was pushing his consumer loans pledge in the east.

Mr. Pearson wound up a day in Alberta — where Premier Manning has been mounting a fierce attack on medicare—with a speech at rural Westlock in which he defended the government's proposal as one that will not destroy the freedom of either individuals or provinces.

"We haven't imposed anything," he said of the recent federal offer to pay half the costs of provincial medical insurance. "I think this is a fair approach to the problem and I don't think it will destroy anyone's freedom."

The prime minister didn't mention Mr. Manning but it was apparent to his listeners that he was replying to the premier's criticisms that medicare would limit the rights of individuals.

New Democratic Party Leader Douglas completed his swing through the Maritimes, telling an audience of 500 at Moncton that Canada needs new leadership to heal the divisions that beset it.

Social Credit Leader Thompson, touring the Fraser Valley in British Columbia, said there are ways in which a minority government could survive for a full term of office.

Mr. Diefenbaker, speaking to about 1,100 in the armories at Pembroke, Ont., said a Conservative government would establish a consumer loans act to "protect Canadians against exorbitantly high interest rates on credit purchases."

The Conservative chief made a new appeal for increased

Coroner's Jury Findings Open Way to Charges Against Four

QUEBEC (CP)—A coroner's jury has found four men criminally responsible in four of the killings connected with a recent rash of arson in Quebec.

Accounts of shootings and hammer - beatings on country roads and the speedy burial on three covered corpses were given by some of the men found responsible Tuesday in four killings.

The arson-racket toll is said by Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner to be seven for certain and possibly about 12 and the search goes on for more bodies.

The responsibility verdicts were rendered by the five-man jury against Andre Lamothe in all four deaths considered Tuesday; against Ovila Boulet in three of the deaths; Jean-Jacques Gagnon in two and Fernand Quirion in one.

In Quebec no charges are laid in cases of violent death until a coroner's inquest has determined criminal responsibility.

If charges are brought, a preliminary hearing is held and possibly a voluntary statement

Pleads Guilty In Arson Case

QUEBEC (CP) — Fernand Quirion, 43, a Quebec City wood merchant, pleaded guilty Tuesday to two charges of arson, two of conspiracy to commit arson and one of receiving a stolen vehicle.

He was sentenced to five years in prison.

Earlier Tuesday, Quirion had been found criminally responsible by a coroner's jury in the death of Alberic Bilodeau, a painting contractor from Ste. Marie de Beauce, Que., who was fatally shot Sept. 18, eight days after testifying before the provincial fire commission in an investigation of arson cases.

In 1964, the company had 53.9 per cent participation. It raised that total this year to a remarkable 74.7 per cent participation and employee contributions actually improved 60 per cent.

The company's corporate gift was also raised from last year.

Killer Taped Screams Of Tortured Victims

MANCHESTER, England (AP)—The maniac killer in Britain's weird mass murder hunt tortured his victims and tape recorded their dying screams, detectives reported today.

But although they hold recordings of the murders, and even photographs of the mutilated victims, police have found only one of the bodies.

They believe up to eight and perhaps 11 others are buried on the wild northern moorlands where the dismembered body of 10-year-old Lesley Ann Downey was found last weekend.

Police seized tape and photographs in a raid on a house in Cheshire near the Pennine Hills where the hunt for the bodies continues.

More tape was found in a suitcase left in a Manchester railway station cloakroom. From tapes and photographs, detectives have built up a casebook of a sadist who enticed young children, got them drunk on wine and then murdered them if they refused to join in perversions.

Police said they know the killer and are awaiting only to establish an iron-clad case before charging him. Their main difficulty is in finding the bodies on desolate Saddleworth Moor.

Designed To Balk NATO

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— Canada Tuesday turned down a Soviet-proposed treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons on grounds it would endanger the defences of the North Atlantic Alliance.

Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canada's chief disarmament negotiator, told the United Nations General Assembly's main political committee the Soviet draft treaty seemed designed to prohibit certain defensive arrangements which now exist within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Soviet Union, in unveiling its treaty during the General Assembly debate, said the United States-proposed treaty is inadequate because it would allow "dissemination of nuclear weapons" to nations within the Atlantic Alliance.

The Soviet treaty would rule out the establishment of such groups as the American-suggested multilateral nuclear force for the 15-nation Alliance.

Burns told the 117-nation political committee that under existing NATO arrangements certain nuclear-weapon delivery vehicles of limited range in the hands of U.S. allies could be used to deliver nuclear weapons to repel aggression. But, he added, the U.S. retains control over them.

WOULD WEAKEN NATO'

If these arrangements were abolished, Burns said, "it would weaken the NATO defences" and give the Soviet Union a nuclear advantage.

The Canadian delegate called for intensive negotiations on disarmament pending the start of a proposed world disarmament conference to which Communist China would be invited. Disarmament talks should continue in Geneva regardless of the decision taken on the calling of a world conference.

He welcomed the efforts of Latin American and African countries to create non-nuclear zones in their regions, and said Canada supports Sweden's proposal to set up a "detection club," a world-wide surveillance system aimed at prohibiting all forms of nuclear testing, including underground tests not covered by the 1963 test-ban treaty.

Dominican Upheaval Threatened

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — Rumors flew in Santo Domingo today that the Dominican Republic's provisional government is threatened with overthrow.

Lights burned late in government offices following fresh bursts of fighting Tuesday in the heart of the capital. Three persons were killed and seven wounded in shooting between rebel snipers and army troops before fighting subsided in the afternoon.

President Hector Garcia-Godoy held an emergency cabinet session and met far into the night with his staff in an effort to halt the upsurge of violence.

He also met with the former rebel chief, Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, and appealed to him to try to halt the rebel sniping.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, top trouble-shooter for the Organization of American States, hurried back to Santo Domingo from Washington.

Name Montreal Police Head Director of Quebec's Police

QUEBEC (CP) — J. Adrien Robert, the man who brought religion- and education to the Montreal police force, has been named director of the Quebec Provincial Police.

Mr. Robert, 59, who once served for seven years as a constable in the provincial force, was police chief in Hull, Que., for 24 years before taking over the Montreal department in 1961.

The announcement of his appointment was made Tuesday by Justice Minister Claude Wagner.

The vacancy was created when the resignation of QPP head Josaphat Brunet was accepted last week by the provincial cabinet. Mr. Robert will take over from Mr. Brunet Nov. 1.

BRUSH WITH LAW — A picket outside a struck British American Oil Co. marketing plant in the Vancouver area fails in a brush with police. About 30 pickets clashed briefly with eight RCMP officers when they attempted to stop trucks from entering the plant. They had just watched a ship dock at the plant with 5,000,000 gallons of petroleum products. (CP Wirephoto)

Urban-Rural Dinner Held At Consecon

TRENTON — Members of the Trenton Rotary Club and their wives . . . about 80 in all . . . motored to Consecon Monday night for the club's annual urban-rural dinner meeting at the Consecon United Church Hall. The dinner was prepared and served by ladies of the congregation.

Guest speaker was the Rev. W. J. Graham, Protestant chaplain at No. 6 Repair Depot.

Mr. Graham said there was a real ecumenical spirit within the RCAF, with Protestants and Roman Catholics finding more common ground than those "in the outside world".

Although service chaplains wear the uniform, they are not ministers, and still responsible to the church of their ordination, Mr. Graham said. He said there were 25 Unified Church chaplains, 25 Anglican priests, 51 Roman Catholic priests, four Presbyterian ministers, four Baptist ministers and two Lutheran ministers in the RCAF.

Mr. Graham drew quite a laugh when - he defined an atheist as a man sitting in a stadium where a football game between Shriners and Knights of Columbus was in progress . . . and not caring which won.

Safety Class For Hunters Being Held

TRENTON — Hunter safety classes will be held Thursday and Friday nights, Oct. 21 and 22, starting at 7 p.m. in the town hall over the police station. It is necessary to attend both classes in order to try the qualifying examination and be force a licence to hunt is granted.

LABOR TO MEET

Thursday night, Lakin Bishop, the educational director of Ontario of the Canadian Labor Congress, will address the members of the Trenton Labor Council at a meeting in the Gilbert Hotel. Subject of Mr. Bishop's address will be "The Role of labor in the federal election."

The United Appeal Campaign is in full-swing in the CNR yards in Belleville. Oscar King, Stores, fills out his pledge card to the United Appeal in front of the huge railsaw machine, while G. J. O'Brien, Stores, and Doug Parker, General Clerk, Stores, look on. Mr. Parker is canvasser for CNR's Stores Department in their in-plant canvass.

Lack of Funds to Provide Adequate Equipment to Pose Difficult Hospital Problem

Lack of funds to provide adequate equipment to maintain a high standard of diagnosis and treatment will be a serious problem in connection with the new Belleville General Hospital addition.

This was noted Tuesday evening by A. McLean Haig, chairman of the hospital board of governors, as he spoke to the Women's Hospital Auxiliary at their October meeting in Education Hall.

"The time of Mr. Haig's talk was "The Belleville General Hospital, Present and Future."

"There should be, and we hope there will be, a public campaign for funds," Mr. Haig said.

While the Ontario Hospital Services Commission does provide for current operating funds within the limits of an approved annual budget, it does not provide for capital funds except by way of limited grants and depreciation allowances and then only for specific purposes and for specific areas.

"In other words," the speaker went on, "there are enormous shortages of capital funds required for hospital expansion and that was one he provided from municipal and other voluntary and borrowed sources."

Mr. Haig said Belleville was extremely fortunate in having the county of Hastings as a permanent partner in the ownership of the hospital. About 30 per cent of hospital admissions are from the city, 40 per cent from the county and the balance from other areas.

PLANS CURTAILED

When the plans for the present construction were originally submitted estimates calculated it was discovered that they exceeded approved expenditure many hundred thousands of dollars. This forced a curtailment of the program and eliminated several necessary and essential facilities.

For example, as matters now stand, there is no provision for administration offices and facilities. The only hope to replace these facilities is to accumulate additional funds from all possible sources.

Mr. Haig said the primary aim of the present Board of Governors is to ensure that all segments of the hospital operate with a common purpose—the best patient care that can be provided. This necessitates the cooperation of all units—the Board of Governors, the Administration, the Medical Staff, the Nursing Service and the Schools of Education. He praised the efforts of the administrator, S. J. Johnstone, towards this end.

W.A. COMMENDED

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary was commended for the many thousands of dollars it has raised to purchase equipment for the hospital and was asked for continued aid.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Douglas Burr with thanks being expressed by Mrs. J. E. Nailes.

Auxiliary president Mrs. William Dallas presided over the business portion of the meeting. The convener of the Opportunity Shop on the Market Square, Mrs. W. J. Musgrove, announced record sales since the shop was officially opened in its new location last week. His worship Mayor Ellis, Ald. John Deacon and Mr. A. Mc-Lean Haig were thanked for their participation in the opening ceremonies broadcast over CJBQ.

Stiffer Penalties for Driving Infractions May Be Sought

Stiffer penalties for driving infractions may be sought by police if the Belleville accident record is not eased.

The warning was issued yesterday by Police Chief J. B. Wallace as he noted statistics showing the number of car accidents so far this year exceeds the total for 1964.

"To the end of September we have had 1,250 persons charged with traffic offences within the city," he said. "And we've 90 more accidents on record than what we had last year."

Some 40 drivers have been charged in court for impaired driving or drunk driving. There has been 11 persons arrested for driving while disqualified for another traffic offence. And three drivers involved in accidents had no insurance.

Chief McLauchlan's department maintains a special detail for safety traffic precautions on a full-time basis. However, the public record in the past "has not been an encouraging one and now stronger medicine may be necessary.

"I suggest if lasting safety education is not the answer then stiffer enforcement may be."

He added police may request its court prosecutor to seek heavier penalties in the courts.

Curious as to the cause of the accident splurge, traffic officers ran a check on all reports in recent days.

"We find it's the fault of the driver," said the chief.

COMMON FLAWS NOTED

Among the most common flaws shown by drivers immediately before a crash are: (1) turning into traffic without first properly scanning the situation; (2) driving through stop signs and lights; attempting to pass as oncoming traffic approaches; (3) driving too fast for road conditions; (4) physical disability of drivers.

Separate from the general concern, police also are worried over the number of children hit by cars in recent days.

An appeal has been issued to parents to exercise more di-

BIRTHS

McCLAY — Raymond and Jean McClay, Moorefield, Ontario, are happy to announce the birth of a daughter, Leanne Patricia, on Friday, October 15, 1965.

PERRIN — Bill and Marlee (nee Secord) of Chelsea are pleased to announce the arrival of their daughter, Lisa Marie, a sister for Cindy, granddaughter of Mrs. Emma Clark of Ballyhoo.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all my friends and relatives who made my ninetieth birthday such a happy one. Also my sister, Mrs. Sarah Ann Downers. It was an occasion that I shall never forget and I shall value it over and over again in my memories. Thanking you all sincerely and wishing you all God's blessings. I thank of it. I cannot write to thank you all personally so please accept my thanks in this note.
William Parrick.

Liberals Hear Candidate At Deseronto

DESERONTO — Liberal followers crowded into constituency rooms here last night to hear their candidate, Robert Temple, call for a majority government in the next parliament.

Mr. Temple was confident a positive means of continuing the "good times" experienced by Canadians these days.

"The great expansion and high employment now upon us is the result of the people's wise decision in 1963" he said. It appears to me this era of expanding economy is only the beginning; he continued, appealing to his supporters to work harder than ever before for the return of a government that has put its promises and implemented constructive policies that offer new hope for the aged, education incentives for youth and more opportunities for the bread winners."

Percy Knight, chief president of the Deseronto Liberal Association, called the meeting to order while Charles Bates, president of the Hastings South organization, introduced candidate Temple.

TEMPER COSTS CASH

ST. HELIER, Channel Islands (CP)—Patrick McCarthy has an expensive temper. When he was not paid the hours overtime for completing a wall at a hotel, he seized a sledge hammer and demolished the whole job to rubble within minutes. It cost him £31 in court.

Mrs. F. A. Beeby reported on the meeting of the District Hospital Council No. 8, held recently in the Kingston General Hospital. The local auxiliary was represented by Mrs. Beeby, Mrs. William Dallas and Mrs. Bee E. Burley. Mrs. H. M. James was named convener of the Puppet Group, replacing Mrs. J. Lennox Smith.

Mrs. King, Stores, fills out his pledge card to the United Appeal in front of the huge railsaw machine, while G. J. O'Brien, Stores, and Doug Parker, General Clerk, Stores, look on. Mr. Parker is canvasser for CNR's Stores Department in their in-plant canvass.

IN MEMORIAM

RUEHLOW — In loving memory of a dear mother, Ellen Ruehlow, who passed away 16 years ago, October 20th, 1949.
Sad and lonely are our days
The heavenly gates were opened, to let our mother in.
I often sit and think of you,
And picture you so dear,
You did not go from me, but you left my heart,
Without a chance to say goodbye,
God took you in His arms and said,
Still missed, loved, still mine;
Sadly missed by her daughter Ethel and family.

WAY — In loving memory of our dear husband, Lawrence A. Way who passed away, as a result of an accident 4 years, Oct. 20th, 1961.
Wonderful memories woven in gold
This is the picture we tenderly hold
Deep in our hearts your memory we keep Though years go by
To be held in cherish and never forget
No love can dim
The lasting memories we have of you.
Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by his sister, Mrs. Olive Shaver, Sharon, Ronda, brother-in-law Carl and families.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Charles Patrick Smith who passed away Oct. 20th, 1962.
I think of him in silence,
I talk to him often,
There is nothing left to answer,
But memories, dear Pat.
Sadly missed by wife and family.

The Belleville and District Queen's Alumni Association last night honored Dr. G. S. Cronk on the occasion of his 50th anniversary since graduating from Queen's. Here shows a replica of the plaque which will be placed in a room being furnished by the Belleville and District Association in the new men's residence at Queen's. Henry Bateman, right, presents the duplicate plaque to Dr. Cronk while Mrs. Lillian Cronk looks on.

Queen's Alumni Present Plaque to Dr. S. Cronk

It was Dr. Sam Cronk's night for the Queen's Alumni when they met 80 strong for their semi-annual dinner at the Tabernacle Church last evening. The church rooms were gay with chrysanthemums and red, yellow and blue candles gleamed in silver candelabra on the head table.

After an appetizing meal served by the ladies of the church, Mr. J. Demeza led the singing of a rousing round of college songs.

Dr. Henry Bateman presented Mrs. Cronk with a bouquet of roses and Dr. Cronk with a replica of a plaque which is to be placed on a door in the new students' residence, which the Belleville and District Alumni are furnishing in honor of Dr. Cronk to commemorate the 50th anniversary of his graduation from Queen's.

Dr. Bateman in his speech made the inquiry: How does a doctor keep going as Dr. Cronk has done for 50 years. In his acknowledgment of the presentation Dr. Cronk said he had no answer to Dr. Bateman except that like old man river, he just kept rolling along.

Herb Hamilton, after paying a tribute to Dr. Cronk as one of Queen's outstanding graduates, went to to say that the American Alumni Association had given Queen's first honorable mention for its graduates' loyal support of their university.

GUEST SPEAKER

Dr. Loynes introduced Dr. Melvin, the speaker of the evening, the distinguished son of a distinguished father. After reciting Dr. Melvin's impressive record he reminisced about the havoc he wrought as quarterback on his year's football team.

Dr. Melvin began his speech with a tribute to Dr. Cronk. He said that after the war when he was beginning to establish a practice, Dr. Cronk had welcomed him to Belleville, putting his office and assistant at his disposal even though the work he was doing cut into Dr. Cronk's practice more than any other doctor's in town.

VARIOUS PROBLEMS

He then spoke humorously of the various problems of the university which shares the problem of the University of New York — it has nowhere to build

He described the new building south of the stadium as being in good Queen's tradition, grey limestone in "penitentiary gothic". The great problem in education today he said "is lack of direction. How shall we teach students when we don't know where they are going? We are told we must not teach them facts but we must teach them to think, but what they are to think about?"

In a not too wealthy country what are the priorities — general education or technical training?

MASS EDUCATION

There is a great demand for mass education. First problem is how does a college select students? Should selection be left to Grade XIII results? Then, considering this year's results, which in many instances reached the students too late, it is felt the universities must do something, but what can they do?

Politicians make enormous and impossible demands on the universities without supplying them with sufficient funds. If medicare goes through, where is the money coming from to pay for education? It may end up in Canada having the healthiest population of illiterates in the world.

Dr. Melvin was thanked by Dr. Leslie McDonald. Dr. Melvin and Mr. Hamilton, the guests, were presented with a bumper of Prince Edward County apples.

After the dinner an informal gathering of friends remained to wish Dr. and Mrs. Cronk every happiness.

Mrs. L. Mascaro New President Lawn Bowlers

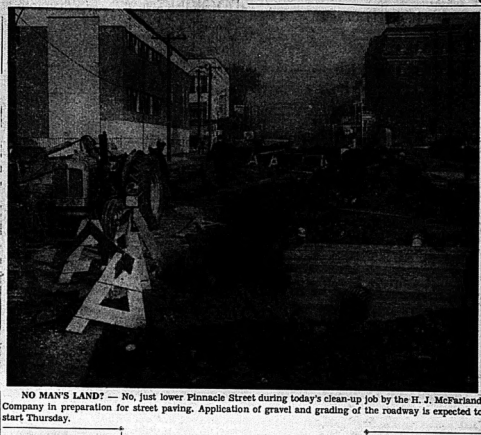
The Women's section of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club have concluded a successful season, elected their officers for the coming year and laid plans for future expansion of this delightful summer pastime. A large number of the members gathered at the Clubhouse on Tuesday evening to enjoy a pot luck supper, hear reports and discuss issues before the meeting.

Mrs. Jessie Hunter, president of the section, presided and Mrs. Lil Mascaro read the secretary's report prepared by Mrs. Vera McIntosh. The treasurer's report, read by Mrs. Anne Watkin, showed a favorable balance for the 33 members of the local club plus eleven from Trenton.

The Brading trophy for club competition was presented to Mrs. Pearl Legault, Mrs. "Doll" Argue and Mrs. Carm Mott, skip, while the runners-up, Mrs. Laura Hyde, Mrs. Lil Mascaro with Mrs. Rita Lloyd as skip were also honored. Mrs. Vera McIntosh was thanked for the donation of a coffee maker to the club while a motion was passed to transfer a sum to the men's section of the club.

The chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Grace Clapp, gave her report on the slate of officers, which was unanimously accepted by the membership. The officers elected were past president, Mrs. Jessie Hunter, president, Mrs. Lil Mascaro, 1st vice president, Mrs. Phyllis Graham, secretary, Mrs. Dorothy Avery, treasurer, Mrs. Joan Gray, Thursday Games committee, Mrs. Jessie Hunter, tournaments and publicity, Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon, Tuesday Games, Mrs. Phyllis Graham, Sunshine committee, Mrs. Irene Trudeau, Telephone committee, Mrs. Flossie Coleman and auditors, Mrs. Cleta Gilbert and Mrs. Laura Hyde. The nominating committee will be headed by Mrs. Lois VanTassel and Mrs. Grace Clapp, while the housekeeper will be appointed at the spring meeting.

A vote of thanks was proposed by Mrs. Laura Hyde for the officers leaving office and Mrs. Hunter in reply thanked all for their co-operation and wished the incoming executive much success.



NO MAN'S LAND? — No, just lower Pinnacle Street during today's clean-up job by the H. J. McFarland Company in preparation for street paving. Application of gravel and grading of the roadway is expected to start Thursday.

Repaving of Pinnacle Street Started by McFarland Co.

After weeks of one-way traffic together with complete traffic disruption in some areas, the repaving of Pinnacle Street is finally about to commence.

Yesterday a huge H. J. McFarland Company bulldozer commenced ripping up what was left of the pavement south of Bridge Street and by this evening it is expected the job of hauling away the broken chunks of asphalt will be completed.

Tomorrow (Thursday) the paving contractor hopes to commence hauling in gravel in preparation for grading and ultimate paving.

Lightfoot Construction Ltd., who have been doing the underground work, have all but completed installation of the Pinnacle Street sewers from Dundas to Campbell Street.

The work left the base coat of asphalt can be laid this fall as far north as Victoria Ave. The work will then be allowed to settle over the winter and the final asphalt coat will be laid next spring.

Rev. Alton Gould, a Canadian who has spent the last ten years as a missionary in the city of Hong Kong, will be the guest speaker at a missionary convention to be held in the Centennial Free Methodist Church, October 30 and October 31. On Saturday night Mr. Gould will show the film, "World Parish." He will speak twice, to the Bible School Sunday morning and at the service. Mr. Brian Pritchard, also a Canadian, who spent a year in Hong Kong as a self-supporting missionary, will be showing slides of his work in the evening service at 7:30 p.m. Mr. Pritchard will have curios with him.

JOHN K. SAVAGE

Manager of the Mutual Life Estate Planning Department in Toronto, John K. Savage, who will be the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Quinte Life Underwriters to be held at the Hotel Quinte Thursday evening.

Must Sell Farm Produce Abroad - - Hees

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — George Hees, former trade minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet and now Progressive Conservative candidate in Northumberland, told an audience of tobacco farmers here Tuesday night that what the Canadian farmer needs is "a concerted effort to sell our farm produce abroad."

"We can open up new markets for our fruits and vegetables, dairy and poultry products, tobacco, beef and pork.

By selling our farm surpluses overseas, we can maintain the domestic price at the normal level while receiving the export price for the surplus which is sold overseas. This would go a long way in preserving the family farm as a productive unit.

Wildlife Series Enjoyed by Fish, Game Club

Over 300 filled the Club Canara auditorium to see and still life camera artistry of Jack Austen of Woodlot.

Mr. Austen gave a colorful commentary as the excellent stills were flashed on the screen. It was an exciting, colorful and informative show.

Vice president Fred Fisher chaired the meeting in the absence of president Bill Philsince of illness has been stdelined with ill health.

The main prize of the evening was won by Allan Wallbridge of R.R. 7, Belleville.

Allowance for Housewives Advocated by Roy Cadwell

MARMORA — Roy Cadwell, Liberal candidate for Hastings-Frontenac, at a meeting at the Marmora hotel, called for the implementation of five-point program for improving the economic condition of the people of the riding.

"We have been neglected by both the Conservatives and the Liberals too long and the people of Hastings-Frontenac are fed up to the teeth about it," he said.

Mr. Cadwell outlined the five point program as: aid to farmers, setting up new industries, arranging grants for free university tuition, establishing a Centennial Park in the centre of the riding as a tourist attraction and the paying of a housewife's allowance. This program would increase the cash income of the people of the riding and at the same time would benefit every businessman, he said.

Regarding the housewife's allowance, Mr. Cadwell, stated, "At the present time the Canadian government pays $10 a month for every student up to 18 years of age. If a student is worth $10 per month to Canada, the housewife and mother who looks after such students should be worth at least twice as much. I am willing to predict that a housewife's allowance will eventually be on the statute books of Canada. Twenty dollars is not a large amount but to the housewives of this riding it is the difference between being able to buy something for herself and the home or being forced to do without."

Dr. Marcoux's Charges

As was to be expected, the Conservative party has been making much of the government's problems stemming from the Dorion Inquiry. It leans heavily on the theme that Canada needs honest government and suggests that only the Tories can provide such an administration.

And as if the Liberals were not in hot enough water already they are now being called upon to defend themselves against charges by Dr. Marcoux that six Creditiste members of the last parliament took bribes in 1963 to back the minority Pearson government.

All six members concerned have denied the allegations and say they plan to take legal action against Dr. Marcoux—a former Social Crediter seeking re-election in Quebec as an independent—once the campaign ends.

A suggestion that Transport Minister Pickersgill and Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland had knowledge of the alleged deal to cull Creditise support has also been vigorously denied by both men.

Be that as it may, the allegations inject yet another disturbing element of possible scandal into the election. Yet until they are proved one way or another—and thus far they have not—Dr. Marcoux's charges must be regarded as suspect.

Allegations of this nature, so long as they are unsubstantiated, obscure the real issues of the election and confuse an already puzzled electorate which scarcely knows which way to vote on November 8.

The Men Who Lead

In the leadership stakes the tendency these days is as much toward men of mature years as it is to younger men. Prime Minister Pearson for instance is 68 and Opposition leader Diefenbaker has turned 70.

There is the redoubtable President de Gaulle, also in his seventies, and former West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer remained at the head of affairs in his country until he was well past his 80th birthday.

General Franco of Spain and President Salazar of Portugal are others who have spanned generations in service to their countries, in their case as virtual dictators of their respective lands on the Iberian peninsula.

And one who has experienced perhaps as much of a lifetime in politics as any is the venerable Ramon de Valera of Ireland. In his younger days "Dev" was a leader in the fight for independence from Britain. He was imprisoned and sentenced to death, but escaped and went on to become the leading political figure in the evolution of the Irish republic. He was prime minister formany years and is now his country's president.

Although nearly blind De Valera is still active and is reported to be planning to run for re-election for the presidency next year. Recently he celebrated his 83rd birthday.

De Valera's name reflects traditional ties between southern Ireland and Spain. He was born in New York of a Spanish father and an Irish mother, an irony of fate and geography that led the British humor magazine Punch to run a cartoon some years ago under the caption, "Spanish onion in the Irish stew."

Despite the trouble with his eyesight, it is clear from President de Valera's plans to run again for office that he wants to keep a finger on the Irish pulse for as long as his advancing years will permit.

"Knowing" Students

One college freshman thought Gandhi was a former British prime minister. Another identified Mussolini as a Russian revolutionary. Stalin was described as a German political leader who was hanged.

These were some of the answers more than a hundred first-term students at Simon Fraser University in Vancouver got in a test imposed by history professor Warren Williams.

"The results of the sample tested could be most politely described as depressing," Dr. Williams was quoted as saying.

He added: "They represent a serious comment, not on the intelligence of the students, but on the uses to which that intelligence is put in the system from which they have come."

Which just about sums up the situation perfectly. Students do not seem to be getting the message. They are not being grounded in the great events of history, even those relating to the recent past. Too many of them are more familiar with the contents of the comics and fashion magazines than with the stirring events of generations past.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 20th, 1945

Probably the most savory dish found in Britain's lean post-war larder is represented by the four ounces per person of bacon available each week ordinarily by the grace of Canada.

The Food Ministry has recognized this appreciation of bacon in a series of advertisements suggesting recipes "to make a little bacon go a long way."

Shopkeepers say that many British buyers do not know their treasured bacon comes from Canada. Even persons handling large quantities of bacon may fail to notice the "Canada" stamped on Wiltshire sides which of course disappear when the bacon is sliced for sale to the housewife.

One agent, who purchases for a large group of Gi's grow stores, said he could remember Canadian bacon shipments during the First Great War and the quality of the Dominion product now on sale was "incomparably better."

30 YEARS AGO

October 20th, 1935

At the annual meeting of the Catholic Women's League of the Kingston Diocese, which was held in Brockville, Miss Anna Hurley of this city was elected president; Mrs. A. Bernard Collins of this city was elected one of the vice presidents; Mrs. J. M. Truaisch of this city was elected to the board of councillors, and Mrs. J. P. Dolan of this city was elected corresponding secretary.

Dr. Charles Hudson Leavens, who has been associated with Dr. Stobie in this city for some time, will take up residence in Picton shortly where he will practise his profession.

Major S. J. Gilmour of this city, who has been acting Inspector of Income Tax for the Belleville Division, has been promotod from the office of Acting Inspector to that of Inspector. The announcement of Major Gilmore's promotion was contained in the current issue of the National Revenue Review.

Turkeys for Thanksgiving Day dinners are scarce and the birds offered for sale are priced at 30 cents to 35 cents per pound.

40 YEARS AGO

October 20th, 1925

The members of the Kiwanis Club entertained the members of the "Dumbells" Company at their weekly luncheon meeting today. Those present, Pat Rafferty, Red Newman, Stan Bennett and Harold Rich.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Jones of Canniton celebrated recently the 50th or Golden Anniversary of their wedding. All they received the congratulations and good wishes of many friends. They were married by the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goldsmith, first cousins of Sidney township on October 12th, 1875, by the Rev. Mr. Sills.

In the campaign for new members for the Y.M.C.A. 75 have been obtained so far; it is expected that 100 will be secured before the campaign ends.

Mrs. Geo. A. Reid has returned home from Toronto where he spent several days on business.

50 YEARS AGO

October 20th, 1915

Mr. Charles Baker is spending a few days in Ottawa.

Messrs. Alfred Gillen, Arthur McGinnis and Senator H. Corby are spending some time at Virginia Hot Springs.

The Rev. Dr. J. E. Hazlett of Toronto will preach in Bridge Street Methodist Church on Sunday next.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bonisteel celebrated the 50th or Golden Anniversary of their wedding at their home at Bayside, Trent Road, on Oct. 16th. Of their children all were present except a son, who is living in Edmonton. Many relatives and friends called to extend congratulations and express good wishes.

Cubans' Dream

Milwaukee Journal

Since Cubans took over in 1959 some 300,000 Cubans have left Cuba, about 270,000 of those coming to the United States. They now live in every state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. Several hundred have come to Wisconsin.

The majority, however, have remained in Florida, mostly in the Miami area. For the most part these Cubans reject permanent settlement. They dream of the day when Castro will be overthrown and they will be able to go home.

Gallstones Probably Have Several Causes

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have read your articles on gallstones. The only questions are why does bile solidify into stones, and why is the removal of the gallbladder becoming such a common operation? Even thin, young people are now somehow in their way of life. E. E. W.

* * *

Gladly would I give you a terse, definitive explanation, but I don't have any. Several theories have been advanced as to the cause of gallstones. Lack of agreement indicates either that nobody has hit on the correct one yet, or that — and this is my belief — a lot of different causes, singly or in combination, are responsible.

Likewise I doubt that you should conclude that young people err in their way of life, or "do something wrong" to cause stones. I'm rather sure that part of the reason for more gall bladder operations is more accurate diagnosis.

Plenty of bum gallbladders are detected after people complain of "pains in the stomach" or "pins in the chest," or "indigestion," and so on. A fair number of people even feel sure they have heart disease, and experience it takes very careful study to discover which is which. In past decades, I have no doubt, many folks with pebbles in their gall bladders just struggled along taking stomach remedies, or just suffered with their cramps, burps and colic.

* * *

Gallstones may consist of different chemicals: Bile acids, cholesterol, calcium, salts in various combinations. Now bile itself is a concentrated solution, and concentrated solutions of anything will form crystals ("stones") when the chemical and physical conditions are right. That's how rock candy is made, and why jelly and grape juice and other things "sugar."

In some people there may be excessive cholesterol. Or there may be sluggish emptying of the gall bladder due to infection pregnancy or an obstruction somewhere. Bacteria may be present and serve as a nidus or focal point about which stones can form.

No particular diet — or diet fault — has been observed to account for gall stones, nor has any particular way of life, the accidents of other illnesses and accompanying germs or chemical changes, certainly play a part.

I can say with assurance that there is nothing we can do to avoid gallstones. The only preventive medicine when we know what is effectively preventive but for gallstones, the best we can do is to recognize the condition after it has insidiously developed, and then do something to correct it, meaning removal of the gall bladder if symptoms so dictate.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is pink eye and how is it transmitted? Is it a self-limiting infection? What if it is left untreated? — M.B.

Pink eye is an acute and contagious inflammation. It's a form of conjunctivitis, if you'd like a more formal term. The conjunctiva, or lining of the eye is infected.

Several kinds of germs can be involved: streptococcus, staphylococcus, influenza virus. It is usually self-limiting, meaning that eventually the patient fights off the germ. However, in untreated cases it may become chronic and linger on and on.

For practical purposes two low rules: first, since it is highly contagious, especially among children, keep the patient isolated; second, treatment, particularly if the strep or staph germ is involved, speeds up the recovery greatly.

The Egyptian fleet of the Ottoman Empire was destroyed at Navarino, on the Greek coast, 138 years ago today.

1827—By a combined fleet of British, French and Russian ships.

The action took place in support of the Greek struggle for independence, which began in 1821, but without any declaration of war. A land attack by Russia on Turkey followed and civil war between the Sultan of Turkey and Mohammed Ali of Egypt allowed Greece to come into being without civil war and agitation against the rule of King Otto I.

Critical View Of 'Teach-ins'

Ottawa Journal

The trouble with those "teach-ins" which have become so fashionable at universities is that they let their biases show.

Has anyone ever heard of a teach-in where a spokesman for the National Liberation Front was booed? Has there ever a teach-in where some pacifist professor has not called for nonviolent civil disobedience? Has a teach-in been known to approve of any statement of the official U.S. position in Viet Nam?

The teach-ins at the University of Toronto and in Montreal last weekend ran true to form. The speakers supporting the American stand in Viet Nam were booed and hissed. Those on the platform who opposed U.S. foreign policy were applauded its defenders by about twothirds.

The best words spoken at the Toronto teach-in were those of its chairman, Professor Patrick Gordon Walker, the former British Foreign Secretary: "To take a one-sided view may satisfy emotion but it doesn't contribute even to the first step to solution."

Teach-ins are often preten- Deg!, predictable bores. They have nothing surely to do with teaching. They leave the wrong impression that they represent views of the whole student body and faculty.

Universities should always be places where dissent is heard. It is desirable that students should be encouraged to say about the world. A few years ago there were complaints about lowers and students being cold-fish swallowers or football fans. But participation in affairs of the day is the mark of a far greater sense of responsibility than shown by the attitude of content passing under the name of teach-in.

Citizens' Duty To Vote Nov. 8

Toronto Telegram

If Prime Minister Pearson wants further proof that Canadians are unhappy about the Nov. 8 election he forced on them, he should consult Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay.

He would learn, as Mr. Castonguay has discovered, that that reaction of the electorate ranges from apathy to genuine outrage.

Many Canadians are still wondering why there should be an election that fall. Some become openly hostile when it is mentioned.

The attitude of most Canadians, including thousands and thousands of Liberals, is that an election at this time is not necessary. Many have pointed out thabt the minority Pearson Government has only been in office for two and one-half years, and its life was not threatened.

From the 70,000 enumerators who polled the country late in September, only a few refused the voters' lists, Mr. Castonguay found that many Canadians flatly refused to co-operate. Some expressed anger over Mr. Pearson's calling of the election. Others showed complete indifference, and said they had no intention of visiting the polls on Nov. 8.

Perhaps this is the main reason why the election lists this year contain the names of only 10,191,825 Canadians, about 250,000 less than had been expected.

There were 9,910,757 names on the 1963 voters' lists. But, due to the increase in population, immigration and the addition of 19 and 20-year-olds, who had reached enough in 1963 to had been anticipated that the rolls would have about 10,500,000 names on them.

Despite the apathy and hostility shown by many Canadians to the election, however, it is unfortunate that so large a number are purposely disenfranchising themselves. If their names were accidentally or deliberately left off the rolls, they would be the first to complain.

It is not only a citizen's right but his duty to cast a ballot in an election, whether federal, provincial or municipal. Instead of apathy, what the people of Canadians should exercise their franchise by voting for the candidate of their choice.

The right to free elections is something all of us should cherish.

Strictly Personal Word Play Can Cause Confusion

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Do you know the difference between "contrary" statements and "contradictory" statements? Or do you imagine it's just playing with words, merely a semantic distinction with no practical application?

It can be shown, I think, that much of our confusion and conflict over political and social matters arises from our inability to distinguish between statements that are "contrary" and those that are "contradictory." I don't mean that better logic alone would change our opinions; but it would make us look elsewhere in suppnt of them.

"The wall is black" and "the wall is red" are contrary statements; that is, they cannot be true together. But they can be false together—the wall might be green, neither black nor red. The falsity of one statement ("the wall is black") does not imply the truth of the other.

"The wall is black" and "the wall is not black" are contradictory statements; that is, they cannot be false together and they cannot be true together. The truth of one implies the falsity of the other, or vice versa. They are mutually exclusive terms; there is nothing in between them.

What we do, however, in much of our political and social talk, is to take contrary statements and turn them into contradictories, so that we get what the semanticist call a "two-value orientation."

The two statements: "Communism is evil" and "Communism is the best system," are contraries, not contradictories. It is quite possible for both statements to be true together, but both may be false together, since by combining their elements, might be better than either communism or capitalism.

But if we take these contraries as contradictories, then we are automatically against everything that is not exactly like our own. Plan for everything they are against—or even worse, they happen to be against the right things for the wrong reasons. If we adopt such a posture, then no real communication or cooperation is at all possible. It is one of the worst faults of Marxist ideology, indeed, that it does not admit such a posture.

Each side denies that there can be more than one other side to the question, a characteristic of the "two-valued orientation," which is shared by Nazis, Communists, and the John Birch Society. They are all somehow incapable of seeing that the wall may be red, or green, or plaid, and that the falsity of their opponent's position does not imply the truth of their own.

Over simplification is one of the most dangerous attitudes facing us. This is especially so in our complex and inter-related modern society. It is tempting to look for simple answers, but when we turn a contrary into a contradictory, we make it impossible for our answers to correspond to reality, or to find any solution in reason a bk ter-ms.

Teenagers Go Blandly on Their Way

Peterborough Examiner

The hearings of the Legislature's Select Committee on Youth in Peterborough recently brought forth a remarkable spate of recommendations for improving the lot of young people in the City and in the province at large. There were, all told, 16 briefs presented representing a range of opinion and interest which does some credit to the City of Peterborough as a whole.

A bewildering variety of suggestions were made. There were plentiful demands for new recreational and cultural facilities for the City, although fewer suggestions as to where the money should come from. There were sweeping assessments of the terrible moral threats which the modern world poses for today's youth. There were some practical and inexpensive suggestions for making better use of existing Peterborough organizations concerned with youth, notably from the Rev. Vaughan's committee. There was the Rev. Asbell's blueprint for social health, with its magnificent disregard for civil liberties. And, disappointingly, we were told once again by a committee of educators that those old rascals, newspapers, radio and television, were brutalising modern youth.

But, despite the varying quality of the briefs submitted, there is much of value in them. Clearly they can be put to good use not only by the Legislature's youth committee but by the City itself. Indeed, there is a case for a local coordinating body, perhaps the Mayor's Select Committee on Youth, to determine what local action can usefully be taken on the myriad of the suggestions made.

Continuing enough, hardly any representation was made to the Committee by the young people themselves. This illustrates another phenomenon of the times — while the adult world is pondering interestingly over the fate of youth, the youngsters find themselves blandly go their own way. If they are concerned about their own condition, their concern is an introspective one, confined to their own members rather than to the world at large.

We have now come full circle from the Victorian view that young people should cause the minimum of trouble, and concern to their elders that they should be 'seen and not heard'. Now it is the adults who are paying increasing attention to the juvenile world and, one suspects, rather envying it. It is not merely the commercial world which has awoken to the prospects of the 'teen market. Adult journalists are mimicking youthful fashions, interests, dance crazes and speech mannerisms. Never before, it seems, has that old prize, eternal youth, been so attainable, or in many cases, pathetically sought. There is a bitter irony in this tavish worship of, and quest for, youth at a time when medical science has done so much to lengthen the life span and remove the unpleasantness of old age.

The danger in this adulation of youth and, on a higher plane, the concern for its welfare in modern society is that it may go too far. The pressures on modern youth are undoubtedly many of them, but they are not, unprecedented. Affluence, urbanization, the technical and material revolutions, the disintegration of the family and other factors combine to make this a difficult time for many people. Undoubtedly, also, there are many improvements that need to be made in the fields of welfare and educational structures that cater to young people. But young people are not being coddled and pried upon. The least the adult world can do if it is determined to improve and not to destroy the world, is to bring a little maturity, a modicum of discretion and restraint to the task.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market reacted this Wednesday to crisis and the continuing rise in copper futures with a marked advance among senior metals in morning trading today.

The base metal index advanced 33 to 85.89. Hudson Bay gained 1¼ to 73¼, International Nickel 1¼ to 98¼ and Falconbridge and Noranda weight each to 108 and 50 respectively.

Papers edged lower on the industrial list, Great Lakes off ⅛ to 20¼ and MacMillan Bloedel ¼ to 27½. Avco Corp. advanced one point to 25¼.

Banff dropped 70 cents to $7 on more than 12,000 shares in junior oils, while Ansil rose 2½ cents to 18 cents on 20,000 shares and Associated Arcadia two cents to 20 cents on 15,000 shares.

On index, the TSE index rose .25 to 158.47, industrials .23 to 168.18 and western oils .18 to 103.70. Golds were unchanged at 154.04. Volume at 11 a.m. was 747,000 shares compared with 698,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Late selling on the Exchange Tuesday pushed stocks to their lowest levels of the day at closing.

However, base metals managed to record their 12th advance in a row—but only just. The base metal index was ahead .01 to 85.36 after being ahead as much as .53 at 2 p.m.

Pine Point, which soared more than $13 last week, fell 6¼ to 30¼ while Labrador eased ½ to 35.

A number of other issues managed to hold onto small advances and thus hold the index on the plus side.

Yale Lead, the market's busiest stock with volume of 152,000 shares, climbed 1½ to 15½ cents among speculatives.

In the industrial list, Massey-Ferguson climbed to a 1965 high of 25½, but by the close was off ⅛ at 25. Moore Corp. ran into profit taking, falling ½ to 80¾ following its 54 - gain Monday.

Ochiva Wholesale A — the new stock was listed Monday after a 2-for-1 split—climbed 1¼ to 27½.

On index, industrials were down .12 to 167.95, golds .54 to 154.04 and the TSE index .10 to .58.22. Western oils were ahead .21 to 102.54. Volume was 2,961,000 shares compared with 3,098,000 Monday.

COL. GEORGE HIGGINS — MRS. GEORGE HIGGINS

When the Mid-Ontario Division of the Salvation Army celebrates the hundredth year of the Army's work, at Centenary Congress meetings to be held in Belleville this coming Friday, Saturday and Sunday, leaders of the Congress will be Col. and Mrs. George Higgins.

Col. Higgins is Provincial Commander of the Salvation Army for Newfoundland and Labrador, a position he has held since 1961. A native of Lancashire, Col. Higgins received his Salvation Army training in London, was married in 1928 to Captain Doris Holgate and they held appointments as Corps officers in London before seeing war service in Birmingham and Coventry and doing youth work at Brighton and in northern Britain. They served as National Youth Secretaries in Britain and as International Youth Secretaries before undertaking their Newfoundland work.

Must Automate Teaching Methods Kiwanians Told

Don H. MacLean, Staff Sociologist, Air Canada, yesterday told the Belleville Kiwanis Club that by 1970 there will not be enough teachers for the number of students unless we automate our teaching methods.

Mr. MacLean, blind since he was six, is a member of the Liaison Committee Between Education and Industry.

"According to United States figures," he said, "and the Canadian situation would be the same, by 1970 if we maintain the present teacher-student ratio, then somewhere between 33 per cent to 50 per cent of all graduates of all colleges and universities would be needed for teaching.

"This of course is not practical."

Mr. MacLean expressed fears that because of the increasing number of students, our schools might run into a situation where there will be one teacher trying to teach to 1,000 students in a big auditorium.

"Teachers are already losing contact with their students. Not through any fault of their own but simply because they are so tied down with paper work and there are so many students that there is just no time for the teacher to give individual attention to each student.

"We have come to the point where we are instructing children without very much reference to whether or not they are learning. The only time we find out is at examination time, and if a child has not been learning, then he is just left behind.

MUST ACCELERATE

"It is imperative now that we investigate the whole potential of education technology.'

"We have built a situation whereby those who need to achieve most, in fact fail.

"Our problem is what are we going to do about the severe shortage of teachers? We must do it now, before 1970.

"We are going to have to accelerate technological teaching methods, such as teaching machines, audio-visual aids, educational television, etc., not to replace teachers, but to put them in a new position as manager of a student-machine System relationship.

"We want to give the children a chance. The computer has moved into the school in the U.S. and is moving into our schools, for the same reason it started in industry. That is, to assist with the paper work.

"These machines could keep accurate, up-to-date records of each child, that is, how well he is advancing, his outlook, how he gets along with other children.

"Because the machines will provide more information about the student, and about the worker in industry, the individual will be protected from bad judgments.

"Machines will make more time available for the teacher and give him more information about the child. Teachers would be able to use this extra time to help students with the problem they have no time to deal with now.

CAN ONLY ACHIEVE

"I witnessed a demonstration of the Edison Responsive Environment technique recently, in which a teaching machine was used to effectively teach children of two years of age to type and read.

"The advantages of the system were, one, the children got a kick out of it while they learned, and two, they can not possibly fail, they can only achieve.

"The problem is, how are we going to do it? Well, we could do it the way the U.S. is doing it, by setting up a National Education Laboratory System, a series of research and development programs, or systems, which will learn from their open mistakes and within which students can learn from industrial experience and from the experience of students before them through a feedback of information to the machine.'

"I suggest that we must have a standing committee in Canada to handle the problem, composed of all 10 provincial education ministers.

"But we must act now, before the situation gets out of hand."

Three Elderly Women Bilked Of Savings

Belleville police have issued a warning that confidence tricksters may attempt operating in the city area after three elderly women were swindled in Eastern Ontario communities Monday.

In Napanee two women complained swindlers took their money on the pretence of being bank managers checking counterfeit bills. One lost about $100.

At Gananoque an elderly woman handed $340 in $10 and $20 bills to a man who said he was checking for bogus money. In each case the tricksters phoned the victims then met them outside a bank and took their money.

Several similar attempts have been made in Belleville this year. In one case police, alerted by a would-be victim who became suspicious, believed they were within an ace of catching the swindlers.

Visual Aids Used in Talk To Sales Club

The ceaseless search for improved communications in modern society was the theme of the regular monthly meeting last night of Belleville Sales and Ad Club.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Ron Kristiansen, office supervisor in Belleville fo. Bell Telephone.

With visual aids Mr. Kristiansen traced the progress of human communications from the crudest, prehistoric stages to modern times.

Researchers today continue to seek improvements, evolving new electronic marvels as they go. Bell scientists not only are now involved with international communications but interstellar links, he said.

Among the new scientific possibilities being probed is the development of the laser beam as communication carrier, he said.

Spotlight Seat

Davie Fulton Said Unsafe In Home Riding in B.C.

By DENNIS ORCHARD

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Davie Fulton has been beaten once in the home country and he's taxing this campaign from scratch.

Licked in provincial politics during a three-year absence from the federal scene, he is working like an unknown as Conservative candidate in Kamloops constituency.

All parties feel the Fulton name may no longer hold all its old magic for this transportation hub and the mining, cattle and lumber country that surrounds it.

Mr. Fulton was its prominent MP for 17 years and held the major cabinet portfolios of justice and works. But his opponents are sticking him with his recent record—he bold autumn pronouncement of 1962 to commit himself "without reservation" to victory over British Columbia's Social Credit government, and his subsequent failure as B.C. Progressive Conservative leader to capture a single seat in the legislature.

Three strong opponents say Mr. Fulton is ripe for federal defeat after being whipped by 1,200 votes provincially. In the field are Liberal Jack Chilton, 52, mayor of North Kamloops; the New Democratic Party's Vernor Jones, 56, a high school teacher; and Social Credit's Tom Sills, a 48-year-old contractor.

The projected return of Mr. Fulton to Ottawa has been in the cards for more than a year and the name of the 53-year-old lawyer remains prominent among contenders to the party leadership.

FEW NATIONAL WORDS

But he has few words to say about national issues as he troops across the enormous constituency.

At Merritt he stresses a plant to refine ore; at Salmon Arm the need for foreshore development of the Shuswap Lakes; at Lillooet the prospect of hydro and coal generated power; at Williams Lake the urgency of meat-inspection facilities.

He will make only three quick trips elsewhere in the province and none outside B.C.

Mr. Chilton, whose nominating convention outdrew Mr. Fulton's 240-1, is a CNR car inspector who emigrated from England in 1929. He spent the next dozen years as a farmer, miner, logger and truck driver, and within the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America (CLC) he has been a vigorous union man.

The party counts on him as a diamond-in-the-rough candidate. He says he has found voters resenting what they call two moves by Mr. Fulton to abandon his party while it has been in trouble.

Dr. J. M. Willoughby, a family doctor who retired in deference to Mr. Fulton, held Kamloops for the Conservatives in 1963 by a 245-vote margin over the Liberals. Mr. Jones was another 1,500 votes back and Social Credit 1,500 more in a total constituency vote of about 29,000.

Poodle Puts On Show For Enumerators

TORONTO (CP)—Five federal general elections in eight years may not be for the birds, but politics has certainly gone to the dogs in Toronto's Spadina riding.

Among the uncommitted voters for the Nov. 8 election —politicians say 40 per cent of the population—is Scamp Walton, occupation playboy. That's because no candidate has yet got down to the bones of the campaign, like promises for dogs and universal veterans.

Scamp is a poodle who, says his owner, realtor Robert Walton, put on quite a performance for the summer stars on the riding's Russell Hill Road.

"He sat up and begged when the enumerators came," said Mr. Walton. "One enumerator said the dog was smart and I allowed that he was certainly smarter than some people connected with the election."

Mr. Walton thought it a joke when the enumerator handed him a slip with Scamp's name on it. But then the name appeared on the elector's list.

"Now," says Mr. Walton, "Scamo has been offered a bribe . . . I understand. They told him he could have a cabinet post, but he's holding out for 14 telephone poles instead."

Will Not Send Troops To Viet Nam - - Gordon

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon said Tuesday that Canada has flatly rejected an American request for military support in the Vietnam war.

At the same time he did not rule out the possibility of Canadian participation in a United Nations truce inspection team or peacekeeping force in Viet Nam, should such missions be proposed.

Mr. Gordon, Liberal campaign chairman, denied emphatically at his weekly press conference statements by retiring NDP deputy leader Douglas Fisher and Creditiste Leader Real Caouette that the Liberals plan to dispatch troops to Viet Nam after the Nov. 8 election.

He disclosed that a letter from President Johnson to Prime Minister Pearson and about 20 other allied countries last summer said any "help and assistance" in Viet Nam would be welcome. He had interpreted the request to mean military support.

"The answer was no," Mr. Gordon said.

Mr. Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin have said Canada will not intervene in the Viet Nam hostilities because of this country's membership on the neutral international truce supervisory commissions based in Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.

India and Poland are the other members of the commissions.

NO INQUIRY

Mr. Gordon also rejected opposition demands for a judicial inquiry into allegations by Dr. Guy Marcoux of a "shady deal" between Liberals and six Social Credit MPs just after the 1963 election.

Allegations are flying thick and fast in the current campaign and they do not warrant inquiries since they are not backed up by evidence, he said.

"I was surprised that Dr. Marcoux (a Social Credit member of the last Parliament) waited two and a half years before bringing this up."

Both the minister and Liberal campaign director Keith Davey denied that either fraud suspect Moise Darabsaer or his alleged associate John Doyle have had any connections with the Liberal party.

Dr. Marcoux charged in a pamphlet last week that Transport Minister Pickersgill, Darabsaer and Mr. Doyle took part in secret negotiations leading up to the statement of support for the Liberals signed by six Social Credit MPs four days after the 1963 vote.

This was denied by Mr. Pickersgill and Mr. Doyle. Darabsaer is in jail in Quebec City awaiting trial on fraud charges involving $165,000 and arson charges.

Pope Requests Newer, Younger Men in Church

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul is reported ready to issue new regulations designed to bring new and younger men into the top levels of the Vatican Curia.

The Curia, the central administrative body of the Roman Catholic Church, is dominated by conservative officials, most of them Italian. Progressives at the Vatican ecumenical council have been urging major reforms to internationalize the organization and end the entrenchment of the old men at the top.

Vatican sources said the pope would issue a two-part document which would:

—Make 70 the mandatory retirement age for all high position in the Curia, including cardinals and papal nuncios of archbishop's rank.

—Provide for automatic suspension from their jobs of all cardinals who head Curia departments upon the death of a pope. The new pope could then replace or retain each man.

It was not known if the document rule would apply to those now in control of the 12 congregations, three tribunals and six special offices that make up the Curia. Of 28 cardinals in ranking curia posts, 22 are over 70.

The Pope is expected to issue his document by the time the ecumenical council ends in December, before he holds his second consistory to name new cardinals. Some of these will be named also to Curia posts.

Nun Plans To Marry Her Abductor

PALERMO, Sicily (Reuters) — A 26-year-old Roman Catholic nun kidnapped from a convent in Palermo said Monday she plans to marry her abductor.

Sister Paolina was about to enter the convent with another nun Sunday night when a black car drew up and two young men stepped out.

They pushed her companion to the sidewalk, bundled Sister Paolina into the car and drove off at high speed.

A police car intercepted the black car 90 minutes later but at the police station one of the young men, Rosario Vaglica, 24, said: "It's all right. We are getting married soon."

Sister Paolina said a "bond of sympathy" had arisen between herself and Rosario, a plasterer, when he came to do repairs at her convent four months ago and she agreed when he proposed to stage a kidnapping.

But Rosario's troubles may not be over. Police are considering whether to charge him with abduction and causing bodily injury to the other nun.

Darabaner Paid Fine But Not Back Taxes

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal tax inspectors are examining personal documents of fraud-arson suspect Moise Darabaner in an effort to recover $104,452 in tax claims dating back to 1961.

A revenue department official said Tuesday the scrutiny of Darabaner documents seized by police has been in progress since the Quebec City sessions court granted its permission under the Criminal Code Sept. 17.

The federal application to the court said Darabaner owes $104,452 in unpaid income tax. The inspectors are looking for evidence of any assets they could seize as payment.

The official said the claim against Darabaner was filed Oct. 2, 1964, and based in part on a Quebec City court decision dated Nov. 21, 1961, and in part on assessments for later taxation years.

In the 1961 decision, Darabaner was convicted of tax evasion involving $20,103 and ordered to pay the amount to Ottawa, plus a $7,300 fine and court costs. He paid the fine but not the back taxes, the official said.

Darabaner, a well-known notary in Quebec and a businessman with interests in several Montreal and Quebec firms is, in jail awaiting trial on fraud charges involving $115,000 and arson and conspiracy counts. His next court appearance is set for next Tuesday.

Second Seaman Dies of Burns

PLYMOUTH, England (CP) A second Canadian seaman from HMCS Nipigon has died as a result of the fire which broke out Monday night aboard the Canadian destroyer. He was identified today as Able Seaman Roderick E. Reade, 21, of Galt.

Reade was flown by helicopter Tuesday to the RAF hospital at Halton, outside London, with two other seamen who are said to be seriously ill.

The first fatality was Ordinary Seaman Patrick A. Perrier, 18, of Val d'Or, Que, who died in the fire aboard the ship.

SUPPLEMENT MEDICARE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 5,700,000 elderly Americans have signed up for voluntary medicare insurance, the social security administration says. The voluntary plan supplements the basic medicare program which pays hospital bills for those 65 and older. Both go into effect next July 1. The voluntary plan covers doctor bills, and costs $3 a month.

Flight Safety Not Threatened By Players

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department said Tuesday it has been assured there was no threat to flight safety in an Oct. 5 incident aboard an Air Canada DC - 8 jet involving some members of the Ottawa Rough Rider Football Club.

Mervyn Fleming, chief of flight regulations and standards, said the department has received a written report from the captain of the aircraft and now considers its investigation closed.

He said there had been no physical violence involved but passengers on the Toronto-bound night flight from Winnipeg had been "very annoyed" by loud talk, a continual ringing of service bells and a "general kicking up of heels by some boisterous players."

Previous reports said there had been some drinking by the players on a charter flight between Regina and Winnipeg before they boarded the regular jet. There was no mention of any drinking aboard the jet in any of the reports received by the department.

Hees Says Comment on Tobacco Market 'Factual, Responsible'

OTTAWA (CP)—George Hees, former Conservative trade and commerce minister, said Tuesday his comments about possible benefits to the Canadian tobacco industry from a British trade blockade against Rhodesia were a "factual and responsible answer to an important economic question."

"I suggested that the minister of trade and commerce should go to Great Britain and make sure arrangements are made for Canadian tobacco growers to obtain this market if it becomes available, as opposed to United States or some other tobacco producer.

"This was a factual and responsible answer to an important economic question."

CITIZENS OF THURLOW:
What Are The Issues?

The issue on October 20th is NOT whether Thurlow will be dry or wet because:

1. All citizens of Thurlow are able to purchase alcoholic beverages conveniently in Belleville.
2. The same citizens can frequent dining lounges just as conveniently.

THE ISSUES THEN ARE:

1. Are we willing to turn down good tax dollars from potential enterprizes that would require the dining lounge licence.
2. The present laws discriminate upon present establishments in Thurlow that require a licence to compete with similar establishments in Belleville.
3. Has any citizen the right to tell his fellow man that he can or cannot drink.

TO ENLARGE FUNDS

The Royal Trust Co. Mortgage Corp. announced Tuesday in Montreal it will enlarge its capital funds by $2,500,000 through a second issue of 125,000 series A, cumulative preferred shares. The non-redeemable shares will have a par value of $20 each. Closing date for the first offering is Oct. 28.

ACQUIRES VOTING SHARES

The Imperial Life Assurance Co. of Canada has acquired "a considerable block" of ordinary voting shares of the Investors Group of Winnipeg, a financial management company, it was announced Tuesday in Montreal. Imperial Life is a partially - owned subsidiary of Trans-Canada Corp. Fund. The number of shares acquired was not announced.

PUBLISHERS TO MERGE

Two well - known business publishers, McGraw-Hill Inc., and Standard and Poor's, announced Tuesday in New York they have tentatively agreed to merge. McGraw-Hill publishes trade magazines and scientific journals. Standard and Poor's publishes financial information for investors and others, and among other things, issues a daily stock index.

INCREASES DIVIDEND

Huron and Erie Mortgage Corp. Tuesday increased its quarterly dividend by 25 per cent to 10 cents a share. The corporation recently split its stock on a five-for-one basis and the dividend is equal to an increase to 50 from 40 cents a share on its former $10 par value stock.

SEEKS CLOSER LIAISON

The building and real estate manager for Canadian Westinghouse Co. Ltd. appealed Tuesday for closer liaison between real estate agents and community industrial commissioners. Eric Hall of Hamilton told a real estate seminar in Toronto that in too many cases there is insufficient liaison between the real estate agent and the industrial commissioner.

PLANS QUEBEC PLANT

Union Carbide Canada Ltd. of Toronto announced plans Tuesday for a plant to manufacture liquid oxygen, nitrogen and argon at Tracy, Que. The plant will be the largest of its kind in Canada, the announcement said, and will have an annual production of 480,000,000 cubic feet of liquid industrial gas.

Lull in Foreign Affairs Just What Doctor Ordered

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson's recuperation from his gall-bladder operation seems to coincide with something of a lull at home and abroad.

Some observers are suggesting it's just what the doctor ordered—that domestic affairs and American foreign policy can stand a rest.

The only current jarring note has been the demonstrations in the U.S. against American policy in Viet Nam.

In Washington, Congress is tired and cross after sustained labor and hopes to be gone next week. Even spokesmen such as Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield are saying that perhaps the president's huge legislative program needs to be digested before any fresh push begins.

The race - riot season has waned and the civil rights drive is being pursued in a thousand little campaigns across the land, but the hallmark seems to be caution on each side.

POLL SEEMS DISTANT

The off-year elections of 1966 still seem distant and so does the capacity of the Republican party to heal itself completely after the strains imposed on it by former Senator Barry Goldwater and his followers.

Abroad, recent events support the argument that the United States sometimes has a great deal to gain by doing nothing, saying little.

It has watched, with some satisfaction, as China suffered reverses in recent Indonesian upheavals. This is a luxury which doesn't happen every day.

The U.S. continues to let the United Nations carry the ball in tedious and unfruitful efforts toward an India-Pakistan border settlement.

Events in Viet Nam seem frozen as American manpower on land climbs steadily toward a total of perhaps 200,000 by Dec. 31. The president's latest "peace offensive" has attracted no Communist response regarded here as meaningful.

CUE TO KEEP MUM

In the Atlantic community, the U.S. continues to say nothing while President de Gaulle of France by stages refines his opposition to continued or expanded integration. The French elections, next month, in which de Gaulle is expected to run and get another whopping victory, serve as legitimate excuses for remaining mum.

Nor is there any activity in the campaign for tighter international controls on the spread of nuclear weapons. In favoring a lull in the disarmament field, the U.S. is believed to be resting some pressure from Britain to make fresh initiatives to the Soviet Union.

But with the return of renewed health to the president, and given some elbow room by events abroad, U.S. action on various fronts may be taking shape at year's end.

Bank Debits In September Show Increase

MONTREAL (CP)—Debits to Canadian bank accounts in September totalled $41,003,100,000, an increase from August and a substantial increase over September of 1964, the Canadian Bankers' Association reports.

The figure for August was $39,281,900,000, and in September of last year was $34,314,900,000.

Debits represent money withdrawn from deposit accounts other than federal government accounts in chartered banks as reported for last month from all clearing house points in Canada, they are:

Party Scandals Said Not Serious Crimes

CHIPMAN, N.B. (CP) — Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Tuesday the Canadian public has been confused into thinking current party scandals are serious crimes.

Here to address a Liberal meeting, Miss LaMarsh said in an interview: "A scandal is a scandal. However, when people translate these into crimes, that's different."

She attributed much public confusion to campaign tactics of John Diefenbaker who "has been campaigning for two months and hasn't come up with a platform yet."

"There have been scandals in our government and the persons responsible have been dealt with," she said. "But the scandals are nothing compared with the Bobby Baker scandal in the United States or even those associated with the old Tory grandfather, Sir John A. Macdonald, who sold Canada to the CPR. You don't have to go back 100 years either to dig up a Conservative scandal."

Miss LaMarsh said the health and welfare department "has been getting along very well" with the Canadian Medical Association in arrangements for adoption of the proposed national health plan but "the provinces may still have some problems to iron out."

Miss LaMarsh said that although Canadians need more exercise she has no intention of walking five miles a day to prove her point. "I've already sacrificed my figure for my country."

She said she has gained more than 40 pounds since she stopped smoking 2½ years ago in support of her anti-smoking educational campaign. She described the campaign "as highly successful."

Addressing the meeting, Miss LaMarsh outlined in detail steps the Liberal government had taken and legislation planned for the future should it be re-elected in the Nov. 8 federal election. She spoke in support of Mrs. Dorothy L. Dear born, Liberal candidate for Royal in the Nov. 8 election.

Millions of Dollars Rest On Split Decision of Garment Buyers in N.Y.

By SALLY RYAN

NEW YORK (AP)—The salesman poured a glass of water over the sleeve of a wilt, daisy-pricked silk raincoat.

"See—waterproof," he said.

John C. Witherspoon, 41, a buyer for a Los Angeles department store and its suburban branches leaned back.

"Good," he said. "I've got this little woman who thinks I'm responsible if the rain runs down her neck. I want to be sure this is going to be water-proof—not just water repellent."

Hundreds of Witherspoons pour into New York's garment centre every week, seeking everything from hats to house slippers for sale at the stores across the country.

Millions of dollars may rest on their split-second decisions about what a woman will—or won't—wear. The garment centre does a $12,000,000,000 a year business in carrying out the buyers' decisions.

Witherspoon, who studied retailing at Ohio State University, went through a pad of fabric swatches, glancing some and passing others. Then he matched a black - and - white marble print to a sample of a multi-colored daisy print to a trench coat ("This will be our James Bond model—waterproof trench is James Bond this year"), selecting winter coats for his company.

INSPECTS GOODS

He looked at fox - trimmed coats, silk raincoats, artificial furs, Mongolian cashmere suits and Dior - fringed capes, and checked on a Courreges paisley wool coat and leather dress (size 8) for actress Mitzi Gaynor.

He left behind $15,000 in orders for the day. On the average he will spend $60,000 to $100,000 during a market week, when new lines are introduced.

Lunch was a cream cheese sandwich and a cup of soup.

"You'd never finish if you had a two-hour lunch," said Margie Blanton, a silver-haired dress buyer from a Louisville, Ky., store.

She has been a buyer 25 years, making trips to New York nearly every month—usually for four or five days, and then 10 to 14 days for the big markets in January and June.

She may examine five lines before lunch, and another five or 10 afterward.

MAKE APPOINTMENTS

Most buyers set up appointments with the manufacturers before they leave for New York, and work with the same salesmen each trip.

The buyers have to make up their minds in a hurry.

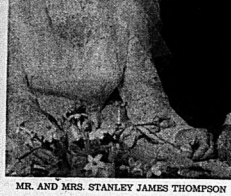
"There's lot of instinct, hunch, gamble—you trust it will sell, but it doesn't always," said Miss Blanton.

"We keep a close check on the sales record and go over the runners — the dresses that are selling well—and the dogs, the ones that aren't. Then we try to figure out why."

The buyers have little free time. Those stories of lavish entertainment and high living among the buyers in the big city are just that—stories.

"Sometimes I have dinner with other buyers, but not with the manufacturers," Miss Blanton said. "You don't want to be beholden to them, and feel you have to order from them.

"In the evenings, I sit in the hotel, work on orders, decide what to buy, review notes and go over the next day's schedule. You're just too tired for high living."



MR. AND MRS. STANLEY JAMES THOMPSON

Thompson – Brick

The wedding of Gail Marjorie Brick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brick of Campbellford, and Mr. Stanley James Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson of Ottawa (formerly of Belleville) was solemnized recently by Rev. Gordon Whitburn in Trinity United Church, Petherick Corners.

Mrs. Verna Brunton presided at the piano and Miss Faye Petherick was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of organza over taffeta. The bouffant skirt had a Chantilly lace insert which watched the fitted bodice with scalloped neckline and lily-point sleeves. A detachable train of lace fell from the shoulders. The headpiece was a cap of organza and pearls with an elbow length tulle veil. She carried a cascade of Talisman roses with stephanotis and ivy.

The maid of honor, Miss Jane Foster of Kendal, Ontario, and the bridesmaids, Miss Linda Anderson of Campbellford and Miss Karen Wickens of Frankford, wore full length sheath gowns with gold brocade skirts and brown velvet bodices meeting at the Empire waist lines. Headpieces were of gold tulle caught with matching flowers. They carried cascades of bronze 'mums and Talisman roses.

Groomsman was Mr. Grant Arnott of Belleville and ushers were Mr. Ralph Kennedy of Orono, Ontario, and Mr. Ronald MacFarlane of Trenton. The bridegroom and his attendants were tuxedo dress.

The reception following the wedding was held in the Orange hall, Petherick Corners. The mother of the bride received, wearing a beige knitted suit with brown accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums. The mother of the bridegroom wore a suit of dark green velvet with matching accessories and a corsage of gold 'mums.

For the wedding trip to the Eastern United States the bride wore a red coach-dress with black accessories and a corsage of white and red carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will live in Burlington.

Home, School Assoc. Seeks Members

An exploratory examination of the whole area of membership in Home and School will be conducted by the Belleville and District Home and School Council at Harry J. Clarke School, Hollins Drive, Thursday, October 21st.

This clinic will be a follow-up to the program lab, and an effort will be made to assist, guide and suggest methods which might be used effectively during October, Home and School membership month.

The Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations is looking for a 20 per cent increase in membership to help build for the future an organization that is progressive in its thinking and in its actions. Each and every child in the community will benefit as the local Home and School Associations become stronger.

Registration and coffee will be at 7.30 p.m. on October 21. Everybody is welcome to come "back to school" with Home and School.

ECONOMICAL MEAT BUYS

From Kimberley, B.C. came a letter: "Could you help me budget wisely on $125. per month for a family of six?"

This mother (Mrs. L. G. W.) has approximately 4^{20} per day with which to buy meat and milk and soap and all of the other provisions necessary for a growing family. It is not impossible but it is difficult.

Pickled beef tongues and corned beef are two of the lower-priced, boneless, fatless meats to be bought so I went to work on them.

WEDNESDAY
(Guests)

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Roast Breast of Lamb; Lemon Spice Glaze; Breaded Sliced Eggplant; Corn on the Cob; Tossed Greens; Melon Ball Fruit Cup; Orange Frosted Brownies; Tea.

BOILED PICKLED TONGUE with Sweet Sour Sauce:

Wash then barely cover the tongue with warm water. Add ½ bay leaf and 2 slices of onion and ¼ teaspoon pepper and simmer covered, for 3½ to 4 hours for a 3 lb. tongue. Remove from broth, slit skin and peel it all off. Remove the little bones from base. Serve hot, sliced with Sweet Sour Sauce: 2/3 cup strained tongue broth or warm water, 1/3 cup vinegar, 1/3 cup brown sugar, 1½ tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ cup finely rolled ginger snap crumbs (optional), ¼ cup raisins (optional), 1 tablespoon lemon juice (optional). Mix together dry in saucepan the sugar, cornstarch, salt and nutmeg. Stir in broth or water and vinegar and cook, stirring, until thick. Add optional ingredients if used, and reheat. Serve hot. Good with ham too.

CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE with Hot Mustard Sauce:

Wash a 2½ to 3½-lb. piece of corned beef — preferably brisket. Place in deep kettle and just cover with warm water. Add 2 cloves garlic, ½ bay leaf crumbled, cover and simmer 3½ hours. After 3½ hours or 15 minutes before serving time add 1 medium, trimmed, green cabbage cut into wedges held intact by the core. Continue cooking uncovered, until cabbage wedges are barely tender and still bright green. Arrange cabbage wedges uniformly around corned beef on preheated platter. Serve with Hot Mustard Sauce: ½ cup brown sugar, 1 (or 2) tablespoons dry mustard, ½ teaspoon flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 beef bouillon cube, ½ cup hot water, ¼ cup vinegar, 1 egg. In heavy saucepan mix together the sugar, mustard, flour and salt. Dissolve the bouillon cube in the hot water and add them and the vinegar and slightly beaten egg and cook stirring, until thickened and consistency of soft custard. Cool. This Mustard Sauce is delicious with hot or cold corned beef or tongue or ham or headcheese or wieners.

Bride-to-Be Entertained At Shower

CROFTON — On Wednesday evening, Mrs. Clare McPaul of Crofton, and Miss Gayle McIntosh, nurse-in-training at Belleville General Hospital, were hostesses at a kitchen shower in honor of Miss Carole Hough, whose marriage to Mr. Wayne Vincent takes place on October 23.

The guests spent the evening making an apron. Each one autographed it and it was worn by the bride-to-be while she opened the gifts, which were presented in a decorated basket. The decorations chosen were blue and white streamers and colored umbrellas.

After the guest of honor thanked everyone for her gifts, lunch was served by the hostess.

On Friday evening, Mrs. Jack Usborne, 24 Glen Road, Belleville, entertained about twenty friends and relatives at a linen shower in honor of Miss Hough.

B.B.C. 50-50 CLUB

CROFTON — The first fall meeting of the 50-50 Club was held at the home of Clifford and Thekla Hough with a good attendance. Clifford and Thekla were in charge of the Devotional and Leonard and Jean Root thanked the members for their co-operation during the past year.

The Rev. Truax was asked to take charge of the election of officers for the coming year. Those elected are: president, Leonard and Jean Root; vice-president, Clifford and Ruth Mercier; secretary, Dorothy and Bill Miller; treasurer, Clifford and Thekla Hough; press reporter, Earle and Marie Caughey; buying committee, Clare and Marion McFaul and Leon and Marguerite Caughey.

It was decided to hold the meeting on the first Wednesday evening of every month.

An invitation was accepted from the Friday Nighters to attend a masquerade party at King Street United Church in Trenton on October 29.

Earle and Marie Caughey invited the club to their home for the next meeting, which will be held on November 3.

Leonard and Jean had charge of recreation, which consisted of a reading and two contests.

Lunch was served by the host and hostess, after which the meeting was closed with prayer by the Rev. Truax.

Ann Landers

Ann Passes Approval On Pierced Ears

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 16-year-old girl who is troubled by something that is bugging lots of high school girls. You spoke at our school several months ago and seemed like a good egg. Your opinion would count at home.

I am dying to get my ears pierced. Is that so awful? My mother is against it. She says it cheapens a girl's appearance. I say it depends on the girl and the earring.

Some of the girls have let their friends pierce their ears, which horrifies my mother. I would have a doctor do it. The way my mother talks no respectable girl would have ears pierced. Do you agree with her? (P.S.: Someone who met you in person said your ears are pierced. True or false?) — BURLINGTON VERMONT MISS.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR MISS: True. And I haven't lost a pair of earrings since I had it done, thank you.

Pierced ears are "in." I would O.K. it for 16-year-olds (no younger) provided the girl wears small button-type pearls or gold or silver studs. Enormous gypsy hoops or chandelier hardware does cheapen a girl's appearance, so that's "out."

P.S.: Ear-piercing should be done by a physician and not by any friend who happens to own an ice-pick or a darning needle.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Fifteen years ago my father died and left me a growing business. I worked for him before I married and after. I met my husband, Tom, to take over because I wanted to stay at home and raise our children.

Tom did well with the business. He expanded and remodeled the building and updated the equipment. He also kept bringing in his relatives — first a brother, then a nephew, then a brother-in-law. Whenever I objected it ended in a big fight, so I kept quiet.

Our youngest child is in high school now and I want to go back in the business. Tom told my husband he said, "There is no room for you now. It would only cause trouble."

Last night I made my last stand. Either I go back in the business or I sell it.

Well, I was called everything in the book not only by my husband but my sons. Nobody is speaking to me now. I telephoned my pastor and he said, "Leave things as they are." I want your opinion. — THE OUTSIDER.

DEAR OUTSIDER: Your pastor gave you excellent advice and I hope you take it.

Many things have changed in the past 15 years. If you insist on shooting your way into the business you'll create real trouble. According to your own testimony your husband has done well, so keep quiet and stay home.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have close friends who are of a different faith. They are very fond of our children and the feeling is mutual.

In the past year these friends have been giving our children religious medals and objects which are symbolic of their faith. We've said nothing but we feel this is a slap at our beliefs. We would never give them gifts of a different faith our religious literature or anything pertaining to it. The friendship of this couple is important to us, but so are our own convictions. Please give us some broad-minded advice. — TOUCHY SUBJECT.

DEAR TOUCHY: These friends are paying your children a high compliment by giving them objects which have great meaning to them.

The medals need not be worn and the religious objects need not be displayed. Accept the gifts in the proper spirit — and then put them away.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

There's an aura of enchantment that hovers about the house that holds a baby. Visitors abound. Everyone wants to hold, cuddle, coo and bounce a new baby. But too much handling is inadvisable and it's wise to observe these simple rules:

(1) If baby's a snooze don't wake him up for a weekly bath. He would be holder . . . just promise a cuddle session in the future. (2) If baby's awake, a bit of cuddling by grandmothers and others is permissible if not prolonged.

Cereal choice. When your little one is ready to start on cereals, the single-grain varieties (Gerber Rice Cereal, for instance) make good beginnings. Then there's good Gerber Oatmeal — sure to please because of its mild, delicate flavour and its smooth, creamy consistency when you mix it with milk or formula. Iron . . . for its blood-building properties . . . has been added to Gerber Oatmeal (as it has to all the fine Gerber Cereals for baby). It's so quick-and-easy to prepare Gerber Oatmeal. You just add the tiny flakes to milk or formula, and they stir to creamy perfection in seconds. Stay that way, too, all through the serving, even while baby eats directly.

Diaper trick for tummy sleepers. If your baby sleeps sunny side down, an extra diaper, tied apron-style over the front of baby, will help protect bedclothes.

Fruit-ful ideas. Fruit is usually an early addition to a baby's diet. Gerber Strained Fruits are truly appealing to tiny tots. The reason? They're flash-cooked in a matter of seconds to preserve orchard-bright colour and flavour. Flash-cooking also helps to preserve their food values for your baby. Has baby sampled Gerber Strained Bananas, Applesauce, Peaches or Pears & Pineapple lately? Just four of Gerber's heavenly varieties. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Dinner Date With Boss in 1939 Prelude to 105-hour Work Week

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Olive J. Wallace, one of a select group of women who have had successful careers in high-salary prestige positions of the Canadian civil service, has retired.

Miss Wallace says her 26 years in Ottawa, first as private secretary to ministers of finance, defence, health and welfare, and later as the country's only female departmental secretary, were stimulating, exciting and enjoyable.

"But I've had to make some sacrifices. Any woman who chooses a career instead of marriage and a family has to make them. Not too many women are ready to make these sacrifices."

She says the biggest disadvantage for a woman in a senior position is this:

"Because you are a woman, you have to be constantly trying to strike a happy medium between being as aggressive as you have to be in order to do your job well, and being shrewish.

"A reputation for being a battle-axe never bolps a working woman."

Miss Waters has never had that reputation. Friends and fellow-workers in the health department say she is charming and diplomatic, but also a hard worker combining efficiency and firmness.

SMILE LIGHTS UP

She is an attractive, personable woman with a slender figure and a youthful face which lights up when she smiles.

Her long career in the public service started suddenly in 1939.

On the morning of Sept. 7, the day war was declared, secretary to J. L. Ralston, a prominent Montreal lawyer.

By evening, she had left the Montreal law office forever and was in Ottawa with Mr. Ralston, who had been appointed by Prime Minister Mackenzie King to join the cabinet as minister of finance.

"Mr. Ralston invited me out to dinner and right after that we went to work. We worked on seven days a week, 15 hours a day, even on Christmas Day, until the war was over."

Working for Mr. Ralston, who later became the wartime minister of national defence, put her in direct contact with the hectic life of Parliament Hill. She also served with Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton during his time as defence minister.

"However Churchill or some other world leader came to speak in the House of Commons, the private secretaries were given choice seats. We were always invited to receptions afterwards. Parliament was a new experience for me and I remember that I was terribly excited by everything."

The frantic government activity of the war years prevented Miss Waters for the next big step up in her career.

JOINED CLAXTON

In January, 1946, she was invited by the late Brooke Claxton, first minister of the newly formed national health and welfare department, to become his departmental secretary.

As the department grew, all her resources were challenged by the task of preparing the estimates for the departmental spending budget, now the third highest of all federal departments.

Working with the estimates brought her right onto the floor of the Commons where she and the deputy minister sat in front of the minister's desk to whisper details of the budget to the minister as he was questioned by Commons members.

Last spring, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh paused during consideration of her department's estimates to pay public tribute to Miss Waters, drawing applause from all sides of the Commons.

"I've had a fine career but I don't intend even to work again for a living," says Miss Waters, who retired in September. "Women who work have to sacrifice too many things they instinctively want."

She plans an extended stay in Europe, probably in Italy. She also intends to keep up her active social and recreational interests, canoeing, golf, amateur theatre and music.

FOUND CIVIL SERVICE EXCITING — Olive J. Waters, the only woman to become a departmental secretary in the federal civil service, says her 26 years in government service were stimulating, exciting and enjoyable. She was private secretary to two cabinet ministers and became departmental secretary of national health and welfare when it was formed in 1945. (CP Photo)

SEEK LOST BABY

TORONTO (CP)—The Salvation Army is searching for Ruth Moody, who has not been seen since she was four, when her parents died in the Hinton explosion of 1917. A sister in Boston, Mass., says she believes the child was saved and now is trying to identify people who remember the incident.

Women's Institutes

BAY OF QUINTE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Mrs. S. Holland was hostess to Bay of Quinte Women's Institute, on Wednesday, Oct. 13th, with 16 members and four visitors present. Mrs. A. Ketcheson, vice-president, was in charge of the business meeting. Mrs. R. Bickle, secretary, reminded members that the Adelaide Hoodless commemorative spoons had arrived and were on display. Mrs. C. Curtis pasted on a message of thanks from Mrs. John Reid for the flowers sent to Mr. Reid who is a patient in Kingston hospital.

Members agreed that the winter euchre parties should begin in the new Tuture at Harder's school.

Mrs. A. Meyers reminded members that the adopted boy in Macao had a birthday soon and it was agreed to make funds available to Mrs. Meyers to send a birthday gift and later a Christmas gift.

Mrs. Ketcheson called on Mrs. A. Dunn, public relations officer, who read a short history of ACWW by Miss Mariann Meier which was published in 1963.

At the close of the meeting the hostess and the committee served lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

Tartan Skirts Now Popular With Teeners

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — The word Scotch today connotes a major trend in French fashion, perfume as well as whisky.

Teen-agers have went back to school this autumn wearing kilts and pleated tartan skirts, and the new fashion image was born.

Within a few week's the Scotch plaid skirt became the most influential trend in imported clothing since blue jeans and T-shirts crossed the Atlantic 10 years ago.

The "Scotch look" is not necessarily confined to the junior set. It emerges here as an ageless style being worn by "girls" from six to 60.

The number of authentic clan plaids seen swinging along the streets of Paris would outnumber a highland regiment in full dress.

One long - established Paris shop says there is a constant snobbishness attached to owning and wearing a genuine imported kilt instead of a French version of the same thing. The most popular skirt is styled like a real kilt with a series of overlapping pleats fastened with a giant gold-colored safety pin.

IGNORES TRADITION

The average Frenchwoman knows little of the traditions of the Gordons, Bruces, Campbells or the Royal Stewarts, but she considers their tartans the height of fashion.

Tartan skirts as well as trousers and accessories are selling in all price ranges, from the matched ensembles in Castillo's couture collection to inexpensive versions sold in the chain stores.

Castillo makes a fetish of the Scotch look in the country costumes with pleated skirts and neat little schoolboy Eaton jackets. He shows mixed and matched accessories with bright plaids employed for low-heeled shoes, short gloves and cloche hats, or separate skirts with matching long woollen stockings.

The leading shops for children and teen-agers helped launch the current Scotch craze by promoting back-to-school clothes in every imaginable pattern and color combination. Plaid skirts and matching book bags are reported to be their two best-selling items.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Rowley of Frankford celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary yesterday. The biggest thrill of the day for them was when Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader for Ontario, dropped in to congratulate them. Mr. and Mrs. Rowley joined the CCF party in 1930.

Frankford Couple Wed 55 Years Visited by Ontario NDP Leader

TRENTON — Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Rowley of Frankford celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary on Monday and were congratulated by the Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, Donald C. MacDonald, who dropped in at the Rowley home on his way to the N.D.P. nominating convention for Hastings South in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowley joined the C.C.F. Party in 1930 and now, in their 70's are staunch supporters of the N.D.P.

Mrs. Rowley was the former Olive Montgomery of the Frankford area.

Mr. Rowley, originally from England, came from Manitoba.

The couple was married in King Street United Church by the Rev. Thompson.

Mr. Rowley worked as chief engineer and motor mechanic in the Canadian Paper Board Company at Frankford, and later moved to Toronto with the same company.

When Mr. Rowley retired in 1959, Mr. and Mrs. Rowley moved back to Frankford.

They have three children, Miss Grace Rowley and Jack of Toronto and Mrs. Edna Huffman of Frankford; seven grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

A foster son, Jack Sexton, lives in California and phoned home to wish his parents happiness.

In excellent health, Mr. and Mrs. Rowley are enjoying their retirement years by keeping busy. Mr. Rowley spends much of his time in his garden; Mrs. Rowley does all her own housework and still finds time to sew cushions which she sells and donates the money to the Lower Trent Valley Fish and Game Club for their clubhouse project.

Church.

The women of the C.N.R.A. served a turkey dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fortin and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Snell were the recipients of several gifts. Mr. Fortin and Mr. W. Snell recently retired after working for the Canadian National Railways for a total of 96 years.

Mr. Jack Davies of Aurora, general chairman of the B. of L., and Mr. David W. Newell, special assistant of the C.N.R. in Belleville, made brief addresses.

The evening was rounded out by entertainment and dancing to Dan Fairman's orchestra. Door prizes and spot dance prizes were donated by the merchants of Belleville.

B. L. E. Holds Banquet at Club Canara

The annual banquet of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Division 189 was held at the C.L.R.A. Canara Hall on Monday night, sponsored by the entertainment committee.

Before dinner began, a minutes silence was held in memory of the departed members of the Brotherhood. Grace was said by Rev. Laurie Sutherland of St. Andrew's Presbyterian

Mother Wants To Be Winner At Games

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vi Tither has it in mind to be the only 30-year-old mother of four competing at the 1966 British Empire Games.

Mrs. Tither's middle-distance running is among the best in Western Canada, and she has been at it only one year.

Having decided she was "starting to get a little flabby," she now parks her tots in the sand at a Minoru Park jumping pit and runs through a two-hour workout every day. Husband Conrad jogs along when he has time.

Track and field experts are stunned by her progress. Dr. Doug Clement, her coach at the suburban Richmond Track and field club, says she promises to be the top member of Canada's top female cross-country team.

Competitively, Vi has taken her hauls starting in the 60- and 200-yard races at Winnipeg, her hometown, revealed she isn't a sprinter. In the Canadian championships she tripped early in the half-mile, recovered to pass the field, but ran out of wind in the final yards and dropped to fifth.

She has looked better in local half-mile victories and plans to keep running for three years, with the British Empire Games in Jamaica her most prominent goal. Her best time for the half-mile is 2:18.1, still more than 10 seconds off Abigail Hoffman's Canadian record.

As a fine junior athlete in Winnipeg, Vi played softball, basketball and volleyball. But she never did any serious running and until last September covered her time to bring four children ranging from 20 months to six years.

"She always thought she would like to run," says her husband. "Then last fall we were at a track meet at Empire Stadium. Right then and there she decided she could win races and was going to do it."

TURN TO CANNED SOUPS

Sales of canned soups in Britain rose 150 per cent between 1952 and 1964.

Susanna's Family Fare

OVER HERE!

Dear Susanna: The parking lot in the plaza where I shop must be the largest in the world. In fact, I'm sure of it on days when I come out of the supermarket, loaded with groceries, to face a sea of cars most of which look like mine. One time I spent 15 minutes wandering up and down the wrong aisles — I couldn't remember where I had left my car and I hadn't taken time to make a mental note of the nearest landmark.

But all that's behind me. I can spot my car now at a glance from 500 paces. I shirred four large squares of multicolored nylon net into one of your ley-er - kipt "fluffy scrubber" rosettes, and added a loop of narrow elastic to the back. With this glorious beacon snapped onto the top of the extended radio serial who could lose his car? Not I! — "Robbie" Robins

If your idea catches on Robbie, the words of William Words. worth may come out sounding something like this:

"I wandered lonely as a cloud that floats on high o'er vales and hills, when all at once I saw a crowd — a host of golden daffodils? No. A host of multi-colored nylon net rosettes! — Susanna

BLIND TIP

Dear Susanna: I had a window blind that would not hold when pulled down. After using up a lot of energy and temper, I found out all I had to do, was, remove the blind from my window and roll it up by hand. I placed it back in its holders, pulled it down, and it stayed put! — Martie

Mrs. R. Jeffrey Receives Appointment

Mrs. Roy Jeffrey of Belleville was among the new members appointed by the Hon. Stanley J. Randall, Minister of the Ontario Department of Economics and Development to the Women's Advisory Committee.

This committee, comprised of 21 members from across Ontario is given the responsibility of acquainting women as to the role they can play in developing the economy, through the support of things Canadian. This is not to be done by setting up committees and organisations; this is a personal responsibility to be shared by individuals.

The new members were welcomed at a meeting held at the Park Plaza Hotel, Toronto, recently. Mrs. Jeffrey is the representative for the region, which includes Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland.

Great strides have been made in the past few years in the development of textiles and designing by Canadian manufacturers in the field of clothing, House furnishings and appliances also have come to the fore in the past several years and these goods, usually purchased by women account for 80 per cent of every consumer dollar. For this reason, an appeal is being made to every woman to "look for the label" and to shop "Canadian".

Conferences for women are being held across Ontario for the specific purpose of acquainting them with their importance in the economy of their country. The conference is an information program and there is an effort whatsoever to involve women in setting up committees, study groups.

The one-day conference for women in this area will be held at Belleville on February 22, 1966 in conjunction with the Trade Crusade's "Buy Canadian Week".

U.C.W. Meetings

'CANNIFTON U.C.W.

The October meeting of Canifton U.C.W. afternoon unit was held at the home of Mrs. Ralph Plumpton at Corbyville with 12 members present for the meeting.

Following the opening of the meeting by the president a number of future events were discussed. Members have been invited to a bazaar at Stone Church the latter part of October. The bazaar in Canniton Church will be held during the first part of November. The next meeting of the U.C.W. will be on November 17th.

Mrs. Helen Brenton gave a reading and Mrs. T. Howard was in charge of devotionals assisted by the president and by Mrs. S. Bradshaw. Mrs. Plumpton related a parable which teaches that all cannot fill prominent places; all cannot be captains, but captains must have crews.

Coroner's

—a stage in Quebec procedure where the defence can present evidence aimed at getting the charges dismissed without a trial.

The dead men whose fates recounted during the all-night coroner's court session were Alberic Bilodeau, 52, of Ste. Marie de Beauce; Paul Chandonnet, 38, of Sherbrooke; and Redemptuer Faucher, 47, and Paul Brie, 43, both of Quebec City.

Lamothe, 43, is a bankrupt lumber dealer. He denied committing any of the killings, through he admitted participation of some sort.

Boulet, a 32-year-old laborer and news dealer, was held responsible in the deaths of Bilodeau, Faucher and Brie. Gagnon was held responsible in the Chandonnet and Bilodeau deaths and Quirion in the Bilodeau death.

Witnesses talked of the victims being taken on death rides in Faucher's case, the dis-ry of body - disposal in marshy ground.

The inquiry established that Bilodeau, Faucher and Chandonnet were shot with the same gun—a gold-plated, pearl-handled 32-calibre Smith and Wesson pistol.

Councillors Walk Out Of Meeting

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — Eight councillors walked out of a county council meeting here Tuesday during a debate on a proposed $2,000,000 regional jail for Hamilton and Halton and Wentworth counties.

Later, H. H. Hinton of Acton told reporters he and seven others walked out because they believed the proposal was being "railroaded through council without sufficient investigation."

After the eight had left Warden Herb Merry of Oakville adjourned the meeting on the ground the remaining six council members were not enough to form a quorum.

However, he called a special meeting Friday in which he hopes the disagreement will be settled amicably.

Earlier, George Kerr, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Halton, told council present jails in Hamilton and Halton county resemble mediaeval dungeons.

Savings Bonds Sales Brisk

TORONTO — A total of $17,111,850 in sales of the 1965 series of Canada Savings Bonds through payroll savings has already been achieved by Ontario organizers in the current campaign.

Reporting on the progress of the campaign, C. G. Beatty, Ontario regional director, noted that 44,879 applications have already been processed by campaign headquarters here.

Sales to date in the Peterborough and Belleville areas total $621,150. Organizers are E. W. Simpson and David Monk. The area covers Belleville, Peterborough, Lindsay, Trenton, Cobourg, Port Hope, Newcastle, Campbellford, Brighton, Stirling, Picton, Tweed and Marmora.

Supervisor for the payroll savings campaign in the Eastern Ontario region is Walter F. Wilson.

party unity, saying there are better things in life than nursing ill feeling.

Mr. Pearson also drew an audience of 1,300 to hear his defence of government medical insurance and an appeal to westerners to send more Liberals to Ottawa. The Liberals won only three of the 48 Prairie ridings in 1963.

"I want this to be a national majority with good representation from the west," he said of the impending Nov. 8 election. "We have done good things for the west in the last 2½ years."

A heckler shouted "socialist" when the prime minister made his remarks about medical insurance, which Ottawa has insisted must be compulsory and complete.

BRIDGE MONEY GULF

Mr. Douglas said language and culture are not the only divisions that must be tackled. The gulf between extreme wealth and abject poverty must also be bridged.

"It is divided between 13,500,000 Canadians whose incomes allow them, at least in part, to share in the affluent society and 6,500,000 Canadians who are shut out from the feast," he said.

The answer was to set national goals aimed at ending pockets of poverty and spreading economic prosperity to every corner of the land. Welfare measures alone were not enough.

Mr. Thompson said the life of a minority government should not be put on the line in every non-confidence issue in the Commons. It would be enough to have such a government state clearly at the outset those issues that it would regard as confidence votes and discount the rest.

PUBLIC 'CONFUSED'

Elsewhere on the campaign, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said at Chipman, N.B., the public has been confused into thinking that current governmental scandals are serious crimes. That was due to the campaign tactics of Mr. Diefenbaker.

George Hees, the former Conservative trade minister seeking to return to Parliament, told a Port Hope, Ont., audience that a greater effort should be made to sell surplus farm products abroad at special export prices.

And in Toronto there was some astonishment when a poodle named Scamp turned up as Scamp Walton on the voters' list in Spadina riding. Occupation: playboy.

Today Mr. Pearson is in Calgary and Humboldt, Sask., while Mr. Diefenbaker moves through the Ottawa Valley south of Pembroke. Mr. Douglas is at the Lakehead, Mr. Thompson travels through Alberta and Creditiste Leader Real Caouette takes a day off.

Lawyer Denies Taking Any Part in Events

MONTREAL (CP) — Hubert Ducharme, a Montreal lawyer, has denied any part in events leading up to the 1963 statement of support for a Liberal government by six Social Credit MPs.

"Since 1962, and the time just after the election of that year, I have taken no active part in politics, whether federal or provincial," said Mr. Ducharme.

In a pamphlet published last week, Dr. Guy Marcotte, a Social Credit MP in the last Parliament, said Mr. Ducharme, described as lawyer for industrialist John Doyle, drafted the statement of support in a Montreal hotel.

The statement later was repudiated by the six MPs, who all have since become members of Real Caouette's Creditiste party.

"I am a complete stranger to this affair of the signing of the document by the six MPs," Mr. Ducharme said Monday in an interview. "I don't know why they're trying to mix up my name with this business."

DOCUMENT SWORN TO

The document was sworn to by Moise Darabanar, in his role as commissioner of the Quebec Superior Court in Quebec City.

Darabanar, a Quebec City businessman, now faces charges of arson and fraud, and conspiracy to commit arson and fraud.

The pamphlet said that once the statement of support was drafted in Montreal, Mr. Ducharme rushed to Montreal Airport to join Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, Transport Minister Pickersgill, Mr. Doyle and others waiting in Mr. Doyle's private plane.

Arriving later in Quebec, Mr. Ducharme was said by the pamphlet to have met Darabanar and to have turned the document over to him. Then the six MPs went to a suburban motel to discuss it.

Mr. Doyle has been quoted in published reports from Toronto terming Dr. Marcotte's statements "hogwash without a grain of truth."

ENTERS RACE

PARIS (AP)—Jean Lecanuet, a senator and member of the Roman Catholic popular republican movement, announced Tuesday his candidacy in the 1965 presidential election Dec. 5. Lecanuet is the fifth announced candidate for the post. President de Gaulle has not yet said whether he will be a candidate.

mittees had a backlog of work to catch up on.

Gordo Tuesday called for Smith's resignation and demanded that the Rhodesian people be consulted before independence is seized.

(British Prime Minister Wilson discussed the independence issue Tuesday with Canadian Prime Minister Pearson by telephone. British officials said Wilson also was recently in touch with Australian Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies.)

The Associated Press reported from London that a senior government source said Britain would brand a declaration of independence an act of rebellion and would order the British colony's governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, to do all he could to take over the government of Rhodesia from Smith.

However, Prime Minister Wilson's government will not use force because it believes British public opinion would not support such action against the white settlers of Rhodesia, most of whom are of British descent.

The source said if Rhodesia declares independence, Britain would stop buying the colony's £40,000,000 ($120,000,000) annual tobacco crop, cancel a variety of other trade and financial deals, expel Rhodesia from the sterling area, freeze the African colony's assets and cancel her preferential Commonwealth tariffs.

Britain also will take the matter to the UN Security Council. The UN General Assembly already has called on the British to do all necessary to prevent a declaration of independence or to negate it if the Rhodesia government issues one.

SUBWAY APPROVED

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council unanimously supported a proposal Tuesday to extend the city's north-south subway an additional six miles north by 1971. The $56,000,000 project will begin in 1967 after completion of the east-west subway now under construction and will be opened a link at a time as each station is completed.

Water Levels In Great Lakes Seen Rising

OTTAWA (CP) — Water levels in the Great Lakes and Montreal harbor for the seven days ending Oct. 13 were all above the levels set in 1955 for shipping charts, the weekly report of the Canadian hydrographic service showed Tuesday.

Montreal harbor had an average of 20.9 feet above sea level, a gain of nine-tenths of a foot from the previous week and 2.9 feet above the chart level.

Lake Erie gained one-tenth of a foot in the same period, while averages in the three other lakes remained unchanged from the previous seven - day period.

Thorold Hoskin NDP Candidate In Hastings South as Ontario Leader Flails Old Line Parties

By HARRY MULHALL

With less than three weeks campaign time left, the New Democratic Party last night jumped into the November 8 federal election in Hastings South.

A small assembly of party faithful last night in Belleville's Engineer's Hall selected as their candidate Thorold "Curly" Hoskin, a 55-year-old transport maintenance mechanic for a large city fuel company.

But if the attendance was light — there were just more than 20 people in the auditorium when the meeting started, it had one of the strongest NDP leaders on hand to evoke campaign enthusiasm — Donald C. MacDonald, the party's Ontario leader.

"This may well be the most important election that the New Democratic Party or its CCF predecessor has ever had," MacDonald predicted.

"You can starve yourselves and everybody else by the harvest of votes that's there waiting to be picked up," he said, charging the Old Line parties with fostering national political disillusionment.

"In fact it might be even more accurate to say that disgust is a better description of it than disillusionment," he added.

COULD BE STARTLED

If local party workers can emulate the campaigning of national NDP leader Douglas "you may be startled to discover the number of people who are saying 'a plague on both your houses' as far as the Liberals and Conservatives are concerned," said Mr. MacDonald.

Mr. Hoskin was born at Plainfield and lived much of his life in Manitoba. He returned to Belleville in 1961. Mr. Hoskin, now in his first election campaign, is the parent of two children, a son in high school and a daughter in public school.

Mr. Hoskin spoke briefly after his nomination — the only one presented the meeting — but the speechmaking was left mainly to the Ontario NDP leader, a chore he filled with relish in a 45-minute attack on the federal Liberals and Conservatives.

He charged Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker with indulging in a personal vendetta that has caused political deadlock and paralized parliament.

"This is the kind of thing that is disgusting Canadians today," said Mr. MacDonald.

The present election would have been unnecessary had the Prime Minister had justified support in Commons with "a little bit of leadership," he added.

"But he saw fit to call an election now because he thought now was the time to capture a majority vote."

Yet Mr. Diefenbaker had commanded the largest majority in history between 1958 and 1962.

"If ever there was proof positive," said the NDP leader, "that a big majority is not necessarily a guarantee of good government, we had it under Mr. Diefenbaker's regime."

The Diefenbaker government drifted for six years "until the Cabinet, virtually blew up," he added.

The Liberals called for stable government during the 1963 campaign.

"If what we've had in the past two-and-a-half years is stable government Heaven help free us from it as soon as possible," said Mr. MacDonald, noting scandals that have plagued the Pearson government.

"Is there any wonder that the Gallup polls show there is one-third — maybe as high as 40 per cent — of the voters in Canada don't know how to vote?" he demanded.

"Mr. Pearson can't have it both ways. He can't out of one side of his mouth say we've got to get the job done and out of the other corner say what a wonderful job we've done in the past two-and-a-half years."

"A majority government is no guarantee of getting things done and good government if that government is not prepared to give leadership."

He singled out the Liberal welfare proposals — notably medicare — for an extra-heavy verbal lashing, and accused the Liberals of first introducing it as an election promise in 1919. The party had governed Canada for 35 of the ensuing 46 years, said Mr. MacDonald.

"The Liberals don't believe in medicare," he scorned. "Because if anybody believed it and had been in power 35 of 46 years they would have put it in."

He noted a report attributed to Dr. R. O. Jones, president of the Canadian Medical Association, quoted as saying the federal government had softened its stand on a national health plan.

"Forgive me if I inform you friends: you'll get a medical health plan from Ottawa but only when its actually passed and on the statute books, because for 46 years they've been leading us up the garden path."

He charged the government with seeking "political kudos" through Canada Pension Plan advertisements.

"The tragedy of the Canada Pension Plan is that today it comes into effect when a lot of our senior citizens will be unable to get any benefit from it," he added.

In 1962 the Liberals first announced a pension plan paying $168 a month, later reduced to $100, then to $75.

"I tell you if you'd given them very much more time it would have disappeared completely," said Mr. MacDonald.

He also claimed that Canada's international reputation had begun to deteriorate under Prime Minister Pearson, a Nobel Peace Prize recipient.

"The tragedy of it is that he ever left diplomatic affairs and came into politics," said the NDP leader.

Mr. MacDonald claimed a Canadian—whom he wished to leaves unnamed—serving with a United Nations technical aid scheme—had called NDP Ontario leaders together recently to express concern at the alleged decline of Canada's reputation.

Mr. MacDonald charged the Liberals with handing Canada its biggest diplomatic rebuff when Mr. Pearson's offer to mediate between India and Pakistan was refused.

"The gesture," he said, was a "political gimmick used by the Liberals on the eve of election" to boost the Pearson image.

He warned if Canada joined the Organization of American States it's reputation would hit bottom, but Mr. Pearson recently indicated this country was considering such a move.

"He has frittered away a great deal of the reputation that Canada has built up in the postwar period," said Mr. MacDonald.

The NDP leader alluded to the Liberal administration as a period of "wobbly leadership."

"You don't get good government with a majority government if that government hasn't got the capacity for leadership and this government has proven it hasn't got that capacity.

While you wouldn't mistake them for the Arsenal, West Ham, the Villa, Manchester United, Celtic or the Rangers, for sheer guts in carrying on in the face of public apathy, Parsons Cleaners Soccer Club of the city deserves plenty of accolades.

Orphans of the now defunct Bay of Quinte Senior League, Parsons refused to roll over and play dead and after the funeral became a member team of the Kingston District Soccer League.

Formed in 1939 under Bob Blair, its four-years manager, with Bob Rutherford, Romano DiGenova and Peter Crowle, still active players, the club devoted its first three years to building a team under Coach Al Sutton and Captain Peter Crowle.

Little success in league activities failed to dampen the club spirit. Its efforts were rewarded in 1963 by winning the Pop Helyer Trophy after disposing of Batawa, Trenton and the RCAF.

Aiming higher Parsons joined the Kingston District League in 1964 under managers Kirk Brinkman and Bob Vasgrave and captain Joe Iaszna. In its first year the club reached the league "B" series finals losing to Kingston Crusaders for the title.

Peter Crowle and Graham Geldart took the club to its best playing plateau this year. It played 18 games, won ten, lost seven and tied one. It scored 45 goals with 24 against.

The regular members, DiGenova, Crowle, Iaszna (captain), Geldart, Rutherford, Roesburg and Herb Mueller (the Gourmet Chef) who came out of a two year injury retirement to his spot between the posts, were strengthened by Bob Main, Jimmy Patterson, Alan Brown and Mario Basic.

The top scorer was Rutherford who has netted 11 goals, followed by Alan Brown with 14. Iaszna scored six, a creditable performance considering he played on defence the greater part of the season.

The seasonal efforts thus far have been crowned with winning the Bay of Quinte Trophy by virtue of finishing higher in the league standing than the next-place Batawa Club.

They hope to climax the season on Saturday at Zwick's Island by defeating the Kingston Crusaders in a sudden-death game for the league "B" series championship and the Williamson Trophy. . . Kickoff at 4 p.m.

But belonging to and playing for a soccer club in this city is not all figurative beer and skittles and scoring goals, so to speak.

Parson, like other clubs that formerly represented this soccer village, has had more ups and downs than an elevator emcetro at a hotel convention.

Grounds-wise they've been kicked around the place. They played five years in a remote spot on the Fair Grounds and finally gained the ears of the powers-that-be and managed to get their present location on Zwick's Island. This has resulted in increased spectator interest.

Love of the sport scores direct hits on players' wallets. They pay approximately 50 per cent of expenses such as travelling and equipment with the exception of shirts and footballs.

For Parsons the road to soccer success is paved with the stones of difficulty.

They travel to Kingston for the majority of their games. The sport requires a high degree of physical fitness for players to maintain 90 minutes of strenuous play. Their only player "feed box," apart from new arrivals, is the high schools minor clubs.

Since the club needs approximately 18 players per season, the replacement of injured members is another difficulty factor. Then the club is responsible for the maintenance and marking of the Zwick's Island field.

Dubbed in some quarters as the "world game," soccer has never held any great attraction for the native Canadian. You'll find him in a hockey rink, a baseball or softball diamond and a lacrosse pitch.

The game has enjoyed increased popularity in Canada the past few years due to the influx of European and British immigrants. However high schools have added the sport to athletic agendas and it is reported students are taking to the game.

Parsons deserve a lot of credit for keeping soccer alive in an apathetic city. They have kept its banner flying through the years, the most of them lean ones. And they would like nothing better than a large crowd of fans at Zwick's Island on Saturday to watch them end the season against Batawa in a blaze of championship glory.

Jackson Pocket-Passes Riders To Win

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Quarter back Russ Jackson abandoned his usual roll-out style to stay in the pocket and pase Ottawa Rough Riders to a 35-14 Canadian Football League interlocking victory over British Columbia Lions Tuesday night before 18,337 fans.

Jackson started the game with roll-out patterns, but was met by a good rush and failed to complete his first six passes. He started to drop straight back in the dying minutes of the first half and promptly completed two passes, one to halfback Ronnie Stewart for 21 yards and a touchdown.

He stayed in the pocket in the third quarter to hit end Ted Watkins with a 55-yard touchdown strike and set up a three-yard scoring plunge by halfback Rick Black with a 40-yard toss to fullback Jim Dillard.

He capped his passing drive with another touchdown in the second play of the last period, hitting flanker Whit Tucker with a 10-yard toss.

The Riders other touchdown, the first of the game, also came on a pass, but from B.C. quarterback Joe Kapp. Halfback Don Gilbert ran 78 yards for a touchdown on the first of three Ottawa interceptions.

Kapp had a rough night in other departments. Although he managed to complete 10 of 21 passes before giving way to Steve Shafer in the fourth quarter, several of his throws were dropped by teammates.

HAD 7-0 LEAD

When they started the game, the Lions showed no ill effects from their 23-7 loss to Hamilton Tiger-Cats Sunday, and took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter on Kapp's three - yard touchdown run that followed fumbles on consecutive plays.

It s t a r t e d when Black fumbled a punt on his own three-yard-line, and the Lions recovered. On the next play, fullback Bob Swift fumbled the handoff from Kapp, and while everyone was hunting the ball in the pile-up, Kapp picked up and scooted around left end.

The Lions other touchdown came in the third quarter when Kapp gambled on third down and hit halfback Willie Fleming for a 27 - yard pass - and - run play.

Peter Kempf converted both B.C. touchdowns, but missed on two field goal attempts both in the first half.

Moe Racine kicked five converts for the Riders and missed three-points when he hit the cross bar on a field goal attempt from 41 yards out.

The Riders now are just two points behind Hamilton, leaders in the Eastern Conference, with two games left for each club.

The Lions are tied with Saskatchewan Roughriders for the third and last playoff berth in the West and must beat them in Vancouver next Sunday to stay in contention.

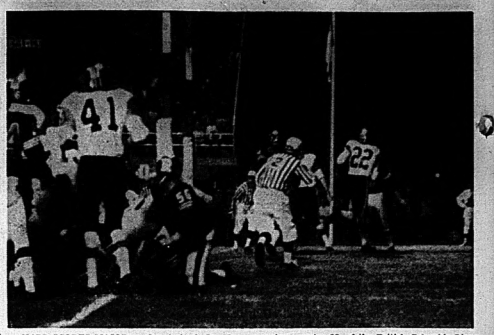
The Lions had 19 first downs to 15 for the Riders. B.C. had a total offence of 281 yards—98 rushing and 183 passing—while the Riders gained 294 yards—99 rushing and 195 passing.

Jackson was good on eight of 15 passes for 195 yards and had one intercepted. Bill Cline's only pass was intercepted.

Kapp picked up 121 yards with 10 completions and three interceptions in 21 attempts. Shafer was good on five of 11 throws for 62 yards.



KAPP SCORES MAJOR — Quarterback Joe Kapp, wearing sweater 22, of the British Columbia Lions is seen completing a touchdown after he picked up a fumble on Ottawa Rough Riders' three-yard line. Kapp's touchdown, which came at 7:32 of the first quarter, gave B.C. a 6-0 lead. (CP Wirephoto)

All-Star Game Tonight

Mikita Out; Hull Still Unsigned

STAN MIKITA

WILL JUMP AGAIN

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio said Tuesday night that Valery Brumel, the Soviet Union's world champion high jumper, will be able to jump again despite a fractured right leg suffered in a motorcycle crash earlier this month. His doctors were quoted as saying he can [illegible] ing in one year at the outside.

MONTREAL (CP)—Whether he comes to contract terms with Chicago Black Hawks or not, centre Stan Mikita probably will be absent from the spot reserved for him on the National Hockey League All-Star team.

The all-stars are scheduled to take on Montreal Canadiens tonight in the Stanley Cup champions' home rink, the Forum.

Mikita is last season's NHL scoring leader. As a Chicago hold-out, he has the company of all-star left-winger, Bobby Hull.

Tommy Ivan, Chicago general manager, said Tuesday Mikita is still hampered by a groin injury he suffered in an exhibition game against Canadiens Saturday night.

The Chicago general manager said contract negotiations with Hull are continuing and that Hull was scheduled to meet with Chicago management later in the day.

The all-stars are coached this year by Chicago's Billy Reay, who earned the right because his club gained a berth in the Stanley Cup final series last spring.

The Hawks lost to Canadiens in the seven-game series.

Canadiens coach Toe Blake will go with almost the same lineup that won the cup.

Three Canadiens — defencemen Jacques Laperriere, right-winger Claude Provost and centre Jean Claude Tremblay — will line up with their own club, although the three were selected as all-stars.

Vancouver Selected By NHL

Expansion In 1967-68

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League has now selected four of the six cities necessary for its expansion to a 12-team, two-division loop by the 1967-68 season.

The board of governors, at its semi-annual meeting here yesterday, approved Vancouver and San Francisco-Oakland as communities meeting prescribed standards of the league.

Earlier this year Los Angeles and St. Louis were found satisfactory.

The selection of San Francisco-Oakland is contingent on the completion of the new Oakland Alameda arena, to be completed early in 1967 with a seating capacity of 13,000 plus.

An alternate home for the U.S. west coast entry could be a modernized Cow Palace—the current home of the San Francisco Seals of the Western League.

Completion of a proposed new arena in the Pacific National Exhibition grounds at Vancouver is the league's stipulation to that city.

NEED FACILITIES

Baltimore, Minneapolis - St. Paul, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh remain in contention for the final two positions, although Philadelphia will require a new rink and the other three need extensive modifications to existing areas facilities.

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said following Tuesday's announcement that he did not think any further applications will be received to establish further league franchises.

However a report carried in a Buffalo newspaper Tuesday night indicated a group of businessmen from that city intend to apply.

Campbell said that the two west coast cities selected Tuesday both have applications in from two separate groups. He said the league hopes that in both cases the applications will work together for the establishment of a single franchise.

He said that in the event the groups concerned can not reach agreement, the league will then be forced to choose one or the other, in each city.

CANUCKS BID

The two Vancouver applications were received from the current owners of the Canucks of the Western League and a group headed by Cy McLean and Frank McMahon of West Coast Transmission.

The San Francisco bidders are the Seals and a group headed by Barry Van Gerbig. Campbell said the situation will be discussed further at a February meeting of the board of governors. He said it is hoped by that time the dual facilities in each city will have reached agreement.

The NHL president confirmed that each bidder for a franchise had put up $10,000 in "good faith money" on a non-returnable basis.

In addition, a sum of $2,000,000 to cover the cost of purchase of 20 players is required from each applicant.

To provide the players needed for such an expansion program, 20 professional players will be drafted from the six existing NHL clubs, Toronto, Montreal, Chicago, Detroit, New York and Boston.

Selection Delights Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver is delighted the National Hockey League has decided to open shop here.

Civic leaders and potential franchise owners gave a verbal round of applause to Tuesday's announcement that Vancouver would be granted an NHL franchise as soon as "a combined application by the two Vancouver factions" is submitted.

Coleman Frank McMahon, head of one city group that bid for an NHL franchise, said he would "be glad to move back or do anything else that's necessary."

A spokesman for a group headed by Fred Hume, prescient holder of the Western Hockey League franchise here, and B.C. Telephone Co. President Cyrus McLean, said the Hume-McLean group is delighted but would not comment on the merger condition.

Capt. Harry Terry, president of the Pacific National Exhibition, said Vancouver's 16,000-seat arena should be completed by May of 1967, "in plenty of time for the NHL's 1967-68 season."

He said the news is wonderful and the culmination of "everything we've been working so hard to get."

Brewer To Play Tonight

TORONTO (CP) — Carl Brewer will make his final appearance as a player in the National Hockey League All-Star game in Montreal tonight.

Brewer, selected as a second-team all-star for his performance with Toronto Maple Leafs last season, announced his retirement from hockey Monday but said Tuesday night he had agreed to a request by Leafs president Stafford Smythe that he play in the game against Montreal Canadiens, the fancy Cup champions.

The 26-year-old defenceman said Smythe agreed that Brewer's appearance in no way obligates him to play for the Leafs this season and that the Leafs agreed to pay him an amount equal to his 1964-65 salary plus $2,000 if he is seriously injured in the game.

NHL Victors Collect Seasonal Spoils

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League held its annual all-star dinner here Tuesday night on the eve of the game, and if the contest moves as quickly it should prove a huge success.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said the board of governors had accepted suggestions and come up with a new format in an endeavor to curtail the lengthy speeches that had bogged down previous affairs.

To do this, they had Danny Gallivan and Rene Lecavalier —the English and French commentators on Montreal Canadiens games — act as co-masters of ceremonies.

As a result the multi-pronged presentations were accomplished in record time with a minimum of speech-making.

Roger Crozier, Detroit Red Wings' rookie netminder, received the Calder Trophy as the outstanding newcomer of the 1964-65 season from Montreal Canadiens' all - star defenceman, Jacques Laperriere.

RECEIVES 2 AWARDS

Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks' left wing star, received two awards—the Hart and the Lady Byng trophies.

Hull received the Hart award for the player judged most valuable to his team, from Jean Beliveau, Canadiens' team captain. He was presented with the Byng Trophy, for the combination of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high standard of play, by teammate Kenny Wharram.

Bruce Norris, Detroit Red Wings' owner, presented Chicago's Pierre Pilote with the Norris Trophy, emblematic of top defenceman in the league.

Gordie Howe of Detroit gave Chicago's Stan Mikita the Art Ross Trophy for winning the league scoring title and Charlie Hodge handed Frank Mahovlich the Vezina Trophy in the absence of the joint winners—netminders Johnny Bower and Terry Sawchuk of Toronto Maple Leafs.

GETS SMYTHE TROPHY

Beliveau received the Conn Smythe Trophy from...Stafford Smythe of the Leafs for his top performance in last season's playoffs.

In a special ceremony, Campbell, on behalf of the league, gave Maurice (Rocket) Richard a diamond tie clip with the numerals 544 embossed on it. The 544 represents the number of goals Richard scored during his 978 regular season games.

Final award 'and tribute of the night was made to retired referee-in-chief Carl Voss. Senator Hartland Molson, president of the Canadian Arena Company, said the silver tray from the league was "a mark of gratitude, and esteem" for Voss' 15 years of service to the NHL.

Blair, a graduate of Mount Allison University in New Brunswick, was called up mid-way through the season. He played last year with East York Argonauts, Canadian senior football champions.

CFL Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

British Columbia's Peter Kempf kicked two converts to Lions' 14 lead to Ottawa Rough Riders in Canadian Football League interlocking action Tuesday night to strengthen his grip on second place in the Western Conference individual scoring race.

Kempf has 72 points, six more than Sullback Lovell Coleman of Calgary Stampeders.

The leading scorer is Larry Robinson of Calgary with 87 points.

Halfback Willie Fleming got one of the B.C. touchdowns and moved into a share of 10th place at 42 points with Jim Thomas of Edmonton Eskimos. The leaders:

NBC Pays 30 Million For Rights

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Broadcasting Co. signed a $30,000,000 contract with the major leagues Tuesday to retain rights for telecasting the World Series and all-star game the next two years and the game-of-the-week for 1966, 1967, 1968.

The announcement was made by John E. Fetzer, president of Detroit Tigers and head of the major leagues' television committee.

Fetzer said the deal would be worth $300,000 to each of the 20 clubs in the two leagues.

NBC now holds the contract for the World Series and the all-star game, a deal expiring at the end of next year.

Nationals Defeat Rangers

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canada's national hockey team edged Minnesota Rangers of the Central Professional League 3-1 in an exhibition game before 3,000 fans Tuesday night.

Goals by Ted Hargreaves and John Russell gave the national team its third consecutive victory.

Hargreaves' first-period tally stood up until Russell made it 2-0 in the third, four minutes before Jim Johnson scored Minnesota's lone goal.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Wayne Harris, 18, of Vancouver rode three winners at Woodbine race track Tuesday to spoil his winning ride at the autumn meeting at Woodbine to $2—four behind Hugo Dittfach, the leading rider.

Harris rode Dave's Mistake to victory in the second, then followed up with Naughty Jester in the third and Alberta-mara in the fourth.

Dave's Mistake came charging from off the pace to return $11.10 and to combine with Neptune's Hostess for a $50.20 daily double.

Intermediate Hockey Loop Formed

Formation of the Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League rounds out almost a full quota of lower brackets hockey in this part of Eastern Ontario.

—Hastings, Trenton, Trenton RCAF, Picton and Kingston clubs comprise the new circuit, OHA vice-president Jack Devine announced today.

The league will play a 24-game schedule with Hastings opening at Trenton on November 3rd.

Other home openers are Kingston at RCAF November 7; RCAF at Picton, November 9th; Trenton at Hastings, November 12th and Hastings at Kingston, November 16th.

Kingston's home games will be played at Gananoque.

Has Bone Chipped

TORONTO (CP) — Welterweight Peter Schmidt of Toronto has a chipped bone in his left wrist and won't be able to fight for at least 10 weeks, his manager, George Shepherd, announced Tuesday night.

Schmidt injured the hand in an unsuccessful defence of his Canadian championship last Saturday against Lennie Sparks of Halifax. Sparks knocked out the 29-year-old veteran in the fifth round of the title bout at Saint John, N.B.

Giardello, Tiger Confident

NEW YORK (AP) — The Tiger is hungry and on the prowl.

This doesn't scare middleweight champion Joey Giardello. He's prepared to tie knots in the Tiger's tail Thursday night.

"This could be the last chance for me, so I must win," says Nigerian Dick Tiger. "I will win."

"That's nice," said Giardello "but I hate to disappoint him. I'm gonna win. The thing that scares me is that I'm too confident. I can't see how I can lose."

The hard training was out of the way for both 160-pounders and now they had the long wait until they climb into the Madison Square Garden ring at 10 p.m. EDT Thursday night for their 15-round return title fight.

Giardello, who took the title from Tiger at Atlantic City, N.J., Dec. 7, 1963, has won nine straight in nearly three years. At 36, he feels he still has a couple more years to collect the big money that eluded him through most of his 18-year pro career.

Tiger, 35, figures he doesn't have to change much of his style. All he wants, he said Tuesday, is for the referee to make Giardello work in the ring.

"I'm going to make him fight," said the grimly-determined Nigerian. "he ran and ran the first time. This time I expect to corner him enough so he'll have to fight."

SOX BUY SANTIAGO

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Red Sox announced Tuesday night the purchase of right-handed pitcher Jose Santiago from Vancouver, an affiliate of Kansas City Athletics. The purchase price was not disclosed. The 25 - year - old Santiago pitched four games for the Athletics last season, without gaining a decision.

PLAYING UNDER PRESSURE

There is a normal tendency, when playing under unusual pressure, to increase the firmness of your grip. This is bad because a grip that is too firm encourages a jerky swing, and a jerky, hurried swing is especially harmful in tight situations when you need the best, smoothest swing you can muster.

When you feel pressure, be it on the tee or on the green, relax your grip. Don't get sloppy about it but relax a little in your hands. A relaxed grip will, in turn, ease tension in your wrists and forearms. You will be more likely to take the club back smoothly and put yourself in position for a smooth, unhurried downswing.

Will Make Bid For Grey Cup

OTTAWA (CP) — This city will make a bid to have the 1967 Grey Cup football game played here, board of control decided Tuesday.

A special committee of elected officials, businessmen and sports personalities will be formed to make plans and approach the Canadian Football League for approval.

The city is planning construction of a new $5,000,000 civic centre, including a football stadium, which is scheduled for completion by the summer of 1967, Canada's centennial year. Seating capacity of the present Lansdowne Park Stadium would be increased from 22,000 to 28,000.

College Scoring

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Halfback Art Froese of University of Western Ontario Mustangs, London, Ont., kicked four converts Saturday to increase his lead in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association Intercollegiate Football Conference to six points.

Froese scored the four points in a victory over McGill University Redmen at Montreal, running his scoring total to 36 points on four touchdowns, 11 converts and a single.

Gerry Sternberg and Bryce Taylor of University of Toronto Blues and Heino Lilles of Queen's University Golden Gaels of Kingston failed to close in on Froese as Blues edged Gaels 1-0 at Toronto.

Sternberg has 30 points, Taylor 20 and Lilles 18.

Fullback Lilles leads the rushers with 206 yards in 54 attempts for a 3.7 average.

Minor Baseball Body Meets Thursday

It will study and discuss any constitutional changes if any are presented.

A general review of the season's activities will be held.

All members are requested to attend.

Johnson Upsets Cooper

LONDON (AP) — Unranked Amos Johnson of Medina, Ohio, upset Henry Cooper in a 10-round bout Tuesday night and ruined the British heavyweight champion's hopes of getting a shot at the world title next year.

The 26-year-old American piled up points with a strong body attack and opened a cut over Cooper's left eye in the seventh round.

After inflicting the wound, Johnson dominated the bout. Referee Harry Gibbs of England paused only for a moment before walking over to Johnson to raise his hand, signifying the victory.

The referee is the only official in English bouts and his scorecard is not disclosed.

Carter has played professional hockey seven years, spending time with Rochester and Quebec in the AHL. He played for Seattle in the West, Eastern League and Memphis in the Central League last season.

Hornets Win First, Aces Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An eight-player deal between two National Hockey League clubs paid its first dividend four days before the NHL season started.

Gary Jarrett, a left-winger whom Detroit Red Wings picked up from Toronto Maple Leafs last May, wasn't a principal figure in the trade, which saw the Leafs acquire Marcel Pronovost and Larry Jeffery in exchange for Billy Harris and Andy Bathgate.

But Jarrett, farmed out by Wings to Pittsburgh Hornets was one of the first of the traded players to see action and provided an early payoff Tuesday night as the Hornets edged Baltimore Clippers 2-1 for their first victory of the American Hockey League season.

Jarrett set up Bob Cunningham for the first Pittsburgh goal and scored the second himself in the first period to open up a lead that stood up for the remainder of the game. Ray Cullen scored the only goal for the Clippers just before the first intermission.

In the only other game played third-period goals by veterans Bruce Cline and Howie Vansickle gave Hershey Bears a 3-3 tie with Quebec Aces, leaving the two teams deadlocked in second place in the Eastern Division with three points apiece.

Pete Conacher and Quebec's Wayne Hicks matched first-period goals and Ed Hoekstra and Bill Sutherland shot the Aces into a two-goal lead in the second before the Bears tied it up.

Terrell Trainer Ousted

TORONTO (CP) — An unwelcome visitor turned up at George Chuvalo's training camp Tuesday and promptly was asked to leave.

Chuvalo was sparring in preparation for his 10-rd. World Boxing Association heavyweight championship fight against Ernie Terrell when the latter's trainer, Sam Solomon, walked in.

Irving Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager, called a halt to the action in the ring and ordered Solomon to leave.

Solomon, who helped train former champ Sonny Liston, said in an interview that Ungerman is "afraid to let us in."

"He can watch Ernie train anytime he likes it doesn't make any difference to us," Solomon said outside Chuvalo's training headquarters at nearby Bolton Golf and Country Club. "I don't know what they are afraid of, but if they come down to watch Terrell work out, he'll scare them to death."

Ungerman said Chuvalo was not afraid of Solomon or Terrell.

"We are definitely not afraid of him. I just don't think it's right. I wouldn't go to Terrell's camp and I don't expect his people to show up here."

Boxing Will Never Die Says Ross

TORONTO (CP)—A former boxing champion says he doubts boxing will ever die despite the controversy surrounding it during the last decade.

Barney Ross, who held the world lightweight, junior lightweight and welterweight crown during a 79-bout career in the 30s, said Tuesday:

"How can people say that boxing will die when the army overseas has clinics set up to teach the young kids how to box? I just returned from Germany where I helped set up several of these clinics and I can tell you that boxing is ahead of all the rest as far as sports is concerned in the army."

Ross is in Toronto to visit the training camps of the participants in the World Boxing Association heavyweight championship here Monday, Nov. 1. Ernie Terrell of Chicago will make the first defence of his title against George Chuvalo of Toronto in a 15-round match at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Ross said one of the big troubles in boxing is that the "young kids" are not getting enough fights before they hit the big time. By the time they have 20 fights, they are already fighting for the championship.

"I had 282 amateur fights before I turned professional. And I had at least 50 bouts under my belt before I fought for my title."

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Miss Raider, a gelding bought for $1,400 four years ago, has turned out to be good investment for owner-trainer-driver Jack Wilson.

Tuesday night at Garden City Raceway Miss Raider won the pitch race to start a huge $136.50 quinella and bring its earnings to $20,494 since 1961.

Second-place finisher Sister Matt completed the quinella.

Bill Wallwood had a double win on the nine-race card. He brought Jimmy Soup home first in the opening race and drove Brother Dillon to a win in the fifth.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Twelve-year-old gabbed Mid's Boy won his third victory in four starts at the Western Fair Raceway Tuesday night, capturing the top event $300 trotting dash in the sixth race.

The recordbar his eighth victory of the year, Mid's Boy was clocked in at 2:03 3-5 and, as favorite of the ladies' night crowd of 2,606, returned $6.20.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP) — Dominion High, owned and driven by Bob Altizer of Woodfield, Ohio, won the $1,000 featured pace at Batavia Downs Tuesday night.

Shoe Clerk, leased by the A.B.C. and G. Stable, St. Lambert, Que., won the third to pay $36.

Generals Defeat Nationals

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Oshawa Generals defeated London Nationals 2-0 Tuesday night to move into a three-way tie for first place in the Ontario Junior A Hockey Association League.

Third - period goals six minutes apart gave the Generals their second win in four games and moved them to the top with Kitchener Rangers and Peterborough Petes.

Defenceman Barry Wilkins scored the winner at 7:40 of the third period, shoving a loose puck into the short side with a half-dozen players scrambling at the goal crease.

Wayne Cashman secured the victory at 8:50 when a 20-foot slap shot deflected off defenceman Bob Cook's right arm into the upper right corner.

Referee Hugh McLean handed out 19 penalties, 12 to Oshawa.

HOUSE WILD ASSES

EDMONTON (CP)—The first cougar or Persian cat ass to be born in Canada is at the Alberta Game Farm near the provincial capital. Fewer than 100 cougars are known to exist today and the farm bought a pair from Moscow in 1963.

"One of you tenors didn't wait for my cue."

City Horses to Race at Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—After an absence of 29 years, horse racing returns to Windsor Thursday with the opening of the new Windsor Raceway.

There is accommodation for 800 horses in the five winterized barns at the ¾-mile track. The site is in suburban Ojibway.

The raceway is licensed for the current standardbred race meeting that extends from Oct. 21 to Dec. 18 by the Ontario Racing Commission and the Canadian Trotting Association.

Races will be held six nights weekly, every night except Sunday. A crowd of close to 10,000 is expected for the opening night of the $6,000,000 raceway.

Many of the horsemen entered are from Canada, including owners Ken Galbraith, Belleville, Harold Westwood, Stratford, Keith Foyle, Victoria Harbour, Ont.; Ross Curran, Smith's Falls, Ont., and Dr. J. S. Ferguson, Chatham.

BUYS PACER

YONKERS, N.Y. (CP-AP) — Red Carpet, a four-year-old pacer, was bought for $37,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Milton Adrien and G'rard, of St. Augustin, Que., at the Old Glory Sales at Yonkers Raceway Tuesday. During the intermission refreshments were prepared by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion and served.

MAN BROUGHT DEER

HALIFA X (CP)—The whitetail deer, Nova Scotia's smaller but game animal, was unknown in the province 100 years ago. The herd reached an estimated peak of 222,000 animals in 1954 owing to a natural migration from New Brunswick and the artificial introduction of deer into the southern counties 36 years ago.

Canada Has Long Way to Go -- Gordon

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon said Tuesday night Canada still has a long way to go to become a cohesive state with a full and meaningful national independence.

Addressing the Toronto Junior Board of Trade, Mr. Gordon said the first aim is to establish a strong national identity in which both re-awakened French - speaking Canadians and newly - integrated English - speaking Canadians of many ethnic origins can join.

And to emphasize national independence the country must guard against excessive foreign economic control, he added.

Mr. Gordon said Canada can not yet be counted as a developed country, but one which is on the vanguard of the development of natural resources. Its prosperity depends on selling raw materials and semi - processed materials on world markets, and foreign investment has influenced this unbalanced development, with priority given to the extraction industries rather than processing or manufacturing.

MACHINERY BLAMED

"Our resulting dependence on importing finished equipment and machinery is one of the reasons for our huge deficits on current account in our balance of payments whenever capital investment is at high levels as it is today," he said.

"The foreign capital inflow that has been necessary to balance these current account deficits has further contributed to the deepening imbalance of our economic structure and the degree of foreign ownership of our industrial plant.

"All of these factors indicate that much has still to be done before we can say confidently that we have completed the task of establishing a real and meaningful national independence."

Mr. Gordon said his view of economic nationalism does not imply legislating against any particular group of foreigners, but affirms the principle that development of the economy must first of all serve Canadian interest.

Says Maritimes 'Cinderella of Confederation'

By DON ANGUS

MONCTON (CP)—New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas Tuesday night used a statistical comparison with the rest of Canada to support his claim that the Maritime provinces have been "the Cinderella of Confederation."

Speaking to a rally here in the centre of the Westmorland riding, now held by Liberal Mrs. Margaret Rideout, Mr. Douglas said the average income in the Maritimes is only two-thirds of the national average, wages are lower, the cost of living higher and unemployment greater than the national average.

The fault lies with the people of the region themselves for continuing to return members of the old-line parties to Ottawa "who have never spoken out for the Maritimes", he told a crowd of about 300 in the Hotel Ballroom.

He said industries must be created in the Atlantic provinces to stop the annual migration of workers from the area and to halt "the export of jobs" by shipping the province's resources for processing in other parts of Canada or other countries.

DEVELOP INDUSTRIES

For this purpose, he proposed establishment of a government-sponsored and operated national industrial development corporation to develop industries in economically - depressed areas where there is unemployment.

Such a project would be unlike Finance Minister Gordon's proposal for a development corporation. Instead, it would include a 10-per-cent investment by government and two directors, with the rest of it controlled by financial and business interests.

To spread national wealth by means of increased job opportunities and more equitable purchasing power and thus bolster the Canadian economy, Mr. Douglas said.

"This country is divided in language and culture, but it is also divided in wealth and economic opportunity. It is divided because it would be embarrassing for those who possess allow them, at least in part, to share in the affluent society, and 6,500,000 Canadians who are shut out from this feast."

EXTEND PROSPERITY

He said the solution to economic divisions is "to who that a nation can be wealthy and humane . . . We must build an economy which brings prosperity from coast to coast, eliminating the section pockets of economic deprivation."

Turning to cultural and linguistic differences, the NDP leader said national unity is a major election theme of both the Liberal and Progressive Conservatives, but "if after eight years of Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson, our unity in the country is in such a shattered state, these are not the men who are fit to put us back together again."

Canadians must build a society in which differences in race, language and culture "are accepted as the natural fabric of a community."

Mr. Douglas was to leave today for Port Arthur, Ont.

Diefenbaker Said Changing Tone of Talks

By DAVE McINTOSH

PEMBROKE (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker appeared to be changing the tone of his speeches at evening campaign rallies.

He still refers to the subject of integrity in government. For instance, he said here Tuesday night that Prime Minister Pearson had issued a code of ethics telling his ministers "to be good and if you can't be good, be careful."

But Mr. Diefenbaker now seems to be concentrating more on the policies he says the Conservatives would introduce if elected Nov. 8.

He went to some pains before a full house of some 1,200 persons in the armories here to outline his plans for a consumer protection bill which would "protect Canadians against exorbitantly high interest rates on credit purchases."

He said such loans would be aimed at helping urban dwellers to buy consumer goods and to buy such items as furniture.

Monday night in Fort William, Mr. Diefenbaker promised that interest rate would have to be slightly higher than five per cent.

TAX RELIEF

Mr. Diefenbaker repeated that the Tory tax relief in government would allow home-owners to deduct municipal taxes up to $100 when calculating their income tax. This would provide relief for hundreds of thousands of Ontario home owners.

He again outlined the Conservative agricultural policies, saying they would "prevent policies introduced between 1957 and 1962 from falling into disuse.

Mr. Diefenbaker also took anew for party unity. He said there were other things to do than nursing ill feeling and that he is prepared to hold out hot hands to persons who had left the party.

Earlier, at a Sudbury press conference he said that Clarence Mcinister Benson has not answered his question concerning the amount of money a company formerly headed by mining promoter John Doyle borrowed because it would be embarrassing.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked Mr. Benson if the money applied the amount of the out-of-court settlement reached with Canadian Javelin Ltd. of which Mr. Doyle was president.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canadian Javelin had owed the exchequer department between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 when an out-of-court settlement of $600,000 federal government's claim was reached this year.

SIMPLE QUESTION

"What percentage of the claim was accepted?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked. "It is a very simple question."

The Conservative leader also said Prime Minister Pearson and Transport Minister Pickersgill have evaded his questions about the $300,000 payment, said drawn, of six Social Credit MPs to support the Liberals after the 1963 election.

Statements and "substitutions" have been made by "secondary parties," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He also said Mr. Pearson's promises of pensions of $100 a month to needy persons over 70 was an "ejaculation" in the campaign and that nothing had been worked out.

Mr. Pearson "in a state of desperation" had proposed a "nebulous plan" after ridiculing the Conservative proposal for $100-a-month pensions for all persons 70 and over to be paid out of the Canada pension fund.

The pension now is $75 a month.

Today Mr. Diefenbaker tours the Ottawa Valley, ending with an evening meeting at Shawville, Que.

P.M. Carries Campaign to West Canada

By KEN CLARK

EDMONTON (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson, campaigning in the Conservative territory, delivered a strong Tuesday for the return of western Liberals in the House.

The Liberal leader told party rallies here and at nearby West-lock that the Liberals plan to exchange their minority government position in the last Parliament for a majority. It will need good representation from the West.

Mr. Pearson flew to the Alberta capital from Ottawa in a chartered airliner Tuesday in time to address an audience of 800 at an afternoon rally in the foyer of the Jubilee Auditorium.

Then he drove in a motor cavalcade to Westlock, 40 miles northwest of here, to address a crowd of 1,000 in the little community's memorial hall.

The events attracted people from several Liberal electoral ridings, all Conservative in the last Parliament, Only Liberal seat from Alberta is that of Parliament was Calgary South, Minister of Agriculture Minister Harry Hays.

Mr. Pearson, who visited Mr. Hays in hospital here, flew to Calgary today for a stopover rally, then continues into Saskatchewan for a rally at Humboldt. Mr. Hays is recuperating from pneumonia.

Mr. Pearson was met by the prime minister to the two provinces in this campaign.

LEFT TODAY

He set the tone for his visit at the Edmonton function, saying: "We are going to get a majority government. A minority government must have a good western contingent."

He said Canada needs a strong central government to keep the country moving with informal campaign tactics he spent an hour shaking hands.

The Liberal campaign here personal has been sharply attacked by C. C. Manning, Alberta Social Credit premier, who said it would restrict individual liberty.

Without mentioning Mr. Manning's charge, Mr. Pearson said the proposed plan will destroy nobody's freedom. The rights of the province would not be suspected.

The provinces do not have to come into the program, Mr. Pearson said, but he hoped they all would. The federal government would pay half the cost.

Max Schell Absents Self After Winning an Oscar

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Maximillian Schell's explanation of why he has absented himself from Hollywood for the 3½ years since he won an Oscar? "I didn't want to be caught up in the worship of success."

Oscar winners are supposed to do their utmost to cash in on the golden gift, wheeling and dealing to build careers and bankrolls.

Not Schell.

After he won the Oscar, I didn't make a film deal for a year," he says. "Yes, I there were all kinds of offers and pressures to get me to sign. But success can be a trap, and I was determined not to fall into it.

"Money? It never did concern me. No matter how bad things get, you can always sell your car."

Max Schell has not reached that state. Except in his early days as an actor, he has lived comfortably.

After his Oscar for Judgment at Nuremberg, Schell appeared in the unsuccessful The Condemned of Altona, for which he had been previously committed.

"Then I waited," he explained. "The offers were very flattering. But most of them had me playing an earnest young German. After The Young Lions and Judgment at Nuremberg, I had enough of that."

He broke the fast with Topkapi, purposely choosing a comedy as a change of pace. It was a happy choice. He followed with a drama, Return from the Ashes. In between he played a highly commended Hamlet and performed a new John Osborne play, A Patriot For Me, in London.

Schell was playing a return visit h ere to see friends and help call attention to Return from the Ashes. I found him in trunks beside the Beverly Hills Hotel pool, enjoying the late October sun and the local scenery, largely female.

He emphasized that his absence did not imply he was anti-Hollywood.

"I've missed the town," he said, "I'd like to work here. The films I have done have been American films that happened to be made in Europe. I'd like to do a comedy or a love story in Hollywood, but unfortunately I haven't found a good one."

Schell added that he has also found it difficult to locate exciting and different projects in Europe. For that reason he has formed "his own company and will film a Kafka novel. The Castle, this winter in Czechoslovakia.

"We will shoot right in Prague which Kafka wrote about," he said. "And we'll use the Czech faces."

Successful Living

Adopted Girl Needs More Self-Confidence

DEAR DORIS: We adopted the illegitimate baby of a second cousin, since I couldn't have children of my own. I raised her according to the book, using corporal punishment when she got out of hand. But she had normal social activities, parties and camps, etc.

DORIS CLARK

From observation, I could see that she was not very bright, but a test showed she had average intelligence. She was a failure at high school.

Then she flunked out of a course for dietitian's helper, because she couldn't keep up with the work. When she asked me what to do, I said "I don't know. It's up to you."

She finally found some work in a restaurant. She went out with one boy after another. Now she has taken up with a married man. With us she has remained indifferent and aloof. My husband has been quite the doting father, but even he can't get next to her. — BAFFLED.

DEAR BAFFLED: It's nothing new for a student of average brightness to find grades ten and 11 too tough. That's why we have vocational schools. I suspect she might have made the grade as a dietitian's helper, with a slight lift from you when it came to the studies.

You still have a chance with her, if you'll change your point of view. Instead of "It's up to you," she needs to hear "Come on, dear. You can do it and I will help you. If anything is too hard for you, let's tackle it together."

The married mum probably gives her admiration she craves. Concentrate on improving her self-confidence yourself and I'll wager she'll drop him.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I am stupid! The girl I hired to help me in the house went to a coffee house for the first time last night and has not returned to sleep here. It is now the next afternoon.

She is just 18. I do not think this kind of behavior is proper in an employee. I think I should be told where she is going and how late she will be, not because I am snoopy but because I want to be informed, for, well, all kinds of reasons — you know them, Doris!

My husband thinks this is none of my concern, since she is employed and over age. He reminded me that she said she hikes, and that is probably what she did — went hiking. But hiking in a strange city in the middle of the night?—CAN'T BELIEVE IT.

DEAR CAN'T: I can't either. I hope she has hiked right back, long since! Could be she doesn't realize that it would have been proper to account for her actions.

As an employer, your best move is to come to an understanding about such things at the time of engaging your helper. Right then and there you agree upon: wages, hours of work, duties, and your expectations about knowing, in general, where she goes on time off (since she is young and in a strange place) and when she plans to return. All these things are in her interest as well as yours.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I am 18. My fiance got himself in some trouble and is now trying his best to get out of it. He is going about it in the right way, I will agree. But he is very moody ever since this whole thing started. No one can live with him. He picks on any one over the least little things.

If you ask him what is the matter he just says "nothing." No matter what I do I just can't please him lately. What am I supposed to do? — DOLLY.

DEAR DOLLY: Give him time. He is very young and has not yet learned to be composed and cheerful when he has something on his mind. Let him see that you believe in him.

But also consider giving yourself more time. He may still be too immature to let himself or you in for marriage. There'll be one thing after another which will take handling and a good steady disposition.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: What do I do about parents who come home about three in the morning reeking drunk, arguing and throwing things at each other? My father puts his fist through the wall; hits his children.

One night when my parents were out someone tried to break in so I called the police. When my parents came home they yelled at me because I had called the police. My father hit me so hard in the face I had marks a week later.

I now take nerve pills. I'm 15 but look older. I don't know who to turn to. — BEWILDERED AND FRIGHTENED.

DEAR BEWILDERED: I wouldn't have blamed you if you had called the police a lot sooner, and because of your parents, instead of a prowler. But we have laws in Canada to put a stop to such cruelty.

You are old enough and brave enough to go to the people whose job it is to protect you. In Belleville this is the Children's Aid Society of Belleville and Hastings County, 63 Moira Street. The worker there will be easy to talk to, and will know the right steps to take to make life better for you.

* * *

(We now have some understanding of why some people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

U.S. Mohawk Renounces Citizenship

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A 25-year-old Mohawk Indian, fighting the U.S. government's attempt to draft him for military service, has renounced his American citizenship.

U.S. Attorney George B. Burke reported Monday in federal court here that Brant J. Maracle had taken that position under terms of a 150-year-old treaty.

Maracle said through his lawyer, Omar Ghobasy, that the Jay Treaty of 1795 entitled him to dual Canadian-American citizenship. Ghobasy said that by renouncing American citizenship Maracle becomes a Canadian and is not required to obey a U.S. military draft notice.

—Maracle was born in Rochester, N.Y., but has lived most of his life in Shawville, Que.

Judge James T. Foley adjourned the case until Nov. 15.

FORMER DIEF REBEL DIRECTS CAMPAIGN — E. A. (Eddy) Goodman peeks over the shoulder of Mrs. Maurice Rollands Sarazin, a secretary in the Conservative party's national headquarters in Ottawa. The 46-year-old Toronto lawyer, one of the group of Conservatives who walked out on John Diefenbaker in 1963, is running the 1965 national election campaign for the party. But after Nov. 9 it's back to private practice. A former army officer who was twice wounded in the Second World War he split with Diefenbaker over who was the nuclear arms issue. (CP Photo)

PC National Organizer Once Took Long Walk

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Running a national election campaign is a high pressure job with only few hours for too much work. It doesn't faze Edwin (Eddy) Goodman.

"I find it great fun," says the 46-year-old Toronto lawyer. "It's exhilarating. I'm not the worrying type. I sleep well. I don't carry my worries or responsibilities to bed."

The short, trim former army officer took over as Progressive Conservative campaign chairman shortly after the Nov. 8 election was called. He replaced Richard Thrasher, the party's national organizer, who stepped down for his back as a candidate once more.

Mr. Goodman was one of a group of prominent Conservatives who walked out on John Diefenbaker when he was prime minister prior to the 1963 election. The Liberals subsequently formed a minority government.

At that time Mr. Gordon supported acquisition of nuclear warheads for Canadian forces and objected to Mr. Diefenbaker's flip-flop on the issue. In the 1965 campaign chairman with the comment that the nuclear question is "no longer an issue."

In his two - room Ottawa hotel suite—his campaign home—Mr. Goodman told a reporter he quit his job as chairman of the Conservative advisory policy committee in the 1963 affair but retained his party membership. It was something less than complete exile.

ANNOYED SOME

He feels sure "a lot of people were annoyed" about his departure but there was "no real schmoozy." And he emphasizes that he isn't alone in his refusal to the fold.

Belong out of things for a couple of years could prove to be an advantage, he says. "You're a little more objective about everything, which is a help."

With campaign headquarters in the capital, he sees little of his wife and two daughters, 7 and 10, at home in Toronto.

Up early each day, he has an 8 a.m. chat with Mr. Diefenbaker when the leader is in town, then works through to 10:30 p.m. when he has dinner. A bull session with his political staff may follow, lasting until 1 a.m. "We sit around and kid. We plan what we should be doing."

A crisp, authoritative talker, at the same time affable, Mr. Goodman has the barrel-chested assurance of T. C. Douglas. Even his receding grey hair he gives the impression of youthful vigor.

He's a fighter in more ways than one. He was twice wounded during the Second World War, in which he achieved the rank of major, and was mentioned in dispatches.

While being discharged from the army in 1945 he ran for the Ontario legislature in a Toronto seat but lost to the Communist candidate. Since then he has remained in the party's back rooms. He now is the national party's Ontario vice-president.

ATTACK PM

Although his campaign role is primarily administrative, Eddy Goodman manages to get in his political licks. Early on, he jumped into the fray, accusing Prime Minister Pearson of running a three-ring campaign and ignoring the countryside.

The charge was made in a statement he delivered personally to the Parliament Press Gallery. One reporter asked him whether Mr. Diefenbaker knew about the statement. Mr. Goodman said no but added that as campaign chairman he had "some responsibility."

Despite his earlier differences with Mr. Diefenbaker, he is energetic and what he regards as his role—getting the message of his party and leader across.

TRUDY

"That's what it boils down to. You've got to get as many people in Canada as possible knowing what Mr. Diefenbaker and the party are thinking."

This means he keeps his hand in every phase of the campaign although he takes part in candidate selection only infrequently.

"Occasionally you try to use a little persuasion, never a big stick. I may sometimes pick up a telephone and try to get local officials to support a fellow who is an outstanding man."

After election day, it's back to law practice for Mr. Goodman.

"There is a clear understanding my job is over on Nov. 9."

Wilson Plans To Fly To Salisbury

CAMP IS SAVED FROM REDS

Planes Repulse Attack

From Reuters-AP

SAIGON (CP) — American jets, bombing and strafing within yards of South Vietnamese government positions, today finally smashed a Viet Cong attempt to overun a central highlands special forces camp and sent the guerrilla units reeling back in defeat.

In one of the greatest concentrations of air power in the Viet Nam war, U.S. and Vietnamese fighter bombers flew a total of 140 combat sorties within 36 hours in support of the garison at Plei Me special forces camp.

As Viet Cong troops assaulted the camp Wednesday, American jets unleashed canisters of napalm on the barbed wire defences, driving the guerrilas back.

U.S. Special Forces advisers at Plei Me reported they counted more than 90 Viet Cong bodies around the perimeter of the camp.

The government garrison, believed to total about 300 militiamen and 12 U.S. advisers, suffered only a handful of casualties.

One company of militia with some U.S. advisers was caught outside the camp when the estimated battalion of Viet Cong launched its attack Tuesday night.

U.S. and South Vietnamese planes literally blasted a path for them back to the camp, where they arrived with only light losses.

A relief force of several companies was flown to the camp by helicopter today from Pleiku, about 25 miles to the north.

It was hardly needed. The guerrilla force, savagely mauled by continuous bombing and strafing, was already withdrawing into the jungle-covered mountains.

Expect U.K. Will Tell Russia Need No Advice on Atom Fleet

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Britain is expected to serve notice in the UN disarmament debate today that the Atlantic Alliance will decide whether to establish a nuclear fleet and no advice is needed from Russia or any other outsider.

Informed sources said Britain's disarmament negotiator, Lord Chalfont, also would urge the General Assembly's political committee to support the treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons which the United States has put before the Geneva disarmament conference.

Chalfont was not expected to talk at length on the controversial issue of an mfled nuclear fleet that has caused dissension among the nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Britain and other Atlantic allies are reported to have tried to persuade the U.S. to softpedal the nuclear fleet issue at this stage for fear it will block an agreement with Russia to check the spread of nuclear weapons.

The Soviet Union opposes any scheme for an allied nuclear force, arguing that it would give West Germany a measure of control over nuclear weapons.

Britain is reported to also oppose any integrated force on grounds that it would be too costly and in the long run would not give West Germany the arms equality it seeks.

Viet Nam in Spotlight In Election Campaign

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Viet Nam grabbed the spotlight Wednesday in the federal election campaign.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker, touring the Ottawa Valley, said the government has been guilty of "gross confusion amounting to deception" regarding a letter received two months ago from President Johnson asking Canadian assistance in Viet Nam.

External Affairs Minister Martin said in an interview at Windsor, Ont., that "Canada has no intention, nor has there ever been any intention, to send troops to Viet Nam."

At Saskatoon Airport, Prime Minister Pearson was met by 25 university students protesting what they termed Canada's inaction in ending the Viet Nam war.

NDP Leader Douglas told a press conference at Moncton his party would oppose any move to send Canadian forces to Viet Nam.

Mr. Diefenbaker said there have been conflicting statements by Mr. Pearson and his cabinet minister about the intent of the president's letter. "What heights of ridiculous nonsense does this reveal?" he asked, and demanded that the Johnson letter be made public.

(A statement by Mr. Pearson Aug. 14 said Mr. Johnson considered publication of the exchange of letters "to be undesirable because these letters formed part of a series of exchanges between the president and other heads of government.")

The Conservative chief quoted Defence Minister Hellyer as saying the Liberals require a majority government to put some unpopular measures

Race View No Bar To Jury Duty

By BEN CHESTER

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP)—A paid informer who says he was the assassin's car the night Mrs. Viola Liuzzo was shot while driving on a lonely Alabama road, testifies today as the state's key witness in the murder trial of Klansman Collie Leroy Wilkins, Jr., before an all-white male jury.

Gary Thomas Rowe, 35, a member of the Ku Klux Klan in the pay of the justice department, was the main witness in the first attempt to convict Wilkins, 21, a chubby-cheeked mechanic from Fairfield, Ala.

END CASE TODAY

Alabama Attorney - General Richmond Flowers said he would wrap up the state's case today.

In Wednesday's proceedings started after a 36-hour delay while Flowers appealed for a ruling on juror selection to the Alabama Supreme Court—the state called six witnesses including a 20 - year - old Negro riding with Mrs. Liuzzo when she was killed.

He was Leroy Moton, a field worker for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, who said, "everything happened so fast" he could not see the shots that killed the white civil rights worker.

Flowers challenged it prospective jurors on grounds of prejudice after they said during examination that they believe Negroes and white civil rights workers are inferior. They said, however, that they would, if the evidence is sufficient, invoke the death penalty in the case.

In a speech hearing in Montgomery, the Supreme Court rejected Flowers' appeal and ordered the trial to continue.

Pact Assuring Negroes Of Rights in Rhodesia May Be Key to Solution

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson told Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia today that he and Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley plan to fly to Salisbury "in the next day or two."

In a letter answering Smith's 11th-hour plea to grant Rhodesia independence, Wilson asked:

"Need we go on bandying arguments at arm's length when the future of so many ordinary people of all races is in suspence?"

Rhodesia, a self - governing British colony ruled by its minority white population, is seeking independence on the basis of its present constitution. However, Britain wants the constitution altered to provide for eventual majority rule by the country's 4,000,000 Negroes.

Throughout the last week Smith has appeared to be on the brink of seizing independence—a move which Britain has warned will bring at least economic sanctions.

After announcing his proposal to fly to Salisbury to discuss further the whole matter of independence with Smith, Wilson declared:

"I shall naturally expect to have an opportunity of meeting anyone whose views I feel to be relevant to a solution of this great problem."

He said the proposal for a treaty guaranteeing advancement of the Negro majority in Rhodesia "might merit further discussion in the context of a general settlement."

Wilson said: "Important issues of this kind clearly cannot be settled by long-range correspondence, but I am perfectly prepared to go more fully into them although . . . progress on this . . . would not deal with the principle that the British government would need to be satisfied that any basis proposed for independence was acceptable to the people of Rhodesia as a whole."

After this reference to "hedging arguments", Wilson declared: "for my part I do not want to go on like this.

"Accordingly, I propose to fly with the Commonwealth secretary in the next day or two, in order to discuss the whole matter further with you, including all the suggestions you have put to you," he added:

"I want you to realize that my sole purpose in this visit would be to try to find some means of breaking the deadlock and to avert the tragic consequences which otherwise I see no way of avoiding.

"I earnestly hope that you will co - operate with what I have in mind in the spirit in which I propose it."

This apparently meant Wilson also planned to talk to African nationalist leaders, most of whom either are in prison or in enforced detention. Smith refused earlier this year to let Bottomley talk with them.

Wilson said he would leave for Salisbury Friday or Saturday.

Earlier, Reuters news agency quoted informed sources as saying Wilson's move hinged on suggestions that a treaty guaranteeing rights of the colony's African majority could provide a basis for a fresh round of negotiations.

Is No Way To Make Train Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — The CPR could put twice as many passengers as at present on its continental train The Canadian and still lose money, a CPR official said Wednesday.

Ian Warren of Montreal, CPR's general passenger traffic manager, said doubling the passenger load meant each trip required a second section of train and "much higher" operational costs that would wipe out any savings.

He was testifying at the second day of hearings before the board of transport commissioners on the CPR's announced plans to abandon its other continental passenger train, The Dominion, because of financial losses and the need for its diesel locomotives to move wheat.

Maurice White, counsel for the Canadian Railway Executives Association, suggested the CPR isn't interested in staying in the passenger business and had gradually removed conveniences such as sleeping cars and diners to discourage business.

"We certainly didn't chase the customers away," Mr. Warren said, "but business on The Dominion just wasn't. He thought trends in transportation were part of the cause.

New Course For Grade 13 Being Prepared

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Education Minister William Davis said Wednesday the broad outlines of possible revised and advanced courses in the proposed Grade 13 curriculum will be ready by Jan. 1.

The minister said in a memorandum to school officials that the future of Grade 13, in the Ontario school system should be decided this year.

He said the province's appointed Grade 13 implementation committee will begin discussing with university officers, teachers organizations and other interested bodies the practicality of the proposed two-level Grade 13.

India Arrests 26 Kashmiris

SRINAGAR, Kashmir (AP) Police arrested today 26 leaders of political groups working for Kashmir's independence from Indian rule.

With this latest pre-dawn police sweep, India now has detained most of the Kashmiri leaders who have led anti-Indian demonstrations that have recently swept parts of the Himalayan state.

Among those arrested were Maulana Mohammed Sayed Masoodi and Ghulam Mohiuddin Karra, leaders of the Holy Relic Action committee, and Mubarak Shah and Ghulam Mohammed Bhat, officials of the Kashmir Plebiscite Front.

Best known of all Kashmir independence leaders, Sheik Mohammed Abdullah, the "Lion of Kashmir," was seized by Indian police in New Delhi last May 8 and sent into exile in distant South India.

One of the sheik's close associates, Mubarak Shah, was among those arrested today under the defence of India rules.

Officials said the arrests were ordered to prevent "antinational" activities.

Total: $52,378.64.

For the first time in the history of the United Appeal in Bellleville, a United Appeal has reached its objective. The R.C.A.F. personnel living in Belleville organized their campaign under the direction of Wing Commander C. S. Olsen, reached their objective of $2,200 yesterday.

The C.N.R. has sent in an interim report and with their canvass 35 per cent completed, they have raised $2,000, with an average gift in excess of $12. They look to be well on the way to surpassing last year's figures.

The first returns from the County Court House show an increase of 22 per cent over similar returns from last year. Indications are they will exceed last year's total givings by nearly 20 per cent.

Blazing Comet Whips Around Sun And Heads Back Into Oblivion

HONOLULU (AP) — Blazing Ikeya-Seki, first comet in 15 years bright enough to be seen in daylight, whipped around the sun lucky and headed back into oblivion.

Astronomers here and on the North American mainland watched the celestial spectacle across 93,000,000 miles of space. Its 80,000-mile diameter head was followed by a streaming 31,000,000-mile tail.

But its brilliance was mostly overpowered by the sun, which it approached to within 300,000 to 800,000 miles. Not one observer aboard a National Aeronautics and Space Administration jet plane saw the comet.

From the ground, however, Dr. George Van Biesbroeck, one of the world's foremost authorities on comets and a member of the airborne NASA expedition, viewed it plainly. He called it "extremely bright."

Clouds blocked Hawaiians' view of the comet late Wednesday, but earlier it could be seen without binoculars, just south of the sun.

George Bunton, manager of the Bishop Museum Planetarium in Honolulu, said Ikeya-Seki was at least five times brighter than Venus and appeared to have a forked tail.

He said it was the first comet bright enough to be seen with the naked eye since one swung near the sun in 1882 and exploded under the sun's gravitational pull and multi-million degree heat.

The report that pieces of the comet were breaking off came late Wednesday from Lick Observatory in Northern California. Mt. Wilson Observatory, near Pasadena, Calif., had difficulty detecting it through the bright shimmer of an autumn heat wave.

Astronomers said the comet would be visible again at sunrise around the world as the earth's rotation brought it into view, racing back to the edge of the solar system in the direction from which it came.

The comet left scientists puzzled by several mysteries. Delicate instruments detected internal heat and the presence of sodium, calcium and iron. Comets were believed to be cold and made up of whirling gas loosely combined with chunks of rock. There was no immediate explanation of the strange findings.

Revenue Service May Prove New Bugaboo for Klansmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators push ahead today with their effort to portray the Ku Klux Klan as a shadowy-business with vanishing funds.

The House of Representatives committee on un-American activities has produced bank records, cancelled cheques and invoices in an attempt to prove the money is disappearing up the satin sleeves of Klan Wizards and Dragons.

Chairman Edwin E. Willis (Dem., La.) hinted broadly Wednesday that the internal revenue service may become a greater bugaboo to the Klan than the civil rights movement.

Willis dropped the remark while questioning North Carolina's Grand Dragon, James Robert Jones.

Jones declined to tell the committee anything about his bank account or the sale of satin robes at $15 apiece or even to give his birthplace.

Willis warned Jones, as he had warned Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton a couple of hours before, that he faced a possible contempt of Congress citation for refusing to turn over subpoenaed records.

But, added Willis, "I think you may be in worse trouble than a mere citation for contempt."

Diefenbaker Will Visit Belleville Twice on Way to Port Hope, Napanee Meets

Election interest in the federal riding of Hastings South will heighten this weekend with the arrival in the riding on two occasions of the Right Honorable John G. Diefenbaker P.C., Q.C. national leader of the Progressive Conservatives. Mr Diefenbaker will make a short visit to Belleville on Friday, at 1.20 p.m. when his campaign train will arrive from Brockville at the C.N.R. station. He will be greeted by Lee Grills, P.C. candidate in this riding, and by local party workers, civic dignitaries and interested citizens wishing to see, meet and hear the former Prime Minister. Mr. Diefenbaker will be on his way to Port Hope and Lindsay for afternoon meetings in the constituencies of Durham and Victoria in the interests of party candidates in those ridings, Grenet Rickard and William Scott, respectively.

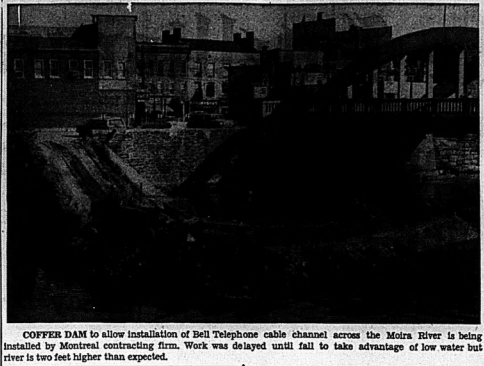
On Saturday he will return by special train to Napanee for a morning meeting in the interests of Hon. Allenbrand, M.P. in the last House and again candidate for the riding of Prince Edward-Lennox. He then will leave for Peterborough by way of Stirling, Campbellford and Hastings, with stops in each of these communities.

In Stirling, he will be met by Lee Grills, Rod Welch P.C. in Hastings-Frontenac, the Honorable George Hees, candidate in Northumberland and Fred Stenson M.P. the candidate in Peterborough. He will greet and speak to the hundreds of interested Canadians who are expected to greet him at Stirling and the other centres where he will stop and it is expected the local candidates will accompany Mr. Diefenbaker on this trip. His evening meeting and major address of the day will be in Peterborough.

On Saturday afternoon at 5 p.m. the Hon. Walter Dinsdale, M.P. for Brandon-Souris in Manitoba, will visit the 350 Front Street campaign headquarters of Hastings South P.C. candidate, Lee Grills, and speak to and visit with Belleville party workers and guests. Mr. Dinsdale will be in Belleville in connection with a anniversary celebrations of the local Salvation Army and has gladly consented to speak to Mr. Grills' workers while here.

"I was pleased to serve in three parliaments with Lee Grills and feel that the people of Hastings South would be doing themselves a favor to return him for their member on November 8th" said Mr. Dinsdale. "I am only too pleased to help him in any way I can while in his constituency."

The general public is invited to these rallies.



COFFER DAM to allow installation of Bell Telephone cable channel across the Moira River is being installed by Montreal contracting firm. Work was delayed until fall to take advantage of low water but river is two feet higher than expected.

L. Grills Talks To Young PC's On Education

Following another busy day of visiting the MacFarlane-Gendron and American Optical plants in Belleville, Lee Grills with the Senior Citizen's club in Trenton and attending the regular education plank in the men's club of his church, Lee Grills, the P.C. candidate for Hastings South, addressed an enthusiastic gathering of Young P.C.'s in his committee rooms last evening. Bearing in mind the youthful nature of his audience Mr. Grills dealt with the education plank in the "Policies for People" platform of the Progressive Conservative Party. "When our party is called upon to form the next government of Canada following the November 8th election, we intend to raise the federal grant to universities immediately from $5. to $8. for every person resident in each province" he said. The first thing that we have to enable the university cities to reduce tuition fees". He thanked his young helpers for his campaign so far and asked them to continue and redouble their energetic assistance in their efforts on behalf of the party in the time remaining before the election. The Y.P.C.'s were pleased to greet Mr. W.F. "Sandy" Sandercock M.P.P. for Hastings West at the meeting. In complaining of the traffic Mr. Sandercock has been recuperating from a stay in hospital and this was his first visit to since his illness. He assured the meeting on behalf of Mr. Grills meeting of his wholehearted support for Mr. Grills and the organization in this campaign. support of the provincial of "Our party is for young and old alike and the record of our candidates merits your best efforts to ensure his election" he said.

Obituary

MRS. MINNIE J. SILLS

The funeral for Mrs. Minnie J. Sills was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. H. M. Davis conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites at Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Donald Raymond, Harry Morgan, Douglas McIntosh, Everett Givens, Keith Cooney and Allan Brownlee.

Robert Larke, Retired Farmer, Dies in Crash

Yesterday morning, heavy fog which blanketed the Quinte area resulted in a two-vehicle crash on Highway 14 north of Stirling which fatally injured one man and injured four others.

Fatally injured was Robert Lake, 80, Stirling district retired farmer and driver of one of the vehicles, who died after admission to Belleville General Hospital. Also in hospital is Clayton McMurray of R. R. 1, Stirling.

The second vehicle was driven by Glen Charles Brooks, R.R. 4, Stirling.

Mr. Lake, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Lake, was born in Sidney township and had lived in the Stirling area for most of his life. He was a member of Grace Chapel at Stirling.

He is survived by his wife, the former Olivia Hamilton, three sons, Orville of Harold, Ewart of Ramsochron and Gordon of Sidney township, and two daughters, Mrs. Jonah Conley (Myrtle) of Glen Miller and Mrs. Harry (Mabel) Geen of Harold, and one sister, Mrs. Robert Wallace of Harold.

The funeral will be held Saturday from the Duffin Funeral Home to Grace Chapel with interment in Eggleton Cemetery.

Accountants Hear Talk On Taxation

On Monday evening, the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial & Cost Accountants held its monthly meeting at the Quinte Hotel. After dinner, the chairman, Mrs. Marg Bostek of Elaine Footwear, Stirling, introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Harold Park from the District Taxation Office, Income Tax Division. Mr. Park presented a very informative and interesting talk on the computer's role in the taxation field. Afterwards, he conducted a discussion period in which a number of questions were clarified. The membership is indeed indebted to Mr. Park for his time and effort.

The chairman advised the chapter that their next meeting was Students' Night and that all students were urged to attend. The chairman also advised that the speaker for Students' Night, November 15, was one of the directors, Mr. Ken Higginson of Miller Bros., Glen Miller, and his topic is "Education—Kill or Cure."

At a directors' meeting, the chairman advised that Mr. Norman Smith of Deloro Stellite had resigned as he was transferred to Ontario. Mr. Ray Courneyea of Deloro Stellite was appointed as membership director to replace Mr. Smith.

African Cat Lost on 401 Recovered

The story of "Fufu" the African cat lost along 401 highway near Belleville on Thanksgiving Day has a happy ending.

The Ottawa couple, Mr. and Mrs. John Balgent, who lost the cat returned to search for their pet several times and finally on Friday—five days later the cat was back — the animal was found. The pet was somewhat thinner and after meeting a bath but otherwise unharmed.

Delayed Cable-Laying Until River Dried Up, Find It Running Deep

According to the old saying "you just can't depend on the weather".

And neither can you accurately forecast the amount of rain to fall in a given area over a three or four month period.

Just this has been brought home forcibly to the Bell Telephone Company and Inspiration Construction of Montreal, now commencing an underground cable installation job across the Moira River, just north of the lower bridge. The first phase of the installation along Bridge street from the top of Murney Hill to the telephone headquarters was completed several months ago. But the river crossing was to be delayed until the fall "to take advantage of low water conditions."

But they bargained without the weather.

Normally at this time of year a person could walk across the river without hardly getting his feet wet, but heavier than expected rainfall upset calculations and the contractor arrived in town to find the river flooded.

To get the job started a costly earth coffer dam has been found necessary. When the coffer dam enclosing a section of the river bed is completed the area will be pumped dry and the rock riverbed will be excavated. Then the process will be repeated for the remainder of the distance across the river.

"We expected only a few loads of fill would be required," lamented the construction foreman, "and here we find the river two feet higher than expected."

Quinte Curling Club All Set For Another Successful Year

The curling season that is fast approaching could be the best in the history of the Bay of Quinte Curling Club if the fall meeting of the club held at the clubhouse Wednesday evening is any criterion. Ken Pinder, a hard-working president and his Board of Directors reported to a near-capacity crowd in the lounge of the preparations that have been made at all levels for the coming year of the membership at their favorite pastime.

The most promising note was the influx of new members under the chairmanship of Bill Meagher. Nearly twenty new members will be enjoying the facilities for curling, the largest new entry in the history of the club. They were heartily welcomed by the president.

The games committee under Dan Cowley received warm praise for their schedule. The system was fully explained and will lead to competition for the Bill Gault trophy, emblematic of the club title. The points system will be used and all members will be put on the honor system to record their proper totals. A card index will be used. Prizes and awards will be given to the winners. Mixed curling will also have a great deal of time and Fred Deacon has all detailas arranged. There will be five open bonspiels under the direction of Goldie Livingston with the Bay of Quinte spiel under Charles Hall. Jack Glavreau in charge of ice told the members of some difficulties encountered but he would be ready for play on October 28th.

Junior curling will get a big start with the opening soon and Fred Maund has charge of this detail. Talks will be given to the assemblies of the secondary schools in order to induce the younger members of the community to take this fine game time. Clinics will be held so that all players will get off on the right foot. It is an ambitious program and will create a great deal of interest.

TROPHY GIVEN CLUB

There will be a trophy for the President's trophy and this trophy was presented to the Bay of Quinte Curling Club by Clarke, representing Jim Williamson, of the Molson Brewery, also presented were four keepers for winning rink.

Bill Gault, OCA representative, requested members get their entry in early for the several events to be held and Bill Riley also asked patronage for the canteen.

The members were informed that the new cement floor for the ice surface cost $22,953 of which $7,500 in cash was paid by the Fair Board for use of the floor during the fair week. The remainder was financed on a demand note at the bank and the president also announced that all the old indebtedness of the original building, $5,000, was now paid off which leaves the club in a sound financial condition.

Dr. Jim Nelles announced the spiel being held for doctors in the province on the ice surfaces of Brockville, Gananoque, Kingston, Napanee and Belleville. Play will be in this city on December 3rd and 4th with 64 rinks taking part.

After adjournment the boys retired to the "I" room — for refreshments and a social hour. The "cat" players officially opened the season.

Youth Ordered To Abstain From Liquor

A 17-year-old Deseronto youth, whose parents claimed he became regularly intoxicated today was placed on a year's probation and ordered to abstain from liquor.

Dennis Roger Maracle, who pleaded guilty to consuming as a minor, had borrowed money from a non-drinking friend and sent an older man to purchase a 12-ounce bottle of whisky, Magistrate T. Y. Wills was told.

For his trouble the older man got a drink from the bottle—and also a $25 fine from the magistrate this morning. Wilfrid Hill pleaded guilty to supplying liquor to a minor.

The youth was charged after his parents called provincial police.

Abstention might be difficult for an older person, Magistrate Wills told Maracle.

"But you are not such an old soak — that you should find it a great handicap to abstain. There's no excuse at your age for being a habitual drinker."

FLUORIDES HARMLESS

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — The president of the Canadian Dental Association said Wednesday there has been no evidence of any ill effects to persons who have taken part in fluoridation programs. Fluorides has helped reduce rottenness of the bones and teeth of elderly persons, Dr. Phillip S. Christie of Halifax told a New Brunswick Dental Association meeting here.

Sidney Twp. Liberal Women Elect Officers

TRENTON — Liberal candidate Robert Temple continued his tour of the riding yesterday. In the afternoon he canvassed for support from door to door in Belleville.

Last night Mr. Temple spoke to the Sidney township Women's Association meeting at Alfred St. Hilaire's home north of here.

Mr. Temple explained why it was necessary for the people to elect a majority government on November 8. "There are a number of hard and fast decisions to be discussed at the Federal - Provincial conference later this year when only a strong representative government at Ottawa can do an effective job, he said. Another reason is that a government in power needs to plan five years ahead rather than continue from month to month at the mercy of an opposition deciding everything is bad, he added. The people are being asked for a mandate at a time when the gross national product is at its highest and unemployment figures show a steady decline as a result of constructive leadership and sound fiscal policies, he said, pointing out these achievements are only part of the last government's success story. However, to me, it is evident enough to warrant return of the Liberals in majority."

An election of officers before the candidate's address named Mrs. Carl Sine, president; Mrs. Alfred St. Hilaire, first vice-president; Mrs. Carmen Bamber, second vice-president; Mrs. Frank Losey, secretary-treasurer. Arnold Ketcheson was elected to act as chairman of the Johnstown polls.

PC Candidate Talks to Senior Citizens

TRENTON — Trenton Senior Citizens were guaranteed by Lee Grills, Progressive Conservative candidate for Hastings South of $100 a month . . . if the PCs go back into office . . . and as soon as they do, if they do.

Mr. Grills told the seniors in the Orange Hall at Trenton yesterday that when he entered parliament in 1957, the old age pension stood at $46. The Conservatives immediately raised this to $65 a month.

"Now," said Mr. Grills, "it has been raised to $75, but the cost of living has gone up, too. More in the past 12 months than in any other 12 months' period of our history."

Mr. Grills said he had set the wheels in motion for a new bridge for Trenton.

"And if we had stayed in power, it would either be up by now, or well on the way."

Mr. Grills said he had also assisted in the purchase of the land for the new federal building before his government lost power; arranged to have the bay dredged, for the first time in 30 years; had the department of transport build a special weed cutter for the bay and put up Trenton's first sub-post office.

"Remember me on November 8th," was Mr. Grills' parting shot to the club members.

The meeting was arranged by the Progressive Conservative Women's Association for Trenton. Mr. Parker, Jr., accompanied Mr. Grills to the meeting.

Name Ian Reilly NDP Joins Fight In Northumberland

COBOURG — Ian E. Reilly of R.R. No. 1, Trenton, was last night nominated New Democratic Party candidate for Northumberland and, immediately following his nomination that contrary to the opinion of those who might tend to wipe the NDP off in this riding Dr. Pauline Jewett, Liberal and Conservative George Hees, "had a fight on their hands."

Mr. Reilly, who is an international representative for the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union; a former employee of Bata Shoe and a well known worker in the youth organizations of the United Church, several times took a smack at the old parties' programs . . . or rather the adoption of their programs from NDP platforms of years standing.

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Reilly referred to the NDP stated policy of increasing the old age pension to $100.

"We have advocated an increase in the pension almost since the formation of the NDP four years ago," Mr. Reilly said, "and now the old-line parties have stolen our platform."

"But", said Mr. Reilly, "although the old parties have finally offered to pay a $100 pension . . . would they, if elected? Or would they have so many strings attached and so many means tests that even people who badly needed the increase might not get getting it."

A small, enthusiastic crowd was at the Orange Hall in Cobourg for the nomination meeting. Mr. Reilly was nominated by Joseph Gabovitc of Cobourg.

REAL LEADER

Guest speaker, Gerald Pountney, president of the provincial organization for New Democratic Youth and the NDP candidate for Perth, said the NDP national leader, Tommy Douglas was the "only real leader asking for a mandate." Mr. Douglas has 18 years' experience as a successful Saskatchewan provincial premier behind him whereas the other national leaders have little or no experience, Mr. Pout-Macdonald said.

"Each candidate for the Liberal party - which says it needs a majority - is offering a different platform for each electorate", said the youth leader, he said. "They have yet to learn that there must be honesty in politics and not a separate one policy for the country."

Mr. Reilly touched on regional issues in his address saying that the NDP party would find ways of selling Northumberland fruits products abroad, and keeping the small area farmers and their sons on the farms.

"Too many are selling their farms. It's time we thought about keeping some of this rich farming land around Ontario for farming . . . and not cutting up farms to accommodate the urban sprawl."

Mr. Reilly said industry should be induced to locate in other than "mass industrial" urban areas by providing facilities and making it economically feasible for them to do so.

Mr. Reilly quoted from articles in recent issues of national and international newspapers and magazines, where the writers had said, in effect, that the NDP party was the only effective party in the House of Commons, and the only party in Canada whose integrity could not be questioned.

AUTOMATION

In a question and answer period, Mr. Reilly touched on the "bogeyman of automation", and said "we should make the technology do the work for man and not man for the technological change. Automation should better everyone's standard of living . . . not worsen it."

Mr. Reilly announced at the meeting that there would be an "NDP Meet-Your-Candidates" Night at the Trenton Country Club, Saturday night. Candidates Thord Hoskin from South Hastings, Jack Downs from Prince Edward-Lennox and Mr. Reilly will talk informally with those who attend the meeting.

Army Youth Stricken With Strange Malady

FRANKFORD — An 18-year-old army youth of Camp Petawawa, stricken with a strange sleeping sickness malady, is in critical condition in the Tri-Service Hospital in Ottawa.

Warren Weese, who has been in the army for only three months, became ill at the camp and was flown to Ottawa Thanksgiving weekend leave at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Weese, R. R. 3, Frankford.

Keith Carlson, 18, of Winnipeg, also stationed at Camp Petawawa, accompanied the stricken youth on the weekend visit.

It is believed that Donald Weese could have been bitten by a carrier mosquito from luggage brought home from Manitoba.

Many similar cases of the disease were reported this summer in Saskatchewan and other prairie provinces.

The Weese lad reported to sick leave at Petawawa Friday complaining of a sore throat. Soon after he took convulsions and his temperature rose to 106. This was followed by a coma and pneumonia set in. He was rushed to the Ottawa hospital by plane Saturday.

Donald Weese, the youth's father, said six special-

Turn Down Liquor Lounges, Cocktail Bars

Voters in Thurlow township yesterday overwhelmingly voted to keep their municipality dry of liquor lounges and cocktail bars.

It was believed the first liquor plebiscite held in the township for nearly 60 years — that Thurlow voted to abolish liquor outlets.

The unofficial count, announced by returning officer Earl Dafoe, showed township residents have had little change of heart toward the issue in that time.

The response to both questions showed:

In favor of liquor with meals

Yes	No
520	661

In favor of liquor without meals

Yes	No
502	683

In Ontario 60 per cent majority must vote in favor of liquor sale proposals to obtain legal approval.

Last night's vote almost reversed the stipulation. "The dry's turned out nearly 60 per cent of the ballots cast, leaving the wets trailing badly.

Mr. Dafoe estimated that perhaps 50 per cent of the voters went to the polls. The true picture of the vote must await the official count, scheduled to start at 1 p.m. today.

Mr. Dafoe, clerk-treasurer of the township, said voting was fairly steady through the day.

"There's not been a plebicite, I think, since 1908 — when the municipality first went dry".

By Ontario law, a three-year interval is required before another such franchise may be held in the township.

Nov. 8 Draws Near

Canadians go to the polls less than three weeks from now. Yet there is an air of unreality about the current campaign. There is a sense of apathy among the electorate that stems from lack of confidence in the administrative process as it has been presented by successive Conservative and Liberal governments.

From opposite seaboards come reports of the principal candidates. In the Maritimes, Prime Minister Pearson has been telling voters that Mr. Diefenbaker is deceiving citizens when he talks of raising old age pensions to $100 a month by using funds from the Canada Pension Plan. Out in British Columbia, the Conservative leader countered with his oft-repeated references to corrupt government as revealed by the Dorion Inquiry.

Globe and Mail columnist Richard J. Needham remarked recently that the real issue of the election "is not the ballot, it's the buck."

Thus we have Mr. Pearson saying that Mr. Diefenbaker's promise to boost the universal old age pension to $100 a month from $75 would cost the treasury $850,000,000 a year.

But Mr. Pearson is also free with pledges of money... In Fredericton he said Ottawa is prepared to pump fresh funds into the Atlantic Development Board when the agency's original $100,000,000 allotment is exhausted—"as it soon will be."

On the pension issue he claimed the Liberals planned to deal with the problem "in a more responsible way," boosting pensions for these elderly persons in actual need, possibly to $125 or more if necessary.

But a case might be made in these days of rising costs for raising the contributions to all pensioners. If only some are given a boost, others on a lower level will feel resentful. Who will decide under such a plan which pensioners are more in need than others?

Then again, Mr. Pearson has offered $40 million to the university students. New Democratic Party leader Tommy Douglas talks of paid employment for all. And so on.

Will these promises of monetary aid—to the Maritimes, to the pensioners, to the universities —by this or that party bear fruit? Are such promises even legal, whether they are consummated or not? Columnist Needham drew attention to the Canada Elections Act which, he pointed out, "states rather clearly that every person is guilty of the corrupt practice of bribery who in order to obtain votes 'directly or indirectly gives or promises, or promises to procure or to endeavor to procure, any money or valuable consideration, to or for any election, or to or for any other person.'"

An interesting edict, indeed, in view of the pledges that are being held before voters.

It is no wonder that John Galbraith, former U.S. ambassador to India, and a student of Ontario, felt constrained to say recently in St. John's, Newfoundland, that he had observed "a deeply pessimistic note in the Canadian character."

The country is enjoying boom conditions, but pessimism is in the air. In a sense, it is not the goldrums. At best it is hesitant, uncertain. Perhaps, that is why Canadians are said to be pessimistic. The public is looking for a firm hand in Ottawa; and more than promises it wants this country to go forward in a responsible, businesslike fashion.

This is one reason why every Canadian has a duty to vote. Though the issues may be clouded at the moment, and the campaign there is no excuse for not going to the polls on November 8. To vote is both a privilege and a duty.

Alabama Justice

Finding an Alabama jury that will sit in unprejudiced judgment in the second trial of a man accused of the slaying of Detroit civil rights worker Viola Liuzzo is once again interferring with the proper administration of justice in the deep south.

Fifty-five prospective jurors had been called to hear evidence in the trial of Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., but 16 were excused for legal reasons permitted by Alabama law and 10 were disqualified for saying they had fixed opinions in the case or that they did not believe in capital punishment.

Although animosity toward the civil rights cause was the reason behind the slaying, Negroes are involved only indirectly in the case—like the young Negro who was in the car with Mrs. Liuzzo when she was slain. Yet the whole problem of race relations in the south is very much in the background.

For example, almost all white jurors questioned admitted they believed Negroes to be inferior to whites. Moreover, they had the same opinion with regard to whites who associated with Negroes and espoused their cause.

And that is the way things are in the American south, and how it is with many of the people, in anything to do with integration, civil rights and relations between whites and blacks. And people do not change their beliefs that easily.

20 YEARS AGO

October 21st, 1945

Fine weather and the splendid cooperation of the citizens of Belleville combined to make the annual tag day of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind held on September 22, the most successful so far held in Belleville. The total receipts were $661.66. Organization for the tag day was under the direction of the field secretary, and the local tag day convener. Thanks of the Institute are extended to all those who gave of their time to tag and to those who assisted at headquarters on tag day.

We are inclined to agree with a contributor in the last issue of "The Canadian Countryman" who refers to cows as being wayward, cantankerous, unpredictable and maddening. A recent experience with a herd of 17 has convinced us of the above opinion. This herd has been carefully guided in and out of a sweet corn field each morning after about an hour's feeding. Warning had been given of its drastic effects on cows if allowed to forage at will. One farmer lost seven from a herd of 12.

Critics of modern education complain that much of the information students acquire day by day is impractical and of little use in everyday living. Their attention is directed to an orientation program offered by Michigan Technological University at Houghton. Located in the upper Michigan peninsula, in the midst of almost 10 million square miles of forest, Michigan Tech provides its freshmen with a course in wilderness survival. Can you be more practical than that?

To Your Good Health

We Just Remember What We Want To

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: It is often stated that the reason an elderly person does not remember names of people whom he has recently met is due to constriction of conduits that supply blood to the memory centres of the brain — insufficient circulation for requisite stimulation.

Why is it, then, that such an individual can without effort remember names of friends and acquaintances of earlier years? — C. G.

* * *

That explanation may be "often stated," but not by me. It is true that disease conditions can impair circulation in the brain, but deterioration of that organ in such cases is apparent in more than just memory.

I have strong reservations as to whether circulation has much if anything to do with memory, or whether old age does, except that ability to rapidly learn tapers off gradually.

Our peak learning ability, according to careful tests, is in middle life (not youth) and the slowing of ability to learn declines very gradually after we pass the 40's and 50's, so that in point of fact you have to get rather old before the change amounts to much. You can teach old dogs new tricks if the old dog wants to learn.

* * *

The psychiatrists tell us that we all remember what we want to remember and forget what we dislike or don't have any reason to remember.

Children love rubbers and mittens because they are a nuisance. They can't for the life of them remember where they left a toy that has become a bore. They forget to write letters but easily remember where they are to twist you round their little fingers.

I have known sharp oldsters who can't remember what they ate for lunch but know exactly how much they have in the bank and the number of shares of securities they own. Some of them are well past 80.

Brain circulation has nothing to do with that. They remember what is important to them and don't clutter their heads with things that don't seem important. When brain circulation is sufficiently impaired, then anything or everything is forgotten and the person behaves rather automatically, with snatches of memory recurring in hit-or-miss fashion.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I read in your column that most women don't need to douche and that it may be harmful if done to excess.

I have used a douche of baking soda and water as a birth control method for years. Now I am skeptical. Do you think I am harming myself. —Mrs. P. A. H.

No, I don't see any harm in this — or any benefit, either. The douche is at best an unreliable method of contraception, and often fails.

What I wanted to convey was that routine douches for the sake of cleanliness are unnecessary, and for health purposes are advisable only when medication is required.

The harm in douching rests not in the douche itself but in the irritating solutions which some women use. A weak salt or soda solution is not irritating.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you advise using zinc oxide on a varicose ulcer in the leg? — P. H.

Don't expect much in the way of results. When varicose veins have obstructed circulation through the leg veins for them, the only reliable way to get the ulcers healed (and prevent more from forming) is by surgery. This will tie off or remove the faulty veins and thus permit better circulation to develop.

Lesage on Minority Rights

Financial Post

Anyone in Canada is free to speak to his friends and relations, publish a newspaper or hire a hall and address an audience in any language he pleases, be it Gaelic, Swahili or Mardarin Chinese.

In legislatures, courts and schools the same latitude is clearly not practicable. So it is hard to follow one part of the argument presented to a Saskatchewan audience by Premier Lesage of Quebec.

People whose mother tongue is neither English nor French are, to the nation's advantage, numerous in Canada and especially on the prairies. When they hear of proposals that French should be official across the land, some of them ask why their own vernaculars should not have the same status.

Making his case for French Canadian rights outside Quebec, Lesage said at Saskatoon he would give the same rights to other ethnic minorities if they wanted to stay separate and distinct.

This looks like a contradiction of Lesage's own doctrine. The French-speakers, as he has often pointed out, were the original Canadians and one of the two founding peoples. They are 30% of the country's population.

Rights reasonably demanded by the French can hardly be claimed, on grounds of either logic or history, by other minorities. Of these the largest are in origin German (3.8%), Ukrainian (2.6%), Italian (2.5%) and Dutch (2.4%).

There are others of nearly like importance.

Canada has not operated a melting pot on the U.S. model. People who came here from other lands are free to cherish their own culture and speak their mother tongues. It would be a different matter, and clearly against the national interest, to give Canada or anybody of it three or more official languages instead of only two.

Many and perhaps most English-speaking Canadians are in favor of extending bilingualism; but multilingualism, as seemingly suggested by Lesage, would find very few supporters. The Quebec premier, who may turn up some day in national politics, should not leave his Saskatoon statement unclarified.

Strictly Personal

Society Is Afraid of Eccentricity

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: When we send home boys from school because they wear their hair long, or bar college students from wearing beards and what are we afraid of? Why does a country which incessantly preaches "individualism" in its economic life refuse to tolerate the mildest eccentricity in its social life?

World affairs are harder to run today, and seem more confused and chaotic, because until recent times leaders didn't have to consider public opinion: 90 percent of the world's population didn't know what was going on, and didn't care; it is the new element of world opinion that has drastically altered the manipulation of public affairs.

Most of the best academic minds are working on the problem of improving education at the primary and secondary level: with the resulting paradox that the quality of education at the university level is standing still or actually regressing.

Speaking of education, what a child "learns" at home is infinitely more important and lasting than what he learns at school — yet we expect the schools to rectify much of the damage done by home mistraining.

Next time you use the phrase, "forlorn hope," look it up and discover that its origin has nothing to do with either "forlorn" or "hope."

Most women inspected men with the same critical, comparing gaze that men give to women, we would be self - conscious wrecks: no man could stand the tension women feel daily, of being constantly on "parade" and judged on a sliding scale of external attractiveness.

Even the "silent sciences," not physics, that assume the most importance in the future relations of nations, as Prof. Fred Hoyle has predicted: "Before long it will be the medical establishment which will be surrounded by barbed wire, and it will be the biologists . . . who will be subject to the most intensive loyalty checks."

Practically no reputable historian believes it was the layman thinks of as "progress"; indeed, the whole idea of progress is only a few hundred years old, and was totally unknown to civilization before the 17th century.

It is easy to understand the permanent disillusionment of the Curia about the contraception issue — for they understand the implications of scientific truth once such a question is open for discussion, the sanction against it loses force, no matter what the final decision is; as soon as the public is aware of a profound difference of ecclesiastical opinion, the prohibition has lost most of its effect.

Eye on Our Water

Sault Daily Star

This scientific approach to water resources is a spankingly new concept, unmistakably stamped "Made in U.S.A." And it has escaped no cynical Canadian's notice that the date of its manufacture coincides precisely with the development of a critical if not desperate situation in the United States with regard to water resources, and a corresponding awareness of the untapped resources of this nature in northern Canada.

Ottawa Offbeat

Diet and Pearson Split on Scope of Foreign Aid Policy

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Notes from the Campaign Trail, — "Another election? Why the people wouldn't stand for it — they scarcely stood this one."

And who said that?

Prime Minister Pearson, who else?

It was at an East Block corridor press conference back in June two years ago, just a couple of months after the April election with its minority result.

That was the fourth election in six years, and to hear the Prime Minister tell it, when laughingly brushing off the suggestion of still another, people had just about had enough of campaigning and simply "wouldn't stand for more electioneering.

Now this is the fifth in eight years.

And he was right, as it begins to turn out.

People scarcely can stand it. But they can yawn their way through the campaign as a great many still seem to be doing, just 14 days away from E-Day.

FOREIGN AID SPLIT

Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker can even disagree about, of all unlikely things, Canada's foreign aid.

The Prime Minister is for it. Unreservedly.

More and more of it.

The Conservative Leader is for it, too.

But only up to a point.

Per Diefenbaker, it's like charity, should begin at home.

Like with the Indians and the Eskimos, and even those among us ordinary Canadians who might be in almost as much need and deserve perhaps as some of the under-privileged in the under-developed countries abroad.

The Prime Minister can become so emotionally involved in such international matters as Foreign Aid as to become Biblical about it.

Forecasting that another Liberal victory in this election could mean a five-year increase in foreign aid from the present $220,000,000 altitude to a new and headily higher peak of $400,000,000 — nearly double — he has been quoted as saying that this sort of Do - Gooding abroad starts and ends merit of the "profound sense of social and moral obligation that distinguishes our Western civilization from all other human cultures."

Then he went on, taking highbrow ground as he ever has taken before, declaring that "from our Hebraic roots we derive this sense of God's responsibility for the poor and needy and God's judgment on the healthy and the wealthy who fail their needs.

"It is not the Dives, but Lazarus, who sits in the bosom of Abraham. It is not the Pharisee but the Publican who finds favor in God's sight.

"Those who feed the hungry and clothe the naked are God's people, even if they have never heard of Him.

"Those who do not can cry 'Lord, Lord' until Judgment Day and will be rejected just the same." —

After such a prime ministerial outburst of emotion over Foreign Aid, there was asked where he stood on the question.

"Foreign Aid?" he murmured. "Of course I'm for Foreign Aid too. But let's try a little of it at home where it will do the most good before committing it entirely to the export trade."

All this world's under - developed and under - privileged aren't found in Faraway Places, he suggested, and it might be a good idea to try a little Home Aid too before going for broke on global do-gooding.

POOR MITCH

Happen to catch Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp's strangely timid words as quoted the other day in the Liberal-leaning .?. . pushing and shoving's more like it — Toronto Daily Star?

Campaigning in the Toronto constituency of Danforth for a chap called "that strong Liberal majority this country so urgently needs," he warned that if it didn't materialize "I am afraid I am going to become timid and act in a way that will not properly serve Canada's interests."

The Star tagged him "The Timid Trade Minister," and so far the quote has gone un-amended.

"Poor Mitch," sympathized Dalton Camp, the former Maritimer who, as the Conservative candidate, is his chief competition in the constituency, "he's like Chicken-Little or Henny-Penny running around crying, 'The sky is falling down'" every time he thinks of November 8."

Stamp Club Holds Auction, Demonstrations

Stamp collectors and hobbyists in general will find much of interest at the eighth annual interclub sponsored by Quinte Stamp Club.

This local exhibition of stamps and varied program of philatelic events, will take place at the Kiwanis Centre, Belleville from 2 to 10 p.m. on Saturday, October 23rd.

Prize winning stamp displays will be shown. A dealers' bourse will offer thousands of stamps and a fine assortment of philatelic publications and accessories to the public.

Visitors from Toronto to Ottawa will enjoy the evening program which commences at 7 p.m. Alderman Don Foss as auctioneer, will offer many philatelic items which will be sold without reserve.

Ernie Pugh, well known local member of Northern Electric Stamp Club and the Quinte Stamp Club, will present his fascinating demonstration of black magic, using a specialized long and short wave ultra violet light. Mr. Pugh will show how post office officials are using special papers and chemical lines on stamps to assist their departments in setting up automated sorting machines for your mail.

Fluorescent papers, graphite lines, tagged issues, etc. will come "alive" in the dark, as Mr. Pugh demonstrates fine specimens from his personal collection.

There is no charge for any of the features at this Quinte Stamp Club show. The younger members of the family who are new to this king of hobbys will be particularly welcome.

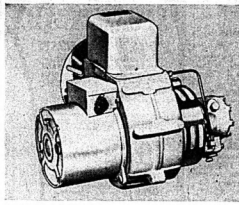
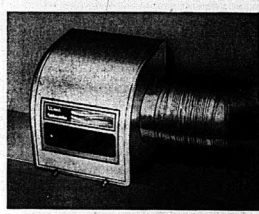
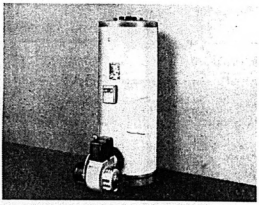
Includes burner, controls, humidifier, full-flow air filters, and fan operation for summer cooling. Finished in two-tone baked enamel. Guaranteed for 10 years. About $4.50 a month



2. Cut fuel costs 20% or more. New scientifically designed burner gives an unusually precise mixture of air and oil. As a result, it can save you considerable money in heating costs over an old burner. Ensures peak combustion during cold winter nights, too. About $1.95 a month

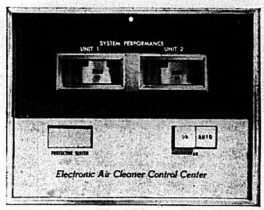


3. No more dry, stuffy air. Automatic humidity control helps you feel more comfortable. Also reduces harmful drying-out of carpets, furniture and woodwork. Shell has a complete range of humidifiers, portable and furnace models. Pay on 24-month plan. About $4.00 a month

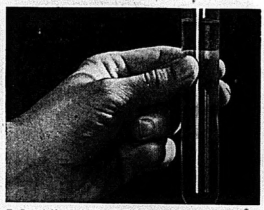


4. More hot water, faster. You'll never be short of hot water again. Shell water heaters work astonishingly fast. Example: our 32-gallon model can produce 90 gallons of hot water in one hour. An electric heater of similar size normally produces only 20 gallons per hour, a gas heater 30 gallons per hour. About $3.00 a month

5. New oil-fired boilers. Choose from a range of powerful boilers for hot water heating. Each unit is compact, completely automatic and operates at minimum cost. Jacket is finished in baked enamel and insulated with fibreglass. Full-width panel opening lets you read gauges easily. Buy or lease. About $6.50 a month



6. Electronic air cleaner. Keeps your home wonderfully clean and fresh. Eliminates dust, dirt, pollen and other irritating particles. Especially helpful for people who have certain allergies. Installs easily in the ductwork of your present heating system. Push-button control (above) goes in your living area. About $5.78 a month



7. Remarkably pure heating oil. Shell Heating Oil is so clean and pure it is actually a champagne-coloured liquid. It is also unquestionably safe; you could extinguish a match in it. Shell Heating Oil gives you all the heat possible and is about the most economical way to heat your home.

8. Free emergency service. During the heating season, your Shell heating expert answers all emergency calls on a 24-hour basis. If anything goes wrong with your heating equipment, at any time, just call. He also provides free conditioning service and regularly inspects and tunes-up your heating system.

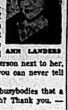
Ann Landers

Busybodies Don't Want to Hear Truth

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why don't people keep their mouths shut when they don't know what they are talking about? My niece was married last year. Lorraine had a beautiful white wedding. If ever a girl deserved to wear white she did.

Lorraine has such a saintly quality about her that if anyone said "bell" in her presence they felt ashamed.



ANN LANDERS

Lorraine became pregnant on her honeymoon. The baby was born three days short of nine months. The tongues wagged all over town and everyone was busy counting. The word got around that the baby was "a little early." One woman who didn't realize I was sitting behind her at a ladies' aid meeting whispered to the person next to her, "Lorraine of all people. It just goes to show you can never tell about anybody."

Will you please explain to these ignorant busybodies that a baby can be born any time in the ninth month? Thank you. — MAD AUNT.

* * *

DEAR AUNT: Of course, babies can be born anytime in the ninth month, but busybodies don't want an explanation. They'd rather talk. Now is a good time to remember that the Lord gave us two ears so all the rubbish we hear can go in one and out the other.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a bookkeeper and cashier in an office which employs 20 people. I am responsible for the petty cash.

Usually there's about $35 in the petty cash drawer. In the last six months every time I've checked the drawer it has been short. Certain people have fallen into the habit of borrowing stamps, from 20c to $2. The borrowers used to put in I.O.U. slips, but they don't bother anymore.

Every week I have to go around and ask who is in hock to the drawer.

At the moment there's an $11 shortage which I can't account for.

Two people are on vacation and one is out sick.

If you have a solution I'd like to hear it. — J.

* * *

DEAR J.: A petty cash drawer, into which anyone may dip when he has the shorts, is an engraved invitation to steal.

Such a set-up is a poor one for both the employees and the company. Call in all "loans" and announce that in the future only one person will have access to the drawer — you. Then keep the cash locked up and relax.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 15-year-old girl and my parents won't let me grow up. They parents let them grow up. Why won't they do as much for me?

I am now a freshman in high school. My mother has arranged with my dad to leave the car in the morning and drive to work with a neighbor so she can chauffeur me to and from school. Ann, I don't want to be chauffeured to and from school. It's only 10 minutes by bus and on a nice day I can walk. But no, she insists it be in a car.

I have begged for an alarm clock of my own for two years but my mother says "No. I will get you up." She picks out the clothes she thinks me to wear every day, if I select my own she is hurt.

Can you get to the nitty gritty of this and give me some help? I am — LIKE SUFFOCATING.

* * *

DEAR LIKE: Your signature is an apt one. The word suffocating is a synonym for being smothered — and you are. Your mother is not giving you room to breathe and grow.

A 15-year-old girl should be allowed to get to school and back on her own. She should be permitted to select her own clothes. And finally, she should be able to get out of bed in the morning without help.

If you think it will do some good, show this column to your mother. If you don't think it will help, show it to her anyway. You may be agreeably surprised.

* * *

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help for the Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

U.C.W. Meetings

BETHEL - ZION U.C.W.

The Bethel-Zion United Church Women held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. W. Way.

The president, Mrs. Delbert Rowe opened the meeting with the United Church Women's purpose. Mrs. G. Russell conducted the devotional period with the assistance of Mrs. Way and Mrs. F. Rex.

The theme of the Bible study, "A Chosen People" was led by Rev. Southall with the members taking part in the discussion.

Mrs. Rowe took charge of the business portion of the meeting.

Rev. Southall mentioned a television program called "Television Mission" from Kingston, from October 25th to 29th at 11.30 p.m. He expressed hope that some of the ladies would attend and participate.

The president closed the meeting and the hostess and her assistants served lunch.

Fall Tea Held at Hastings Manor

By A. HENDERSON

No lovelier day could have been chosen for the Autumn anniversary tea and bazaar held yesterday afternoon at Hastings County Manor. It was a typical Indian Summer day; clear blue-grey skies with scarcely a breeze rippling the fading maple leaves, soft warm sunshine making shadows on the still green grass of the spacious lawns. Now and then a golden maple leaf gently wafted downward. Outside, some coatless residents basked and dozed in their easy chairs drinking in the calmness and the warm sunshine.

THRONGING GUESTS

But inside all was activity as the thronging guests gazed on the splendid display of handicraft, which denoted a love of beauty and skilful fingers of the many residents. The long U-shaped tables, which filled the handicraft room, were laden to overflowing with eye-catching articles which overflowed onto the walls as well. There were lovely Christmas wreaths in colors of pale blue, red, silver, fawn and green, each wreath accented with a Christmas motif, either a cluster of holly berries and leaves, or silvered pine cones. Other articles, too numerous to mention, included knitting containers, prettily decorated with painted leafless trees, and tropical fish; gilded wire bottles to be used as vases; also a whole family of Pete Rabbits, and an exceptionally well made blue broadcloth apron, both of which were awarded second prize at the Canadian National Exhibition this year. A pair of braided rugs also caught the attention, as well as a plaid quilt, nicely lined with black velvet.

MANY HANDICRAFT ARTICLES

On the first table a great assortment of different articles were arranged, in fact it was Christmas cards and envelopes, gold-tinted wall plaques made from tongue depressors and various weeds, Christmas candles in holders in red and white, little crown type hats and door decorations of pendant bells.

CUDDLY TOYS

There were cuddly toys of stocking monkeys; a lovely black Cocker spaniel with long ears; brown Teddy bear; little clowns; foam rubber turtles that were made to float; various kinds of potholders; toilet tissue holders for milady's beauty aids; a number of cookie recipes held in a brown stained to avoid omissions; Polar bear book ends; a pair of pepper and salts in brown color and shape having black quizzical eyes.

The fancy worktable had a voluminous display of fine crochet and woven doilies; lovely lace-edged towels in yellow and white; fancy lace edged and embroidered pillow cases, in white and green; knit bedroom slippers; an eye-catching golden petal cushion; children's white dresses and smocked nightie; crochet bookmarks in Cross design; and several dainty lace-edged handkerchiefs.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPER

MECCA

The novelty table was a Mecca for Christmas shoppers, for here were all manner of dainty and lovely articles made from apparently useless things: woven trays from bits of colored telephone wire; wall plaques centred with scenes from Ottawa at night and enclosed with golden nuts and bolts; sewing accessories; costume jewellery also made from material discarded by the telephone company, jardinières; hanging baskets; lovely aluminum etched trays and vases. There were several leather craft articles: change purses, and belts.

The homecooking was a drawing magnet with its delicious homemade breads and buns; delicious tarts, mouthwatering pineapple squares; and all varieties of pie; layer and loaf cakes, as well as date breads and muffins, preserved fruits, jams, pickles, and maple cream candies.

EXQUISITE TEA ROOM

The tea room, with its delicate pastel-green walls, was exquisitely appointed, dainty as a dream with its sequa blue garlands entwined from light to light and accented with floating yellow Emperior butterflies; its fawn scattered window ledges and and in each corner, and flanking the entrance door, tall white baskets filled with 'mums in white, yellow and wine colors. Centring the aisle between the dainty guest tables stood a glorious bouquet of yellow gladioli mingled with little orange irises bearing fruit. Each guest table was appointed with a white cloth, centred by a tiny arrangement of white, and yellow baby 'mums resting on green and colored maple leaves; while in the centre stood a proud and haughty tom turkey. A crystal dish of cubic sugar and dainty servietes having a red squirrel and shorn branches completed the setting.

ANNIVERSARY CAKE

The focal point of all this beauty was that of the long tea table. Centring the snow-white cloth was one of the loveliest anniversary cakes seen in a long time. It was in the graduated, three-tier, pillared type, fast tier adorned with tiny confectioner's flowers, in delicate tints of pale green leaves, pastel-pink tiny roses and purple violets, interspersed with yellow, each corner having a four-petalled violet colored flower, and on the top tier a lovely cluster of the same shades. Flanking this master-piece of beauty made for the 14th anniversary of the Man.r by its hak-er Mr. R. Burkholder and decorated by Mrs. Burkholder were tall russet and green candles in tri-branched silver holders. At either end of the gleaming silver services, and bouquets of white and yellow 'mums completed the attractive setting.

DRAW PRIZES

As one left the tea room an additional attraction was presented by the draw prizes, consisting of a nicely tooled leather purse in natural shade, and a pair of hand-painted pictures, made by an artistic resident.

Those participating at the bazaar and afternoon tea were:

Receiving guests at the door: Mrs. Frederick Beckett, wife of Warden of Hastings County; Mrs. Arthur Daniels, president Ladies' Auxiliary of Hastings Manor; Mr. K. H. Yorke, superintendent, and Mrs. K. H. Yorke, matron.

The convener of the tea was Mrs. Hudson Ketcheson, R.R. 2, Belleville, and of the tea room was Mrs. Douglas Atkins, R.R. 6, Belleville, while the tea room hostesses included: Mrs. Edgar Say, Mrs. B. W. Moorman, Mrs. Norman Wessels, Mrs. Ridley Wallbridge, Mrs. George Day and Mrs. A. Graedinger.

Ladies pouring tea included: Mrs. W. E. Sandercock, Mrs. Robert Temple, Mrs. Dawson MacLean, Mrs. B. Corke, Mrs. C. E. Bateman and Mrs. Harry Thompson.

The pianist for the afternoon was Mrs. Lee Grills.

The convener of handicraft was Mrs. A. Bongard, therapy instructor at Hastings Manor. Convener of the bake table was Mrs. Pearl Holmes, member of Auxiliary to Hastings Manor.

Residents assisting with bazaar included: sale of tickets at door, Mr. Harry Abbott and Mr. John Wiggins. Assisting the cashiers in therapy room was Mr. Charles Taylor.

Sale of tickets for the draw prizes were in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dwyer, and the successful were: Mrs. Hayell (hand-made purse); Mr. Norman Thompson (hand-painted picture) and Helen Wagar of Tweed (shell plaque.)

Taking tickets at the tea room were: Mr. Julius Mathison, Mr. Loral Clement, Mr. Robert Odendahl and Mr. Alfred Livingstone.

The parking of cars was in charge of Mr. James Pelkey. Resident information was given by Mrs. Maizie Greene.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ireland, 36 Chatham Street, with their daughter Joan and son Jack Jr, attended the funeral of Mrs. Ireland's father, Mr. W. J. Hancock, at the Miller George Funeral Home, Worthy Road, London, Ontario.

* * *

Mrs. Irvine Eggleton, 285 William street, is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital where she has undergone surgery.

* * *

The 19th meeting of the Phi Psi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi took the form of a progressive dinner. At 6.30 light refreshments were served at the home of Miss Claudia Durrant. From there the girls travelled to Miss Donna Matthew's house for the main course of the dinner. The regular business meeting was held at the home of Miss Mildred Gray after which dessert was served.

During the meeting Mrs. Jane Bell was presented with a beautiful glass bride's tray from the girls in the chapter.

Miss Sandra Thomas and Miss Susan Hodgins of Trenton were line for prospective members of what Beta Sigma Phi is and what it offers.

The guest speaker for the night was Mr. R. G. Kristiansen of the Hall Typehorn Company of Canada. He gave a very stimulating talk on "Communication Through Speech".

After the meeting the guest speaker was presented with a Beta Sigma Phi ash tray.

Church Groups

ST. JOSEPH'S C.W.L.

The October meeting of St. Joseph's C.W.L. was held recently with Mrs. D. Duminie, president, in charge and Monsignor J. A. Carley, spiritual director, in attendance.

Mrs. Duminie thanked the members for their help in connection with the C.W.L. regional meeting held in St. Joseph's Parish in September and mentioned that there were letters of congratulation received after this event.

A successful rummage sale, convened by Mrs. M. Chartrand, took place in October.

A bridge party is arranged for next week's C.W.L. meeting, and the annual bazaar and tea takes place in November, Work is presently underway to make this a big success.

In the absence of Mrs. Bibby, 2nd vice-president, Mrs. C. Murphy read her report on education. The civic action committee comprised of Mrs. Bibby, Parishes of Belleville, offers a bursary of $150 to a deserving girl graduating from Grade 13 who is going on to further her education. In the past this bursary was valued at $100 and this year it will be $150, and it is hoped soon to bring it up to $200. There is also available a National Scholarship Fund of $1,500 to be given for five years to a boy or girl who has a B.A. in Social Welfare and is interested in further study in social work.

Monsignor Carley addressed the meeting. He mentioned that the plaque had been erected in St. Joseph's Church to the memory of Rev. Fr. J. Buckley, first pastor of St. Joseph's, and thanked the League for their part in this effort.

The meeting was adjourned and a social hour followed.

What Women Are Doing

Mrs. Arthur Daniels, President

Hastings Manor W. A.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Hastings Manor was formed in November, 1950, at which time Mrs. Marguerite Smith from the Department of Welfare inaugurated the first executive. Mrs. Arthur Daniels is this year's president.

This organization was formed for the express purpose of assisting in any way to the comforts of the residents.

Since the Auxiliary's inception, many articles have been purchased for use in the Manor including lawn chairs, overbed tables and wheelchairs. There has been a "chapel fund" set aside which is added to periodically. This money is to be used to help furnish a chapel in the Manor sometime in the future.

A flower in a tiny rose bowl is sent to each resident when a patient in the general hospital.

Cards are sent to each resident on their birthday from the Auxiliary itself; also from individual members.

There is a meeting held once a month, the first portion of which takes the form of a regular business meeting followed by a birthday party for the residents having a birthday in that month. A happy hour is spent with the residents and a tasty lunch prepared for them which includes an attractively birthday cake with candles and their name on each individual piece. Pictures are taken including a special one of the eldest guest present.

There is a travelling tuckshop operated each Tuesday of the week from which the residents can purchase almost any article from hair-nets to corn-plasters. This work is carried on by volunteers from the Auxiliary.

Each year there is a World Day of Prayer service conducted by the Auxiliary. The ladies convene a bake-table at the annual anniversary tea and bazaar held at the Manor; also assist in the tea room and the handicraft.

There are approximately 46 members on the roll at the present time with 15 organizations having paid dues.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary Presents Fashion Show Based on Spanish Theme

By RITA LAWRENCE

What is a woman? She is wife, mother, laundress, chef, cleaning woman, teacher, chauffeur, hostess, ad infinitum. She is also Vanity with style in her eye. To a woman, the sense of being well dressed gives an inward sense of security which even religion fails to bestow.

So, on Wednesday evening the auditorium of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School was filled to capacity with the ladies of Belleville and district, to enjoy the 27th annual fashion show presented by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

Receiving at the door were Mrs. William Dallas, president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. J. H. Forrester and Mrs. T. Neil Davidson, convener.

Mrs. Dallas welcomed all present and gave tribute to all who were in any way connected with the show and the work of the Auxiliary.

"Una Vivita Espanol" announced the attractive black and gold admission tickets and programs. To the Spanish theme, the stage was attractively arranged with upholstered furniture of vivid brocades, with drumhead tables and wrought iron lamps from Robert Michaud Limited, complimented by tall standards of bronze and gold chrysanthemums from Barber Flowers, Moffe

DANCER ENTERTAINS

To open the show, and throughout the evening Miss Diane McCallum, in frills and mantilla, tapped out the rhythms of Spain, to the clicking of castanets and the guitar accompaniment of Mr. William Keeley.

Exhibitors of the finest in clothes, fur and accessories were McNabb's, Ashley Furs, Ronald Keel Jeweller and Mc-Intosh Bros. Limited.

The models were: Mrs. Ben E. Burley, Mrs. Charles Cawker, Miss Judy McKnight, Miss Jo-Anne McNevin, Mrs. Maurice Rollins and Mrs. G. S. Wonnacott. Their colleagues, each complimenting the wearer and showing the work of skilled artisans, and make-up by Dufferin Cosmetics, complements of Paul Kelly's Drug Store, were the perfect foil for fashions ranging from sport and leisure outfits, through daytime wear to after-five fashions and delectable floor length evening gowns, topped by the smartest of little furs.

Mrs. Hugh Murray supplied the running commentary, describing each presentation.

SPORTSWEAR SHOWN

The beautifully co-ordinated sportswear by Miss Sun Valley, utilizing many new, wearable and practically indestructible fabrics in glowing autumn colors, transported milady to ski slopes, football games and even perhaps, the bullfights, since Spain was ever the imaginary locale. The luxurious furs, great and small, left no occasion uncovered. Beloved mink held its coveted place but so, nonetheless, did the myriad of other attractive furs. The-atre suits, man-tailored suits, hostess gowns, discotheque and formal floor-length sheaths took the female audience into a land of dreams from which not one will quickly return to the mundane routine of housewife.

This far from ordinary fashion show was the product of the imaginations of the fashion committee, convened by Mrs. Jack Davidson, assisted by Mrs. J. R. Blackborn, Mrs. Herbert Brown, Mrs. J. B. Casey, Mrs. J. H. Forrester, Mrs. W. Fox, Mrs. W. G. Harvey and Mrs. A. F. Miles, with Mrs. Eva Doolittle as fashion co-ordinator.

Background music before and during the entire show was provided by Mrs. A. Victor Barkley, assisted by Miss Lorraine Brown.

DOOR PRIZES

Mr. Stanley J. Johnston, hospital administrator, officiated at the drawing for the door prizes. Lucky winners were: Mrs. S. L. Burgess, Mobile Village, Trenton ($5.00 gift certificate from Barber's Flowers); Mrs. Roy Blake, Belleville ($10.00 gift certificate from McNabb's); Mrs. Rae Parmalee, Belleville (carving and brooch set from Ronald Keel Jeweller); Mrs. Wanda Sine, Belleville (fur hat from Ashley's); Mrs. Terry Flynn, Belleville (nylons from McIntosh Bros.); Doris James, Belleville (permanent from A La Vogue); Mrs. Harold Vaughn, Belleville (jewel box from Kelly's Drug Store), and Mrs. L. Tremblay, Belleville (boudoir lamps from Michaud's).

Much imagination and the co-operation and a great many people produced a fashion show which was quite unique. The capacity audience and their apparent enthusiasm would seem to insure the success of this, the one annual and concentrated effort of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. Funds are used to buy needed equipment for the hospital and to provide services beyond the normal requirement for patient well-being.

Following the show the executive entertained at a reception at the home of Mrs. J. H. Forrester for all those who participated in the presentation.

Girl's Father Should Make Careful Check

TORONTO (CP) — Prospective sons-in-law should be carefully investigated by the girl's father in an effort to check divorce, says Priscilla Jackson of Oakland University, Rochester, Mich.

She said that 18-to-20-year-old girls do not "know how to evaluate themselves, let alone men."

Mrs. Jackson told the University Women's Club of Etobicoke:

"With all their indecisions, we expect young girls to make a choice that affects where they live, how much money they'll have to spend, what their position in society will be . . . we're asking them to make decisions, personnel managers in Toronto are making wrong every day."

Mrs. Jackson said that divorce among married students is at times caused by the resentment of the wife who supports her husband while he attends school.

She said that as the housewife's role shrinks in modern society many women lose their feeling of a sense of purpose.

Lee Grills Commends P. C. Women

Mrs. Stuart Howell chaired the October 19th meeting of the Belleville Progressive Conservative Women's Association held at the Kiwanis Centre.

Mr. Jerry Joyce, president of the men's association, addressed the meeting and congratulated the ladies for their splendid efforts in support of Lee Grills. Mr. Joyce reported that Mr. John Diefenbaker will be making a whistle stop in Belleville, Friday, October 22, at 1.20 p.m. at the CNR station and extended an invitation to all to be on hand. Mr. Diefenbaker will be in Stirling on Saturday, October 23rd at 11 a.m. to meet the people and be entertained by Northumberland, Hastings-Frontenac and Hastings South officials.

Mr. Joyce also reported to the gathering that the honorable Walter Dinsdale, Minister of Northern Affairs, in the last Conservative government, will be the guest speaker Saturday, October 30th at the 100th anniversary Congress of the Salvation Army in Belleville. A reception in his honour will be held at the Progressive Conservative Hesoquarters at 350 Front Street. Following this Mr. Dinsdale will lend his support to Mr. Lee Grills' campaign.

A motion was made to donate two pictures which were formerly being in the Conservative Club rooms. One of Sir Mackenzie Bowell will be presented to Sir Mackenzie Bowell School at the official opening soon to be held, and the other of the Fathers of Confederation will be presented to the Hastings County Museum.

Mrs. Lee Grills made the draw for the door prize, donated by White's Hardware and it was won by Mrs. Miller.

Mr. Gerald Hyde, chairman of publicity for the Grills campaign conducted an auction of small articles donated by the women and received an enthusiastic response.

Mrs. Howell introduced Mr. Grills who gave a run down on his campaign activities. He said that on an average day he covers 50 or so miles, and most of it on foot through factories and plazas, on the streets and in the market places, in Trenton, Tweed, Stirling, and Frankford. He hopes to personally visit every centre in his riding.

Mr. Grills congratulated the ladies for the Shrine Club dances which was most successful. He expressed his sincere appreciation for their co-operation and support and for the tremendous job they are doing in every field of his campaign. Mr. Grills stated he is most anxious to meet the electors of South Hastings and especially to hear of the problems of the farmer, the small business man and the family man, as well as all the educator and the large businesses.

Mrs. Howell brought the meeting to a close with a reminder that the November meeting will be a Civic Night, November 18th, to meet some of the candidates for the forthcoming municipal election.

Hallowe'en Symbols Enliven Fall Bazaar

A Hi-z-sized witch, grinning from sheaves of corn and black cats, greeted guests entering the Masonic Temple for the annual fall tea and bazaar sponsored by Belleville Chapter No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star, on Wednesday afternoon. The entrance hall's Hallowe'en decor was further accented by dim orange lights.

This is the first time Belleville Chapter No. 55 has featured a Hallowe'en theme at its bazaar, and the decorations were tastefully arranged by the bazaar's convener Mrs. Dorothy Ellis, Past Matron. Co-convener was Mrs. Wynne Tomlinson.

Mrs. Bobbie Locke, Worthy Matron, received the guests at the door, assisted by Mrs. Laura Simpson.

The Hallowe'en theme was continued in the main hall, where the ceiling was festooned with orange and black garlands. Pumpkins and jack-o'-lanterns were suspended from the garlands and appropriate Hallowe'en symbols decorated the walls.

BLACK, ORANGE DECOR

Mrs. Hazel Baragar, Mrs. Laura Clarke and Mrs. Ada McMullen all Past Matrons, received the guests into the tea room. A white picket fence, entwined with autumn leaves and bittersweet, separated the bazaar booths from the tea room area. The tea table was centred with an arrangement of Chinese lanterns, autumn leaves and orange berries in a jack-o'-lantern container. Orange and black candles flanked the centrepiece and all table cloths and napkins were imprinted with a witch and broomstick design.

Each quartet table was decorated with gold, orange and black net and crepe paper ruffles, centred with a tiny figure of an owl, a witch, a cat, or a jack-o'-lantern.

Those pouring tea were Mrs. Helen Smith, W.M. of Port Hope; Mrs. Kathy Hallick, W.M. of Trenton; Mrs. Marjory Collyer of Minerva Chapter, Belleville; Mrs. Mary Johnson, D.D.G.M. of Havelock; Mrs. Luella Brickman, P.D.D.G.M. of Belleville, and Mrs. Dorothy McGlashon, P.D.D.G.M., of Belleville.

At the men's booth, conveners Mr. Herbert Tomlinson and Mr. Bruce Simpson, W.P., sold baskets of fruit and vegetables and tickets on a bushel of apples.

Aprons, embroidered towels, candies, baby clothes and tickets on a doll's wardobe were sold at the Christmas booth by Mrs. Myrtle Cross, P.M., Mrs. Ada McMullen, P.M. and their assistants.

The candy table featured a large three tiered server filled with several varieties of homemade candy. Tickets on this arrangement were sold by the booth's conveners, Mrs. Esma Maybee and Mrs. Margaret Finnigan.

HALLOWE'EN BOOTH

The "Punkin Centre", presided over by Mrs. Wynne Tomlinson and Miss Mary Carmichael, was sponsored by the business girls of the chapter. They sold note-paper, gift trims, tea towels, slippers, baby clothes and assorted novelties.

Gingerbread men decorated with colored icing were fast sellers at the home baking table. Mrs. Phyllis Barlow, P.M., and Mrs. Margaret Shaw, P.M., were in charge of this table, which was covered with an array of home made cakes, cookies, pies and tarts.

The ticket convener was Mrs. Luella Brickman, P.D.D.G.M., assisted by Mrs. R. Orme, Mrs. Hazel Insley and Mrs. Nellie Armstrong. Mrs. Leah Pitt, P.M., and Mrs. Jean Adams, P.M., were in charge of the tea room and kitchen conveners were Mrs. Dorothy Jones and Mrs. Anne Coombe.

Mrs. Mae Black and her co-conveners Mrs. Jean Bell and Mrs. R. Carmen were in charge of selling tickets on a draw for groceries, won by Mrs. G. Grant, Mrs. Cynthia Wright, Mrs. E. Ferguson, Mrs. D. Scanlon, Mrs. W. Fever, Mrs. Dorothy Jones and Mrs. Irene Brown.

Tickets on a draw for a man's hand-knit sweater were sold by the business girls of the Chapter and the winning ticket was held by Mrs. J. Keddick. R. R. 5, Belleville.

Winner of the draw for the candy filled server was Mrs. R. Orme and the basket of apples was won by Mrs. Gladys Hector. Mrs. Dorothy Ellis was the winner of the doll's wardrobe.

SALMON SOUFFLE FOR FOUR

My sister Peady excels at making souffles — souffles that never fall. Out of the pile of testing that I have on hand to do I selected a salmon soufflé and politely asked her to make it and invite me over to help them to eat it. All went well. She invited guests for a Sunday high tea.

Because I will not have members of this cooking club deflated over deflated soufflés I hope you will give this salmon soufflé a good try. It works and is popular and in most kitchens all of the ingredients will be on hand for emergency use.

Corned Beef and Cabbage (see Wednesday); Hot Mustard Sauce (see Wednesday); Potato Pancakes; Sliced Tomatoes with Chopped Green Onion; Fresh Bartlett Pears; Swedish Tea Ring (see Tuesday); Cheese; Coffee.

PEADY'S SALMON SOUFFLE

1½ tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon curry powder, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup milk, one 8-oz. can salmon — pink or red, 5 medium-large eggs — yolks and whites separated.

In a large heavy saucepan melt the butter and stir in the flour, curry powder, nutmeg, salt and pepper. Stir in the milk until thick. Remove from heat. Beat egg yolks, stir a little of the hot sauce into them, then stir them into the hot sauce until smoothly blended. Mash the salmon, including liquid, with a fork and add it to the sauce. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold them into the hot mixture until smoothly incorporated but do not beat. Turn into straight-sided ungreased soufflé dish or casserole. Stand this in larger shallow pan containing 1 inch of boiling water. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Serve at once. If desired serve with Green Pea Sauce: Cook 1 package fresh frozen peas or 1¼ cups fresh peas until barely tender. Over low heat blend together 1½ teaspoons butter and 2 teaspoons flour then stir in ¾ cup milk until thick. Add ¼ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper and accent and cooked, drained peas. Heat through and serve.

We served our soufflé with Pumpkin Buns (see Oct. 4) and cottage - cheese - stuffed tomatoes.

ULTRA ARRANGEMENT

Dear Susanna: Have just discovered that one doesn't need a great many flowers for a lovely, professional - looking arrangement, it is merely a matter of line and balance of materials. Remember, though, my experience will only interest rank beginners like myself . . . but to tell the truth I'm thrilled with the dramatic effect I achieved with only three flowers and some leaves. My arrangement consisted of just three snapdragons and some basturtium leaves.

You will need: a low dish, about 8" in diameter, a 3" needle holder and a little green florist's clay.

Place the holder a little to one side and towards the back of container. Press it into place with a thin layer of clay. Cut first flower one and one half times the length of the container and place in centre of holder towards the back. Cut next one two thirds the length of the first flower and place it to the left. Now fill in area in front of the flowers with leaves that reach part way up the flower's stems. Place final flower which has been cut half the length of the second one, in the right-hand of the needle holder so that it is almost lying horizontally out over the front of the dish on that side. Fill in the remaining part of the holder that can still be seen, with leaves.

Put a little water in container, then move it to permanent place and add whatever extra water is necessary.—Miss H.B.

Satisfying and simple! — Susanna

CURTAINS!

For a rod with a nasty little rough end, a snip of adhesive or transparent tape will take all the meanness out of that jagged edge. — Susanna

IODE Will Provide New School Grants

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Ontario students will be eligible in 1966 for $2,500 in awards and scholarships from a special memorial fund, the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire announced Wednesday.

Bursaries and interest-free loans will be made available to needy and deserving students and a $200 award will be offered for short story writing.

The awards, all offered for the first time, were announced at a two-day IODE meeting here.

Mrs. J. C. Strathdee of London, Ont., secretary of Commonwealth relations for Ontario IODE, said contributions to the Commonwealth relations fund last year made possible two new scholarships totalling $2,700.

She said a $2,300 grant was offered a graduate student at the University of the West Indies for study in Canada and $400 went to a student at the Christian Medical College, Velore, South India.

Lindsay Jail Again Opened By Governor

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Five prisoners locked up in Whitby, 50 miles south of here, are expected to be returned soon to Victoria County jail, the jail governor, Norman Balfour, said Wednesday.

Their return may end a situation in which depletion of the custodial staff here sparked charges that justice was being hampered.

The dispute, over collective bargaining rights for jail guards, caused dismissals and resignations that forced the closing of the jail, with only three men left as guards.

Eleven prisoners were transferred to available lockups in Whitby, and to Mimico, a Toronto suburb.

Mr. Balfour said Wednesday a staff of eight, including himself, will man the jail.

Of these, two are previous employees, now hired as permanent guards. He described two other men as almost ready to pass tests for permanent posts. Three others have been hired as casual guards and will receive $12 a day.

Earlier, Magistrate Ian Monroe termed the situation, whereby prisoners were shipped back and forth to Whitby and Mimico as "terrible." One man picked up in Lindsay for being drunk, was taken to Whitby and didn't appear in Lindsay court for six days. He told the magistrate he got lost in the shuffle.

Lesage Joins Robarts in Ceremony

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Quebec Premier Jean Lesage says "those people" who keep asking what Quebec wants from Confederation should put themselves in the place of French-Canadians.

"Let them imagine me asking them the question with English-Canada substituted for Quebec," Premier Lesage said Wednesday. "If I did, I am quite sure I would shock them, hurt their feelings, offend their intellect and the legitimate respect of their traditions."

He spoke at a cornerstone-laying ceremony at Trent University in which he participated jointly with Ontario Premier John Robarts.

Both men delivered speeches praising construction of yet another Canadian university and condemning those who attempt to divide the country on historical and cultural issues.

Premier Robarts said Canadians had been guilty of stressing those things which tended to divide the nation rather than unite it.

"We have been so concerned with our immediate problems we have failed to recognize our long-run opportunities," the premier said.

through Parliament.

"Is one connected with Viet Nam?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked. The prime minister wound up a two-day Prairie swing with a speech at Humboldt, Sask., urging Saskatchewan voters to ensure their province a voice in a new Liberal government. Conservatives now hold all 17 seats there.

Mr. Douglas spent most of his 61st birthday flying from Moncton to Port Arthur for a night meeting and then on to British Columbia. A huge birthday cake was presented to him after his speech at Port Arthur.

The NDP leader dropped his self - imposed silence on the scandal issue, attacking the government for "an unsavory mess that cries to high heaven for investigation and remedial action."

Social Credit Leader Thompson, campaigning in southern Alberta, said his party is asking for the same chance to do the job in Ottawa that it has had in British Columbia and Alberta, both under Social Credit provincial administrations.

Guy Favreau, president of the Privy Council, told a Montreal rally that Mr. Diefenbaker is a scandal - monger dragging the campaign into the mud and aiming invectives at Quebec.

He called Mr. Diefenbaker "a true separatist, trying to separate Quebec from the rest of Canada through his campaign of vilification and unfounded accusation."

It's never bedtime for your Esso Home Heat serviceman

When things go wrong (like your furnace giving up the ghost) they don't go wrong when they should go wrong—at nice convenient times. They go wrong in the middle of the night. Your Esso Home Heat serviceman knows this sad fact, so he's ready to help you whenever trouble occurs. Twenty-four hours a day. Seven days a week. And an Esso serviceman is likely to put things right faster and more efficiently than anyone else. Why? Because Esso servicemen are the best qualified in the business. Imperial Oil selected them because of that. They're the best trained. Imperial Oil trains them—in its own schools. When an Esso serviceman inspects your furnace, he makes up a "case history" about it. Just like a doctor with a new patient. All this is free, of course. But, more important still, it has behind it Imperial Oil's unqualified guarantee of reliable, competent maintenance—day or night. No wonder you have that nice warm feeling when you use Esso Home Heat Service.

Diefenbaker Wants Story On Viet Nam

By DAVE McINTOSH

RENFREW, Ont. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker says the government has lost all sense of international responsibility.

Governm e nt statements on Viet Nam, he said here Wednesday, represent "gross confusion amounting to deception."

He challenged Prime Minister Pearson to make public a letter written last summer by President Johnson to the government which sought Canadian assistance in Viet Nam.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson had stated at the time that Mr. Johnson wanted Canada to send troops to Viet Nam. But External Affairs Minister Martin had said the U.S. president hadn't asked for troops.

The Conservative leader said Finance Minister Gordon, Liberal campaign chairman, now has stated that the letter asked for troops while Defence Minister Hellyer said he hadn't seen the letter.

"What heights of ridiculous nonsense does this reveal?" Mr. Diefenbaker said.

The government had no right to keep Canadians in the dark and Mr. Johnson's letter must be made public.

LB JSAID NO

(Mr. Pearson issued a statement Aug. 14 saying that Mr. Johnson considered publication of the exchange of letters "to be undesirable because these letters formed part of a series of exchanges between the presidint and other heads of governments.")

Later, at an evening rally at Shawville, Que., across the Ottawa River from Renfrew, Mr. Diefenbaker quoted Mr. Hellyer as saying the Liberals need a majority for some unpopular measures they want to introduce in Parliament.

What were these unpopular measures?

"Is one connected with Viet Nam?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

The Opposition chieftain made three speeches Wednesday. He addressed about 200 persons at Cobden, Ont., in the morning, another 250 here in the afternoon when he was introduced as "the comeback prime minister," and a standing-room-only crowd of about 400 at Shawville in the evening. Total speaking time was some 2½ hours.

Mr. Diefenbaker now has travelled more than 7,000 miles and made nearly 30 major speeches in the Nov. 8 election campaign. He tours Ottawa ridings today and speaks tonight at Brockville.

Friday he will be in Northumberland riding where George Hees is the conservative candidate.

At Shawville, Mr. Diefenbaker said the government has tied up grain shipments by making no adequate provision for transportation. As a result Canada was losing millions of bushels in potential grain sales.

SHARP FIDDLES

Trade Minister Sharp "fiddles in Eglinton while the Vancouver grain exchange burns," he said. Grain ships were like in Vancouver harbor and elevators there half-filled.

In Renfrew, Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson is resurrecting the means test—"the meanest test of all"—for any increases in the old-age pension.

He was referring to the prime minister's promise to increase the $75 a-month pensions to $100 or more for pensioners who needed the increase.

He said Mr. Pearson expressed shock at the Conservative proposal to increase old-age pensions to $100 a month by using money out of the Canada Pension Fund.

But Health Minister Judy LaMarsh had said $2,100,000 worth of "electioneering" advertisements on the pension plan would be paid out of the fund.

"If Mr. Pearson had been shocked about some other things it would have been better for Canada," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He said a Conservative government would remove the means test for blind and disabled pensioners.

NDP Leader Repeats Call For Inquiry

By ALLEN SACKMANN

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—NDP Leader T. C. Douglas Wednesday criticized the Liberal government for failing to act on reports of corruption within its ranks and repeated his call for a judicial inquiry into fraudulent bankruptcies in Quebec.

"I have no wish to deal with scandals in this campaign but I cannot remain silent if the prime minister of this country continues to turn a blind eye to the unsavory mess that cries to high heaven for investigation and remedial action," he said.

He made repeated references to the subject through his 75-minute speech: Ill could pick a better cabinet from this room than we have now." . . . "The tentacles of the underworld are reaching into the councils of our nation". . . . "They campaigned in 1963 for stable government—they didn't tell just how badly the stable was going to smell."

He quoted Wes McNutt of North Bay, president of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association, as saying that reports of fraudulent bankruptcies were made to the government in 1958 and again last year without any action.

"Surely Mr. Pearson cannot ignore this question any longer. He can't be oblivious to the situation."

'WANTS REPORTS STIFLED'

"He said Prime Minister Pearson called the election because he said he needed a majority government. Mr. Douglas contended it was to enable the Liberals to stifle reports of corruption and clear the way for unpopular legislation such as a bill to remove the ceiling on bank interest rates.

The NDP leader said Liberals refer to Canada as an affluent society but it "depends on who and what you are.

"It's affluent for the big three auto manufacturers. (they receive a $50,000,000 gift (as a result of the Canada-U.S. auto trade agreement)."

The agreement elimin a tes tariffs on car parts shipped across the Canada-U.S. border, Mr. Douglas said the benefits, however, would not be passed on to the people through lower-priced cars.

After his address, Mr. Douglas received a birthday cake topped with a Scottish doll marking his 61st birthday.

Today he goes to Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Pearson Holds 'Unity Rally' With Thatcher

By KEN CLARK

HUMBOLDT, Sask. (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson climaxed a western campaign swing Wednesday night with a rally that emphasized unity with an old sparring mate, Saskatchewan Premier Ross Thatcher.

Both Liberal leaders told a near-capacity crowd of 2,800 in the Humboldt arena that they have had their differences in the past but stand and work together all the same.

Said Mr. Thatcher: "When the chips are down, a Liberal prime minister can always count on Saskatchewan."

It was no secret that Saskatchewan and the federal government have had their differences on policy and they may differ again. "But details are one thing and principles are another," he said.

Mr. Pearson termed Mr. Thatcher a vigorous fighter for Saskatchewan rights. There were times when Saskatchewan requests could not be granted, "but we work together, he in his job, and I in mine."

One area of disagreement has been Saskatchewan demands for tax concessions to attract potash mines similar to concessions for shaft potash mines.

CHANGES MAY RESULT

Mr. Pearson said the report of the federal royal commission on taxation is expected soon and may result in wholesale changes in the tax structure.

Without saying precisely that the solution potash tax concession will be granted, Mr. Pearson said that when changes come about; no discrimination will be permitted in the matter. Both sheft and solution type mines will be treated on the same basis.

The rally in this community 70 miles east of Saskatoon ended a two-day swing for Mr. Pearson through Alberta and Saskatchewan in a bid to break the Conservative hold in the Nov. 8 election. Conservatives hold 14 of the 17 Alberta seats in the last Parliament and all 17 of the Saskatchewan seats.

During the tour Mr. Pearson made direct appeals to his audiences for more Prairie representation in what he said will be a Liberal majority government after the election.

Shriners Present Cheque For Crippled Children

Members of the Belleville Shrine Club and their wives Wednesday evening got a first hand report on the work of the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children at Montreal when at the local club's annual ladies' night program they listened to a talk by the hospital administrator.

Speaker for the occasion was Miss Flora M. Lamont who has been associated with the Montreal hospital since 1938 and administrator since 1953. Miss Lamont gave a comprehensive outline of the work of the hospital and what it is doing for crippled children and invited all members to visit the institution.

And Miss Lamont didn't return to Montreal empty handed. She received several gifts on behalf of the club and also accepted a club cheque for $2,000 to assist in the work of her hospital.

Shriner Jack Allin introduced the speaker while Shriner Ed. Way of Tweed expressed the thanks of the club. The cheque from the Shrine Club was presented by Shriner Tom Lewis, chairman of the club's crippled children's fund.

The ladies' night program took the form of a dinner party followed by the guest speaker and entertainment. The evening's program was directed by club president Alex Pierson.

Students Given Law Booklet By Kiwanians

At a brief ceremony at Moira Secondary School and BCI yesterday, students were given copies of a booklet, "You and the Law", on behalf of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville.

R. W. Freestone, chairman of the Civic Affairs Committee of Kiwanis, outlined the origin of the booklet. He said it was first introduced by Kiwanis in the U.S. and had been widely acclaimed by both legal and police authorities. A Toronto lawyer, Gordon Tinker, realizing the value of this material to Canadian youth, rewrote the booklet based on Canadian law.

Mr. J. Pringle, Crown Attorney for the County of Hastings commended Kiwanis for its sponsorship of the project. He said he did not want to leave the impression that our modern generation was "going to the dogs", but stressed the importance of the contribution of our citizens to the development of better laws for our country.

Inspector R. Blatchford, representing the Belleville Police Department, was also in attendance to offer his support to the project.

O. F. Bradley, president of the Kiwanis Club, presented the Key Club presidents, Barry Campbell of Moira and Mike Reddick of BCI with copies of the booklet and charged them with responsibility for distribution within their respective schools.

It was announced that copies of "You and the Law" would be distributed to all secondary school students in Belleville.

Fourteen Days In Jail Given

Driving under suspension brought a Trenton-district man 14 days in jail from Magistrate T. Y. Wills today.

Gerald Seea pleaded guilty to the charge, laid after police found him driving an automobile after his licence was suspended last August for three months for impaired driving.

Assistant Crown Attorney Tom Lally said the offence should bring more than the usual penalty since it was committed while a suspension was still in force.

Campaigning Hot But High-Style In Toronto's Affluent Eglinton

By RICHARD JACKSON

TORONTO — This is the big one. Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp and Conservative President Dalton Camp swearing it out, coffee party to coffee party, has stop to buy. No door-knocking contest looks more entertaining than this one here in Toronto-Eglinton.

This is the affluent riding, this Eglinton, for all the Metro constituencies this perhaps is the old Toronto keeper-of-the-keys, well populated by chauffeurs, governesses, marcelled poodles and their snugly-secure employers. Eglinton is a comfortable enclave of very prosperable old wealth surrounded by Toronto's bustling million in hot pursuit of new wealth, to whom the idea of being represented at Ottawa by anything less than a most senior cabinet minister borders on lese majeste.

So you get to go to political coffee parties here by special invitation. You don't just drop in. The candidate himself calls you by phone, if, of course, you have a speaking acquaintance. Or lacking that, send in invitation in hand-addressed envelopes by mail.

"The Hon. Mitchell Sharp would like to meet you and talk with you over a cup of coffee, discuss your views, answer your questions and listen to your ideas," reads the invitation from the trade minister.

Then, by way of more sociable informality, it adds the disarming inducement: "There will be food and conversation will be hot, and plentiful."

The Conservative president requests the pleasure of your company through a little note reading: "You are cordially invited to meet and hear Dalton Camp at a reception." These invitational affairs are the big soirees. There are other and smaller, more intimate gatherings in the elegant homes or in the plush lobbies of recreation rooms of the high-rent, high-rise towed apartments soaring skyward along the fringe of Eglinton.

SHERRY IN STYLE

But there aren't just ordinary run-of-the-campaign coffee parties you might find in most other constituencies. Oh, dear, no. To give them that special Eglinton touch, a glass or two of sherry may fortify or even replace the coffee. But while the campaign might be delightfully social in the little parties in the afternoons and the big evening receptions, in the morning it looks suspicious ly like a lot of hard work. Both men are out of bed by 6.30 most mornings and pe trolling. The bus stops along North Yonge and on Avenue Road by 7.15, shaking hands and introducing themselves to the sleepy-eyed mousands hur rying south for the Eglinton terminal of the Toronto subway.

They found themselves in more than ordinarily direct competition the other morning, reaching for the same hands at the same bus stop. So they shook hands. And since there are far more than enough bus stops to go around, they smiled, murmured the usual breakof-day pleasantries and—moved along, one north, the other south on Avenue Road.

But things really aren't all that gentlemanly. Dalton Camp is hitting hard at coffe party and businessmen's luncheon alike at what he calls "those 25 years of entrenched arrogance of Old Guard Liberalism." More personally, he likes to observe that while "Old Guard Ottawan Mitchell Sharp has been sleeping here in a rented house for three months I have been living and working in Eglinton for six years." Finally, he thinks he's making some capital out of the way Mitchell Sharp recently has seemed to be running scared, as he puts it, "sticking pretty close to Eglinton instead of heading out for the Prairies in the West, as he promised, for the Grits."

SHARP "RUNNING SCARED"

And it's here that Dalton Camp lets go with his punchline: "Why Mitchell Sharp has scarcely been west of Avenue Road since the campaign opened." Not exactly so, counters Mitchell Sharp, explaining that, like Dalton Camp, he's been stumping around Ontario. As for "winning the west", he's heading out that way for three days next week in Saskatchewan and another three days —the final week in Manitoba and Alberta.

Dalton Camp, who for the first time in 15 fruitful political years is emerging from the smoke-filled party back-rooms into the public light of candidacy, looks by far the most professional of the two. He runs smoothly modern, well-staffed campaign headquarters in one of those shiny new buildings, and his people speak of this as "week three." Ten blocks north on Yonge is Mitchell Sharp's headquarters in an old, vacant store stuffed late yesterday afternoon by a pretty young girl and four fluffy matrons all licking stamps. They had the front door locked, to keep out some young ruffians, they explained, who had been charging through, front to back-door, creating a disturbance.

FANCY CAMPAIGNING

It may be a dull and dreary election in some places, but Eglinton isn't one of them. How high is interest running in this, "the big one?", Well, when some people get involved in campaigning here, it's up to their ears, like Mrs. Kenneth Paton of Glencairn Avenue who papered her home, literally, with pictures of Dalton Camp. She was giving a coffee party for him, she explained, and since she was planning to redecorate anyway, she papered the walls of her home, completely, with his photos "to help convert the unconverted."

Mitchell Sharp has his zealots too, Like the lady who arrived with the proprietors of her apartment to loan her the swimming pool for a splash party. "We're certainly invited," her engraved invitations read; "to make the plunge for Hon. Mitchell Sharp." Even for Eglinton, a political splash party was something new, and they say it was real fun, too.

How's it going to all turn out? Well, Mitchell Sharp broke the 18-year iron grip the Conservatives had on Eglinton when he walloped Eric Hardy, a political unknown, by 8,231 votes in '63. And the year before that, he jarred former Finance Minister Donald Fleming when he lost by only 760. "Last time," says Burke Dowbiggin, a young Ottawa lawyer on loan from his firm to serve as one of Mitchell Sharp's campaign coordinators, "it was easy against a nothing candidate. This time it's a real fall campaign on both sides, and we'll win it." Dalton Camp is an awful long way from being the "nothing candidate," Mitchell Sharp whipped so soundly last time, and speaking as a political veteran himself, he says, he of course will win. "It won't be easy," he concedes, "but bet on it." The profession of all handicappers in this November 8 race advise that it could be close.

PC Candidate Makes Tour Of Industries

DESERONTO — Mr. Lee Grills, candidate for the Progressive Conservatives for Hastings South visited Deseronto on Tuesday.

Mr. Grills spent the morning visiting the industries in the town which included Canada Optical Co., Ideal Vendors, Metcalfe Foods Ltd., Dawson's Market, Hawley Bros., and Hudson's grist mill as well as making calls to homes.

In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Grills visited the committee rooms, where tea was served to the people who called for a visit and talk with Mr. Grills. He spoke to the many guests and told of the fine welcome he was given every place he visited, he said he glad to be back in the campaigning business again, in the same party. Some people are changing parties these days but we are not.

He spoke of the Quinte Skyway bridge being a benefit to Deseronto and how pleased he was it had become a reality through the efforts of the Conservative government of Ontario and that he had played a small part in making this so. He said he was aware Deseronto was interested in improving the water and sewage conditions in the town and if elected he would do all in his power to help to this end. Mr. Grills reminded those present that when the Conservatives were in Ottawa the Indians were given the right to vote, prior to this time only Indians in the armed forces could vote. "It was also during this time that the first Indian Senator was appointed," said Mr. Grills.

He stated the Liberals like to make fun of the 62½% dollar but they continued to use it and thought what a wonderful step they had taken. The one that plants the tree ones not always pick the fruit. The Conservatives are striving for a better economy and will take constructive steps to make it so not destructive ones like the 11% sales tax imposed by the Liberals on building materials and industrial equipment which holds up industry rather than encourages it.

Mr. Grills stated ne tries to be a personal representative to all the people in his riding and encourages all to go out and vote and read this quotation by Mr. Winston Churchill: "At the bottom of all the tributes paid to democracy is the little man walking into the little booth with a little pencil making a little cross on a little bit of paper, no amount of rhetoric or voluminous discussion can possibly diminish the overwhelming importance of that point."

Serving tea throughout the afternoon were Mrs. G Burley, Mrs. S. Knapp, Mrs. J. Spence and Mrs. Spence Sr.

Planting of Trees Honors Two Long-time Employees Of OSD, 95th Anniversary

Two stately Red King Maple trees were planted yesterday on the junior playground at the Ontario School of the Deaf in honor of two long-time employees of the school and on the occasion of the school's 95th anniversary.

Honored were Mr. Russell Flagler, who retired as school chauffeur in 1963 after 40 years of service, and Miss Florence Fitzgerald, school nurse, who will retire November 18 with 21 years of service.

The trees, both seven years old now, will eventually grow to a height of 40 feet and will provide shade to the children playing in the junior playground area.

The school planted seven trees in 1960 when the school was 90 years old.

The Ontario School for the Deaf was established in 1870 by the Provincial Government. Since then all of the original buildings have been replaced.

Total student enrolment at the school is just over 500, plus a staff of 231. Of the staff, 83 are educational staff, 44 are residence staff, and the remainder are food service staff, laundry staff, office staff and engineers.

The bridge is expected to be closed to traffic until the end of the year.

ALD CUBAN REFUGEES

About 3,000 Cuban refugees are studying at United States colleges with U.S. government aid totalling about $1,200,000.

Workmen Start On New Bridge At Stirling

County of Hastings road department employees are busy this week removing the deck of the "upper" bridge at Stirling at the millpond in preparation for the construction of a new structure.

The contract for the construction of the new bridge was recently awarded to the Stonehurst Construction Company of Barrie.

The structure, of steel beam and reinforced concrete construction, will be 63 feet long with a 24-foot driving surface and a four foot sidewalk on each side.

The bridge is expected to be closed to traffic until the end of the year.

If inquiries here and at the Land and Forests Tweed headquarters are a criterion the entries in the Venison Stakes (such this year should break all records.

A veteran hunter who took a pre-season safari on the northern haunts came back with the opinion that the deer population, especially the fawns, is good and augurs well for a good season.

"You get chilling an early winter," he said, "but a couple of inches of snow by opening day would help immensely."

The long-distance nimrods, those who hunt far above and beyond Highway Number Seven are readying cabin and cottage. I understand resorts bookings are heavy.

The season for the counties of Lanark, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington and Peterborough, north of Highways Nos. 7 and 43 opens on November 8th through November 20th inclusive.

A number of city and district hunters plan one-day jaunts into the deer country south of Number Seven Highway. The season in the parts of Frontenac, Hastings and Lennox and Addington lying in this area is of a week's duration, November 8th to 13th inclusive.

And a reminder. If you happen to run across a moose while on your hunting junket don't pull the trigger unless owner of the party has both a deer and moose licence. No person who holds only a deer licence may kill a moose for some other member who holds a moose licence, nor may the holder of a moose licence who is a member of a party kill a deer unless he has his own deer licence.

The season, no doubt, will exact its annual toll of accidents. Last season there were 113 mishaps, some of them fatal, and many of which could have been avoided had care, caution and adherence to hunting safety rules been taken into consideration.

Hunters spend hours cleaning, oiling and gutting their guns in perfect condition. But a lot have proved they do not know how to handle them safely. There are "Ten Commandments of Hunter Safety." Learn the rules and hunt by them.

Many a nimrod has returned from the hunt sadder and wiser in the ways of hunting because he or some else disobeyed the safety rules. Death and tragedy stalk the hunter as well as the hunted.

Following is some well-timed advice offered by the Department of Lands and Forests, Toronto:

Unless the hunter wears vivid colored clothing he becomes indistinguishable from the game being hunted, and the trigger finger of a fellow hunter often resects before his sense of sight. Wear a bright fluorescent orange jacket or vest, and cap. Your handkerchief should be a bright orange or red color because the flash of a white handkerchief may be mistaken for the tail of a deer.

To avert being lost, always carry a map of the area, an accurate compass and watch and know how to use all three. Equip yourself with a good hunting knife, a pair of dry socks, matches in a waterproof case or a reliable lighter with plenty of fuel, chocolate bars and raisins in addition to your lunch, and a piece of snare wire to trap some food should your gun not work or you have run out of ammunition.

When setting out from camp, take your bearing and keep check on the general direction in which you are travelling and the amount of time travelled in each direction. Orient your position frequently on the map. Time your travelling distance from camp so that you can return in the same length of time before dark overtakes you.

You may be with an experienced guide but if you become separated from him and lose your bearings, don't panic if you can't find your way back to camp. Locate yourself on a high sheltered area, or on the shore of a lake, with a plentiful supply of dry wood. Build three fires in a triangle (the sign of distress) in a safe place, where you won't start a forest fire, and add green boughs to make a good smoke signal that can be readily seen by both air and ground searchers.

Wings' Veteran Brilliant ★★★★★

Howe, Hull, Ullman Hobble Habs

★★★★★★ Score Was 5-2

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — At a hockey dinner held earlier this week, a club executive was asked what monetary value he would place on Gordie Howe, Bobby Hull, and Norm Ullman, if they were available to one team as a unit.

A projected figure in millions of dollars was mentioned and the talented trio proved that why Wednesday night.

Howe and Ullman from Detroit Red Wings and Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, took it upon themselves to slash the Montreal Canadiens—defending Stanley Cup champions—8-2 in the 19th annual National Hockey League all-star game here.

For Howe, there were two goals and two assists and shattered records, from his right wing spot. For Hull and Ullman a goal and an assist apiece.

Starting his 20th NHL season and making his 17th all-star berth, at age 37, Howe broke a record when he stepped on the ice. He topped his own previous record of 16 appearances.

BROKE RECORD

His two goals enabled him to break a tie with Maurice Richard in that department. Howe now has nine goals, two more than the Rocket piled up in 18 games.

The Detroit winger tied Leonard (Red) Kelly for most assists at seven apiece.

Johnny Bucyk scored the remaining All-Star mark for the Jean Beliveau and Jacques Laperriere counted for the Canadiens.

Glenn Hall went all the way in the visitors nets, as Roger Crozier of Detroit was forced to withdraw following the pre-game warmup.

NORM ULLMAN

GORDIE HOWE

★ ★ ★

Crozier, last season's Calder Trophy winner as the league's best rookie, suffered a stomach ailment and later watched the game from the All-Star bench.

HODGE MISSED FUSE

Coach Toe Blake alternated Charlie Hodge and Gump Worsley in the Canadiens' nets and Hodge was caught for four of the Stars five goals.

Blake said following the contest that he will not switch netminders at five-minute intervals as he did throughout Wednesday's game, but will probably work the pair a period apiece during regular league games.

"We contacted them in the first period and part of the second," Blake said. "But every time he (All-Star coach Billy Reay of Chicago) threw on the ice, was a big one."

The Canadiens jumped off to a 2-0 lead by the 11-minute mark of the second period after a scoreless first stanza.

However their lead was shortlived as Ullman scored for the Stars, with assists going to Hull and Howe, less than two minutes later. Then Hull scored a power-play goal at 16:25, four seconds after the Canadiens winger Dave Balon took a slashing penalty. Howe and Boston Bruins' Murray Oliver picked up assists.

HOWE WON IT

Howe's first goal came with 41 seconds remaining in the second period with Ullman and defenceman Bob Baun of Toronto Maple Leafs getting the assists. It proved to be the winning goal.

Bucyk made it 4-2 midway in the final period and then Howe scored again with just 81 seconds remaining in the game.

The perennial all-star picked up a loose puck inside the Montreal blueline while helping Hull kill a penalty to Harry Howell of New York Rangers.

He zoomed in on Hodge from his wrong side and let go a wrist-shot under what the Canadiens' netminder never had a chance to stop.

A crowd of 16,531 gave Howe a standing ovation when he was chosen as the game's top star.

Six Motball Leaguers Get Call

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The way things are going in Canadian football, you could almost expect to see George Hees lining up as a tackle for Toronto Argonauts or Firtzie Hanson returning to Winnipeg Blue Bombers to run back a few punts.

Since Hees is in training to rejoin John Diefenbaker's Progressive Conservative team in Ottawa and Hanson, the one time Galloping Ghost of the Bombers' backfield, has long since turned to less active pursuits, neither is likely to be in uniform this weekend.

But half a dozen players of considerable note have come out of retirement since the start of the current Canadian Football League season and the voluntarily retired list is shaping up as the chief source of supply for underarranged playoff contenders.

British Columbia Lions were the latest club to draft a recruit from the mothball league Wednesday when they brought back Lonnie Dennis, their great offensive tackle, from his job as a Los Angeles policeman.

HE'LL STILL ARGUE

Dennis, who ended his five-year career after the Lions won the Grey Cup last year, took his vacation in time to join his old mates for their crucial game Sunday against Saskatchewan Roughriders, who are tied with B.C. for third place in the Western Conference. He says he'll stick around as long as they survive.

Two other WFC clubs have coaxed former employees out of retirement. Herb Gray came back to the Edmonton Wranglers to beg defensive line for the 10th season after calling it quits last winter. And Don Getty returned for one game after two years' absence when Edmonton Eskimos temporarily ran out of quarterbacks.

Bill Bewley, who spent three seasons with McGill University Redmen, returned to Montreal Alouettes at the start of the year to provide a place kicking shortage but was forced back into retirement by an injury after six games.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, plagued by injuries on their defensive squad and an offensive platoon that appeared to flop even when healthy, made two calls on their alumni association.

Possibly the most significant of all the returnees was Hal Patterson, their brilliant passcatching end, who came back two weeks ago to help shore up the Ticats' aerial attack. Linebacker Bobby Kuntz, who announced retirement annually made this one stick until the week of Patterson's return.

Football Deaths Reach 21

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two more high school football players died Wednesday, bringing to 21 the number of scholastic gridders who have been fatally injured so far in the United States this season.

Sam Wortham, 17, fullback on the Titusville, Fla., high school team died in hospital of a brain hemorrhage five days after he collapsed during a game.

Leslie Pitts, a 17-year-old guard on the Orangeville, Ill., high school team, died in hospital in Monroe, Wis. Pitts, a 160-pound senior, collapsed after making a block.

Suggestion For Schools

More Emphasis On Athletics

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Crothers, Canada's famed middle-distance runner, called Wednesday for a better balance between the academic and the athletic in schools.

Crothers, appearing before the legislature's select committee on youth, said educationists should put less emphasis on a student's marks and more on his participation in other activities, such as athletics.

He headed an informal committee of five young professional men — other former teachers—who prepared a brief for the committee's consideration.

"We hesitate to say we feel there is too over-emphasis on the academic," he said, "but we feel there is a very definite de-emphasis on the athletic (on) all extra-curricular activities, but particularly on the athletic)."

The group recommended that all high school students receive one period of physical education a day. The school instruction schedule could be expanded to nine periods instead of eight, or the day could be lengthened to 4 p.m. if necessary.

At the same time, Crothers, winner of a silver medal for Canada by finishing second in the 800 metres at the Olympics in Tokyo, said he doesn't favor a system of university athletic scholarships as in the United States.

Crothers, a pharmacist, said because of the higher costs of secondary education in the U.S., many Canadians who accept athletic scholarships end up by paying as much for their education as they would in Canada.

The group said to encourage participation in amateur sport, a number of measures could be taken by government, including:

1. A five-cent tax on sporting events, proceeds of which would be used for recreational purposes;

2. A tax levied against developers of lands that formerly were used for recreational purposes;

3. Low taxation on recreational areas, such as pay-as-you-play golf courses.

4. Provincial grants and low-interest loans to municipalities for recreational purposes.

DECLARED CHAMPS

TORONTO (CP)—Two Toronto drivers have been declared class champions by the Ontario region of Canadian Automobile Sport Clubs. Roy Price was awarded the maximum 45 points in Canada-class racing and Werner Gudzrus also received 45 points in sedans.

Ottawa Needs Argo Miracle

—Defeat Tiger-Cats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The only way Hamilton Tiger-Cats can be knocked out of first place this season in the Eastern Football Conference is by Toronto Argonauts winning their first game in Hamilton in more than five years.

The Tiger-Cats, needing only one victory in their remaining two games to clinch the league title and gain a bye to the playoff finals, meet last-place Argos Oct. 31 in Hamilton where Toronto hasn't won a game since Sept. 5, 1960.

Ottawa Rough Riders are the only team left with a chance of catching Hamilton, but they can't do it without help. The Riders must win both their remaining games while the Ticats lose theirs.

A first-place tie is no good to the Riders. They would be relegated to second because they lost two of their three games against Hamilton this year.

Montreal Alouettes have already clinched the third and final playoff berth, leaving the Argos out of the running for the fourth year in succession.

Each club has two games left. This Saturday Hamilton plays Montreal while Sunday Toronto is at Ottawa. Montreal is at Ottawa Oct. 31 and Toronto plays in Hamilton the next day.

TICATS LEAD

Hamilton has eight victories and four losses for 16 points. Ottawa is 7-5 for 14 points. Montreal 4-8 for eight points and Toronto 2-10 for four points.

The Argos, still capable of tying the Als in the points column despite starting the season with a nine-game losing streak, blew their playoff chances by losing to Montreal twice in their three meetings. But the Ian Sanders have won two of their last three starts and are nicely spoiled for a spoiler's role.

Unless the Tiger-Cats fall flat on their whiskers, Ottawa will play host to Montreal in a sudden-death semi-final Nov. 6 in Ottawa. The winner advances to a two-game, total-points final against Hamilton Nov. 13 and 20 for the right to go on to the Grey Cup game in Toronto Nov. 27.

Both of Ottawa's remaining schedule games are at home, where they haven't lost since Oct. 17, 1964, when Hamilton downed them 34-31. The Riders have won seven in a row at home since then, including two playoff games last year.

This bodes well for Ottawa in the semi-final. Also going for the Riders is the 6-1 home record against Montreal this year. The Riders won three times over the Als, including the pre-season exhibition victory.

The Riders haven't won in Hamilton since Sept. 24, 1962, when they downed the Ticats 35-18 in a second game of the EFC final. But after Hamilton won the opener 45-0 the week before.

Pressure On Bombers, Riders

West. Race Could Go Down To Wire

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The pressure is on Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Saskatchewan Roughriders in two key Western Football Conference games this weekend. If both come through, the four-team scramble for three playoff berths may go right down to the wire.

With two games remaining on the schedule of each of the five WFC clubs, Edmonton Eskimos are eliminated from post-season play. And the Esks play a key role in the prospects of the contenders.

They open hostilities Saturday at Winnipeg, where the Bombers need a victory to retain a chance of overhauling the first-place Calgary Stampeders, whom they trail by four points.

That first place means a bye into the best-of-three finals and the odds game at home if the series goes the limit. Every first-place team since 1960 has come on to the Grey Cup final.

The Bombers can make it only by whipping Edmonton, knocking off the Stampeders in Calgary next Wednesday and then praying that British Columbia Lions can take the Stamps in Vancouver in the last game of the season Oct. 31.

That would create a Calgary-Winnipeg tie at the top of the standings with the Bombers getting the nod by virtue of two victories over them in their three meetings with the Stampeders this season.

LAST PLACE TOUGHER

The race is even tighter for the third and last playoff berth. The Roughriders, currently tied with the Lions for third place, face a big game at Vancouver Sunday.

A defeat would finish off the Riders, who play host to Calgary in their last game at Edmonton Oct. 30. The Lions, with a win and a tie in their last two meetings, would then be assured of third place even if they finished with an equal number of points.

If the Riders defeat the Lions, it will even the series between the two teams but they need to win it big.

A points tie would then be broken on the basis of the aggregate score of the three B.C.-Saskatchewan games and the Riders have a 12-point deficit as a result of their 30-14 defeat at Regina Sept. 27. Their other meeting ended in a 10-10 tie.

When all these matters are disposed of, the WFC playoffs will open Nov. 6 with a sudden-death semi-final between the second and third finishers with the winner facing the league champions in a best-of-three series Nov. 13, 17, and, if necessary, Nov. 20. The survivor meets the eastern winner in the Grey Cup game at Toronto Nov. 27.

R. DiGenova Wins Parsons' MVP Award

Romano DiGenova who has been a playing member of the club since 1950 was named the "most valuable player" of the 1965 season.

The award was made available through the efforts of Jim Williamson, Molson district representative.

Team sponsor Bruce Parsons and other guests were welcomed by Herb Mueller, spokesman for the club.

Mr. Mueller who arranged the courtesy of the motel management for the "get-together" spoke briefly to his club members urging them to extend all effort on Saturday to bring home the Kingston District Soccer League "B" championship.

Parsons meet Batawa for the title at Zwicker Park in a sudden death game starting at 4 p.m.

Another highlight of the evening was the showing of the film picturing the Stanley Cup playoffs of 1964-65. Hockey sports films rounded out the entertainment.

Mr. Williamson expressed his regret at his inability to secure a film picturing a world soccer match.

Win or lose, Parsons plan a ladies' night banquet in the near future as a fitting climax to a successful season.

Hull Gets 'Substantial' Hike

MONTREAL (CP)—Bob Baun of Toronto Maple Leafs and Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, two of the better-publicized National Hockey League contract holdouts this year, signed with their respective clubs Wednesday night just prior to the annual league all-star game here.

Hull, after a conference with co-owner Jim Norris and general manager Tommy Ivan is reported to have signed for a substantial increase over the $32,000 he is reported to have received last season.

Baun is reported to have picked up $6,000 more this year than last. This leaves only Bob Pulford and Dave Keon the only unsigned Leafs.

Hull's contract is "for more than one year" says Ivan, who drew the ire of the all-star right winger early in the club's training camp by tweaking Hull's 'wayoung-uns from the Chicago arena during workouts. Hull is sidelined and stayed away four days before returning under threat of $1,000 a day fines.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (CP) — Montreal is one of eight cities in contention for two Continental Football League franchises which will be open next year, commissioner A. B. Chandler said Wednesday.

Small Gals Could Win Big One

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The top prize in the $10,000 Thunderbird Open starting today could go to any one of the smallest competing golfers on the feminine circuit.

There are at least three, including Sandra Haynie, the champion of the U.S. ladies' Professional Golf Association who is only 5-foot-3 and weighs 107.

Judy Torluemke, hoping for her first tour victory, is 5-foot-4 and 107 while Clifford Ann Creed is 5-foot-4 and 102 pounds.

The other favorites include Kathy Whitworth, the top money - winner among U.S. women golfers, Carol Mann, Marilyn Smith and Ruth Jessen, the defending champion.

The 36-hole tournament continues through Sunday with a first prize of $1,350.

Oakville Defeats Woodstock

OAKVILLE (CP) — Oakville Oaks continued their winning streak in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series with a 5-2 win over Woodstock Athletics Wednesday night.

It was the third win in a row for the Oaks and their second over the Athletics.

Meets Tiger Tonight

Giardello 7-5 Underdog

NEW YORK (AP) — Middleweight champion Joey Giardello, who says he fears over confidence more than he does his foe, was raised the 7-5 underdog Wednesday to Nigeria's Dick Tiger for their 15-round title fight tonight.

They will clash at Madison Square Garden in a return bout. Starting time is 10 p.m. EDT.

Harry Markson, director of boxing for the Garden, predicts a crowd of about 15,000 for the 18,000-seat arena and a gross gate of more than $100,000.

Giardello, the 35-year-old ring veteran from Cherry Hill, N.J., has been guaranteed $50,000 or 40 per cent of the net receipts of the gate and television.

Tiger, 36, has been guaranteed $15,000 or 20 per cent of the package.

Giardello dethroned Tiger on a 15-round decision in Atlantic City, N.J., Dec. 7, 1963.

Giardello, a pro 18 years, has a winning streak of nine including the title victory over Tiger and a narrow 15-round decision over Hurricane Carter in his only defence. That was Dec. 14, 1964, at Philadelphia, Giardello's home territory.

Giardello has a won-lost-draw record of 96-22-7, including 32 knockouts. He's been stopped three times on cuts but the last time was seven years ago. Tiger's record is 31-14-3 including 24 kayos. He's never been stopped.

Howard Named Top 'Comeback'

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Howard, the former Los Angeles Dodger who became a big man in Washington, has been chosen the American League's comeback player-of-the-year for 1965.

The six-foot-seven outfielder drew 61 votes in the annual Associated Press poll of 281 sports writers and sportscasters. The results, announced today, showed that pitcher Jim Grant of Minnesota Twins was second with 58 votes followed by Norm Cash, Detroit Tigers first baseman, with 24.

Howard boosted his batting average 63 points over the previous season, finishing with .289 compared to .226 with Los Angeles in 1964.

Howard was one of the Dodgers' most productive batsmen in 1962, walloping 31 homers, driving in 119 runs and winding up with a .296 average.

In 1965 during which the Senators advanced one place over their ninth-place 1964 standing, Howard collected 149 hits, including 21 homers. He had 84 RBI.

KINGSTON WINS

KINGSTON (CP) — Dave Jones and Dick Cherry paced Kingston Aces of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series to a 7-0 exhibition victory over Clinton Comets of the Eastern Hockey League Wednesday night.

Howie Young, Reformed Alcoholic

"God Saved Me From Skid Row"

By JACK BRAUCKMANN

EDMONTON (CP) — "When you're ready, God sends you help," says Howie Young, a 28-year-old alcoholic who was once one of sport's big drawing cards.

"He sent me help one morning when I was lying in a drunk tank in downtown Los Angeles.

"I was lying there feeling like an empty beer bottle—something not worth anything to anybody. I never felt so low.

"I wasn't on skid road—I was on death road."

Young, who fought his way to the top in the National Hockey League, then drank his way to near-oblivion, says he hasn't had a drink since May 4 and this is the longest period he has been sober since he was 16.

"I lost every job I ever had, in hockey or out, because I was a drunk. I lost my first job, working for a landscaper, because I fell asleep on a pile of sod after an all-night drunk.

HOWIE YOUNG

* * *

"They kicked me out of the NHL because I couldn't stay sober. They never questioned my playing ability. It was my conduct outside the rink."

NHL President Clarence Campbell told Young:

"You are the worst detriment to hockey that ever laced on a pair of skates."

SET PENALTY MARK

With that knock against him, it's a wonder he remained in the NHL four seasons, three with Detroit Red Wings and one with Chicago Black Hawks.

But the explanation is simple. Despite his rambunctious behavior and a record 273 minutes in penalties in 1962-63, Young has talent and color, ingredients in great demand in any sport.

Handsome Howie, a native of Toronto, played junior hockey in Hamilton before turning pro with New Westminster of the Western League in 1958. He played four games there before being shipped to Chicoutimi of the Quebec league, setting a league record of 180 minutes in penalties.

He was with Rochester of the American league in 1959-60 and played 33 games with Hershey the next season before being called up by Detroit. Red Wings sent him to Edmonton during the 1961-62 season and recalled him for 1962-63, after which he was sold to Chicago.

He left the NHL after 30 games in 1963-64 and has been with Los Angeles Blades of the WHL ever since.

Young's life has been recorded—far more often in terms of drunken escapades than in points scored, but the fans, intrigued by the frequent stories of his exploits, flocked to see him in action.

"Sure, sure, I was a big drawing card," Young told a press conference here after the Blades had played San Francisco Seals in a training camp exhibition game at Red Deer, Alta. "But I'm not in Chicago anymore and they're still drawing record crowds."

Young, who packs a compact 190 pounds into his well-proportioned six-foot frame, got a shot at the movies when he was hired for a bit part in How Sweet the Brave starring Frank Sinatra. But that, too, was something less than a smashing success and he wasn't invited back.

Along with jobs and thousands of dollars, drinking cost him his marriage.

The road back began May 4 when a cellmate in the tank at the Los Angeles jail described Alcoholics Anonymous to the bleary-eyed Young. Where it will end is anyone's guess but Young's words suggest he isn't setting his sights too high.

"All I want is to stay sober. I've got my life back, baby. Who knows, maybe I'm all through as a hockey player. But that's immaterial. I was on death road—not skid road—for 12 years. In my mind was the certainty that I would be either dead or insane by the time I reached 30. Now I know if I take that first drink I'll die or go crazy. One drink would sign my death warrant and I don't want to die, baby.

"I don't want to die."

Closed TV Network For Fight

TORONTO (CP)—A closed-circuit television network covering 20 cities was announced Wednesday for the World Boxing Association heavyweight championship fight between Ernie Terrell of Chicago and challenger George Chuvalo of Toronto.

The fight will be held at Maple Leaf Gardens Nov. 1.

Michael Mallitz, head of the group handling the fight television, said that about 100,000 seats are represented in the 20 locations with another 25,000 viewers from the cable systems.

In addition, the fight will be shown in eight centres in the United States with another 60,000 seats available.

Mallitz said there will be no network radio coverage of the fight and that closed circuit will be blacked out in a radius of 40 miles of Toronto.

Ontario centres showing the fight, with location of showing: North Bay, Capitol Theatre; St. Catharines, Capitol Theatre; Barrie, Barrie Arena; London, London Arena; Kitchener, Memorial Auditorium; Kingston, Community Memorial Centre; Ottawa, Exhibition Coliseum.

The bout will be shown via cable systems in three Ontario cities—Port Arthur, Brantford and Cornwall.

Teen-age Canada
6,000 Students Attend Historic "Teach-in"

By JACK BUTTON

Douglas Ward, president-elect of the Canadian Union of Students, looked down at several thousand faces before him, the intense, questioning faces of fellow students.

"This," he said quietly, "is the most hung-up generation in the history of our country."

His words, uttered at the historic teach-in earlier this month at the University of Toronto, went beyond his immediate audience to more than 100,000 students on campuses in every other province and parts of the U.S.

Millions of adults, listening on FM radio sets, also heard the message. And none who listened to even a portion of the International assembly could doubt Douglas Ward's assessment.

The three-day meeting was intended to probe the different viewpoints behind a world of revolution. When is revolution legitimate? (Both the U.S. and Russia began with revolutions) When is it moral to intervene; and how much effect does international law have on internal struggles?

After sitting through almost all the sessions, I felt we saw something more important than the conflict between old and new nations. We saw a mirror held up to the dilemma of a generation.

6,000 AT MEET

There were more than 6,000 students at the teach-in, the latest of its kind to look at foreign policy in the atmosphere of a university campus. I counted more than 1,300 students from the U.S. among them.

And you could see one question reflected in almost all of them: when does a generation speak up to protest what an other generation has been doing?

The struggle was more obvious among the U.S. students.

A Canadian student might agree or disagree with his country's foreign policies. But he isn't required to serve in the military service to support them either.

The student from New York, Texas or Seattle is. And it made all the difference in how he responded at the three-day session. When he objected, the boos were deafening; when he applauded, you heard it a block away.

Mr. Ward, a young man who is obviously going to give strong leadership to on-campus students across Canada this coming year, made a point that we've repeated continually in this column.

DIFFERENT TODAY

The student generation of the 1950's, he said, was one that felt little involvement in what was happening in the world. It couldn't change things, so why react? This was the era of the true beatnik — the young person who wanted to escape from harsh realities.

It's different today. And if that upsets our elders that's too bad. The student today belongs to the 1960's generation that wants to have a voice in what will happen in the next decade.

The methods of this generation are sometimes rude. If it's the only way to be heard, you heckle. If you can't be noticed any other way, you march or hold a public rally.

These are the lessons of history. And who in the elder generation can object if this generation is just discovering them. Not only discovering them, but putting them into effect.

Seventy-seven-year-old Lord Fenner Brockway told the story that I thought went most directly to the mood of the student audience.

"When I was a young man I was privileged to have Georg Bernard Shaw (the Irish author) as a friend," he said. "And I remember telling him that a great many people my age wanted to do something with our lives."

"I asked him what we should do. I've never forgotten his answer.

"Shaw said young people should discover the life force behind their generation, regardless of what generation it was. Then identify yourself with it, he said, and work for it."

What is the life force behind this generation in Canada? The venerable British leader of protest for the last 30 years didn't venture to say. But anyone who attended the three-day teach-in or heard it can't help having a few guesses.

TOP TWENTY

1 Yesterday — Act Natural, The Beatles; 2 Hang On Sloopy, The McCoys; 3 Just A Little Bit Better, Herman's Hermits; 4 Trouble With A Woman, Kip and Ken; 5 The In Crowd, Ramsey Lewis; 6 Baby Don't Go, Sonny and Cher; 7 You Were on My Mind, We Five; 8 If You've Got Your Troubles, The Fortunes; 9 Eve of Destruction, Barry McGuire; 10 Move To California, The Staccatos; 11 We Gotta Get Out of This Place, The Animals; 12 I'm Yours, Elvis Presley; 13 Underneath My Pillow, Bubbles and Co.; 14 It Ain't Me Babe, The Turtles; 15 I Live For the Sun, The Sunrays; 16 Action, Freddy Cannon; 17 Mohair Sam, Charlie Rich; 18 Are You A Boy Or A Girl, The Barbarians; 19 Get Off of My Cloud, The Rolling Stones; 20 It's The Same Old Song, The Four Tops.

These two students attended the teach-in at the University of Toronto and are vitally interested in what was said. Over 6,000 were there in person and several thousand more listened on radio and telephone hook-ups.

Casper Tops In Sahara

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Bill Casper, Jr. whacked a five-under-par 66 to take the lead in the first round of the $100,000 Sahara Invitational golf tournament Wednesday as favored Jack Nicklaus spent a dull afternoon on the greens and settled for par 71.

Playing under ideal conditions over the 7,069-yard, par-36-35—71 Paradise Valley Country Club course, the 34-year-old Casper shot 34-32—66 to take a two-stroke lead.

Nicklaus, the pre-tournament favorite and Masters champion, had 37-34—71.

Tied at 68 were Bobby Nichols, 37-31, and Dave Hill 35-33.

Syndicate Horse For $1,600,000

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Tom Rolfe, 1965 Preakness winner and a leading candidate for Colt of the Year honors for three-year-olds, has been syndicated for an estimated $1,600,000.

A. B. Hancock, owner of Claiborne Farm at nearby Paris, said Raymond Guest, Tom Rolfe's former owner, retained 10 of 32 shares in the colt. Other shares went to a number of individuals.

Hancock said the syndicate decided Tom Rolfe will not race any more this year and will enter the stud at Claiborne Farm in 1967. The syndicate will decide later whether Tom Rolfe will race next season.

Will Officially Open School On Saturday

PICTON (Staff) — Official opening of the new Sophiasburg Central School has been set for Saturday afternoon, November 20 at two o'clock. Special ceremonies are planned.

This week, a contract was let for lawn seeding and some planting. The fine school is now in use and all details will be complete by the official opening date.

EXECUTION STAYED

QUEBEC (CP) — Guy Bernard, lawyer for Leopold Dion, 44, who is under sentence of death for the murder of a 10-year-old boy, said Wednesday that federal Justice Minister Lesides Cardin has granted Dion a stay of execution to Dec. 3. Dion was to have been hanged Oct. 29 for the slaying of Pierre Marquis of Quebec City. Mr. Bertrand has submitted a written on on behalf of his client to Mr. Cardin and it is to allow time for study of the document that the stay of execution was granted, the lawyer said.

Mentally Retarded Assoc. Of P. E. Given Charter

PICTON (Staff)—The Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded held their Charter Night on Tuesday evening with Bill Kirk, Executive Director of the Ontario Association, Toronto, as guest speaker. Mr. Andrew Bennie, President of the Prince Edward Association, opened the meeting by thanking the representatives sent by service clubs and other organizations to attend the meeting. We will, in the future, need the help and support of all local organizations, stated Mr. Bennie.

The guest speaker, Mr. Bill Kirk, was introduced by Errol Moses, Regional Director, from Kingston.

Mr. Kirk in his opening remarks said that the Province of Ontario was indeed a large are to cover. Some of the local units he said are as far away as 1,500 miles from our Toronto, York Street offices. In reference to the mentally retarded and society, Mr. Kirk said that it may be that finally we are beginning to move out from the field of pity we have experienced for these persons in the past. The retarded don't want pity, continued Mr. Kirk, they only ask for an opportunity to find their place in our world. We hope they are moving into an era of understanding and acceptance. Our society needs more public education. They must understand that we don't treat the mentally ill, his great need is supervision and training. We have been focussing too much on what the retarded child cannot do rather than on what he can do. We must try to stimulate research to try and prevent retardation in the first place.

CHARTER PRESENTED

Mr. Kirk called upon Mr. Errol Moses to present the Charter to the President of the newly-formed Prince Edward Association, Mr. A. Bennie. The guest speaker was thanked by Mr. Carl Hall, assistant principal of Picton Public Schools. Mr. Reid said that he would like to thank Mr. Kirk for the ways in which he helped the organization. By the presentation of the charter, the promise of support from the provincial level and the inspiration that Mr. Kirk brought to the Prince Edward Association in his address.

A. Douglas Aikenbrack, who was present for the charter night spoke briefly, saying, "What is a field — now — now speakable that develops from what was formerly unspeakable. Yes, you, this county and this organization are opening doors no one has opened before. Surely we can help and aid in opening the doors and bring to our percentage of retarded the aid of light that can come through such an organization as yours. I hope that I may become some small instrument in aiding your cause.

Also present for the charter meeting was Dr. H. Frank of the Ontario Hospital School at Smith's Falls. Dr. Frank said, "A good deal more is to be done if we are to do the things that the children require. Parents have a right to have their benefit but things that are their right. In closing Dr. Frank said that he hoped this would be the beginning of many active years in this area.

Thanks were also expressed by Mr. A. Bennie, President of the Prince Edward branch to "Our mother group" from Belleville and for the help received from the Kingston branch.

Post Office Growth Seen In New Boxes

PICTON (Staff)—Home mail delivery will be introduced in the near future in 24 towns across Canada, Prime Minister Pearson announced at Ottawa.

He said in a press release that towns with 2000 points of call now will qualify for home delivery, to eliminate "congestion" in post office lobbies.

Until now, a town was required to have a minimum of 2,500 points of call before the post office hired letter carriers for local delivery.

When the last survey was made in 1961, it was found that the number was just 38 short of the present required 2,000 points of call. This survey included Picton, P.M.Q., on the bill. Fawcettville and sub-division.

Growth of the local office is seen in the installation of 150 boxes last February and one-half of them are presently being used.

A check with Postmaster Ross Greenfield reveals 1,438 boxes being used but some people do not have boxes.

It is not considered likely that the P.O. Department will take any action without being pressed. Rental of boxes is a good source of revenue, and five letter carriers would likely be required for home delivery service.

325 Enter Night Classes At Collegiate

PICTON (Staff) — Since they began two weeks ago, 325 persons have registered for night classes at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Douglas Baker reported to the school board Monday night.

Although this is 85 less than 1965, last year's total was recorded after four weeks and there is still a chance more will register this year, he said. "I think it's unfortunate that our overall enrolment is down, in this day and age when there is a need for further education," remarked H. J. Colliver, vice-chairman of the board.

Mr. Baker said 10 of the 19 teachers at night classes are from the school's regular day classes.

Some classes had to be cancelled for lack of enrolment, while electronics, blueprint reading and public speaking courses are continuing with the bare minimum enrolment, he reported.

The board later passed a motion by Dr. E. D. Fyffe, seconded by Gordon Walmsley, to continue the "borderline" courses until Christmas, after which the situation will be reviewed.

821 Children Now Enrolled In Public School

PICTON (Staff) — Superintending principal Carl Reid reported to the public school board Thursday night that a total of 821 children are now enrolled at Picton's three public schools — 32 to a class.

This is a slight reduction, he said, because 15 non-resident pupils from grades 7 and 8 at SS No. 1 Hallwell (Glenora) are no longer being sent to Picton. They are now attending the Hallwell school.

This slackening in enrolment should not, however, give relief in the matter of new enrolment, said Mr. Reid. He mentioned specifically that "at least part of our 1967 building has passed the point of no return."

He further recommended: "Pupils be more better endowed pupils should be taken through the full eight years in a broadly based enriched course rather than a speeded up and reduced course."

Mr. Reid said a survey had shown that 56.3 percent of all grade 8 Picton public schools (475 children) have "above average natural ability." This is 6.3 percent higher than the national average, he pointed.

Another 4.1 percent (34 pupils) are barely educable, and 21.2 percent (185 pupils) have serious problems in completing a full curriculum in one or two years.

All the pupils are now occupying the same desks, but Mr. Reid said he believes the addition of four new classrooms would be beneficial.

He suggested the board consider the addition of a junior-senior opportunity class; a junior special help class, and a senior special help class, and a senior special help class. Each class would be composed of between 10 and 12 pupils.

Mr. Reid also recommended that the board's supply committee attend the forthcoming audio-visual aid conference in Toronto.

AT THE PARK — Talented Curves — That's gorgeous Gloria Noel with bounces and dances with Eddy Arnold's Tennessee Plowboys during swinging "Beach Ball" routine at Park Belle's Drive-In Theatre. Filled with a bevy of bouncing beach beauties and a crew of magnificent musicians, "Beach Ball" features such popular recording artists as Dick Dale and The Surfaris, The Four Seasons, The Hondells and The Walker Brothers. Just run thistle in "Seven Slaves Against The World" in color.

No Criminal Cases Set For Docket

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County Assizes will begin its autumn session on Monday, October 25, in the County Court House.

So far there are no criminal cases on the docket. County Sheriff H. J. Colliver will present Judge W. D. Parker with the traditional white gloves, symbolic of no criminal cases.

As there are no criminal cases, Mr. Justice Parker has given permission to dispense with a Grand Jury for the present sittings. The Inquiry panel is being reduced in number, said Mr. Colliver. No fees in this effect are now being sent out.

At least three civil actions have been brought by five property owners against Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. They are seeking damages for cement dust contamination which, they allege, comes from the plant.

Two years ago, on behalf of the complainants, A. S. Matthewman of R.R. 2 Picton, took up a petition among property owners in the area, protesting that cement dust from the plant was affecting homes and properties in the area.

In the meantime, the company has been attempting to control the problem by installing precipitators which are supposed to eliminate up to 95 percent of the dust. The control program is expected to cost the company at least $600,000 by the time it is finished. The big stack has not yet been fitted with the equipment.

29 Hunters Charged With Trespassing

PICTON (Staff) — A total of 29 hunters have been charged with trespassing by Chief County Constable Earl Marvin. Some of them will appear in Magistrate's Court in Picton on Wednesday. Most hunters, from Toronto, were hunting in Hillier township where many signs have been posted.

One complaint of hedhunters is that there has been no publicity in the Toronto papers stating that hunting is forbidden on most private properties in Prince Edward. One stated they would not have come had they known this.

At the Belle
"The Magic World of Topo Gigio" Full Length Feature In Color

Topo Gigio, the little English-speaking Italian Mouse who is so sensational in his Ed. Sullivan television shows Sunday nights, now stars in "The Magic World of Topo Gigio," a full-length motion picture entertainment in Color released by Columbia pictures. "The Magic World of Topo Gigio" opens Saturday matinee at the Belle Theatre, this Saturday, October 23rd for three complete performances at 12.00, 2.00 p.m. 4.00 p.m. The doors open at 11.30 Saturday morning.

"The Magic World of Topo Gigio" is a world of colorful enchantment, of magic and magnificent puppetry, of suspense, excitement and most important of all — of great and endearing humor.

A Three Stooges comedy, and three other swell color treats will be exhibited on the same programs.

Ed Sullivan says: "Anyone who saw Topo Gigio on my Sunday night TV show will agree his first movie is really big entertainment!"

REVIVES GOLDFISH

FREEMAN, B.C. (C.P.) — Bob Clegg is trained to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to humans, but he never thought he would administer it to a goldfish. When his son's pet was found on the floor beside its tank, Bob put it under a running tap and revived it by blowing water into its mouth.

PLANE CRASHES

MANILA (AP)—A domestic airliner carrying 26 persons crashed Wednesday, killing one passenger and injuring all others aboard plus five persons on the ground, Philippine Airlines, which owned the twin-engined DC-3, said five Philippine Air Force personnel in a nearby barracks were hit by flying steel fragments from the plane. Another airman was injured while helping in rescue operations.

Successful Living

Jealous Wife Lacks Good Opinion of Self

DEAR DORIS: What do you do with a jealous wife? I am 31, and she is 28. She is so jealous I practically have to keep blinkers on all the time. It is getting me down. — NERVOUS WRECK.

DEAR NERVOUS: Your possessive partner is showing she doesn't think much of her own power to charm. And she is acting like a child.

If her love were self-forgetful, she'd want you to feel free to act like a normal, friendly person with both men and women you meet and work with.

Anything you can do to help her to a better opinion of herself will be a step in the right direction. But take off the blinkers before you really do break down!

* *

DEAR DORIS: I am 15 and my best friend is 16. Since I introduced her to a boy I have a crush on, who is 18, she also pretends to have a crush on him.

When we go to dances together, she tags him at every ladies' tag and when I tag him she tags me right back. She won't even let me have a whole dance with him. I ask her why she does this, but she won't tell me. Please help me. — DISCOURAGED.

DEAR DISCOURAGED: Either she is suffering from her own crush or she is just plain mean. Not much of a friend, is she? Get another "best friend" — in fact, several!

* *

DEAR DORIS: We had trouble getting our David (age seven) to get up and get dressed for school. Finally I bought him an alarm clock.

This fascinates him. Now he sits and watches it and waits. When it goes off, so does he! — HELPFUL HINTER.

DEAR HELPFUL: Thank you. Perhaps this idea will help another baffled by dawdlers.

* *

Confidential to HOPEFUL: If there were some magic formula for avoiding old age or chopping off fifty unwanted pounds the medical profession would be overjoyed. I'm returning your advertisement.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My daughter is being married in December. She will be having a while wedding with 200 guests; a rather larger affair than I had anticipated.

I bought a three-piece knitted suit in soft blue but all of a sudden it seems all wrong. I do not have a flair for clothes. I do want to be just right for such a wonderful occasion. — FIFTY-ISH.

* *

DEAR FIFTY-ISH: You are the second most important person at this wedding. Dress accordingly. This does not indicate a suit, no matter how pretty.

Something softly draped, in a pastel shade, in a silk or lace, would be best. Put yourself in the hands of someone who does have the required flair; preferably a fashion counsellor or the buyer in a dress department or fashion-conscious clothing store.

* * *

4th Thurlow

4th THURLOW — Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Mills and boys of Burlington and Mr. Mervin Brovers of Peterborough were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Tummon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carscallen of Belleville were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Garriger.

Mrs. Ken Forsyth is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Bert Martin is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garrison of Montreal spent last weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Garrison.

St. Ola

ST. OLA — Mr. Allan Carrol is spending a few days in Kingston this week.

The St. Ola U.C.W. met for their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Owen Tripp. It was decided to have a pot-luck supper and social evening in St. Ola Hall, October 22nd at 6.00 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim McCaw were visitors last week with Mrs. Elsie Ring.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Tripp journeyed to New York City on Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Yeomphkin of Steenburg Lake, returning by bus on Wednesday.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For October 22

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Go with the tide. Mingle with people. Be alert for tips, hints. Important developments may be hatching. Key in display of versatility, good humor. Do plenty of listening!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Now you should be on lookout for basic facts, services. Clear away correspondence. Tie up loose ends. Attend to basic tasks. Realize needless brooding leads nowhere.

Marlbank Firm To Spend Millions

Any Concessions Must Come From Britain - - Smith

By Adam Kellett-Long

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Ian Smith today saw a new glimmer of hope for an agreed settlement of Rhodesia's demand for independence, but warned any concessions would have to come from Britain.

British Prime Minister Wilson announced Thursday in London he will fly here for a last-minute settlement attempt.

Smith said Thursday night he accepted Wilson's proposal to fly to Salisbury, but added that Rhodesia "cannot back down" on its insistence on independence on the basis of the present constitution under which 220,000 whites rule 4,000,000 Negroes.

Smith said Rhodesia had made all the concessions so far.

The basis for the new hope was Thursday's plea by Wilson to Rhodesia "on trust" to guarantee eventual majority rule by the present 65 seats. An internationally binding treaty setting this out was envisaged.

Rhodesia, internally self-governing since 1923, insists on full independence and threatens to seize it unilaterally if it is not granted.

ISSUED WARNING

Britain has warned this would be rebellion and would be met by economic sanctions.

Smith said Wilson will be allowed to talk to Rhodesian Negro leaders during his visit. "We have nothing to hide," he said. "He may see anyone he wishes."

Leaders of the two rival Negro parties in Rhodesia are both restricted to remote areas and their parties banned.

Garfield Todd, a white former premier who has been an outspoken advocate of majority rule by the Negroes, was also restricted this week and not allowed to leave his farm more than 200 miles from Salisbury.

In Kenya, another former British African colony now fully independent and under Negro leaders, 14 policemen were expressed "shock and dismay" at the possibility of a unilateral declaration of Rhodesian independence, and cited Kenya as an example of successful African independence.

Smith said that Wilson's Rhodesian visit did not mean a complete reopening of the independence negotiations which they held in London 20 days ago. He said he saw no point in reopening negotiations because an impasse had been reached.

LBJ Signs Auto Pact With Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — President Johnson has signed Congressional legislation in Washington approving the U.S.-Canada automobile trade agreement, an external affairs department spokesman said today.

The occasion is to be marked later in the day by statements issued in Washington by Mr. Johnson and here by Prime Minister Pearson.

34 Executed By Firing Squad

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (Reuters)—Thirty-four soldiers and police were executed by firing squad here Thursday night for their part in Monday's shortlived revolt.

Two others, condemned with them by the council of war Thursday, escaped as they were being taken to the execution ground near Bujumbura's sports stadium.

The 34 shot included five army officers and two officers of the national police.

They were among the mutineers who attacked the royal palace at Usumbura, shooting and injuring Prime Minister Leopold Biha.

A number of leading political figures in this former Belgian trusteeship territory were under arrest or being sought by security forces in connection with the revolt.

They include the president of the senate and former justice minister, Joseph Bamina; the president of the national assembly, Emile Bucumi; the secretary of state responsible for the police and a prominent official in the prime minister's office.

FIRST CALL with Bowles

"That gives me an idea!"

By Colin Frost

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson will leave Sunday for Rhodesia and the toughest assignment he has faced in office.

Announcing this today, Wilson's office said the prime minister will be accompanied by Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley and five aides including Wilson's doctor. The party is due to arrive in Salisbury Monday.

Wilson, 49, is flying out in a last desperate bid to stave off a declaration of independence by the colony's white rulers—a declaration which he believes can bring Congo-style chaos to all Africa south of the Sahara.

His talks in Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, with Prime Minister Ian Smith and other Rhodesian leaders will last at least two days and perhaps a week. In any event Arthur Bottomley, Wilson's secretary of state for colonial affairs, will stay on to handle further talks with Smith.

Wilson sent a message to Smith Thursday that he planned to fly to Salisbury "in the next day or two."

Wilson said he planned to talk not only to Smith, but also to anyone else "whose views I feel to be relevant to a solution of this grave problem."

Officials said he would see former prime minister Garfield Todd, who was restricted to his farm this week, and Negro nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo and Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, who have been in detention camps for four months.

SOKEDI TOUR

Wilson's message was in reply to a letter from Smith asking Britain to grant Rhodesia independence on the basis of its present constitution and trust the whites to do right by the Negro majority. Wilson said he could not agree to this.

At the heart of the matter are two issues of trust:

1. Whether Smith's Rhodesia Front government can be trusted, under full independence, to advance the colony's 4,000,000 Negroes to political power.

2. Whether the Negroes, when they have won power, can be trusted to deal fairly with the 220,000 white Rhodesians who now control the government.

The immediate point for discussion is whether an internationally-registered treaty can be negotiated to give the Negroes guarantees of advance under the present constitution. Smith, backed by British Conservative leaders, says it can. Wilson takes the stand—as did the previous Conservative administration — that any settlement must be acceptable to all Rhodesians, white and black.

This stand may be the major stumbling block. Negro nationalist leaders assume the powers are unlikely to settle for anything less than the one man, one vote principle on which all Britain's other African colonies have been brought to independence.

Pearson Blasts Opposition For Making False Charges

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prime Minister Pearson ended his long silence on the scandal - in - government election issue Thursday night and blasted the opposition parties for what he called false charges and malicious inventions.

He said organized crime had made some attempts to influence his government but the charges being made in the election campaign "are about cases where, so far as my government is concerned, attempts at wrong-doing have failed."

The prime minister spoke on a CBC free-time television series taped in his Parliament Hill office last Friday.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker, meanwhile, was making brief references to the scandal issue in a speech to 1,000 persons at a rally in Brockville.

Mr. Diefenbaker's main theme, however, was the restored unity of his party. He even indicated that Douglas Harkness, George Hees and Davie Fulton, all of whom quit his cabinet in 1963, would be offered portfolios if he regains power.

Mr. Pearson said "the country has recently been shocked by reports of killings by an organized criminal ring in Quebec.

"The ring was involved in arson; there is no evidence at all to connect it with bankruptcy cases.

"Yet you have been told that the killings might have been prevented if a report on bankruptcy received by the federal government had been published and acted on.

"There is not a scrap of evidence to support the charge. The alleged report doesn't even exist. It is pure invention. No, it is more than pure invention; malicious invention."

(Mr. Diefenbaker said in Hamilton that a report on bankruptcies was hidden from Parliament and that there would have been "grave possibility" of the Quebec killings if it had been made public.)

Mr. Pearson referred to the mailed in positions around the camp in heavy strength and were massing large concentrations of weapons.

U.S. advisers in the camp reported seeing at least 90 Viet Cong bodies in the barbed wire around the camp and on the ground beyond. U.S. officials said the garrison had suffered light casualties.

Defective Malted Milk Powder Sought

TORONTO (CP) — Jars of malted milk powder believed defective with a non-fatal poisonous ingredient are still being sought by Borden Co. Ltd. in Windsor, Ont., Kitchener, suburban Montreal, Edmonton and Vancouver.

The company said Thursday it has requested its offices in each in Toronto and Vancouver, become ill after consuming the powder. They suffered stomach cramps, vomiting and diarrhea, but didn't require hospital treatment.

Borden's have asked the public to return any 14-ounce jars of plain malted milk powder bearing the perforated code numbers 15167 and 15148 on the side of the label.

Involved are 468 jars in 39 cases of 12 jars each.

Plan Big Scale Marl Quarrying In Hungerford

Development of huge marl deposits in the Marlbank area, said to be the "finest natural deposits of marl on the North American continent" could pump millions of American dollars into the economy of this area within the next few years.

This was indicated today at a press conference in Belleville when it was announced that a new firm, the Marlbank Calcium and Chloride Co. Ltd., would spend several millions of dollars in development work within the next two years.

An initial order for the supply of pharmaceutical raw materials to a New York firm is said to be worth $120,000,000.

Attending today's press conference, arranged by Liberal candidate Robert Temple, were Bertrand England, representing the contract firm to do construction and other development work, and Ian Tawse, with the same firm.

START MONDAY

Mr. England said that construction would commence Monday on the first structure to house both offices and equipment. By spring it is expected that up to 60 persons will be employed.

"The potential of the Marlbank deposit is unlimited," Mr. England said, noting that by-products of the marl development would include fertilizer and potash.

For each ton of marl concentrate there could be up to 10 tons of fertilizer produced, according to Mr. England.

Marl deposits, covered by overburden to be utilized in the production of fertilizer, range from 15 to 30 feet in depth.

FIXED FOR YEARS

"We are well fixed for years to come," Mr. England said.

First delivery of the raw material for the manufacture of drugs is expected to commence next spring. The material, put up in bulk for shipment, will be taken to New York by transport.

Following removal of the overburden, the marl will be dissolved with water and pumped to processing plants.

For the uninitiated marl is a substance similar to limestone but has had its lime content removed, leaving a chalk-like form.

WORKED DURING WAR

The marl deposits at Marlbank were last worked during World War II when between 1940-45 the Ontario Paper Company employed about 20 men in mining operation.

During production at Marlbank prior to 1916, up to 300 men were employed. Marlbank Rd. Cemetery is one of his grand dragons—James R. Jones of North Carolina and Marshall R. Kornegay of Virginia.

As it had been in Shelton's case, the Klan was not immune to a long list of queries that focused on alleged misuse of Klan funds, of Klan officials going into the insurance business, of tapping the membership to purchase a Cadillac for Jones.

Black Diamond Cheese made its United Appeal returns today and the report shows an increase in employee giving of 25 per cent over last year's efforts. The total company returns are up 12½ per cent.

United Appeal Headquarters reported that a little, elderly woman came into the office, put 25 cents on the counter, and said, "I want to donate this to the United Appeal."

When asked her name, she smiled faintly, her eyes flickered and she said, "No names are necessary for a widow's mite."

With that, she left the office.

Another incident involves an invalid, confined to a wheelchair all of her life. She phoned the United Appeal Office and said she would like to make a donation, "just to help people out a little."

She sent in a cheque for $5.

Anyone wishing to donate to the United Appeal can do so by bringing in or mailing their donation to the United Appeal Office, 160 Front Street, across from the City Hall in the old Ontario Intelligencer Building.

'Bombshells' in Defence Of Klansman Promised

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP)—A lawyer for Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., youthful Ku Klux Klan member charged with the slaying of Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, says he will "drop some bombshells" before his trial is over."

defence counsel Arthur J. Hanes, former mayor of Birmingham, told reporters Thursday he planned to talk now defence witnesses.

Hanes then added that he would have some "bombshells," but declined to say with what they would deal.

Gary Thomas Rowe, a 35-year - old Klansman who has been a paid FBI informer for five years, said Wilkins emptied a pistol into the woman's car after a high-speed auto chase on a dark highway.

The 30-year-old white mother of five was ferrying civil rights workers back to Selma after a 50-mile, fourth march on the state capital in Montgomery, when she was shot. A young Negro in the car with her, Leroy Moton, escaped injury.

The red-haired Rowe, a former Birmingham bartender, testified for 45 minutes that he, Wilkins and two other Klansmen drove at speeds up to 100 miles an hour to overtake the Liuzzo car about 20 miles from Selma.

He said the driver of the car was Eugene Thomas, 42, and the other Klansman in the car was William O. Eaton, 41, both of Bessemer, and both under indictment in the slaying.

Rowe said that as they pulled around Mrs. Liuzzo's car, Thomas yelled: "Get 'em. Shoot the hell out of 'em."

"The first think I know," Rowe said, "Wilkins stuck his arm out the window—he had a pistol in his hand — at elbow length."

The FBI informer said Wilkins fired six times while Eaton, sitting in the front seat of the car, emptied a .32-calibre pistol.

Rowe said he looked back and saw Mrs. Liuzzo's car continue on a straight line down the highway until it appeared to angle off to the side of the road. "I told Wilkins I didn't think he had him then. He said: 'Baby brother, don't worry about it. That bitch and that bastard are dead in hell.'"

Klansmen Refuse To Testify

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan put on a white cowboy hat with his security guards creating a path through the crush of reporters stepped jauntily into the glare of the camera lights.

"You don't see me worried, do you?" said Robert M. Shelton, the beleaguered No. 1 man in the United Klans of America Inc.

Standing just outside the door of the hearing room, Shelton read a statement denouncing the congressional investigation of the Klan as an "inquisition" loaded with "when did you stop beating your wife" questions.

Paradoxically, the phrases were an echo of those made by witnesses questioned about alleged Communist connections by the same House of Representatives committee on un-American activities.

But Shelton, who has denounced "fifth amendment Communists," denied he was a "fifth amendment Klansman." Shelton has invoked the fifth amendment of the constitution against self-incrimination many times in the hearings.

He said he was protecting liberties, living up to his Klan oath of secrecy.

SHELTON DISMISSED

Shelton himself had been dismissed by the committee until Nov. 15. But he came back Thursday to listen when the committee questioned four of his grand dragons—James R. Jones of North Carolina and Marshall R. Kornegay of Virginia.

Viet Cong Returns to Attack On Mountain Tribesmen's Camp

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong made another determined attack on the beleaguered special forces camp at Plei Me today, but the fighting died down again late in the day, a U.S. military spokesman reported.

The guerrillas shot down a US Air Force Skyraider, but the pilot was rescued, the spokesman said. Eight American jet planes and two helicopters were killed in two helicopter crashes in the area Thursday and Wednesday.

The Viet Cong battered the Plei Me garrison 210 miles northeast of Saigon before a South Vietnamese ranger unit fought its way into the camp shortly after dawn to bolster the 300 tough mountain tribesmen who have kept the guerrillas at bay for three days.

About 500 Viet Cong launched the attack early Wednesday. The camp then was defended by about 300 Montagnard tribesmen and 10 or 12 American advisers.

U.S. authorities said it appeared the Viet Cong offensive had been blunted, but later reports said the Viet Cong remained in positions around the camp.

Counselling Service Director Gives Report on Operation

The committee on Family Counselling Services met recently under the chairmanship of R. W. Hurley to hear reports from Mr. Castellano, the Director of Family Counselling Service, on the operation of the agency since its opening on September 7th.

Mr. Castellano said that he was more than satisfied with the response received both from people needing family and individual counselling as well as key people in the community who have been waiting to make use of the service on behalf of families who have come to them for assistance in the past. He stated in his report that people who have so far made use of the Family Counselling Service have expressed the wish that they could have had the opportunity to avail themselves of professional counselling before. They felt that their present unhappy situation might have been avoided.

Many community leaders visited by Mr. Castellano eg: Judge J. J. Graham, Mayor J. Ellis, Police Chief McLachlan and others expressed interest in the new social agency. Mr. Cree, Superintendent of Secondary Schools, introduced Mr. Castellano to the principals, vice-principals and guidance personnel of the local high schools. Mr. Orr felt that the Family Counselling Service would be an asset to the school personnel who meet students in need of counselling for themselves and their families.

MANY CALLS RECEIVED

Mr. Castellano reported that many calls were received from individuals and groups in the community inquiring about the functions of the new service. He spoke to the Ministerial Association by the invitation of Rev. Gordon Woodcock, president of the association. Mrs. Buchanan, president of the Homemakers, invited Mr. Castellano to speak to her group and the Primary School Teachers' Institute heard of the Family Counselling Service at one of their monthly meetings where Mr. Kells was present.

"The response to the initiation of the service," said Mr. Castellano, "so far bears out the results of the survey conducted last year to find out whether a Family Counselling Service was needed in Belleville." Daily, he states in his report, we receive many calls requesting appointments. These calls come from Belleville and the county. People calling are from different economic and social background. About 50% refer themselves and the other 50% are referred by lawyers, doctors, ministers and schools.

In other business Mr. Hurley, chairman of the committee, expressed the appreciation of the committee members and the Family Counselling Service for the co-operation of The Intelligencer and CJBQ radio in bringing the new agency to the attention of the community.

Ten Ontario Farmers Seek British Orders

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON—(CP)—Ten Ontario farmers in search of markets for expanding production are meeting here with British grocery importers to discover the brand precisely what the British shopper wants in food quality, packaging and price.

The farmers, here on an export development mission organized by the Ontario government, represent marketing boards that handle food products from onions to poultry, apples to white beans.

Accompanied by Everett Biggs, Ontario deputy minister minister, the team arrived Wednesday and its members have been meeting a series of buyers and distributors.

"It's not a direct selling mission," Biggs said in an interview, "most of these marketing boards are not directly responsible for export sales in any case—that's mainly the work of the Canadian processor.

"But they are learning what the British market wants and the prices paid. They can use this knowledge in planning expansion and in discussions with the processors back home."

Sales of Ontario produce to Britain have been rising annually and now are worth an estimated $100,000,000 a year. Ontario tomato juice, for example, now has more than 40 per cent of the British market, Ontario honey 27 per cent.

GUEST SPEAKER for last night's Bay of Quinte Life Underwriters' Association public relations dinner J. K. Savage (left) is welcomed by local insurance men Percy McGuire and James Barnett, Association President.

Leslie Frost Opens Research Station

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Leslie Frost, former Ontario premier, said Thursday Canada has good conservation laws but those in the United States "are thoroughly bad."

Mr. Frost spoke to about 200 guests gathered to a tent for ceremonies opening the Niska Watershed Research Station and park.

The first research station in Canada dedicated to the study of eastern North American watershed, it is located on 120 acres along the bank of the nearby Eramosa River.

Mr. Frost said there is vital need to strengthen migratory bird laws in North America, but a problem is the difference in regulations between states of the U.S.

"In this day of mechanization, of planes, outboard motors, new types of firearms, and in view of increasing water pollution, the question is whether wildlife can survive," Mr. Frost said.

HOPES FOR PACT

He said he hoped some kind of "sensible arrangement" can be worked out with United States wildlife authorities.

Mr. Frost dedicated the station's park area to Frank H. Kortright, one of Ontario's leading wildlife authorities and conservationists.

In presenting Mr. Kortright with a scroll, Mr. Frost said: "One has only to go out and see the beauty of those birds along the river, even on this rainy afternoon, to see what an immense contribution he has made to his country."

Mr. Kortright released two mallard ducks, in a symbolic gesture to open the park. He is the author of a book on North American waterfowl that is use as a text as universities across the continent.

Already the station is the year-round of more than 300 wild ducks of 45 species, and a stopping-off point for up to 1,000 waterfowl daily during migration.

Estate Planning Stressed In Talk to Underwriters

The importance of experienced estate planning to ensure the intended distribution of an estate and at the same time avoid unnecessary payment of estate taxes, was stressed to members of the Bay of Quinte Life Underwriters' Association last night.

The talk on "Estate Planning, You and Your Client" was given by Mr. J. K. Savage, Mutual Life Estate Planning Service Manager, was given to local life underwriters as their fourth annual public relations dinner held at the Hotel Quinte.

Mr. Savage said that despite the amount of publicity the subject of estate planning has received only a small percentage of estates currently passing through the Surrogate Court show evidence of any real planning. He said this lack of planning demonstrates two things 1. a distinct apathy toward placing one's financial house in order and 2. that estate planning is a relatively new profession — and profession it is ove if not on a formal basis.

The speaker warned against the dangers of inexperience in estate planning which, he said, should be attempted only by professionals with a comprehensive knowledge of the subject.

Important as it is, the making of a will did not necessarily guarantee the intended distribution of an estate unless consideration and planning was taken into consideration.

Close to 100 Quinte district life underwriters attended the public relations dinner, which saw area bankers and trust company officials as guests.

Association president, James Barnett, welcomed members and guests with G. Sid Mardle introducing head table guests. Percy McGuire introduced the speaker with thanks being expressed by William Holway, Ralph Knowlton presented a Canadian Life Underwriters' certificate to association member Bill Yeates.

Federal Govt. Approval For New Secondary School Here Has Been Received

Federal government department officials at Ottawa have now given verbal approval for the construction of the new Centennial Secondary School in West, Belleville. The Bay of Quinte District High School Board is now waiting the signature of the minister before proceeding with construction contract.

Subject to department approval, the local school board some weeks ago approved the tender of M. Sullivan and Sons for the school construction job. Total cost of the new school, including architect's fees and equipment is expected to be $3,790,166.

PLAN HOME TEACHING

Also, subject to Department of Education approval, the Bay of Quinte High School Board this week voted to establish home instruction units for physically handicapped students unable to attend regular classes. A board official stated today that four applications for such instruction have been received.

In the future local high school teachers taking "updating" courses, particularly in mathematics and physics, will have their registration fees paid by the board. The "updating" courses are currently being held at Kingston.

Moira Secondary School teacher George Mayhew was awarded by the board as jadet instructor at the school.

Canadian Oxygen on College street was given the contract for the supply of welding gases to the high schools, while some Plumbing and Heating will install an electric hot water heater for use in the cafeteria at BCI.

EXCHANGE DRIVEWAYS

The board agreed to grant a roadway east of the board administration office leading to King George Public School, in exchange for the granting of a way east of Quinte Secondary School.

In preparation for equipping the new high school when it is completed, a special advisory committee has been set up to advise on the purchase of technical and vocational equipment. A special purchasing committee of board members has been set up to finalize advisory committee recommendations.

Senator White Speaker at PC Meeting

Senator George S. White was the principal speaker at his Meet Your Candidate Night sponsored by the Frankford Progressive Conservative Association, held last evening in the Frankford Community Hall with an attendance of approximately 200 party supporters.

South Hastings P.C. candidate, Lee Grills, took the opportunity of speaking to the gathering and in thanking them for their attendance and for their efforts on his behalf in the campaign to date, he told his audience "My greatest desire in offering to be your federal Member of Parliament is to serve the individual needs of the people of Frankford and South Hastings. I've always been approachable by anyone and I intend to continue in this way and to try and help wherever possible with the particular problems of everyone in this area." In outlining his short address, he introduced Senator White to the audience as one of the most distinguished citizens to have come from the County of Hastings to serve in the present parliament.

Senator White stirringly reviewed with his audience the "Policies for People" program of the P.C. party in this campaign. He particularly stressed "We come before you with policies which we believe to be important to the 'average Canadian.' We believe that people are important and that the reason the state was created to serve the people!" He went on to point out that Canada is the party platform under the varied headings of "Peace and National Unity;"; tax reduction for home owner taxes and the exemption of the 5 per cent sales tax on building materials; increase the old age pension to $75 per month; Revamping of the legislation on loans to small businesses; a Royal Commission on Organized Crime and a new policy for Eastern Agriculture. He stated that the P.C. government will pump new life into the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act plan and get it rolling again."

He closed his address by telling about the proposed establishment of a Ministry of Youth with a new department and a new Minister and he ended his address by urging the audience to go and work to return Lee Grills to the House of Commons to help ensure the carrying out of this positive program.

The meeting was chaired by Frankford association president, George Montgomery, and the ladies' association, under the presidency of Mrs. Gerald Curry, provided a delicious lunch. Cards and dancing concluded this social evening.

Liberian Ship Sinks in Atlantic

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — The 7,184-ton Liberian freighter Tradeways, 91 was reported sinking today south of the Azores in the Atlantic.

The British freighter Leo Goner reported it had picked up 12 of the stricken ship's crew from a life raft and that a lifeboat launched from the Tradeways had capsized in the high seas.

Rescuers were believed aboard the Tradeways, which was reported sweak and in danger of breaking up.

The 441-foot ship, formerly known as the Amilla, radioed for help late Thursday night. She was reported en route from Antwerp, Belgium, to Canada.

Union Carbide Workers Over Top in Appeal

Union Carbide Canada Ltd., Belleville plant, has gone over the top in its 1965 in-plant United Appeal Campaign.

Jim Whright, in-plant campaign co-ordinator, reports that even though this year's goal was 20 per cent higher than in 1964, it was still topped by employee contributions.

The actual employee donations are up an outstanding 22 per cent over 1964.

Former Bellevillian Says Norseman Was First To Discover N. America

By ED WALTERS

TORONTO (CP) — Farley Mowat says in his book, Westviking, to be published Saturday that the first European to discover North America proper was Bjarni Herjolfsson, a Norseman who in 985 sighted the east coast of Newfoundland after being driven off course on a voyage to Greenland from Iceland.

The author, who lives in Burgeo, Nfld., also says Leif the Lucky, using Herjolfsson's ship and sailing directions, went to Newfoundland in 999. He pinpoints Leif's Vinland as Tickle Cove Pond at the bottom of Newfoundland's Trinity Bay.

Mr. Mowat, explaining his theories at a press conference Thursday, said an ancient map published Oct. 11 by Yale University supports his reconstruction of the Norse voyages.

IDENTIFIES INLETS

He said the map, drawn around 1440, shows a land west of Greenland, entitled Vinland. The two indentations shown off the Vinland coast represent the Strait of Belle Isle, separating Newfoundland from the mainland, and Melville Bay in Labrador.

The bearded author, wearing a kilt and nursing a suspected ulcer with a drink of milk and rum, said the map and his findings "makes the Columbus myth pretty thin."

"In fact, Columbus knew land existed in the west Atlantic and he tried to sail far enough south to miss it in his attempt to reach Asia."

Mr. Mowat said that in the 20's years he spent working on the 404 - page book he discovered what had previously been unknown about the Viking discoveries.

GUIDED BY SAGAS

Instead, he said, he worked from the original sources, the old Norse sagas—accounts of Viking voyages. The sailing directions contained in the sagas, when applied to the geography of Iceland, Greenland, Baffin Island, Labrador and Newfoundland, accurately tell of the routes followed by the Vikings, he said.

He said Erik the Red, exiled from Iceland for three years for murder, sailed in 981 for Greenland in search of plunder among Celtic settlements. In the book he says the Irish Celts colonized Iceland before the Norway Vikings learned to make ocean voyages. They were subsequently driven west to Greenland when the Norwegians eventually came to Iceland to raid and later settle.

The Irish had abandoned Greenland several decades before Erik arrived there. The Vikings, unaware of this, continued his search and in the process explored the west coast of Greenland, named Davis Strait and discovered Baffin Island.

FOLLOWED COAST

In his account of the Herjolfsson voyage, Mr. Mowat says the Norseman coasted northward to Cape Chidley at the northern tip of Labrador and from there returned to Greenland.

He says Erik's son, Leif, spent a winter at Tickle Cove Pond and in the spring returned to Greenland. Therefore, he says, Leif Eriksson made no new discovery in North America.

Mr. Mowat claims that Helluland and Markland are in Labrador and were discovered by four shiploads of Icelanders and Greenlanders around 1004 who planned to settle at Leif's Vinland.

They stayed the first winter in the Strait of Belle Isle and during the next two years explored the Labrador coast and parts of the northeast and west coasts of Newfoundland.

He says these sub-expeditions may also have reached Anticosti Island in the mouth of the St. Lawrence River.

FIRST CHILD BORN

It was during this period, Mr. Mowat says, that the first child of European descent was born in North America, probably at Epaves Bay near L'Anse aux Meadows on Newfoundland's northwest coast. He was called Snorri.

In the third year, some of the Icelanders left and went home. The Greenlanders remained another winter and Mr. Mowat said the end of the colony came that spring in a bloody massacre. Trouble started and the Greenlanders killed about 30 Icelanders who had remained. The survivors then abandoned the colony and sailed back to Greenland.

The author said Westviking, his 14th book, is the first of a trilogy on the history of Newfoundland. Published by McClelland and Stewart Ltd., it will sell for $10.

No Directive to Place Light Says Commission

TRENTON Clifford A. Baker, chairman of the Trenton Public Utilities' Commission and Commissioner Charles Hilton, insisted on "setting the record straight," at a meeting of the commission yesterday, when they told Mayor James MacDonald, also a member of the commission that the reason the utilities had not proceeded with the street lighting program this year was because town council had not provided them with the necessary money to do so.

Mr. Baker and Mr. Hilton said that newspaper reports of last week's meeting of town council might lead the people of the town to think the commission was not carrying out council's directives to place a street light near the Senior Citizens' home on Wragge Street.

The commission had received no such directive, they said, and even if it had, funds were not available.

Mayor MacDonald explained that a delay in getting the town's five-year capital budget estimates off to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval, (they were finally approved on Oct. 14), had brought about the situation whereby the town had not debentured for the $288,000 for the street lighting program.

Mr. Baker said the commission's failure to install a watermain on Henry Street, was also not the fault of the commission . . . and for the same reason . . . no funds from the town for the work.

of Machinists. The council members, representing various unions in this area will also make appeals for support to their members.

The Trenton Labor Council will enter a float in the Trenton Santa Claus Parade, set for Saturday, November 27.

Mr. Bishop was asked to explain details in connection with the Labor College in Montreal. He said applications were now out for the 1966 terms, and local unions might send members there on a scholarship basis, (if they qualify). The scholarships are for $1,100, plus a percentage of travel expenses. The six or eight weeks' course, including tuition of $250 and living expenses, costs around $1,400.

During the council meeting, the members were introduced to Harry Spodick, of the International Jewellery Workers' Union, (CLC). Mr. Spodick had flown up from New York to attend a meeting of the local in his union.

NDP in Good Shape for Vote Says Unionist

TRENTON — Lincoln Bishop, Ontario Regional Director of Education, Canadian Labor Congress, told the members of the Trenton Labor Council at a meeting in the Gilbert Hotel last night that the New Democratic Party was facing this federal election in better shape than it had been in any previous election . . . even harking back to the days of the CCF.

Mr. Bishop said the NDP had more candidates in the field by Oct. 1 than any of the old parties, and that it was a reasonable assumption that by voting day, Nov. 8, the NDP would have candidates in each of the 263 constituencies.

"The NDP will certainly pick up momentum and strength," Mr. Bishop said.

The speaker said the NDP now had 70,000 paid up members. With the promised support of the Canadian Labor Congress, which has strongly urged its' members to vote NDP and the quarter million trade union members . . . with votes from the "uncommitted Canadians" he said the NDP was rapidly becoming a force which must be dealt with seriously in the political arena.

The election had been called by the Liberal government, said Mr. Bishop, because they were afraid of losing many seats to the NDP if they waited for redistribution.

With Mr. Bishop at the Trenton Labor Council meeting was George Foley, a representative of the Electrical Trade Union of Great Britain, in Canada on a nine months' scholarship study-tour of Canadian union workings.

HELP CANDIDATES

The council voted to give $25 to each of the NDP campaigns in this area, South Hastings, where Thorold Hoskin is running; Northumberland, where Ian Reilly is the NDP candidate.

The council also voted to give $25 as a token contribution to the striking workers at Winchester Arms, Cobourg, after hearing a representation from one of the members of Local 788, International Association

RCAF Peace-keeping Force In Lahore, Pakistan, Well

TRENTON—Air Commodore R. J. Lane, the air officer commanding Air Transport Command, returned to Trenton Tuesday from an inspection tour of the RCAF's new 117 Air Transport Unit in Lahore, Pakistan.

This new unit was formed by the RCAF in late September for the purpose of airlifting the United Nations observer team in the India-Pakistan area. It now operates with 95 men, which may shortly be reduced to 80, and six light transport aircraft.

Forty-five members of this unit are from the Trenton base. Most of their families are remaining in the Belleville-Trenton area.

Air Commodore Lane reports that incoming and outgoing mail is being censored by Pakistani authorities. Hence, some families have not heard from their relatives in Pakistan. The UN is aware of this situation and is taking steps to correct it.

It had been planned for the unit to operate out of Rawalpindi, but the facilities in the capital city were unavailable and the unit was sent to Lahore, south of the capital, within six miles of the cease fire lines — a 1,000-mile zone set up between India and Pakistan.

At Lahore, men from 117 Air Transport are living in a modern hotel, by Eastern standards, and enjoy sanitary facilities, showers and a ballroom where men may meet after work and watch films.

The hotel staff prepares the food, supervised by an RCAF doctor and a hygiene expert. An RCAF chef is teaching the local cooking staff to prepare meals Canadian style.

The Unit takes up the entire hotel and owing to the present situation there are no tourists in Lahore.

There is a 10 p.m. curfew in Lahore, and no night life.

The Transport Unit has been given some hangar accommodations where aircraft can be kept or maintenance carried out.

The RCAF team flies groups of UN observers, from various countries to points along the cease fire line, where they spend two weeks and then return to Lahore for a week's rest. Two-thirds of the 100-man observer team are in the field all of the time.

If any movement of troops either side of the cease fire line is observed, UN headquarters in Lahore is notified immediately.

The men have very little reading material. There are some English-language newspapers, but they are full of propaganda. The television programs available are also full of propaganda.

The men are putting in an 18 hour work day. The RCAF will attempt to arrange a Christmas airlift with parcels and Christmas turkeys.

They are on a year's tour and if at that time, the situation is the same, they will be retained.

Anyone sending mail to the men can do so by addressing their letters:

Army Private From Frankford Seriously Ill

OTTAWA (CP) — Warren Wease, an 18-year-old army private from Frankford, Ont., stationed at Camp Petawawa in Pembroke, is in "very serious" condition in the tri-service hospital here with sleeping sickness.

Col. Max Fitch, deputy commanding officer of the hospital, said Pte. Wease fell ill at Camp Petawawa in the middle of last week.

He has been unconscious for most of the time. His condition hasn't worsened, Col. Fitch said. He hoped Wease's condition might take a turn for the better within the next day or two.

Pte. Wease had spent Thanksgiving weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Wease at Frankford, about 15 miles west of Belleville.

The weekend he was bitten several times by insects while hunting and it is thought he could have been bitten by a disease-carrying mosquito.

Which whisky do the Jones' really drink?
When it comes to whisky, the Jones' can afford to please themselves.
Yet they don't let price dictate their taste. They have taste of their own.
Which is why it's not surprising that so many of the Jones' drink Bonded Stock. This is a smooth, mellow whisky with a flavour you don't have to disguise.
The sensible price is an extra spur to for having good taste in the first place.
One other thing: you don't have to be one of the Jones' to appreciate Bonded Stock. All you need is a taste for good whisky.

In the Steps of L.B.J.

Some months ago Prime Minister Shastri of India was about to pay a state visit to the United States when the suddenly-announced word that President Johnson was too busy and suggesting in effect that he come at a later date.

Mr. Shastri, not without reason, was angered by what he regarded as a rebuff not only to himself but to his country. However, if the postponement were unprecedented Mr. Johnson also had his reasons for such a move. He was said to have been displeased with India's hostile attitude on American involvement in the Vietnam conflict, an attitude tantamount to biting the hand that fed it since India is the recipient of extensive American military and economic aid.

Be that as it may, President Johnson's snub was a cavalier piece of diplomacy. There was not much Mr. Shastri could do about it, other than stand on his bruised dignity and later find a welcome in this country, which of course had no reasons for following in Washington's footsteps.

Now, from Moscow of all places, comes an echo of President Johnson's diplomatic pique. The Soviet Union has withdrawn an invitation for Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia to pay a visit there next month.

The prince, who had been visiting China, Burma and North Korea said a note delivered to him by the Soviet ambassador in the latter country simply said the Soviet leaders were very busy and could not receive him. He termed the action a disagreeable and unexpected surprise.

As in the case of the Shastri visit to Washington, the Soviets evidently decided they had more important things to do than entertain the Cambodian leader, particularly since he had already visited their erstwhile friends in Peking.

Saving Grace

In the last resort, a sense of humor is what man needs most; it is the ultimate in saving grace. That is why we should all be thankful for cartoonists, because they help to keep alive man's inherent sense of the ridiculous and make him laugh at his own weaknesses and folly.

The Rhodesian situation is in this category. To be sure, things have come to a pretty pass in that country, tension is at a peak and none can predict what will happen if Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia declares his country independent and eschews the ideal of majority rule for the Africans.

Yet Norris, the Vancouver Sun's cartoonist, sees the humor of this difficult situation. Two elderly British hunters of the Colonel Blimp type are out on the moors, and during a pause for refreshment one says to his companion: "I can understand chaps named Gandhi or de Valera demanding 'independence from Britain — but Smith . . .!".

Quebec Violence

One thing we want no part of, in the increasing "dialogue" which Premier Lesage seeks between Ontario and Quebec, is anything resembling the extraordinary events revealed by a coroner's jury in Quebec City.

The jury has found four men criminally responsible in the arson-murder killing of four persons. According to Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner seven persons are known to be dead, but it is believed up to 12 may have been killed in an effort by the underworld to block investigation by his department.

The victims are reported to have been taken by car to remote country areas, shot at pointblank range and buried after their bodies had been covered with quicklime.

One of the men found responsible for the killings is a Montreal accountant, another a lumber dealer.

It is difficult to imagine such events occurring in Ontario, or people in positions in society similar to the accused Quebecers being held responsible.

Daredevils on Bicycles

Small boys on bicycles seem to enjoy the twilight hours in Belleville. The trouble is they show little regard for motorists and pedestrians, let alone their own safety.

These youngsters delight in swerving onto main thoroughfares from side streets. Sometimes they scorn the main routes and pound their machines along the sidewalk.

On Victoria Avenue the other night we observed, in quick succession, four of these youngsters. They appeared as if from nowhere—and here was the dangerous element, not one had lights on his machine.

"Do you boys not have lights on your bicycles?" we asked one who stopped at a corner store. He looked startled and mumbled, "No."

Well, there it is. If this sort of situation continues, with boys using city streets as drag strips and riding without lights after dark accidents are almost certain to occur sooner or later.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 22nd, 1945

The first Trafalgar Day anniversary since the end of the war finds Canadians much more deeply interested in the event the day marks than they have ever been before. For Nelson and Trafalgar mean more today to the world and especially to the British Empire. The recent struggle saw the power of the fleets of the Empire with those of the United States keeping open the seaways, which allowed the greatest sea transportation effort in history to be carried out, with endless vessels bearing their mighty cargoes of food and grain, and as well the vast armies and production of the great Allied industrial plants, which were so necessary for the maintenance of the struggle.

Horatio Nelson saw the great importance of sea power and his vision has always been the vision of Britain.

For Canadians the day has more than usual interest, for this Dominion has developed a great navy, her growth on the sea being relatively greater than that of any other power.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Bertram Collip of Montreal spent the week-end here with his mother, Mrs. J. D. Collip, Church street.

Mrs. S. E. Townsend, Mrs. Mary Bartlett, Mrs. Gilbert Hough and Mrs. John Walker have returned home after visiting friends in Peterborough, Lindsay and Woodville.

Mrs. Grace Edison has returned home after spending the past eight weeks in South Carolina and Georgia.

Mrs. J. Delaney, Miss Olive Delaney, Mrs. L. Wilkes, Miss Patricia Wilkes, Miss Leona Wilkes of this city, and Mrs. Summers of Vancouver, B.C., motored to Ottawa and spent the weekend in that city.

Mrs. N. W. Phillips, Charles Street, is visiting members of her family in Montreal.

William B. Northrup, K.C., ex-M.P., died suddenly early today at his home in Toronto. He was a member of the Conservative Party and represented the riding of East Hastings in the House of Commons for many years and retired in 1917. Subsequently he was appointed Clerk of the House of Commons and took up residence in Ottawa. He filled this office in highly satisfactory manner and some months ago retired on pension and received a substantial gratuity at that time. Mr. Northrup was 69 years of age, and was born in this city on Oct. 19th, 1856. He was the only son of the late Anson S. Northrup, who held the office of Clerk of Surrogate Court and County Court here for many years. Mr. Northrup practised law in this city for many years; he was a pleasing and eloquent speaker. His only sister is the wife of the Rev. Dr. George, at one time minister of John Street Church and now residing in the United States. In 1898 Mr. Northrup represented Ketchewa Ward in the city council. He was a member of St. Thomas' Church and served as church warden for several terms.

The steamer North King, which first entered port many years ago under the name of the Norseman, will be taken from Kingston today at noon on her last trip down the St. Lawrence River to Sorel where she will be used as a ferry boat. For a long time the Norseman was a mail boat between Toronto and Kingston. Later the same was changed to the North King and her course was between Charlotte, N.Y., and Kingston, and also a run through the 100 Islands.

As an instance of the mildness of the weather this season, the Intelligencer received today a basket of strawberries, which were picked yesterday in the garden of Mr. A. McClatchie in this city. Some of the berries were large and deliciously ripe.

Virus Causes Shingles Which Is Contagious

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is shingles a virus that attacks the nerves, or is it due to nervousness? If it is a virus, then can't it be transmitted?

A member of our family has awful splotches all over her skin and apparently it itches very much. We were told it is shingles, but she is not taking any medication for it, nor has she had a doctor. We are very concerned as there are several small children in the family. Please sign me just — A Reader

* * *

All right. I can understand your concern, but I certainly don't know what sis the relative with splotches and the itch.

Yes, shingles is a virus infection of a nerve area, and it is not nervousness. Yes, shingles can be transmitted, and any other questions about shingles will probably be answered by my booklet "The Facts About Shingles." To receive a copy, write me for it in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing 10 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

But from the description, I question whether this relative has shingles. Ten seconds of looking would tell me more than 10 minutes of taking a description, but that doesn't do us much good right now does it?

Shingles is an illness of the middle-aged and older. Its counterpart in children is chicken pox. The viruses of the two diseases are very similar, but not identical.

For practical purposes, I would take the same precautions for each — avoid contact, but not be especially frightened, during the period which the disease can be contagious.

* * *

How the relative with the splotchy itch can know what his trouble is, without having medical advice, I can't say. She may have some sort of skin disease which unless treated, may be worse than shingles, and for all I know may be more dangerous for the children.

My suggestion is to tell her that somebody said it is "Herpes zoster," and she should see her doctor.

I leave it to your discretion whether to tell her that "Herpes zoster" is merely the technical term for shingles.

But what ails people who can break out in spots, with children in the home, and not bother to find out what sort of disease it is, and how to take precautions about themselves, they're ought to play it safe for the children.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 23 and my husband and I are expecting our first child in a few weeks. I understand there is a test that can be given to infants at birth for mental retardation. Although there is no history of mental illness in either of our families, I can't help feeling concerned for my baby's mental as well as physical health.

What risk is there in this test for retardation? — Mrs. R. F.

I think you are confused over the test for PKU (phenylketonuria), which is one of the few causes of mental retardation which can be determined in early infancy. If PKU is found, a special diet is started at once.

There isn't any test that can be given at birth which will diagnose retardation in general — although there are some types of retardation which are so distinctive that they can be recognized very early.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I read reading somewhere that the excessive drinking and smoking the toes without bending the knees puts undue strain on the eyes, specifically the retina. Now my daughter tells me this is one of her daily exercises at school. Before I do any complaining I would like your opinion. — H. M.

The only restriction I can conceive would be in the case of some older person who has suffered detachment of the retina. For anyone without some such condition, the exercise should have no harmful effect.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 22, 1965 . . .

A band of Iroquois Indians attacked the seigniory of Verchères 273 years ago today — in 1692 — when the owner and his wife were away. Their 14-year-old daughter, Marie-Madeleine, assumed command of the fort and defended it for more than a week, with a garrison of her two younger brothers, two soldiers, and an 80-year-old servant, until help arrived. Marie-Madeleine was subsequently the latter life for engaging in a large number of lawsuits.

1861—Gabriel de Queylus, first superior of the Sulpician mission in Canada, returned to France after a quarrel with Bishop Laval.

1882—The New York Metropolitan Opera House was opened.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915—King George V appealed for "more men and yet more men" for the British army; Greece refused Britain's offer of Cyprus in return for support of Serbia; Bulgaria captured Uskub, an important rail junction in Serbia.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940 — HMCS Margaree, the replacement for HMCS Fraser, was rammed on her first Atlantic convoy and sank with the loss of 142 of the crew of 176; Hitler and Vice-Premier Laval of France conferred at Vichy; Gen. Maxime Weygand arrived at Fez, French Morocco, on behalf of the Vichy government.

Humanities Essential In Education

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

There is no way of deciding the running argument between the people who believe in a liberal arts education and those who believe in a technical education until we ask and answer one prior question.

This question is: what kind of persons do we want our colleges to turn out? Is it enough to "train" students, or do they somehow have to be changed in outlook and attitude? If we decide it is not enough just to "train" students, then we must look to the humanities and social sciences for means of changing them.

Literature, history, sociology, — these differ in much more than subject-matter from physics, chemistry, engineering, mathematics. They differ in that the knowledge we have of them affects both the future of the subject and of ourselves.

Our knowledge of the table of atomic weights does not change the atomic weights. Our knowledge of algebra or calculus does not affect those mathematical concepts. Our knowledge of metal fatigue and structural stress does not alter those physical laws.

But our knowledge of the humanities and social sciences is to an essential part of those systems. In sociology, for instance, once we truly understand the nature of group pressure or of the influence of prejudice, both we and the subject have been modified.

If we know what Shakespeare was getting at in "King Lear," if we can grasp what was wrong with the Treaty of Versailles, if we see what the impressionists are trying to express — then we are able to utilize this knowledge to reshape our own views of life and to exert influence on those we live with and work with.

The humanities are not "superior" to the technical studies because they are more ancient or more "cultural" or more intellectual; these would be poor, and snobbish, reasons for granting them any sort of priority. They are superior because they expand the imagination, enlarge the personality, enable us to become something different and better than what we were before. Learning a chemical formula does not make a man different; reading Dante's sermons can change his whole life drastically.

Our great need today is not so much for better-trained technicians as it is for well-rounded persons who know how their subject fits into other subjects, are who can relate their experience to some general framework of human experience. Without this, we will breed only a generation of technical barbarians, who do brilliantly what they have been taught to do, but who are blind to the consequences of their actions. This may be an admirable quality in a soldier; it is a disastrous one in a free citizen.

Claims Liberals Not Flying Flag

The Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I could not help but notice the absence of "Canada's National Flag" on public display at Liberal headquarters on Front St.

Not long in the history is recorded, Prime Minister Pearson rose in the House of Commons and introduced a bill which was to give Canada a new flag. At that time he claimed to honor the Red Ensign but in the same breath, and quite hypocritically, renounced it in favor of another, any other as it turned out.

Weeks later, after one of the most prolonged debates in the history of Canada's Parliament the Liberal government emerged — victorious, — and Canadians, no doubt a majority of Canadians, learned that a new flag had finally been foisted on them.

This was to have been the flag under which all could unite and sally forth into a bright new future or something to that effect.

In reality it seems to have been no more than an indication of the utter spinelessness and paredness to rebuff a large number of English - speaking Canadians who appear more sympathetic towards French Canada's frustrations and aspirations. Inflicting a wound on one part of the population was to have soothed the wounds of another.

By their deeds they have shown us a good an example as can be found of Liberal disdain for those, particularly veterans, from whom they now seek support.

In the light of this victory, their present flag displayed outside their committee rooms.

Perhaps this symbol of hypocrisy, and lack of appreciation of moral conduct in government, is being played down. Perhaps the Liberals are no longer as certain as they once appeared to be that unity, understanding and concern for one another is now somehow have to be changed in outlook and attitude? If we decide it is not enough just to "train" students, then we must look to the humanities and social sciences for means of changing them.

Recreation Plan in U.S.

(N.Y. Watertown Times)

Buried in President Johnson's pending farm bill is a measure which would turn several million acres of surplus cropland into recreation areas. This plan would offer government payments to farmers who agreed to take such acreage out of production. And additional payments would be offered to farmers who agreed to manage such idled acreage for wildlife protection and public use of the land by the public.

Secretary of agricultural committee sees the program as a means to encouraging positive development. Development on retired cropland and the making available of millions of acres of land for the public for hunting, fishing, trapping, hiking and other recreation.

This is better than the soil bank program for many farmers. It is a way to put more land taken out of production, was "look at it." They couldn't over-plant their fields to collect special permission during a disaster emergency drought crisis.

Needless to say, if this farm law the federal agricultural department must work in close cooperation with farm agencies and fish and game departments in the various states. Otherwise, deciding which wildlife protection measures were needed, where they were to be applied could safely be made of the land, and how much any one county could stand, might result in duplication of effort and utter confusion.

The news that the University of Manitoba and the affiliated United College have registered of nearly 11,800 students is like hearing that a brother, his wife and eight children are coming to spend the weekend. It causes joy mixed with trepidation.

This increase of 21.3 per cent in a single year shows that more and more young people are aware of the value of university training and that the new high school system in Manitoba is getting results.

Indians and The Election

Peterborough Examiner

Andrew Maracle, an Iroquois Indian, said to the Council of Indians meeting in Toronto recently that Indians cannot afford no part in the white man's election. The burden of his talk was that Indians should have nothing to do with the white man's world." In another address, Kahn-Tineta Horne said that the Canadian government immediately appropriate $300,000,000 for a variety of obviously worthwhile projects to aid Indians. She referred to the money as full rental for Canada from the first landing of the white man and on through the years.

Both these suggestions contain an element of unrealism which will accomplish nothing good for the Indian people except that it may help to rid them two particular Indians of some understandably resentment. It is fair means or foul that the white man is here to say and it is unlikely that he will pay rent for the privilege. Likewise, the idea that Indians should open out of step with society is responsible talk to which few Indians will agree.

The Indian problems of Canada have doubtless been present longer than necessary because of this separatist philosophy which has governed official attitudes in the past. Full integration into the so-called white society is the only way to a solution. A solution will be found and the will require inspired leadership from both groups.

B.C. Counts Its Blessings

Globe and Mail

During the Ontario-Quebec Newspaper Editors' Conference Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec led a thrust, swiftly by the attendant newspaper men, to the effect that Quebec and Ontario beginning to understand each other, that a partition was no longer a question only for Quebec. Premier which all Canadians could achieve equality and understanding and mutual respect, even so sure of each other's confidences as to be able to speak frankly of their differences.

Mr. Lesage did regret that this understanding had not yet been fully achieved in the West (en passant he made a brief tour there to explain the Quebec point of view he had had to use "words" to communicate) penetrate Western indifference and misunderstanding, he said to be "words of steel."

Mr. Lesage will doubtless therefore be disappointed to discover that despite his efforts and his brutality, the West still did not get his message.

The conference in an October 9 Thanksgiving editorial told its Vancouver readers that the Lesage speech was "too harsh" for, and listed them. The interested from the top: "Quebec is 2,000 miles away."

Thinking Is A Lost Art

(Letter to Windsor Star [illegible])

Tom Tuttee of Chatham writes:
Sir: Is the old - fashioned art of thinking for oneself being over-simplified? Today, it doesn't "come up with an idea" one refers it to the research department.

That is why so much stress is being placed on research. Thinking computers, and ever bigger computers, and ever many not so big, have departmentalized their "think men." These chaps feed into the factories in white coats or green coats, with diagrams and charts and calculations and what they finish sharpening a dozen pencils and exchange chitchat in their own departments, proceed surroundings, they discuss the baseball results of yesterdays or their latest romantic conquests. Then suddenly some one says let's put this thing together and see how it looks, or words to that effect.

Then the boss or employer got an idea — sometimes even the boss got one — went to the research department himself. Nowadays he goes on doing the same job in the same old way unless the research men under a microscope and has a "secret" road test.

I guess we have lost the art of thinking.

Tweed Veneers Gets U.S. Order for TV Cabinets

TWEED — On his campaign tour of Hastings South, Liberal candidate Robert Temple learned from Robert Hunter, a principal of Tweed Veneers, before Mr. Hunter left for Chicago that he was on his way to sign a contract to supply 400,000 veneer cabinets for colored television sets being made up for retail distribution. Mr. Hunter told him that he was asked to fill the American company's entire order of 1,600,000 cabinets but had to settle for the smaller commitment because his concern would first have to double factory space, number of employees engaged in production and inventories. At the present time some 40 people work at the veneer plant.

According to Mr. Hunter the U.S. manufacturer he mentioned is desperate for Canadian hard maple finished cabinets.

He said with the new order his industry is now committed for seven and a half years. For some time Tweed Veneers has been manufacturing and shipping 6,000 laminated golf clubs each week to a U.S. company whose items are endorsed by professional golf great, Arnold Palmer.

Soprano Soloist Will Be Heard Here

During the Salvation Army Centenary Congress opening today, one of the musical features will be the singing of Mrs. Winnie Watson, of Hamilton. After having studied at the Guildhall School of Music, she accepted the position of Instructor at the National School of Music for Girls, in London, England.

Mrs. Watson, soprano soloist will be singing at the women's meeting, in the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Saturday at 2.30 p.m., as well as at the main Congress musical occasion Saturday night at the BCI. On Sunday Mrs. Watson will be heard at all services.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Base metals were easier on the Toronto Stock Exchange in moderate morning trading today.

Uranium, which staged Thursday, were lower again today. Denison, which dipped 1¾ Thursday, lost a further 1¼ to 38¼. However, it remains more than 10 ahead of its price of a month ago.

Inco fell ¼ to 96, Campbell Chibougamau 10 cents to 4.90, and Steep Rock five cents to 7.60. All these issues were higher Thursday on news of an increase in the price of copper.

Industrials were lower with Royal Bank off 1 to 73. However, Algoma and Bank of Nova Scotia advanced ¼ each to 64¼ and 73¼.

Among speculatives, Probe was ahead 40 cents to 3.85 in an otherwise lower western oils group.

On index, industrials fell .18 to 168.47, base metals .33 to 94.55, western oils .31 to 102.52 and the TSE index .19 to 158.61. Golds were up .28 to 135.29. Volume at 11 a.m. was 618,000 shares compared with 579,000 at the same time Thursday.

Prices were generally higher in moderate trading on the exchange Thursday.

Base metals had a 14-session advancing streak broken, although the index loss belied the strength in the group. Losses to a number of uranium issues were responsible for the decline, but copper producers shot ahead on reports of increasing demand for the metal and the boost in the price of copper.

Noranda gained 1⅛ to 53 and Hudson Bay ⅞ to 76. Both companies raised their price to overseas copper buyers by two cents a pound Wednesday.

Brunswick climbed 1¼ to 15½, Falconbridge 1¼ to 110, Inco ⅝ to 96½, Labrador 1¼ to 36, Bethlehem 15 cents to 6.10, Campbell Chibougamau 25 cents to 5.00, Opemiska 20 cents to 9.15, Pine Point ¾ to 83¾, and Steep Rock five cents to 7.65.

Among uraniums, Rio Algom fell 1 to 19¾ and Preston, which owns more than 44 per cent of Rio, fell ¼ to 10¾. Denison slipped 1¼ to 39¼ and Roman Corp., which lists Denison as its main asset, was off 30 cents to 8.50.

In the industrial list, Atlantic Sugar, which Thursday increased its annual dividend rate by 20 cents, advanced 1 to 25. Moore Corp. was ahead ⅝ to 84¾, Canada Cem ⅝ to 61 and Oshawa Wholesale A ¼ to 28¼.

McIntyre Porcupine, which has extensive holdings in mining company stocks as well as being a gold producer, advanced 1¼ to 89¼ to lead golds higher.

On index, industrials were up .24 to 168.65, golds .44 to 152.01 and the TSE index .24 to 158.80. Base metals were off .70 to 95.28 and western oils .23 to 103.13. Volume was 2,519,000 shares compared with 2,482,000 Wednesday.

Will Ask Eastgate Owners To Accept Row Housing

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board will recommend to city council that it approve rezoning of four lots in Eastgate subdivision to allow erection of eight low cost housing units, if no objections are received from property owners in the area.

The board decided at its regular meeting on Thursday night to query informally the four or five property owners affected, instead of holding a public hearing on the issue. The move was made in order to speed up the Ontario Municipal Board's approval of the city's new By zoning by-laws. Areas zoned R4 can be used for one purpose only — multiple dwelling row houses.

Mayor Jack Ellis told the board that the OMB refuses to approve the city's new housing by-laws until the Planning Board recommends area rezoning of the Eastgate property. January 1, 1966, is the date set for completion of the row houses by the sponsors, the Ontario Housing Commission and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. If the public hearing is waived, the city hopes to get construction underway several weeks earlier than expected, Maurice H. Robins Construction Ltd. will build the units.

In answer to a question from board chairman Dr. J. S. Barlow, P. J. Beavis, planning director, said his staff considers the Eastgate rezoning a wise move. The aim of the sponsors of the low cost housing is to get more housing types evenly spread throughout the city.

Mr. Beavis reported that efforts to control the development of 20 lots in the McDonnell subdivision, east of Farley Avenue, and prevent installation of septic tanks was defeated by the sale of the lots by the original owner to individuals. Council tabled a by-law, recommended by the Planning Board, to de-subdivide the property. In the meantime, piecemeal sale of the property to individuals nullified council's intent.

Bureaucratic jargon used in notices sent to property owners was attacked by Mayor Ellis. He called for simple, everyday English in letters sent out by the board. In one case, a university-educated housewife, a chartered accountant and high school principal failed to grasp the meaning of the notice from the board, he said. They thought they had received an official summons.

"If the confusion is compounded as the recipient's degree of education increases, how can the average man understand our notices?" asked the mayor.

Milk Sales Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Milk sales through commercial channels amounted to 125,000,000 quarts in August, an increase of four per cent from a year earlier, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The DBS figures covered commercial sales of milk in standard, special and two-per-cent grades, but not including skim milk, buttermilk, or chocolate drink.

Questions Answered by Robert Temple

TRENTON — Last night Liberal candidate Robert Temple told a capacity crowd of party workers here that the good times enjoyed by all the people of Canada were the result of responsible government at Ottawa for the last two and a half years.

Afterwards in a question and answer period Mr. Temple explained Liberal policy with respect to pensions for the aged. He assured them that provisions would be made for senior citizens in deserving instances to receive up to $125, while the basic pension would be continued at $75. "The plan our party intend to effect would provide benefits where they were most needed and at the same time save the taxpayers millions, he pointed out. He said he favored more consideration for the aged, explaining that he realized pensions would have to be adjusted as the cost of living continued to rise.

In reply to a question from the floor Mr. Temple answered, "To abolish the 11 per cent sales tax on building materials and production machinery at present would be harmful to Trenton industry.

D. R. Fraser, president of the local association, with Charles Hilton, vice-president, welcomed candidate Temple on arrival and presided during the meeting.

1966 Volkswagen owners are going to get a big kick out of this.

The new Volkswagen has a bigger engine.

It's about 20% more powerful than this year's model. So it accelerates much faster. And it doesn't get short-winded on long hills any more.

Surprisingly enough, our 1966 engine doesn't drink any more gas than the old one did. Volkswagen owners will still get around 38 miles to the gallon. The only difference is that they'll get them faster from now on.

In case you think we've just gone power mad, we'd like to make it clear that the engine isn't the only thing that's new about the 1966 Volkswagen.

For instance, we've also put in a new, thermostatically-controlled heater booster to keep VW owners warmer in winter. We've fitted safety locks to the front seat backs so they won't tip forward when the car brakes quickly. And we've added a four-way emergency flasher to make night stops less hazardous.

There are some other new features, too, but we're saving those to show you when you come in.

One last thing. Some people thought we'd changed the shape of our car this year. They needn't have worried. It's still pretty difficult to tell a 1966 Volkswagen from a 1965 or even a 1955.

Unless you're driving it, that is.

Legion Auxiliary Holds Autumn Bazaar, Tea

A successful bazaar and tea was held in Legion Hall on Wednesday afternoon. The room was attractively decorated with large sprays of autumn leaves and pine cones, interspersed with hanging wicker horns of plenty filled with yellow and bronze mums. The tables echoed the theme with garlands of orange streamers and autumn leaves.

Receiving the guests were president Betty Hodge and Comrade Dorothy Rashotte, convener of the tea.

MANY BOOTHS

The candy table with its attractive floral centrepiece was convened by Comrade Dorothy Purdy, who also had a prettily dressed doll, made by Mrs. Helm. The lucky winner of this was Mrs. H. G. Harrigan. Next was the country store, full of homemade jams and relishes and other groceries, presided over by Comrade Mrs. Hall. The apron and novelty table, always a great attraction for those looking for Christmas gifts, was soon sold out. Comrade Edna Semark and Comrade Kay Clark took care of this table.

The home baking table, full of colorful and mouth-watering goodies, was well patronized and ably convened by Comrade Rhea Dennis. Comrade Annabel Hardwick took care of the white elephant table, with all its various novelties and jewellery.

After touring the hall, visitors were invited to the tea-room, with its quartet tables centred with flower and cake holders, each plate filled with tempting sandwiches and cakes.

RUSSET YELLOW DECOR

The serving table was very attractive with its silver service, a floral centrepiece of yellow and russet mums, and yellow candles in silver candlesticks.

Pouring tea were Comrade Bradford and Comrade Beam. Replenishing the plates was Comrade Lillian Cumsings, while in the kitchen Comrades Hazel McGuire and Inez Bolger took care of the tea.

A beautiful hand - knitted bedspread was drawn for and the winner was Mrs. W. G. Hiles of Charles Street. This special project was convened by Comrade Chalk.

Brides Usually Buy Brands Preferred by Their Husbands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Who wins out when young newlyweds disagree on what to buy in the supermarket? The bride usually gives in and buys the brand her husband prefers, says a study presented to the annual meeting of the National Association of Food Chains.

The study delved into the shopping habits of the 57,000, 20 - 30 - year - olds who included a hard look at the buying practices of newlyweds who have an average weekly food budget of $20.43.

The new bride as a shopper, the report said, is "serious, studious, value-minded, uncertain, responsive, appreciative and prudent."

About two-thirds of brands purchased are the same as husband prefers, the study said, but "when bride and groom disagree—the bride usually surrenders and buys the brand her husband prefers."

Other findings:

—Upper-income families buy more than three times as much frozen food and six times as much frozen baked goods as low-income families. They also are less likely to try new products, less influenced in food stamps and buy more than four times as much colored toilet tissue as white.

—Trade stamps are most important to blue-collar families, who spend a greater portion of their incomes on food than any other group. This group is also most loyal to its supermarkets.

—Small - town families are very attentive to specials, read markets regularly and spend much less than city groups on meat and produce.

Anniversary Celebrated

A happy event took place Sunday evening, October 17, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Berle Summers, R.R. 7 Belleville, on the occasion of the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Hannah, Corbyville.

Mr. and Mrs. Summers and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hannah were co-hosts and hostesses at a turkey dinner at the home of their parents. It was attended by members and close friends of the family. Guests were present from St. Catharines, Toronto, Colborne, Brighton, Kingston and Foxboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Homan were taken by surprise and received greetings and congratulations by wire from Halifax, N.S. and by telephone from Barrington, N.S. and Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Later in the evening about 50 relatives and friends called at the same home. A pleasant social evening passed quickly and the hostesses, assisted by the younger guests, served tasty refreshments including wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Homan, who celebrate on the 5th concession of Thurlow, were married October 17, 1925 at Magog, Quebec. They have three daughters, Muriel Linder of Toronto; Luella Campbell of Barrington, N.S., and Kathleen Summers of R.R. 7, Belleville and one son Harold of Corbyville. There are six grandchildren. The happy couple were the recipients of many gifts.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The regular October meeting of the Women of the Moose was held in Moose Hall with Sr. Regent Nellie Scrymgour presiding. One candidate, Mrs. Forestell was enrolled into the defending circle.

A report was given on the convention held in Ottawa where a number of co-workers and brothers of L.O.O.M. were present.

A Hallowe'en party and pot-luck supper will be held for both lodge and chapter on their friends. As this is an open meeting parents can bring their children.

After the meeting, an auction sale was held and Ida Lake acted as auctioneer.

The draw on the blanket was won by Alma Haley, 24 Graham Street.

The Penny Bingo will start again on October 27 and the prizes will be increased.

Pearl Welch and her committee served lunch.

Church Groups

LITTLE HELPERS

DESERONTO — The Little Helpers group of St. Mark's was entertained by the Senior W.A. of the church on October 16.

The Little Helpers, who range in age from babies to six-year-olds, with their mothers, attended a candlelight service in the church, during which Reverend Dowdell told a story and singing was also enjoyed.

After the service the guests were welcomed to the Sunday School hall where the W.A. had prepared games and lunch.

Sorority Conducts Model Meet

The October meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter was in the form of a model meeting, to which prospective new Sorority members were invited.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Allaneen Murray, and Gamma Mu members were pleased to welcome Mrs. Beverly Deacon, Mrs. Ruth Owen, Miss Dorothy Findlay, Mrs. Cathy McPherson, Mrs. Marg Anderson and Mrs. Ardelle Orr, transfer from Pre-Lindsay" as their guests for the evening.

Mrs. Nancy Clarey, in charge of the cultural program for the evening introduced the guest speaker, Miss Naomi Hoare. Naomi is the present speech therapist for the Bay of Quinte Region in Belleville, and her topic for the evening's discussion was Speech Therapy. Everyone present enjoyed Miss Hoare's knowledgeable presentation.

Gamma Mu president, Mrs. Barbara Baird, announced that the annual scholarship, given by Gamma Mu Chapter of Eta Sigma Phi, had been won this year by Heidi Ann Mungrove. The scholarship will be presented at the BCIVS annual fall convocation.

During the evening the chapter members joined in extending thank-yous to Mrs. Allaneen Murray, who very graciously presented the chapter with a lovely white linen tablecloth, to be used for chapter rituals in the future.

To conclude the evening's business and social get-together, refreshments prepared by Mrs. Dorothy Reaves, Miss Elizabeth Black and Mrs. Allaneen Murray were enjoyed by members and guests.

The September meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter of Eta Sigma Phi Sorority was held at the home of Mrs. Anne Davey. Brief reports were given from the various committees, outlining the chapter's roster for the coming season.

Miss Elizabeth Black presented an informative and interesting cultural program, the subject of which was music.

Following the program refreshments were served by the hostess, and co-hostesses, Mrs. Chris Bodley and Mrs. Jane McNicol.

Mrs. Anne Davey was the delighted recipient of the evening's raffle—a garden basket of fresh vegetables.

VON Reports Number of Visits Down

The October meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held at the YMCA on Monday evening under the direction of the president, Mrs. J. E. Nalles. The treasurer requested leave of absence for three months because of personal commitments.

A letter from Mr. R. E. Folwell disclosed that the charter of incorporation is now on file in his office. Preliminary plans were made for the annual dinner and business meeting to be held some time in early February.

Miss Dorothy Connor in her nursing report showed that 461 home visits were made during September, 136 fewer than were made during the same month last year. Maternal and infant care calls remained the same, but there was a considerable decrease in health supervision calls as opposed to September of 1964. The Victorian Order of Nurses is a member agency of the United Appeal.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID WESLEY KINGSTON

Kingston – Chisholm

Rev. A. S. McConnell officiated at the ceremony in St. Thomas Church, Belleville, on Saturday, October 16, 1965, at 3:00 p.m., when Carolyn Margaret Chisholm of Point Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon A. Chisholm, was united in marriage to David Wesley Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kingston of Belleville.

The pianist, Mr. John Withers accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Richard Collier, cousin of the bride, who sang two selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor length gown of silk organza, featuring a Chantilly lace bodice with scalloped necklines and long lily point sleeves. Her Chantilly lace scalloped bandlace was caught in the front with a Chantilly lace rose. Her ten foot train of organza and scalloped lace was attached at the shoulders with two organza bows.

Her headpiece a crown of sequins, organza and seed pearls, held her silk illusion tiered shoulder length veil. She carried a bouquet of a large white orchid surrounded by yellow baby roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Peggy Hull, maid of honour, and the bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Jacob and Miss Gloria Green, cousins of the bride, Miss Judy Hall, and junior bridesmaid, Miss Bonnie Green, cousin of the bride, were gowned alike in floor length dresses of aqua organza over taffeta, featuring Chantilly lace bodices and lace covered skirts ending in scallopes down the back. All wore matching crown headpieces of sequins and seed pearls with aqua veils, and carried crescent shaped bouquets of yellow mums, ivy, and gold and white grapes.

The flower girls, Miss Donna Marie Sinclair and Miss Darlene Dempsey, were gowned alike in floor length dresses of aqua organza over taffeta with lace trim and large taffeta bows at the back. They wore matching headdresses of taffeta and lace and each carried a gold and white basket of yellow and white mums.

Mr. Tony Savage was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Fred Phillips, Mr. Perry Ellis, Mr. Allan Colden and Mr. Peter Green. The ringbearers were Gordon Green and Stephen Kingston.

At the reception, held at St. Thomas Parish Hall, the bride's mother greeted the guests, wearing a pink silk crepe dress with three-quarter lace coat, matching accessories and a corsage of deep pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a three-piece green and black wool suit with green and black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For her wedding trip to New York City the bride chose a two-piece red knit suit trimmed in white, black accessories, a white fur cape and a white orchid corsage.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Kingston will live at Burlington, Ontario.

BALLET CLEARS RED

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Royal Winnipeg Ballet has shown a profit for the first time in its 23-year history. The ballet had an operating surplus of $2,236 for the 1964-65 season and was able to reduce its accumulated debts to $40,683 from $64,000.

Ann Landers
Should Tell Child Suicide Accidental

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Three weeks ago my wife died from an overdose of sleeping pills. I knew she was unhappy and unwell, but I had no idea she wanted to kill herself.

What shall I tell our two children? They are five and three years of age. It's hard enough to explain a mother's natural death to youngsters but how does one explain suicide?

I want to tell them their mommy was sick and God took her away. My mother-in-law insists I tell them the truth. She says if I don't it will confuse them they will find out later and it could cause serious problems. Please give me some guidance. — TORTURED.

DEAR TORTURED: This is your decision, not your mother-in-law's and I hope she will allow you to handle it in your own way.

Very young children understand a great deal more than most adults give them credit for. A five-year-old is able to comprehend death and the three-year-old will get the idea sooner than you think.

Tell them Mommy took the wrong medicine and it made her very sick and God called her to heaven. Whenever possible it is best to let the children believe a parent's suicide was accidental.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In 1961 our daughter married a man whom I call "Mom" and "Dad" (they raised me) to spend two weeks with us every November and Thanksgiving. I know they look forward to it all year. Our children adore them and even our friends and neighbors have taken "Mom and Dad" to their hearts.

My husband resents these wonderful folks. When I ask him why, he simply says, "I can't stand old people. They are boring and tiresome."

My in-laws are cold and uncommunicative. I've written them several times and invited them to visit us. They give me a chilly, "Oh, thank you." His whole family is like that, the only time they get together is at funerals.

Last night our children began to discuss plans for entertaining "Mom" and "Dad." My husband was more critical and unpleasant than ever. What shall I say to him? — MUCH DISTRESSED.

DEAR DISTRESSED: Save your pipes. Nothing you say will make any difference.

Unfortunately your husband never had a decent relationship with his own family and he can't understand yours. Ask him if he would like someone to shoot him when it reaches his fiftieth birthday to make sure he doesn't become "boring and tiresome."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It think it is simply disgraceful the way people write and call you a crummy old bat and a miserable old witch.

If they have such a poor opinion of you why do they write for advice? It seems to me that they can't face up to their weaknesses and they don't want to hear the truth about themselves. When you give them your honest opinion, and it doesn't agree with what they want to hear, they get mad at you and call you names.

I think it's time someone wrote and told you how much they appreciate your wit and wisdom. You deserve a medal reading all that mail and coming up with such wonderful advice — day after day and year after year. Your column is a must in our family. The day wouldn't be complete without it. You are as sound as the Liberty Bell. — CANADIAN ADMIRER.

DEAR ADMIRER: I think I ought to tell you the Liberty Bell is cracked. Are you trying to tell me something?

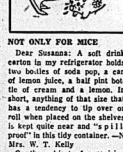
ALL LADIES INVITED



NOT ONLY FOR MICE

Dear Susanna: A soft drink carton in my refrigerator holds two bottles of soda pop, a can of lemon juice, a half pint bottle of cream and a lemon. In short, anything of that size that has a tendency to tip over or roll when placed on the shelves is kept quite near and "spill-proof" in this tidy container. — Mrs. W. T. Kelly

On the subject of organizing the refrigerator — meat minders and vegetable crispers are common, but every cheese-eating family should also have a special spot where one can check cheeses.

If you don't already have a cheese-keeper, a glass loaf pan is just the right size and shape. It doesn't occupy much room and will hold a good variety of small packages as well as bottles of spreads. Cheese is not only nice for mice, its perfect for people. Nutritious too. — Susanna

WALL WASHING WONDER

Dear Susanna: The washable wallpaper that covers the upper half of our bathroom washes beautifully, except that it is difficult to clean the line between the wall and the ceiling.

An old paint brush dipped in soapy water and a little cleaning powder proved to be just the ticket for this job. — "Keeps House and Likes It"

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.)

IODE Will Keep Name In Ontario

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The Ontario chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire wants the group to keep its name.

The national executive currently is circulating a questionnaire in all chapters to get the feeling of all chapters on a possible name change.

Mrs. W. B. Morrison of Hamilton, provincial president, told the chapter's annual meeting Thursday the ultimate decision would be left to the national executive.

Mrs. J. Neil Gordon of Toronto, national president, said a name change would require an act of Parliament.

Mrs. Gordon also said should the IODE ever be classified as a charitable organization, "people would be more anxious to leave us a legacy if they knew the estate would not have to pay tax on what they give us."

Delegates also voted to ask the national executive to allow women who joined the order after the Second World War to wear service bars on the IODE badge. Current ruling restricts the bars to women who were members during the war.

Mrs. R. J. Skippon of Sarnia, the chapter's world affairs secretary, told the meeting the humanistic objectives of the order are difficult to achieve. However, while pursuit of peace and unity presents a great challenge "progress can be made if we take small steps from time to time."

CLUB 4-H NOTES

ALBURY 4-H CLUB

The fourth meeting of the Albury 4-H Club was held on Monday at the home of Mrs. N. Peck, with eight members present.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Debra Weese.

Purse clasps were distributed and plans for achievement day were discussed.

Storage, care and the correct type of hats and shoes were discussed as well as what type of hat suits each individual.

The next meeting will be held on Nov. 6 at the home of Miss V. Conners. Home economist Miss W. Woof expects to be able to attend this meeting.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

On Tuesday evening a number from the Albury community gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Osterhout in honor their daughter, Helen, and her husband, Lorne Yeaton, at a community shower.

Mrs. Eva Wesse read the card signed by William Rosenwasser and Elvin Higgins, on behalf of the community. The young couple were presented with a floor polisher and an electric kettle, for which they expressed sincere thanks. Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

On Friday night several from the community held a chertary in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Teakey at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Osterhout.

Before her recent marriage, Mrs. David Wesley Hodgins (the former Carolyn Margaret Chisholm of Point Anne) was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by her aunt, Mrs. Arthur Colden, at her home with Miss Brenda Colden as hostess, at a personal shower given by her maid of honor, Miss Peggy Hall at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Horwood with Mrs. Horwood, Miss Dorothy Jacob and Miss Judy Hall as hostesses; at a community shower given at the Parish Hall in Point Anne, and at a rehearsal supper given by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. John Kingston, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Kingston. A farewell party was given for the bridegroom by Mr. Gordon Green. Mr. Perry Ellis and Mr. Allan Colden at the Parish Hall, Point Anne at which time a presentation was made.

Princess Becomes Centre Of Mild Union Dispute

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret Thursday became the centre of a mild jurisdictional dispute between two unions.

The Queen's younger sister is to open the new $20,000,000 building of the Birmingham Post and Mail Tuesday by starting the presses. A spokesman for the National Society of Operative Printers and Assistants (Natsopa) said she should be made a member of their union since only union members can start the presses.

But Thursday John Bonfield, joint secretary of the National Graphical Association (NGA), said only members of his union are qualified to start rotary presses.

"The only people who have the right to start up rotary printing presses are the machine managers, members of our union," said Bonfield.

"They are the people who are in charge of the presses, and there is the responsibility for the printing of newspapers in this country."

MAKE NO ISSUE

"Thus, it can be said that if Princess Margaret needs to hold any union card it should be ours. However, as far as we are concerned, Princess Margaret can turn on the presses with pleasure. We'll make no issue of it."

"This is very childish and silly," said Jack Perry, secretary of the other union's Birmingham branch. "Of course, the machine managers are in charge—but they do not start the presses. This is done by our members.

"Technically, for the job she will be doing, Princess Margaret should be to our union, but it is quite right to say that in handing on the presses she should be working under the supervision of the NGA.

"I think the NGA people must be a bit jealous because we are having a royal member and they are not."

Poverty Said Not Chief Cause of Drop-outs

TORONTO (CP) — Despite popular belief, poverty isn't the chief cause of school drop-outs, Prof. Louis Cervenetes of St. Louis, Mo. said Thursday in an address to the National Council on Family Relations.

He said a recent study showed that drop-outs came from families with a high incidence of divorce, desertion, delinquency and "drop-outs among the drop-out's family friends."

Prof. Cervenetes and the schools twice provided topics at the opening sessions of the council's five-day meeting here.

Dr. Morey Appel and Dr. Clara Appel, a husband and wife team from the School of Indiana State University, told about experiments they conducted to change the attitudes of some school teachers who showed prejudice against poor persons and racial minorities in their classes.

The Appels told how they evolved techniques for teacher influencing and re-testing attitudes of teachers. The aim was to make teachers aware of their own attitudes and the needs of others.

Two groups of teacher who underwent the Appels' "sensitivity-training program" had a complete change of heart, the scientists said.

WOMEN DISRUPTIVE

In another discussion, Dr. Martin Goldberg of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, said the changing role of the woman is a major cause of family disruption.

"Psychiatrists, psychologists and counselors all over our country are struck by the number of married couples they deal with in which the wife seems to be the dominant, aggressive partner, while the husband is relatively weak and passive," Dr. Goldberg said.

He said women have moved from a well-defined role of housewife and mother to the "shifting, multi-faceted role of women today."

Mad Hatters Surpass All Other Marks

By PEGGY MASSION

PARIS (Reuters)— The only inconspicuous hat in Paris this winter is the old fez.

French millinery traditionally evokes flights of fancy but this year the mad hatters have surpassed all previous records.

There are inspired or exact copies of everything, from the astronaut's helmet to Italian and retrospective art nouveau. There are Greek warrior's helmets, Chinese pagodas and ecclesiastical biretas.

There are hats on the millinery designers' version of feminine headgear destined for celestial travel, in a dominant iridescence everywhere.

A "square bead" turns up in the Parisian designs and Dogaro collection, with fat-crowned, oblong-shaped hoods and cagoules.

Balenciaga does the same in velvet worn over a tiny matching fur p'Doux.

STRESSES HOODS

Louis Feraud stresses fabric hoods lined with fur or leather while Christian Dior shows exotic evening cagoules of flattering rainbow bead ostrich plumes.

Hubert de Givenchy keeps the old propeller aircraft flying with formal hats contrived of two-foot-wide blades of black tulle super-imposed on the crown of the head.

Pierre Cardin makes a festival of the stiff academic mortarboard hat, worn uncompromisingly straight down on the forehead.

Lanvin gives an oriental twist to the kerchief hat by adding a fringed shawl hanging down the back. Other versions are draped softly at the nape of the neck to form a mobile background for a pretty neck and face.

Shoplifting By Teeners On Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Shoplifting offences by juveniles, particularly teen-aged girls, are on the increase in Ontario, two executive members of the provincial Federation of Women's and Family Court Judges said Thursday.

Judge H. C. Arrell of Hamilton, the association's president, and Judge J. C. McKnight of Ottawa told reporters youthful shoplifters are among the most frequent offenders coming before juvenile courts.

"Girls are the most frequent shoplifters because they are attracted to such things as lipstick, clothes and jewelry openly displayed in stores and most easily stolen," said Judge Arrell.

Most of the shoplifting is not premeditated but is done on impulse, the two judges said. Average age of the offenders is between 14 and 15.

The judges were interviewed at the beginning of the association's 14th annual convention, which holds its main session today.

. . . I look forward to seeing your recipes every day. Would you have a recipe for Best Jam? I have plenty of beets. Mrs. A. J. M.

ANSWER:

I have a Beet Conserve. Would that help?

BEET CONSERVE?

Wash well and peel beets. Grind or cut into fine strips. You need 2 lbs. Add to them 3 lbs. sugar, ½ cup water, and 3 thinly sliced lemons. Cook slowly, stirring frequently until syrup begins to thicken. Then add 2 cups chopped pecans and about ¼ cup chopped crystallized ginger. Cook until of consistency desired but not more than 20 minutes. Pour in* jam jars and seal with paraffin.

LETTER:

. . . noticed your request for Honeymoon Salad for Anne C. S. Am enclosing one we use in this area, called by various names, sometimes Ambrosia: (courtesy Marjorie C.) 1 cup dairy sour cream, 1 cup small or cut large marshmallows, 1 cup cocoanut (angel flake recommended), 1 cup crushed (or Uddit) pineapple drained. 1 cup mandarin oranges, drained, ½ cup cut seedless green grapes (if available), ½ cup cut maraschino cherries- Blend all, refrigerate overnight. May be served in sherbet glasses, or used as filling for a pie or layer cake. Marjorie C.

ANSWER:

Thank you Marjorie and all others who responded to my S.O.S. for the recipe for Honeymoon Salad for Anne C. S. You are real pals.

QUESTION:

Would you have a recipe for Ginger Chicken? . . . It has a tasty glazed ginger flavored sauce over it . . . Florence E. M.

ANSWER:

I think it is either Chicken Kowshway or Burmese Chicken Curry you are after. Kowshway calls for milk from 2 coconuts and fresh ginger and is served on fine egg noodles. Toe Burmese Curry calls for powdered ginger and turmeric — see below.

BURMESE CHICKEN CURRY:

12 serving-size pieces of chicken, 3 large onions sliced, ¾ clove of garlic chopped, ¼ teaspoon turmeric, about 1 cup cooking oil, salt, accent, 1½ teaspoons powdered ginger, 2½ tablespoons paprika, 20-oz. can V-8 or tomato juice, 1½ tablespoons tomato paste.

Fry chicken in oven pieces, sprinkle them moderately with salt and accent and rub these into the meat and let stand ½ hour. Heat oil in heavy saucepan or frying pan and add onions and cook until until transparent — not brown. Add garlic, spices and liquids, bring to boil and add chicken. Cover and simmer until chicken is tender. Serve with rice.

Any more of you are curious about the Chicken Kowshway write again and I will mail it to you.

Bashful Beau Begs For Dating Advice

DEAR DORIS: There's this girl who graduated with me last June. I wanted to ask her to go with me to the graduation affair but I was too shy and by the time I got up enough courage she had accepted an offer from another guy. She said that she would have gone with me had I asked her soon enough.

Ever since then I've been wanting to ask her for a date but I don't know how to go about it. She lives a little ways from me and we used to ride home together sometimes but now she goes to University and I work in an office. Hence we very seldom see each other now.

One of the major problems is she drives and I don't. My father has now consented for me to get my driving licence and I ash now taking lessons.

What I want to know is how to go about asking her? I'm shy and don't know what to say. What about the car matter? I feel stupid about her having to drive. What can you suggest? — MILQUETOAST.

* * *

DEAR MILQUETOAST: What would she have to do? Leap into your arms?

Go to the phone, dial her number, and talk to her. Have in mind a special place to go, and invite her to come with you a definite evening about four days ahead. If you can't drive yet, take her on a bus. It's as simple as that.

If she likes you she won't hold out for a limousine and chauffeur.

The Shape of Things

Puffing down the right wing,
A group of ragged hockey players
Showing they are deft.

Now the season's open
And things are moving slow,
It's time for summer paunches
To pick right up and go.

It's time to start the action,
It's time to get in trim.
And after months of loafing,
The task is pretty grim.

Puff . . . gasp . . . ugh!
Sounds like a movie fight between Tonto and Black Spade Sam. But it's not.

Or it could be the Old '99 making its last run through Last Gasp Pass.

And it is not a bird, a plane or a superman — especially not a superman.

It is the sound of hockey players, or, if you prefer, of fellows playing at hockey, who are getting into shape after cleverly spending the summer months doing a great job of getting out of shape.

And speaking of shape, there are all kinds — tall and thin (gaspers); short and fat (puffers); tall and fat (ughers); and short and thin (they are usually in good shape, but because they are small they provide leaning facilities for the others.)

If you have never seen a group of men gather with the purpose of forming a hockey team, then you are missing something.

Word goes out that there will be a practice. When the word is heard, the rusty skates, moth-eaten uniforms and musty equipment are dragged out of their summer hibernation area. There is a mad rush for the store to buy a hockey stick and tape, and the skate sharpener has a real bonanza.

Then comes practice time. The herd gathers in the dressing room. Reminiscences of last year's performances fly left and right.

"Remember that time I hit Jones when he had his head down? Boy, did he ever fly."

"Yeah, almost as far as you did."

The grunting begins when the boys have most of their gear on and are bending over to pull on their skates. First spare tires must be carefully lifted up and positioned delicately to allow more freedom of movement. Then the breath must be held in order to bring the stomach in just that little bit more — it is that little bit that makes the difference whether you reach your shoes or whether you holler for the coach to do up your skates for you.

Now that the boys are all tired out from putting on their equipment, the coach, merciless fellow that he is, yells, "Okay you guys. Out on the ice."

Once out on the ice, it is stops and starts . . . grunts and groans . . . skate around the rink . . . fast . . . slow . . . gasp . . . other way around . . .

"Have a heart coach! . . . one more time.

After this has transpired, the aspiring hockey players are usually lying down by the end boards breathless, when coach yells, (he is always yelling), "Scrimmage. Jones, Smith, White, Brown, Randallwriter . . . "

"It's Randebroiter sir."

"No excuses. Down to the other end. Play defence Jones."

"But coach . . . "

"Defence."

"What about my goal pads?"

"Oh, alright then, get in the goal. Be quick about it."

Scrimmage goes along as smoothly as a county road. The one fellow who happens to be in relatively good condition looks like a superstar.

Coach sits on the bench watching his charges and singing the coaches' refrain to the tune of "I've got a lovely bunch of coconuts."

"I've got a lovely bunch of hockey players.
There they are a-skating 'round the ice.
Big ones, small ones,
Most with an empty head.
Give them a check, and the bunch of old wrecks,
They all fall dead."

Scrimmage finished, "Okay you guys, around we go." (He should be so cheerful — why not, he is sitting down.)

That, in essence, is hockey practice. Every team has them. They get easier with each one, but after that first one, it is hard to move for a week.

You are forced to use air cushions whenever you sit down. And before you knock air cushions, wait a minute. Just because there is nothing in them is no reason why they cannot be useful.

Wouldn't you know it? My skate lace just broke again and here I am on a breakaway.

Sunday School Lesson

Need Men of Courage

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

In one of his poems, the late Edgar A. Guest tells about a youth who was told that a certain thing could not be done. The youth replies that maybe it can't but he will not say so till he has tried. This was the spirit of Caleb and Joshua when the people of Israel faced the dilemma of whether to continue a barren existence in the wilderness, or to run the risk of going forward into the fertile, but inhabited, area of Canaan. If, as someone has suggested, an optimist is a person who sees an opportunity in every difficulty, and a pessimist is one who sees a difficulty in every opportunity, these two men were optimists, but their optimism was founded on confidence and faith.

Caleb and Joshua were among the 12 sent out by Moses to scout out the land of Canaan. They were to feel out its strength and weaknesses, to see whether the cities were nomadic camps of fortified strongholds, whether the land was rich or poor, and whether there was wood with which to build. (Numbers 13:17 - 20 RSV).

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 24: "Caleb," Numbers 13:1 through 14:38; Joshua 14:6-15; 15: 13-19.

All 12 came back with enthusiastic reports concerning the fertility of the land. They, however, added a word of discouragement. "The people who dwell in the land are strong, and the cities are fortified and very large." (Numbers 13:28 RSV).

Caleb and Joshua submitted a minority report. "Let us go up at once," they advised, "and occupy it; for we are well able to overcome it." (Numbers 13: 30 RSV). But the other ten were fearful. "The land," they added, "is a land that devours its inhabitants; and all the people that we saw in it are men of great stature." (Numbers 13; 32 RSV).

The people were swayed by the fears of the ten. In discouragement and panic, they actually said, "Let us choose a captain, and go back to Egypt." (Numbers 14:4 RSV). They would choose the certainty of slavery rather than the uncertain risks that lay ahead.

GOING BACK NOT ANSWER

There are still those who would turn back to the supposed security of other days. "Let us go back," they say, "to the good old days." But back to what? Back to the days of limited medical knowledge? Back to a 10 or 12 hour work day? Back to slow transportation and communication? Back to the injustices of a completely segregated society? The answer is not to go back, but to go forward, confident that, great as the problems are, we can match and overcome them.

Nor can we stand still. The world is full of people who stop half way to their goal. If Edison had been such a person, we might never have had the electric light. Edison's success was due not only to his genius, but to his determination to see his project through. Scientist advised against it. The search to find a metal that could serve as a filament was a long one. After trying seven hundred metals and fibres that didn't work, he was advised to give up. "We have tried seven hundred things," a fellow worker is said to have complained, "and haven't found out a thing." "We have found out seven hundred things," a fellow worker is said son is said to have replied, and kept on until he found tungsten would work.

Caution has its place. It is foolish to leap before looking. That is why Moses was careful to spy out the land. But having seen the problems, he could begin to plot his strategy. Had they listened to Caleb and Joshua, the people may not have been able to go all the way, but at least they would have gone part way out of the terrible wilderness.

Of course, there were risks. There always are. But the alternative was 40 miserable years in the wilderness until a new generation could be raised that would venture forth. There are risks today in co-existence with communist nations, but the alternative is atomic war, and who wants to run that risk?

What the church and the free world need today are men of adventurous spirit. Men of faith need to match the adventurous spirit of science that has carried us into outer space. Caleb and Joshua had courage because they had faith. "If the Lord delights in us," they said, "He will bring us into this land and give it to us". (Numbers 14 8 RSV). They believed they had more than sufficient manpower. They had a cause blessed by the Lord. They believed He would see them through if they went forward with trust in Him.

Supreme Court Will Be Asked To Declare Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a rare legal move, the federal government has asked the United States Supreme Court to declare constitutional the controversial provisions of the voting rights law.

The justice department urged the court to stop what it called efforts of three southern states —Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi — to obstruct enforcement of the new law.

Because of the importance of the case—and in order to assure a final decision before primary elections in the three states next spring and summer —Attorney - General Nicholas Katzenback asked the Supreme Court Thursday to assert original jurisdiction.

MINISTERS TO MEET

BONN (AP)—Defence ministers of the Atlantic Alliance are planning to meet in Paris Nov. 25 to work out a new plan for sharing NATO nuclear defence, a usually reliable West German source said Thursday. The plan could open the way to a treaty with the Russians on halting the spread of nuclear weapons, eagerly sought by the United States and Britain.

Marlbank Calcium and Chloride Ltd. have negotiated for a 62-acre tract of marl deposit property from Marlbank postmaster James Waite but the firm is also interested in other properties in the same area.

Mr. Temple assisted the firm in their location arrangement by setting up meetings with owners.

After the closing of the old cement plant at Marlbank, marl was transported for some years to Point Anne for use in cement making. During the wartime operation the marl was trucked to Deseronto for shipment by boat.

But the new operation to be commenced by Marlbank Calcium and Chloride will see a processing plant erected on the site.

In preparation for the plant construction a bulldozer has been in operation, levelling a field on the site, and the announcement today was that construction would start next week.

The marl quarrying itself would be an open pit mining operation, it was stated.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — The Lawn Bowling Club held their annual meeting at the Club House on Tuesday evening, October 19th. Pds to the absence of club president, Delbert Hickson, the meeting was conducted by vice-president Ralph Locke.

Secretary, H. J. Taylor reported a successful financial year, the statement showing a balance on hand of $213.39. Five open tournaments had been held during the year.

A. J. Meyers reporting for local championships stated the Ross Douglas Trophy had been competed for, winners being James Dikun and partner Mrs. H. Mathison. The trophy was presented with a prize of a desk set pen.

Runners up in the Douglas Trophy awards G. H. Free and partner, Eleanor Douglas, also A. Larcombe and partner, Lillian Burgis received T. V. stools.

G. H. Free reported as a district delegate stated at the meeting one resolution had been passed and two proposals discussed. It was suggested each club in the district change one tournament to a mixed rink tournament to stimulate bowling for beginners, each rink must include one new bowler. It was was also hoped that one more Saturday tournament be included in the Campbellford programme in addition to the one Saturday bowling now incorporated in the schedule.

OFFICERS ELECTED

It was agreed that 1965 district officers carry on for another year.

G. H. Free conducted the election of officers resulting in the following: honorary president, Ross Douglas; president R. J. Locke; 1st vice president, James Dikun; secretary-treasurer, H. J. Taylor.

Committee chairmen, Greens and Property — Charles Wickens; H. J. Hughes; J. Dikun.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate

"What's Your Problem ?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Readers, ashsm in state of shock, inquire why they are being held liable for a loss sustained on a property they sold many years ago. Most of them don't even know how they got into this desperate situation.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I read your column because I am in need by the people get into trouble and create problems for themselves. I never thought I would be one of them.

I bought a house with a V.A. guaranteed mortgage in 1955 and sold it in 1957. After eight years I had completely forgotten about the property. You can imagine my surprise when last week I received notice from the V.A. that the property had been foreclosed, a $2,400 loss had been sustained, and I was being held responsible.

Among other things I was told that my $60 per month servicecontract disability pension was now being applied against the debt. Why are they picking on me? I understand there have been three other owners of this property since me. What happened? — "No Longer Laughing"

ANSWER: If you had read the column for information and guidance rather than for laughs you would not now be $2,400 poorer. For years I have been preaching that a home owner should never sell his house and allow his mortgage, for which he is personally liable, to be transferred to the new owner without removing his liability. If the mortgage lender will not release him from personal liability, then he is better off making the new buyer get his own mortgage — even if it means taking a lower price for the house.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'll bet you won't print my letter because you are always favoring real estate brokers and lawyers.

I hate all professional people. They get their money the easy way, whereas people like myself have to work hard for a dollar. I especially dislike lawyers and real estate brokers.

When I sell my house can I do everything myself? I don't want a lawyer or broker getting any of my money. —" "Hard Worker"

ANSWER: Our institutions are designed to protect our freedoms and rights—and even allows an individual to make a fool of himself. There is no requirement that one be represented by an attorney or real estate broker when one sells his own property.

Anything that can be done through an attorney or broker, one has the freedom to do himself — even the freedom to mess up the deal. However, to protect the public, the law prohibits you from selling or handling the legal details for other people.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My salary is $120 per week and my husband's is $230 per week. If we purchase a home will my income be given recognition? The answer to this question is important for it will determine what price we will be able to pay.

I have been married for six years and have no children. Although I am only 26 I hold a very responsible position as a secretary. We do not plan a family and I intend continuing to work indefinitely. Will a mortgage lender recognize a combined income in calculating the ability to pay? — "Career Woman"

ANSWER: The policy of mortgage lenders varies, but generally until the woman is beyond the childbearing age, her income is not given consideration for a long term mortgage debt. This is one of the few instances in our society where an older woman has an advantage over a younger woman.

You will find that mortgage lenders will figure your credit capabilities for mortgage purposes almost exclusively on your husband's income. They have learned from experience that a 26-year-old lady, no matter how firmly resolved to be a career woman, often exercises her womanly privilege and changes her mind.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My brother-in-law, who knows everything, tells me that I can get a ranch house built for as little as $4 per square foot and that includes the cost of the lot. I was even shown a book that backs him up. He says it's all a matter of finding the right builder. If he is right it would solve all my problems or is it just another one of his half-brained ideas — "Must Build"

ANSWER: The book — were shown must have been published during the 1930's in the depths of the depression. Today, the price your brother-in-law quotes is applicable to a barn — not a ranch house.

Including a minimum priced lot, the cheapest price at which ranch houses are being delivered today is about $10 per square foot. A price of $12 to to $15 per square foot is a better guide for the typical ranch home with the lot included. Once you get beyond minimum specifications, in high - priced land areas or in high construction cost areas, then even the bench marks I have given you are no longer applicable.

Russian Prince Tells How He Poisoned, Shot Rasputin

NEW YORK (CP)—Russian Prince Felix Youssoupoff testified Wednesday in court how he and three other men poisoned and shot Rasputin on a snowy, winter night in 1916 but the Mad Monk still would not die.

The 79-year-old prince is suing the Columbia Broadcasting System for $1,500,000, asserting that a CBS film depicting the assassination was an invasion of privacy, shown in a "fictional way," and that the 30-minute television play "was given a sexual atmosphere."

The case is being heard before a jury of nine men and three women with state Supreme Court Justice Wilfred A. Waltemads presiding.

Also in court Wednesday was Princess Rina, whom the prince married in 1954, The Rasputin assassination took place two years later.

The former member of the Russian Romonov court said he shot Rasputin in the heart and liver, but the Mad Monk had enough strength left to try to strangle him.

The frail, 5 - year - old prince, answering questions from his lawyer in halting English, testified yesterday in his more - familiar French, a s i d Rasputin confessed to him that he was a spy for Germany.

Before Rasputin was poisoned and shot, "I tried to persuade him to leave St. Petersburg (now Leningrad)," the prince testified. "He told me he was a German agent and had to stay in St. Petersburg.

"I was astonished. I was reluctant."

RAN FROM CELLAR

The prince, the sole witness Wednesday said Rasputin finally died after he ran from the cellar dining room of the prince's palace and fell in the snow outside.

As Rasputin lay dying from the poison and two bullet wounds from the prince's pistol, another of the conspirators shot him again and this killed him, the prince said.

Rasputin, cons i d e r e d by members of the Romonov court to have supernatural powers, was invited to the prince's palace on the night he was assassinated in a plot "to get rid of him," he related.

In the cellar dining room, he was fed poisoned wine, tea and cakes, but he did not even look sick at first, the prince said.

"We decided to kill him with a revolver . . . we decided that I was the one who was going to use the pistol. Every one was astonished that he did not die."

After he had shot Rasputin, the Mad Monk fell down and appeared to be dying, the prince said. He went away and then came back a little later to find Rasputin still alive.

"He jumped at me and wanted to (the prince put his hands around his throat) . . . he bold me by the throat and wanted to kill me . . . I tried to fight."

FINALLY DIED

It was then that Rasputin ran out into the courtyard where he finally died. The prince said Rasputin's body was thrown into a river.

He said 10 days later he was arrested by the chief of police who first took him to a police station but later to a home that was "the property."

He added that two months later he left Russia permanently and went with his family to live in Paris.

The prince is expected to continue his testimony today.

Earlier, the prince insisted that his sole motive for killing Rasputin was his "distaste of Rasputin's debauchery."

Defence counsel, f o r m e r congressman H e r b e r t Zelenko, asked the prince: "Did you express as a motive for killing Rasputin your distaste for his debaucheries?

Answer: "Yes."

Question: "Did you expunge any other motives other than the one we just spoke of for killing Rasputin?"

Answer: "No."

The telecast, titled If I Should Die, was shown Jan. 2, 1962.

QUESTION ASKED

The prince also was asked whether he told Grand Duke Dmitri, one of the four plotters: "My wife is nobility, wealthy, beautiful, everything Rasputin desires among his feminine followers."

The prince said: "Never."

Counsel for CBS has said the TV program was educational, and also said the prince could not divorce himself from the "notoriety of fame" connected with Rasputin's death.

The defence also noted that the prince has written two books, published in 1927 and 1952, which described his role in ending the away of Rasputin over the car and cabins.

The princess, now in her 70s, is the daughter of Czar Nicholas II's eldest sister and is distantly related to the late King George V of England. The couple currently reside in Paris.

BRIDGE IS IN PERIL

London Bridge, the latest on the site (and built in 1831), is sinking one inch every eight years into the mud of the River Thames.

• BANDSMEN WANTED •

A full brass band is being formed by the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets. Young men between the ages of 14 and 19 who play a musical instrument are needed. 9 out of 10 demolition experts admit

Abitibi woodgrain panels are kid-proof

Fact is, none of these experts has a chance against an Abitibi Woodgrain panel. Thanks to Abitibi research, a super-tough surface coating protects the finish for a lifetime. No worry about scratches, fingerprints, crayon marks and the like. Common household stains clean with just a wipe of detergent. And there's never a need for waxing or finishing of any kind.

Installation is easy. Each 4' x 8' or 4' x 7' panel is V-grooved for authentic plank effect and concealed nailing. The cost? Much lower than you would expect (an 8' x 7' feature wall can be panelled for as little as $18.00!).
